RED LAKE FALLS GAZETTE, ESTABLISHED 1883
RED LAKE COURIER, ESTABLISHED 1898

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 7, 1909.

VOL. XXVI—NO. 15.

On December 14th last the city franchise of the Red Lake Falls Electric Light company expired. Some six weeks prior thereto, to-wit: On November 1st we submitted to the city council our proposition for renewal. We did so thus early, as we then stated that there might be sufficient time for investigation, comparison and discussion before the expiration of the franchise.

We were informed soon after our proposition was placed before the council that it was planned to hold a citizens meeting which, as we signified, would be agreeable to us.

We have since waited from time to time but as over two months have now elapsed the franchise having expired three weeks ago, and, as we understand, no action whatever having been taken by the city council on this matter nor any citizens meeting called for its discussion, as was suggested, that we have been informed of, we take this as the best means of placing the matter fairly before all our patrons and the taxpayers in general in order that there may be a correct understanding of our proposition.

We believe the fact is disputed by none that Red Lake Falls is enjoying and has had for years, efficient light service at prices so favorable to patrons either for city, street or private lighting as to challenge comparison with any town or city either under private or municipal ownership. Since the addition of our auxillary steam plant years ago at a heavy cost service has not been interrupted from any cause either by reason of the low stage of water which prevailed all this season (seriously crippling plants that depend on water power alone) nor the injury to our water power caused by the mill fire. Despite these and other serious obstacles our equipment is such as to enable us to supply our patrons without interruption. And we believe that our efforts and ability to render good service under such difficulties are quite generally appreciated. Space will not permit going into all the details. The schedule submitted for private lighting is practically the same as that filed five years ago with our letter of acceptance of franchise at that time. As to city lighting, we have submitted two propositions. The first being for the 19 street arc lights now in use at $75.00 per year and 32 c. p. incandescent street lights at $20.00 per year.

The second proposition being for a "sliding scale" so that if only say 12 arc street lamps are used the price will be $89.00 per year, for 15 arcs $84.00 and if the entire 19 are reached the price will be same as first named.

This is at a considerable less cost to the city than any place where our observation has extended. The net revenue to us is even considerable less than the amount named.

When considering this question of lighting a comparison with other cities is of interest and value and we therefore present a comparative schedule:

	Street lights 32 c. p. inc	Arc	Cost to City	Hours	Private lights 16 p. c. inc basis	Com arc
Argyle		6	$500	Midnight	1780	6
Fertile		5	$816	"	1125	2
Ada	56	6	$2000	1 a. m.
T R Falls		24	$1800	"	4900	46
Warren	24 & city hall	12	$1660	"	3000	10
Fosston		6	$3000	"	1630	12
Crookston		65	$6000	"	12000	150
Bemidji		27	$2916	"	8000	20
Little Falls		27	$2487	"	6000	20
Brainard		87	$6250	"	12000	65

From the foregoing it may be seen that Red Lake Falls shows up not only the cheapest by comparison but what is also significant the smallest in volume in the amount of private lighting with but one exception and it is a fact that needs no argument that volume of business is an important factor in determining the cost of production of any article.

For the 19 street arc lights we have received the past year $60.00, net, for light. Our total net revenue for the year for lighting the 19 arcs, seven 32 c. p. street lights and city hall and engine room is $1260.00, a price so low that so far as we have been able to learn it is unparalleled.

The argument has been put forth that the expenditure for city lighting are excessive on account of the decreasing revenue of the city.

The records show however that the city income is keeping up fairly well. We copy from that source the following figures showing a comparison of income from taxes for the several years named:

Year	City taxes paid in
1902	3620.18

To this is to be added other revenues such as saloon licenses, etc. From this it would appear that perhaps less than 1-7 of the expenditures is for the item of city lighting which proportion is certainly small considering the territory covered.

The existing rates on the street arc lights figured on a meter basis would be only .04½ p per k. w. and the price named in our proposition to council is equivalent to from .05½ p. to .06¾ p. per k. w. according to number of lights used. Besides this we light the city hall and engine room free. We would ask anyone interested to make comparison of the rate with cost of lighting in any town or city either under private or municipal ownership. It would soon satisfy them that Red Lake Falls has a bargain.

We have sought in the foregoing to place facts and figures before you so that an intelligent opinion may be formed. We are certain that a large majority agree that we have rendered efficient service and at a low cost and if arrangements be made for its continuance that will also be our aim in the future.

Respectfully,
RED LAKE FALLS
ELECTRIC LIGHT CO.
By S. M. Sivertson, Secretary.

HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Nothing Slow About Man Arrested at Thief River Falls.

Roy J. Latimer was arrested in Thief River Falls last week by Officer James Farr and has been taken to jail at Fergus Falls to answer a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Latimer represented himself as a post office inspector and stated that he was installing a new mail box system, known as the "master key" system, whereby rural carriers will be able to open all of the boxes on a route by using only one key. He worked in the vicinity of Rocher, a short distance north of the Otter Tail county line, and the postoffice officials soon learned that he was doing a fraudulent business and placed him under arrest.

He has been bound over to the United States court and admits that he represented himself as an inspector, but claims he obtained only a very small amount of money by so doing. Latimer's operations were carried on in Becker county, and he was married there just a week prior to his arrest here to Miss Anna M. Jager, one of the county's most popular school teachers. He came into the community a total stranger, and the marriage took place after a courtship lasting two days. It was a case of love at first sight. The young lady is of a well-to-do family, and was almost prostrated when she learned that her husband was an imposter.

She wept bitterly when officer Farr arrested her husband in this city. Latimer is an Italian by birth very short and quite good looking. The bride was a trifle over six feet in height. It is said that the couple were expecting a Christmas present of $500 from the bride's father.—Thief River News.

COUNTY BOARD ORGANIZATION

First Meeting of Year—Lindquist Re-elected Chairman—Damann Vice Chairman

County Officers Sworn in—Ditch Propositions Considered—Printing Awarded

The first meeting for the year of the board of county commissioners was held at the court house this week, the board convening Tuesday morning. An organization was perfected by the re-election of C. A. Lindquist as chairman and W. C. L. Damann as vice chairman.

The bonds of the various county officers were approved and the officers sworn in.

On Wednesday and Thursday the county ditch petitions were considered. There were many men here with grievances and there were some lively discussions before the petitions were disposed of. Proposed ditch No. 32 is to be readvertised because of technical error. There is to be a resurvey of proposed ditch No. 33. The report of the viewers on proposed ditch No. 34 was accepted.

The county printing was awarded to the Red Lake Falls Gazette and the official proceedings are to be published in a later issue af this paper.

LOUD AND NOISY MINSTREL COMPANY

Supt. Koos and High School Boys Will Make Merry at Opera House.

More Fun Than a Circus and Several Side Shows at Half the Price.

Supt. Koos and a bunch of high school boys, twenty strong and black and noisy and gorgeously attired, are going to do things at the opera house on Friday evening of next week and the funniest kind of fun is going to be there in big chunks. There will funny gags that real coons never thought of and coon songs with the real watermelon flavor.

If you are thin and grouchy and scrowny, the single night's treatment of the dose the boys will administer is guaranteed to bring about a cure and cause you to laugh and grow fat.

The fun will commence at 8:15 o'clock sharp. It will cost 25 cents to get inside the hall. Reserved seat tickets can be purchased at Anderson's jewelry store for 35 cnets.

THE OFFICIAL PAPER

County Commissioners Award County Printing to The Gazette

At the meeting Tuesday of the board of county commissioners bids for the county printing were considered.

The Plummer Pioneer offered to print the delinquent tax list for 10 for each description, the commissioners' proceedings and financial statement 40 cents per folio first insertion and 20 cents per folio subsequent insertions, all other printing 30 cents per folio first insertion and 15 cents per folio subsequent insertions.

The Thief River News offered to print the delinquent tax list for 5 cent for each description, the financial statement 20 cents per folio first insertion and 15 cents per folio subsequent insertions, commissioners' proceedings and all other printing 20 cents per folio.

The Red Lake Falls Gazette offered to print the delinquent tax list for 7½ cents for each description, the financial statement 37½ cents per folio for first insertion and 17½ cents per folio for subsequent insertions, commissioners' proceeding and all other printing 37½ cents per folio first insertion and 17½ cents per folio subsequent insertions. THE GAZETTE agreed to secure the publication of the financial statement, delinquent tax list and commissioners' proceeding in the St. Hilaire Spectator.

The bid of THE GAZETTE was accepted and this is now the official county paper.

MASS MEETING SATURDAY NIGHT

Meeting at City Hall at Eight O'clock—Every Tax Payer Should be There.

A mass meeting has been called by the city council to be held at the city hall next Saturday evening, Jan. 9, at 8 o'clock and every tax payer in the city is urged to attend.

The franchise of the Red Lake Falls Electric Light company has expired and the company has asked for a renewal of the franchise for a term of five years. The meeting is called for the purpose of getting an expression of opinion from the tax payers on the proposition and that all may become better informed and that the council may know what is the will of the tax payers.

Private lighting for residences—8 c. p., 25c; 16 c. p., 40c; 32 c. p., 80c per month.

For business places—10 o'clock schedule: 8 c. p., 25c; 16 c. p., 50c; 32 c. p., $1.00; Arcs $2.00 per month.

12 o'clock schedule: 8 c. p., 30c; 16 c. p., 60c; 32 c. p., $1.20; Arcs $6.00 per month.

All night schedule: 8 c. p, 40c; 16 c. p., 80c; 32 c. p., $1.60. Patrons purchase lamps; minimum for lighting: $1.00 per month. Will allow 1-8 c. p. lamp in each place to burn all night if desired without extra charge.

Meter rate: Up to 50,000 Watt hours consumed during each month, 15c per 1,000 Watt hours. On excess of 50,000 Watt hours consumed during each month, 12c per 1,000 Watt hours. Meter rate, each per month, 25c. Minimum rate for currant each place per month, $1.00.

TRAINS FROM FARGO TO WARROAD

Two Crews Will Make the Longer Run—Change in Time.

Will Connect With Trains to Duluth, Twin Cities and West.

There is to be another change in the passenger schedule on the Great Northern. The run will be lengthened and there will be two regular crews making the run. Each crew will make a trip one way each day. The run is to be from Fargo to Warroad. By this new arrangement there will be convenient connection with trains to Duluth, the twin cities and all points west.

The trains will run on about the same schedule as before the establishment of passenger service on the Warroad extension. The northbound train will arrive at about 10:25 a. m. and the southbound at 5:15 p. m. The change is not to be made at once and no official statement has been made, but there is little doubt that the change is to be made.

THE CRIMINAL CASES

The annual report of County Attorney, Thomas Germo, to the Attorney General of the State of Minnesota, of the criminal cases arising under the statutes in Red Lake County during the year ending December 31st, 1908, discloses a very satisfactory and successful work in that office.

Fifty-three cases were prosecuted during the year. Six of these were in the district court, of which two resulted in conviction, one in acquittal and three are pending. Forty-seven were prosecuted in municipal and justice courts, a great majority of these being tried in the municipal court of Thief River Falls. Of these, thirty-five were convicted, two acquitted and eleven dismissed on motion of county attorney. Seven served jail sentences and twenty-three were fined in sums all the way from $3.00 and costs to $150.00 and costs each.

The report further shows that the cost of prosecution amounted to only $227.16, while the fines and costs collected amounted to $708.79.

In the number of cases tried, this indicates a slight failing off from that of the previous year, since sixty-five cases were reported for that year.

NEWS OF WEEK SUMMARIZED

Washington.

Shortly after the holidays the senate will probably decide where it will place marble busts of two of its vice presidents—Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry, commanding the American battleship fleet, has cabled the navy department that the fleet made its departure from Colombo, Ceylon, for Suez. The message was in cipher and very brief.

Secretary Root has signed a treaty with Minister Mejal of Salvador, providing for the arbitration of disputed questions which may arise with that country. It follows the line of similar conventions negotiated with various countries.

In an interview Attorney General Bonaparte, speaking of the suit which the president has urged against Joseph Pulitzer of the New York World, said that it is still under consideration, and no definite line of action has yet been agreed upon.

Following the announcement of the White House that Secretary Root would retire upon his election as senator from New York and that Assistant Secretary Bacon would succeed him, comes an intimation that Root may abandon the state portfolio before Jan. 2.

Personal.

Former Congressman Loud died in San Francisco. For several months past he has been an invalid. Mr. Loud represented the Fifth California district in congress for twelve years.

John Shelby Barrow, assistant general passenger agent of the Erie railroad, with offices in New York, died at his home in Newark, N. J., of heart failure, following Bright's disease.

The resignation of John William White, professor of Greek at Harvard university, has been announced. He has been professor of Greek at Harvard since 1884. Prof. White wishes to retire from active work on account of age.

Maj. Orlando Jay Smith, president and general manager of the American Press association since 1882, died at his home in Dobb's Ferry, N. Y. Maj. Smith has been ill since September, at which time he was operated on for cancer of the stomach, but throughout his illness he retained his interest in daily events.

Accidental Happenings.

Willie Koester, six years old, son of a farmer living near Ridgeway, Ill., met a horrible death by falling into a kettle of boiling lard.

The business section of Warman, Sask., was destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $60,000. The town was named after Cy Warman.

Destructive fires are becoming frequent in Laurens county, South Carolina, especially among the ginneries, three having been burned within the last few days.

Crushed under the automobile which she was operating, an electric runabout, Mrs. Courtright, wife of Former State Senator O. B. Courtright of Waterloo, Iowa, received fatal injuries.

Crowds of Christmas shoppers were thrown into a panic in Chicago by a fire in Siegel, Cooper & Co.'s department store. The fire started in a vestibule and although it was quickly extinguished and no one was seriously injured several women in the crush. to get out fainted and had to be carried to the streets.

A fire which started in the Gilsey house, one of the famous hotels of Broadway, New York, threatened at first to destroy the building. The firemen were able to confine the flames to the fifth floor and the fire was quickly controlled. There were not many guests in the hotel at the time, and it is believed there was no loss of life.

When the steamer Arabic arrived at Queenstown from New York the officers reported that one of the passengers, who was registered under the name of Father Kelley of Paterson, N. J., was drowned during the voyage He fell overboard.

Tightly strapped in a chair, James Anderson, a five months old infant, was burned to death in his home at Chicago. The baby's clothing was fired by his three-year-old brother, while plaing with matches. The mother had gone to a nearby store, leaving the two together.

Foreign.

A slight earthquake was felt at Coutances, France. No damage except the breaking of crockery was done.

King Edward last week put an end to the present session of the British parliament. Only a few members attended the brief prorogation ceremonies.

At a meeting held at Cettinje, Montenegro, nearly all the influential Montenegrin merchants adopted a resolution to institute a boycott against Austro-Hungarian products.

Both houses of the Japanese diet were formally opened last week. Sumitka Basiba, a prominent leader of the Constitutional party, was elected speaker of the lower house.

Eleven deaths have occurred and thirteen men are seriously ill at Keithley camp, Minanao island, Philippines, as a result of the men of the Eighteenth infantry drinking columbic acid, a vegetable compound extracted from the columbia root.

Certain chiefs of the native tribes in German Samoa are threatening trouble. They are preparing to hoist an independent Samoan flag when the parliament of the islands reassembles and contemplate appealing to the United States and Great Britain to decide whether this action is justified.

King Otto of Bavaria lies in a padded room in the palace, bound in a strait jacket and raving in the wildest form of violent insanity. The passive idiocy, which for so many years has made the monarch the most pitiable figure in modern history, developed into a destructive mania. It is thought that the death of the monarch is near at hand.

Crimes.

William T. Clark, an old-time prospector, has been found murdered near Butte, Mont. He had just opened a promising gold vein.

Patrick Greene of Montreal, a peddler, was killed near Plaster Rock, N. B., by highwaymen, who made their escape with a valise said to contain $3,000.

Clifford Smith, said to be a former policeman in Toledo, Ohio, and Catharine McCabe, alleged counterfeiters of fifty-cent and one-dollar coins, were arrested in Chicago.

William W. Delph was found guilty of murder in the first degree at Laporte, and his punishment was fixed at life imprisonment. Delph was convicted of killing his mother-in-law.

Owen Smith, son of Chief of Police Smith; Charlie Moore and his brother, Virgil Moore, are dead, and Policeman Cain Walters is dying as a result of a four-cornered pistol duel fought at Ocilla, Ga.

Dr. Charles E. Smith, mayor of Washington, N. J., lost the sight of one eye and was partially blinded in the other when one of his women patients visited his office and threw carbolic acid over his face and head.

James B. Harmon, eighteen years old, shot and killed Miss Maud Hartley, eighteen years of age, on the street of Somerville, Mass. Miss Martley had recently informed Harmon that she did not care for his attentions.

Fred Lied, formerly a member of the Columbus (Ohio) board of control, was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary by Judge Rogers for accepting a bribe from Nelson Cannon, local representative of a paving company of Cleveland.

Giacinto Ricci was electrocuted at the New Jersey state prison at Trenton. The much-talked-of test to resuscitate the electrocuted man was not attempted. County Physician Scammel, who had threatened to make the test, was not present and made no demand for the body.

Otherwise.

The remarkably mild winter weather enabled many farmers in Southern Alberta to do considerable plowing last week.

The Council of Jewish Women has issued an appeal to newspapers for the elimination of indecent details in the published evidence of murder and divorce trials.

Much cheaper rates for cablegrams across the Atlantic are near at hand, according to the assertion of Rodolph Lemieux, the postmaster general in the Canadian cabinet.

Korgo Takahira, Japanese ambassador to the United States, in an address before the Lotus club in New York, discredited all rumors of unfriendly feeling between America and the Flowery Kingdom. Incidentally he hung a few flowers upon the character of the Japanese diplomatic policy, declaring that it was not founded upon craft, but honesty and straightforwardness.

The entire milling industry of Nebraska will oppose the recent order of the secretary of agriculture prohibiting the transportation and sale of bleached flour in interstate commerce. The millers believe it will be a death blow to the industry in that state.

Harry K. Thaw lost his second campaign for freedom from the insane asylum at Matteawan, N. Y., when the circuit court handed down a decision that the slayer of Stanford White cannot be taken to Pittsburg to testify in the bankruptcy proceedings pending there against him.

The State Day by Day

URGES STATE RELIEF BOARD.

Recommendation Made in Annual Report of State Treasurer.

The establishment of an emergency relief fund by the state for the care of unfortunates in such catastrophes as the Clinton cyclone and the Chisholm fire is recommended by Clarence C. Dinehart, state treasurer, in his annual report. He suggests that the legislature make available for such purposes a sum not to exceed an amount represented by five-hundredths of a mill tax which at the present valuation of the state would produce $55,000, and cost but 5 cents to each owner of $1,000 worth of assessed property.

This fund would be under the jurisdiction of the governor, secretray of state, attorney general, treasurer and auditor, to be expended by them as they think best when occasion arises.

The treasurer concurs in the recommendation of the public examiner in his report that the railroads make their payment of taxes semi-annually instead of every year, in order to avoid the depleted condition of the state treasury at this time of the year. He does not agree with the public examiner, however, as to the sale of warrants for running expenses constituting a debt within the meaning of the constitution, which debt is prohibited.

In regard to the bonds of state depositories, which the public examiner recommends should be corporate surety bonds, the state treasurer suggests that if any change is made in the law which permits personal surety, it should be made possible to deposit as such bonds of any state or county or municipal bonds in an amount 10 per cent in excess of the amount of state money on deposit at any one time.

KILLS FEWER; LESS DIVIDENDS.

Railroad Reports for Year Summarized by State Commission.

A decrease in the number of killed and wounded, an increase in the capital, an increase of operating income and an increase of dividends during the past years as features of the summary of the reports of railways of the state issued by the state railway and warehouse commission.

The total number killed for the year ending June 30, 1908, was 202, with 2,315 injured. The year before the number was 294 killed and 3,127 injured.

There was an increase of $13,706,534 in the operating revenues of the roads of the state, the total receipts being $102,380,000. The amount which was apportioned this state for the past year was $78,700,000, nearly double what the roads earned in Minnesota for the preceding year.

There was an increase of $141,193,115 in the capital and funded debt. Only eleven of the thirty-four roads paid dividends, although two iron roads distributed a large amount of accumulated surplus. The dividends paid by the roads operating in this state amounted to $54,692,892.

EGGS AND BROILERS ARE BEING PRODUCED AT SCHOOL'S OWN RANCH

CHICKEN RANCH AT FEEBLE-MINDED SCHOOL.

The development of a large chicken ranch and egg farm at the Minnesota school for the feeble minded at Faribault, which it is expected will eventually supply eggs and broilers for the entire school, numbering about 1,200 inmates, is being steadily pushed forward. A seven-acre tract, with a good south exposure to the sun, has been selected for the poultry houses and yards. A good start has been made, and there are at present about 500 chickens. More attention is being paid to the development of a good laying strain than to the production of eggs.

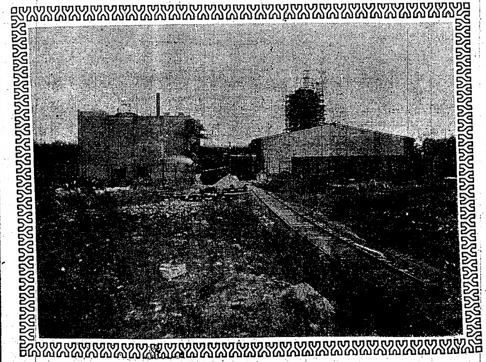
There are five poultry houses in use, and sixteen more are being erected. They will extend 300 feet in length. These houses will be modern buildings for the raising of poultry, with south fronts and lights. Particular attention is paid to arrangement of the houses by installing labor-saving fixtures. The buildings now being erected will be on the continuous house plan, containing several pens, each with a capacity of twenty-five to thirty-five layers to each pen.

Incubators are used to a great extent, few chickens being hatched under hens. The brooder building contains about fifteen incubators, which are located on the north side of the house, the south front being used for the brooders, where the young chicks are placed just after being hatched and kept until old and strong enough to care for themselves. This building is heated by steam. The section containing the fifteen or twenty brooders is well lighted by a long row of windows facing the south.

The farm is in charge of an experienced poultry woman. She has the assistance of numerous of the brighter boy inmates, who delight in the work and make excellent helpers.

Don't accuse the old hen of working the shell game because the egg is bad.

MODEL PRISON IS NEARING COMPLETION



NEW STATE PRISON AT STILLWATER, MINN.

The building at the left is three stories high. The first floor will be for the branch twine factory. The second floor is for the dining room and kitchen. On the third will be a dormitory for one hundred convicts. The building at the right is a warehouse for use in storing fiber and finished binder twine. In the background is the uncompleted water tower, part of a big system for furnishing water for domestic purposes and for individual toilets. A portion of the stockade—a fence of plank sixteen feet high—is shown. There are guard houses in course of construction at intervals.

DULUTH TO FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

White Plague Exhibit Stirs Up Northern Part of State.

The visit of the educational exhibit of the State Anti-Tuberculosis society at Duluth, recently, will probably result in the formation of an associated charities and other benevolent institutions in that city.

About 6,000 people visited the exhibit, nearly as great a number as attended in the Twin Cities, in other years. The attendance in Two Harbors was even larger.

On Jan. 9 a civic meeting will be held at Duluth under the auspices of the council of women, at which child labor and charity problems will be discussed. It is probable that an attempt will be made to unify all efforts toward charitable relief, as is done in all the larger cities of the country.

The tuberculosis exhibit will be seen in Virginia, Eveleth and Cloquet after the holidays. An anti-tuberculosis society has been formed in all the towns where the exhibit has shown.

Must Maintain Butter Standard.

Creamery men who put too much water in their butter are warned to stop the practice, in a letter issued by Edward K. Slater, dairy and food commissioner, calling attention to a recent fine of $900 paid by a creamery in Stearns county for a like offense. According to the law butter may contain 16 per cent water and no more.

A woman sits down and waits for temptation to come along, but a man usually meets it half way.

In Minnesota

State News of the Week Briefly Told

A freight wreck occurred two miles west of Jackson. Fourteen freight cars on the St. Paul railway were ditched, but no one was injured. The track was blocked for about twelve hours.

One man was killed, two received lesser injuries and three cars were wrecked in a rear-end collision between freight trains on the Minneapolis & St. Louis at St. Louis Park near Minneapolis.

Andrew Leaf, residing near Fergus Falls, accidentally shot himself while hunting, his gun being discharged while he was drawing it toward him. and he was nearly dead from loss of blood before a physician could be reached.

The dead body of Nels Clam, eighty-three years old, was found swinging from the beam of a woodshed in the rear of the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. W. Blackpin, at Minneapolis. Clam suffered from a complication of diseases, due to old age.

A state humane society agent from St. Paul came to Le Sueur and arrested Adolph Tuma, who lives four miles southeast of that place on the charge of cruelty to his eleven-months'-old son. Tuma was convicted and a fine of 25 dollars was suspended upon his good behavior for two years, but he paid the costs.

Judge C. W. Stanton of Bemidji has received official notice from the state canvassing board of the election of B. F. Wright by a majority of 57 votes as judge of the Fifteenth judicial district. Judge Stanton said he could accept the statement of the canvassing board as final, that he had met defeat by the majority of 57 votes.

Fire destroyed the general store of V. Weidecamper, the hardware store of A. Coffey, the feed store of Jens Olson, a barber shop, a warehouse and a dwelling at Menton, in Polk county. The loss sustained will be about $20,000, with insurance about $10,000. The fire started in the clothing department of the general store.

John Peterson, who was indicted by the grand jury of Isanti county for assault in the second degree, and who escaped from the jailer after arraignment and before the trial, was located at Frederick Wis., by Sheriff Johnson and brought back and taken before Judge Gidding, when he changed his plea to guilty and received a sentence of four months in state prison.

While a bartender in Frank Rabinowitz's saloon in Eveleth was waiting on customers at tables, a sneak thief dashed behind the bar, grabbed a sack containing $300 in gold and made his escape. Rabinowitz had drawn money from the bank to cash miners' checks and had placed it in a separate drawer, which was evidently known to the tief.

K. Bagne, owner of the Wing river water power, seven miles from Wadena, has a plan to supply electricity for both Wadena and Verndale. He has offered to supply light for Verndale village for fifteen years at $1,000 per year. At the end of fifteen years he offers to turn over the water power to that village. A special election will be called at Verndale to vote on the proposition.

Rudolph Hjermstad, employed at J. M. Hjermstad's machine shop at Red Wing, while adjusting some rods on the St. James hotel passenger elevator grasped the shifting rod by mistake, with the result that he was pinned down between the car and the rod. The car pressed heavily against his chest and stomach, and while no bones were broken he may have suffered internal injuries.

John Allen, a farmer living just outside of the city limits of Barnesville heard a commotion in his barn early one morning last week and on going out found some parties stealing his horses. They managed to get one horse out of the barn and mounting it rode rapidly away. Allen called to his wife to bring the lantern, and in doing so she slipped and broke her shoulder bone. After securing medical aid for his wife Allen pursued the thieves, but thus far has not captured them.

After three trials, two of which resulted in the disagreement of the juries, James H. Pinkerton is finally freed form the charge of embezzling $3,000 of the funds of the town of Schroeder, Cook county, of which he was treasurer. A jury in the district court at Duluth returned a verdict of not guilty. The case dates back to Oct. 15, 1906, when Pinkerton asserted that he was robbed of $3,000 on the dock at Grand Marais. While Pinkerton was walking up town with his wife and was carrying his child on his arm, he declared, a robber snatched the satchel from his hand and made away with it.

The Fergus Falls city council at its meeting last week adopted a resolution positively forbidding any private company or individual from stringing any wires across any street with a view to furnishing electric light. The city owns the lighting plant.

Martin Aure was fatally injured by the premature discharge of dynamite. He was at work sinking a well near Glenville, and as a result of the accident one leg is off at the hip, the other at the knee and his left side was blown away. No one else was injured.

EXPERIMENT IN LAMB FEEDING IN THE WEST

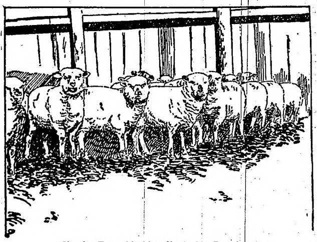
Three experiments were carried on at the same time. Previous experiments with small numbers of lambs had shown that oats and oil meal seemed to balance the native hay ration about as well as any grains tried. Therefore, one lot of 40 lambs was fed this ration and another lot was fed alfalfa hay and corn. Shropshire-Merino cross-bred lambs were used.



Showing Type of Lambs Used In Experiment.

A comparison of peas in the field and pea hay was made with two lots of Cotswold grade lambs, having 40 lambs in each lot.

All the lambs were fed in uncovered yards protected by a high board fence, with the exception of the lambs, upon peas in the field. These were run in small areas fenced with woven wire, the fences being moved as necessary, and the lambs driven to a corral at night.

The alfalfa hay used was good first cutting; the sweet clover was coarse and stemmy; the pea hay was somewhat over-ripe; the native hay was mixed wild grasses, containing a considerable quantity of wire-grass.

The corn and barley were from Nebraska; the spelt was raised on the Laramie plains; and the oil meal was old process.

Lot 4.
Sweet Clover Hay and Corn
Lot 7.
Native Hay, and Barley

Lamb Cuts That Tell Their Own Story.

The lambs on native hay ate less hay than those fed alfalfa, and the lambs fed pea hay ate only 200 pounds of hay per head, which was less than the amount of hay and grain eaten by any other lot.

Lots 1 and 3 constituted a second trial of native hay, oats, and oil meal, in comparison with alfalfa hay and corn. In experiments conducted the previous winter with small lots of lambs upon various grain rations and native hay, the ration made up of native hay, oats and oil meal proved to be the best of those tried, the lambs making a gain of 17.4 pounds per head in 14 weeks, against 28.6 pounds made by the lot on alfalfa hay and corn. The present experiment with 40 lambs in each lot shows an average gain of 20.3 pounds in 14 weeks by the lambs on native hay, oats, and oil meal, and 34.3 pounds by the lambs on alfalfa hay and corn.

The amount of feed required was 507 pounds of native hay, 460 pounds of oats, and 25 pounds of oil meal for 100 pounds of gain. In the previous experiment 574 pounds of hay, 591 pounds of oats, and 86 pounds of oil meal were required for 100 pounds gain.

The results of these two experiments indicate that the native hay, oats, and oil meal ration will produce somewhat less than two-thirds the gain produced by alfalfa hay and corn in the same length of time, and also requires considerably more feed to produce 100 pounds gain.

Wild sweet clover is common along irrigation ditches and in waste spots, and since it withstands alkali well and gives a heavy tonnage of hay, it should prove a desirable hay crop in many sections. Stockmen commonly believe that sweet clover is useless as a forage plant, but cattle and sheep will eat the growing plant if it is not too large and coarse, and the experiment here reported shows that lambs eat the hay readily and make good gains from it.

Comparing Lots 4 and 5, we find that the sweet clover lambs made an average gain of 30.7 pounds in 14 weeks, while the alfalfa lambs made 34.4 pounds gain. The former ate one-sixth more hay, somewhat more corn, and a small amount of oil meal. The larger consumption of sweet clover hay was due to the fact that it was cut late and was very coarse and stemmy. The lambs liked it, however, and showed a steady appetite for it. There was not the slightest difficulty in getting them to eat it at the start.

The lambs eating pea hay made the low gain of 16.9 pounds per head in 14 weeks. It required 1,472 pounds of the hay to produce 100 pounds gain in live weight. This poor showing for pea hay is borne out by the results gotten with Lot 10, which contained a very different class of lambs and was not carried on in comparison with Lot 6, but which shows a still poorer gain of only 5.8 pounds per head in 14 weeks.

The pea hay seemed very unsatisfactory, and while nothing is definitely established by this experiment with regard to the amount of pea hay needed for the production of 100 pounds gain, yet it can be definitely stated that it gives unsatisfactory results for fattening lambs. The lambs do not get enough roughage, and have the scours almost constantly. What gain is made is chiefly framework and muscle and little fat. Pea hay that was well cured before the stalks became stringy, undoubtedly would show better results than those given above, but when compared with alfalfa and corn the pea hay is a poor ration.

By comparing Lots 7 and 8 we find that Scotch barley and bald barley are practically equal in value when fed with native hay and oil meal. A study of Lot 9 shows that spelt is not nearly equal to either bald or Scotch barley when fed with native hay and oil meal, giving a gain of only 13.8 pounds in 14 weeks, or less than a pound a week per head.

The peas in the field gave a gain of 18.3 pounds per head in 14 weeks; .95 of an acre was required for the production of 100 pounds gain. An acre of the peas supported six lambs for 14 weeks.

The pea hay fed in a corral produced 5.8 pounds gain in the same length of time; 3,470 pounds of the pea hay were required for 100 pounds gain. The results from the pea hay were wholly unsatisfactory.

Plan Your Work.—Give the feeding and chores as much attention as they require, but do not let them take all your time. Spend a part of it in reading and studying your business to make a dollar's worth of time or money accomplish that formerly done by two.

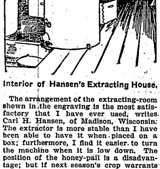
THE VARIOUS METHODS OF EXTRACTING BEESWAX

Together with Suggestions for Making an Efficient Extractor—Contrived by F. C. Alford.

In view of the increasing interest in apiculture in Colorado and the lack of definite information on the subject of the extraction of beeswax, an important product of the industry, F. C. Alford of the Colorado station, has made a study of the relative efficiency of different methods of extraction now in use. He experimented with solar extractors, those using steam, and those using pressure under water heated sufficiently to melt the wax. In the latter method he used water alone and water containing sulphuric acid.

The solar extractor used by Mr. Alford was simple in construction and can be made by anyone who is handy with tools. It consists of a wooden box about 30 inches long, 16 inches broad, and 6 inches deep. This box is lined with tin, and near one end a wire-cloth screen to allow the melted wax to run down into a pan at the lower end of the box. The waste wax and brood comb were placed in the upper part of the box, which was set at an angle toward the sun and covered with glass, preferably double. The size of the solar extractor will be determined by the amount of wax to be extracted. If desired, a lamp may be used to furnish additional heat. A hole should be cut in the bottom of the box, so that the heat of the lamp will strike the tin lining under the wire screen. The lamp should be protected from the wind. The use of a lamp increased the efficiency of the extractor about one per cent. A like increase was obtained by soaking the comb in water for several days before extraction—a practice followed by some bee keepers. Soaking the comb for three days in a five per cent. solution of sulphuric acid increased the yield of wax about five per cent.



Interior of Hansen's Extracting House.

The arrangement of the extracting-room shown in the engraving is the most satisfactory that I have ever used, writes Carl H. Hansen, of Madison, Wisconsin: The extractor is more stable than I have been able to have it when placed on a box; furthermore, I find it easier to turn the machine when it is low down. The position of the honey-pail is a disadvantage; but if next season's crop warrants the expense I shall ararnge to have the honey conveyed through a pipe directly to vats in the cellar. The extractor is placed at the edge of the trap-door opening into the cellar. The honey, after being drawn, is emptied into large earthenware jars or into tin pails. The extracting completed, we wash the extractor, place a large piece of cheese-cloth over the top of the extractor-can, and fasten the cloth with a heavy cord. The honey is skimmed, and then strained into the extractor-can. After the bubbles of air have risen to the surface we run the honey directly into pint mason jars, and finally put on the labels. We do not heat the honey, as our trade does not demand it. In fact, many prefer it in the candied state. The editor of Bee Culture suggests that one better afford to cut a hole in the floor in which to put the pail, and, when the extracting season is over, cover it with a trap-door. A better arrangement, as suggested, is to run a tin pipe to convey the honey to a tank on a lower level. The trouble with running the honey direct into a pail is that one is likely to forget and let the honey run over and waste. Enough is lost in this way to pay for a tin pipe in a short time.

Three kinds of steam extractors were tested in these experiments. Tests were also made of pressure under water with and without addition of five per cent. of sulphuric acid.

Pressing Under Water.—The comb, with some water, was put in a tub on the stove and the wax allowed to melt, but not to boil. A can was placed under a press and a slatted follower placed in the bottom of the can. Above this was placed a burlap bag and the hot water, melted wax, and comb were poured into the bag, the top of the bag folded over, a slatted follower placed on top and pressure applied by means of a screw. After some of the wax had been forced out, the water and wax were drawn off, the pressure relieved, the "slumgum" stirred, hot water added, and pressure applied again. The can, which fits under the press, has two holes which are stopped by corks. One is at the bottom and the other near the top. By pulling the cork out of the upper hole the wax, which has risen to the top, can be drawn off, and by using the lower hole all of the wax and water can be removed. The whole apparatus must be kept as warm as possible.

Sulphuric Acid and Pressure Under Water.—It was thought that the addition of acid to the water in the experiment might increase the efficiency of the method. The comb was heated in a porcelain-lined tub with a solution of five per cent. commercial sulphuric acid. When the wax had melted it was poured into the sack in the press and pressure applied quickly in order not to have the acid in contact with the metal any longer than necessary. The wax and water were drawn off, boiling water added, the slumgum stirred, and pressure applied again. This water was drawn off and put with the rest. As this was an experiment to determine the efficiency of the press, a tin can was used, but in practical work it would be necessary to have everything acid proof, as hot acid, even when diluted, is very destructive to most substances. The can could be made of wood or porcelain-lined ware.

This method was easy to manipulate and rapid and was the most efficient of all the methods used.

The results reported show that "the slumgum from 100 pounds of wax treated by the ordinary solar wax extractor will retain from 34 to 36 pounds of wax, which can be removed by heating with dilute sulphuric acid and pressing under hot water. (With) the best of the steam wax extractors used there remains in the slumgum about seven pounds of wax which is obtainable by the use of the sulphuric acid and pressure. With the price of wax at 25 cents a pound it would pay to buy old slogum and remove the wax by this method."

The wax obtained by pressure under water containing five per cent. of sulphuric acid was very good in color, in fact, almost as good . . . as most of the wax obtained from the solar extractors."

The wax obtained with the steam extractors "did not have a good color, and would have had to be refined before it could be used. The wax from the solar extractors was always a better color than that from the steam extractors. The wax formed by pressure under water was nearly as good in color as the wax from the solar extractors.

Wax from old brood comb is too dark to be used for comb foundation, so that some satisfactory method of bleaching must be employed. Various methods of bleaching were therefore tried, but most of them either destroyed the wax or were in themselves poisonous.

As a result of these experiments, and from his experience in handling bees and rendering wax, Mr. Alford expresses the following opinion:

"It is best for the average bee keeper to have a large solar wax extractor, heated by some artificial heat, by means of which most of the wax in the lighter colored combs, cappings, and burr combs may be easily rendered. The dark combs may also be treated in this manner and the slumgum stored in barrels until the bee keeper has time to treat it with dilute sulphuric acid and press under water. This method is quick and efficient. If the wax be refined it can be done by heating, while inclosed in a canton flannel sack, with a solution containing five per cent. of hydrogen peroxide and two to five per cent. of sulphuric acid. Both of these chemicals can be bought at the ordinary drug store. The common kind, commercial, should be used.

"In mixing the acid and the water care should be taken to always pour the acid gently into the water and not the water into the acid.

"The cost of chemicals compared with the results obtained is very slight."

Stop the Leaks.—In the case of old shingle roofs a leak may start at any time during the winter. These leaks can be stopped by slipping a thin piece of tin, about the same width as a shingle, under them from the outside. This is better than to use a new shingle, which may raise the edges of those about it, and thus make the leak worse.

Take Care of Tools.—A good farmer takes proper care of his implements. He not only houses them and keeps them in adjustment, but he paints them occasionally. Paint closes all cracks and keeps out the moisture. It not only preserves the wood, but the iron parts are benefited as well.

Adjust the Collar.—As a horse's neck is not adjustable, you must adjust the collar to the neck. This is of importance to the horse and his owner as well.

Used To.

"Sir, I want to marry your daughter."

"Can you support her in the style she's used to?"

"Living in, or reading about in trashy novels?"

Not His Role.

"You use too many cigarettes," said the manager.

"That's my affair," responded the actor, haughtily.

"Not much; I didn't hire you as a smoked ham."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Lindaas district will be divided into parts in the near future. For several years there has been discussion in reference to breaking up the district, some proposing that four districts be formed out of it. But the government has opposed this as impracticable. The department of justice has, however, approved the present plan of division. The one district will consist of the parish of Lindaas, Myking and Lyngre; the other of Austreim and Fedje.

Here is something new. The authorities of Eker, the majority of whom are socialists, have decided to make physicians public servants, who shall get their pay from the district and charge no fees of those to whom they minister. In accordance with this two well known physicians have been hired by the district at a fixed salary. It is expected that the association of doctors will pass some sort of resolution in regard to this unique action on the part of the Ecker authorities.

The captains and crews of the Norwegian whale boats "Vesterisen," "Sjoblomsten" and "Havfreren" have been signally honored by the government of Denmark. Each of the captains has received a gold watch, and the crews have been awarded 2,000 crowns in money. The services rendered by these Norwegian seamen to Denmark were performed in connection with the expedition to the northeast coast of Greenland under the late explorer Mylius Ericksen, who died last summer.

A report from Vinger says that the residents of that district are gratified to observe that some of the rich land owners, who reside outside the district, have awakened to the importance of improving their farms and devoting more attention to them in the future. Costly buildings are erected on several farms, with a view to increasing the size of the herds. One thing that has held the country back before is the refusal of certain land owners to expend any money to improve their properties.

The spread of temperance in Sweden goes on apace. A reecnt indication of the trend of public opinion is found in the fact that public festivals of the Ostgota and Vestmanlands-Dala nations were held without intoxicating liquors. Both festivals were well attended, and there was much enthusiasm for the new order of things. The material, as well as the intellectual natures, were amply provided for, and all participants thoroughly enjoyed the festivities. Similar celebrations will hereafter be held each term at Upsala university.

The railway department has made out the schedules of the appropriations needed for the proposed extensions of the state railways, the totaled amount for the four roads being 8,500,000 crowns. THE legislature is engaged in the biennial consideration of affairs of state, and probably will be in session until April 1. The primary law, the tonnage tax, county option, an appropriation for advertising the state, agricultural development—these will be some of the more important subjects to be considered.

LINCOLN'S ancestry has been traced to Samuel Lincoln, who lived at Norwich, England. Emigrating to America, he settled at Hingham, Mass., in 1638. Some of his decendants, who were Quakers, settled in Rockingham county Virginia. The President's grandfather removed to Kentucky. Thomas Lincoln, the President's father, was a carpenter.

MRS. PERRY STARKWEATHER of the woman's department of the state labor bureau reports that every other girl between the ages of 16 and 20 in the twin cities is engaged in some sort of work for a living and that there are 125,000 working women in the state earning an average of 90 cents a day. She will recommend to the legislature that provisions be made for a woman's deprrtment with inspectors, for cleanliness and fresh air and a standard working day not to exceed ten hours.

THERE is a strong sentiment over the state for a revival of the state board of equalization, which has been displaced by the tax commission. There is no criticism of the present members of the commission, but it is argued that some day a corporation governor might appoint commissioners out of sympathy with the people. This argument is sound, but as the governor would appoint the equalization board also, there is no way of avoiding the control of both the board and the commission by the predatory interests should the wrong kind of governor be elected.

IT would seem that John W. Olson has been crucified to satisfy the lust of the twin city newspapers, At a recent meeting of the board of university regents Mr. Olson was elected dean of the agricultural college, and at once the newspapers charged, without shadow of warrant, that political considerations gave him the place. Under the circumstances, Mr. Olson declined to serve longer than the present school year, and shows himself to be large enough to refuse to endanger the usefullness of the school by remaining the target of the unfair critics of Governor Johnson. There is every reason to commend Mr. Olsen's election. He is acknowleged to be one of the leading educators of the state, and has served eight years as state superintendent. He is an able, industrious and capable school man, fully in touch with advanced methods of education. The regents will not easily find a man more competent to fill the position.

The actions of some men remind us of a comic opera without a plot.

What a friendly old world this would be if we all loved our neighbors as we love ourselves.

Why is it that the divorce suit of one of her friends interests the average woman more than her own marriage?

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When a woman describes what a lecture was like it sounds as if she had been to the dressmaker's.

There's nothing a woman admire so much in a man as the way he can open a telegram without fainting.

A man can growl over the bill for matches unless the family burns electricity and they are used to light pipes and cigars.

If a woman has the tenderest heart in the world it will grow hard to somebody else's baby that people think as pretty as hers.

There's hardly anything a man can lie about more enthusiastically than all the important people who sat next to him at a dinner.

An Ordinance Providing for the Issuance of $5,000 Refunding Bonds of the City of Red Lake Falls, State of Minnesota.

WHEREAS, it duly appearing that there are now outstanding and unpaid the valid funding bonds of the City of Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, in the sum of $5,000, dated May 2, 1898, and which became due and payable May 2, 1908, upon which there is due and unpaid thereon the sum of $5,000, the principal thereof for the payment of which there has been no provision made, and

WHEREAS, it has been and is now duly determined that refunding bonds in the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) of the City of Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, shall be issued for the purpose of raising funds to pay the outstanding bonds aforesaid, therefore

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

Section 1. That for the purpose of providing funds to pay the outstanding funding bonds of the City of Red Lake Falls upon which there is due and owing the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000), the Mayor and City Clerk of said City are hereby directed to have prepared and duly executed five (5) negotiable coupon bonds of the City of Red Lake Falls, to be known as "Refunding Bonds," and to be numbered consecutively from one (1) to five (5), both inclusive which bonds shall be in denominations of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, dated October 1, 1908 and shall bear interest from their date at the rate of five and one half per centum (5½ pc) per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of April and October in each year, which interest payments shall be evidenced by proper coupons attached to each bond.

Said bonds shall mature and fall due October 1st, 1918.

Both principal and interest of said bonds are hereby made payable at the American Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago, Illinois. Said bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and the City Clerk, with the corporate seal of the City thereto affixed, and countersigned by the City Treasurer and shall be substantially in the following form to-wit:

No...... $1,000

Proposal for Bids.

The undersigned Board of Township Supervisors of the township of Terrebonne, Red Lake County, Minnesota, will meet at Terrebonne on the 29th of January to receive bids for the furnishing of all material for the construction and erection of a Steel Span over the Clearwater River in the Town of Terrebonne. Agreeably to the Specifications on file in the office of the County Auditor of Red Lake County, parties tendering must furnish a clearly made out Strain Sheet of their design, with the data on which it was computed, and showing also the Areas of Material proposed to be given to each part.

Bidders are requested to be present on the above occasion when all the proposals will be opened and read in their presence. The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

The bridge will be a through deck bridge consisting of one 150 foot span and will have a roadway of 16 foot clear between main carriers. The distance from grade to bed of stream, 19 feet. The bridge must be proportioned to carry in addition to its own weight 1600 pounds per lin. foot of moving load.

All parties bidding must put in bids to build a span to carry the above load with a 3 inch wooden floor; also for a concrete floor.

(Signed) ALCIDE PERUSSE,
j21 Chairman Town Board of Terrebonne.

Held Important Appointments.

J. A. Leonard, formerly of Whitewater and Waukesha, Wis., postmaster at Rochester, this state, by appointment of Abraham Lincoln, consul at Leith, Scotland, in 1881 and consul general at Shanghai, China, in 1889, both by appointment of President Garfield, is dead at Rochester of cancer, aged seventy-eight years.

Returned to the Donors.

The St. Paul subscribers to the Chisholm relief fund have received checks for 72½ per cent of the amount they contributed, representing the sum that was not used by the committee for relief purposes. It was proposed to use the remainder for the relief of the Italian disaster sufferers, but this was overruled.

ANSWER TO THE HOUSE

Special Message on Use of Secret Service Men.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Replying to the resolution of the house of representatives asking the president to explain the references to the secret service in his recent annual message Mr. Roosevelt sent a special communication to the house.

He declares that the representatives are wholly unjustified in assuming that the language of the message, which commented on the prohibition placed by congress on the use of the secret service men in cases other than those of counterfeiting ("and one or two other matters which can be disregarded"), is intended to cast a slur upon them.

The language which the representatives wanted explained is as follows: "The amendment in question operates only to the advantage of the criminal, of the wrongdoer. The chief argument in favor of the provision was that the congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by secret service men. A special exception could be made in the law prohibiting the use of the secret service force in investigating members of the congress. It would be far better to do this than to do what actually was done and strive to prevent or at least to hamper effective action against criminals by the executive branch of the government."

The special message declares that, notwithstanding the umbrage taken by congress at this wording, "a careful reading of this message will show that I said nothing to warrant the statement that 'the majority of the congressmen were in fear of being investigated by the secret service men' or 'that congress as a whole was actuated by that motive.'

Denies Making Statement.

"I did not make any such statement in this message. Moreover, I have never made any such statement about congress as a whole nor, with a few inevitable exceptions, about the members of congress in any message or article of speech. On the contrary, I have always not only deprecated, but vigorously resented, the practice of indiscriminate attack upon congress and indiscriminate condemnation of all congressmen, wise and unwise, fit and unfit, good and bad alike."

Mr. Roosevelt declares the evidence that members of congress did not wish themselves investigated by secret service men is found in the debates recorded in the Congressional Record. He denounces as wholly unfounded a newspaper story to the effect that he wishes to make Chief Wilkie of the secret service a second Fouche, modeled after the notorious chief of police of Napoleon.

The real issue, says Mr. Roosevelt, is, "Does congress desire that the government shall have at its disposal the most efficient instrument for the detection of criminals and the prevention and punishment of crime, or does it not?"

He cites cases in which the secret service has secured evidence enough to convict offenders against the federal laws.

A letter from the president to Speaker Cannon protesting against the cutting down of the appropriation for the secret service, two letters from Secretary Cortelyou on the same subject and the newspaper article already mentioned are appended to the message.

NEW AEROPLANE RECORD

Wilbur Wright Remains in Air Over Two Hours.

Lemans, France, Dec. 31.—Wilbur Wright, the American aeroplanist, beat all previous aeroplane records here with a magnificent flight that lasted for two hours and nine minutes. He covered officially a distance of seventy-three miles, but as a matter of fact, counting the wide curves, he made over ninety miles. Mr. Wright's feat was the more remarkable because of the intense cold.

Savage Buys Minor Heir.

M. W. Savage of Minneapolis, the owner of Dan Patch, the world's champion pacer, has become the owner of Minor Heir, last year's pacing sensation. The amount paid to P. C. Isaacs of Johnstown, Pa., was $45,000. Minor Heir is a brown horse, foaled in 1902. He finished the last season with a mark of 1:59½.

Unknown Man a Suicide.

Starved and emaciated an unknown man of some fifty years of age crawled into a shack in the eastern part of Indian Mounds park at St. Paul and blew out his brains. The revolver was frozen in his stiffened hand.

WILL SETTLE NEAR HIBBING

Advance Guard of Iowa Colonists Arrives.

A party of five families from near Cedar Rapids, Ia., have arrived this week at Stewart, about twelve miles south of Hibbing on the Great Northern, where they will settle permanently and engage in farming and dairying. They brought their household goods and farming effects with them.

The party composed the advance members of a colony of about sixty families who will settle near Stewart. They state that the region is ideal for dairying and that the colony expects to establish a creamery and devote much attention to dairying.

The colony will be tributary to Hibbing commercially and will be another argument in favor of the establishment of the county experiment farm in Hibbing.

BOY ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Result of Attempt to Terrify His Sisters.

Ernest A. Meadows of Minneapolis, nineteen years of age, accidentally killed himself while walking to church with his two small sisters.

The tragedy was the result of young Meadows' attempt to terrify his sisters. He drew a small revolver from his pocket and shot twice in the air. On the last shot the gun was pointed at his head and the bullet entered his skull. He dropped in the snow and died instantly.

Hiccoughs Kill Minnesotan.

Seized early last June with violent spells of hiccoughing J. E. Zackmayer of Winona, seventy-six years of age, an insurance agent, hiccoughed almost continuously until death ended his sufferings. Zackmeyer was unable to take nourishment except during brief periods when the hiccoughing released its grip only to come back after a few hours. Mr. Zackmeyer's strength and vitality failed gradually until he died, still hiccoughing.

Clerk Gets Infernal Machine.

City Clerk A. E. Bickford of Virginia, this state, received an infernal machine containing half a pound of dynamite and a mechanism which fortunately failed to work when the package was opened. Mr. Bickford was a witness in the case against George Hamilton, who was recently convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for sending an infernal machine to Sheriff Beck of Houghton county, Mich.

Starving Man on Car Tracks.

Joseph Biers was found lying across the rails of a street car track at Minneapolis. The car motorman stopped just in time to prevent running over the man. He was unconscious and was hurried to the city hospital, where it was found he was suffering from starvation, having had nothing to eat for four days. Circulation in his hands and feet had stopped and it is doubtful if he can recover.

Mysterious Case at Bagley.

John Bartholomew, a laborer who had been living alone in a little shack on the outskirts of Bagley, was found dead by one of the neighbors. The coroner was notified and upon investigation found the body frozen, with some marks which indicated that he might have been killed. An inquest was thereupon ordered. There was a little money in his pockets and a motive for the crime seems to be lacking.

Several Hurt in Train Wreck.

A passenger train running between Spruce Junction, Eveleth and Biwabik on the Mesaba road was wrecked about a mile and a half from Eveleth, three coaches overturning and several people are reported seriously injured. Mayor Haenke of Sparta, Superintendent A. J. Sullivan of the Gilbert mine and wife and Joe Kroll of Sparta were the worst hurt.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend portant part of the human system is the blood. Every mus- ле, bone and sinew is dependent on this vital fluid for nour- rength necessary to maintain them in health and enable each different duties nature requires. Even the heart, the very life, receives its vigor and motive power from the blood. Since pendent on this vital fluid it can very readily be seen how to have it pure and uncontaminated if we would enjoy the od health. Bad blood is responsible for most of the ailments when from any cause it becomes infected with impurities, sons, disease in some form is sure to follow. Muddy, sallow eruptions, pimples, etc., show that the blood is infected with mors which have changed it from a pure, fresh stream to a nid, which forces out its impurities through the pores and skin. A very common evidence of bad blood is sores or ulcers, out on the flesh, often insignificant bruise or abrasion. This spring my blood was bad and I was run down in health, and having seen your medicine highly advertised I commenced its use. Today my blood is in fine condition and my general health is of the best. EARTH SHOCKS NOT AT AN END

Further Quakes Predicted to Occur in Stricken Sections of Italy.

MESSINA TO BE EVACTATED

Two-thirds of Her Population of 150,000 Dead and the City a Complete Ruin.

Messina, Jan. 4.—There is reason to believe that the devastation by earthquake of Calabria and Sicily is not yet at an end. Further heavy shocks have been predicted for Jan. 7 and Jan. 8, when the relative position of the sun and moon will produce the greatest strain on the crust of the earth. Several minor shocks were experienced Saturday and many tottering walls were thrown down, but it is not known that any persons were killed. The new quakes are starting the fires afresh and the people are in a condition bordering on panic.

Messina is to be evacuated entirely as soon as possible. The disposition of the dead is one of the greatest problems confronting the authorities.

Two days spent amid the ruins of Messina and Reggio bring convincing evidence that the horror of the situation in the Straits of Messina has in no sense been exaggerated.

Messina and Reggio have ceased to exist. In the ruins of the former city two-thirds of the inhabitants lie buried, while at Reggio one-half the people lost their lives. Messina counted 150,000 and Reggio 50,000 souls.

Sickening stenches arise from the countless decomposing bodies and the air for many miles out to sea is polluted. Vultures are congregating to prey upon the dead.

The radius of ruin and death extends back with decreasing intensity for forty miles on the mainland and for thirty miles in Sicily.

The work of rescuing and transporting wounded and homeless survivors is attended with the greatest confusion.

ESTIMATES OF DEAD VARY

Foreign Officers Place Total Higher Than Italian.

Naples, Jan. 4.—Foreign officers who have explored the ruins on both sides of the straits give higher estimates of the loss of life than Italian reports. They believe that 90,000 persons have either been killed or trapped in the ruins of Messina and 10,000 at Reggio, where the tidal wave rose to double the height that it did at Messina.

Signor de Nava, a Reggio member of the Italian chamber of deputies, has personally traversed most of the earthquake region on both sides of the straits. He estimates the total death roll at 85,000 and the wounded at 40,000. Of the dead Signor de Nava calculates that 50,000 are at Messina, 28,000 at Reggio and 7,000 at other coast and interior towns affected. The radius of destruction extends thirty miles north and south on the coast of Sicily and on the mainland for an equal distance below Radicena towards the south.

MANY TAKEN FROM RUINS

Fifteen Thousand Rescued Alive at Messina.

Rome, Jan. 4.—Parliament will be convoked Jan. 11. The minister of war says that the forts around Messina, which contain tons of powder and millions of cartridges, have not been injured. He also says that while he was at Messina at least 15,000 persons were taken from the ruins, injured and uninjured, of which number 1,000 were saved by the Russians and 1,000 by the English sailors.

The Italian navy has sent 600 tons of provisions to the affected district. All the treasure found has been placed aboard the warships. One pocketbook was picked up containing $14,000 and much clothing has been found at Messina and elsewhere with bank notes sewed in it. Advices from Messina say that twenty looters were shot there. That city will be evacuated. Six thousand persons already have left there and 8,000 more will leave at once.

SURVIVORS HAD DEPARTED

Rescuers Find Only Bodies of Earthquake Victims.

Reggio, Jan. 4.—A detachment of troops which went to the villages on the east coast of Calabria found nothing but ruins and the bodies of persons killed in the earthquake. The survivors had fled. There is every reason to believe that dreadful havoc was wrought in the mountain villages that have not yet been explored.

A convoy with 1,000 rations of bread, which was going to Bagnara, was rifled en route by famished persons here.

A number of small boats, all of them overloaded, put out into the channel to request food of incoming steamers, which the officers of the vessels were compelled to refuse them. Several of the smaller craft capsized and a number of persons were drowned.

And the said R. H. McClellan, assignee aforesaid, having died on the 23rd day of July, A. D. 1902, in the State of Illinois and County of Jo Daviess, whereupon such proceedings were duly had that Letters Testamentary were duly issued by the county court of said county and state to George W. McClellan, dated August 15, 1902, who was then and there duly appointed executor of the said R. H. McClellan, and a certified copy of said Letters Testamentary have been duly filed in the office of the Register of Deeds of Red Lake County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of December, 1908, at 2:30 o'clock P. M., in Book F of Miscellaneous page 191; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The south east quarter, (SE¼), of section twelve (12), in township one hundred fifty (150), of range forty-three (43), west of the 5th Principal Meridian for Minnesota, the said land lying and being in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls in said County and State, on the 23rd day of January 1909, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of $1104.16 and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty Dollars, Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure and disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of a certain Mortgage in the sum of Twelve Hundred (1200.00) dollars, executed by C. F. Case and Fannie W. Case, his wife, mortgagors, to J. L. Mitchell, mortgagee, with a power of sale therein contained, bearing date the 2nd day of December, A. D. 1903, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the county of Red Lake, and state of Minnesota, on the 15th day of April, A. D. 1904 in Book 29 of Mortgages, at Page 375 at 2:30 o'clock, in the afternoon of said day;

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by the said J. L. Mitchell, mortgagee, to Chas. F. Sanborn, by written assignment bearing date the 13th day of May, A. D. 1904, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County, on the 10th day of May, A. D. 1905, at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, in Book 15 of mortgages at page 227.

That by reason of such default, there is due on said mortgage, at the date of this notice the sum of $1200.00 principal and $84.00 interest, in all $1284.00, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been instituted to recover said sum or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage, contained and in such cases made and provided by statute, said Mortgage will be foreclosed, and the Real Estate therin described, namely: The Southeast Quarter (S.E.¼) Section numbered Three (3) Township One Hundred and Fifty, (150) North of Range Forty-Two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, being in Red Lake County, Minnesota, will be sold at public sale, for cash by the Sheriff of Red Lake County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said County and state, on Saturday the 30th day of January, A. D. 1909, at 11:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay the said sum aforesaid with interest from date, and the costs and costs to accrue, including the sum of $25.00 attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Messrs. Chas. Englund, George Swanson and Arthur Limblom drove to Thief River Falls Sunday.

George Swanson left Sunday for Thief River Falls to resume his school studies at that place on Monday.

Miss Cora Bakken and her brother George returned to Thief River Falls Monday after a few days visit with relatives at this place.

Quite a few young young people from here attended a party at C. A. Melins in Polk Centre Saturday evening. A good time was had by all present.

Mrs. J. E. Swanson has been nursing a sore hand during the last week, which was caused by a small sore that nearly developed into blood poisoning.

The blizzard we had Wednesday was the worst one, so far, for this season. Many of the highways of the neighborhood were blockaded, making traveling difficult.

Miss Nora Johnson resumed her duties as teacher in Dist. No. 180 Monday morning after a two weeks Christmas vacation, spent at the home of her parents in St. Hilaire.

Arthur Limblom left last Sunday for Kansas, where he will visit with relatives for a couple of months. He intends to go from there to Seattle, Wash., where he has spent the last two years.

A large number of young people were invited to the home of C. A. Lindquist on New Year's Eve to spend the evening with the young people of that place Games were played and all enjoyed themselves as only young people can. Refreshments were served and all returned home, well pleased with the evening's fun.

Nels K. Anderson of Sanders and Chas. Gustafson of Rocksbury, respetively president and treasurer, of the Bray Mutual Fire Ins. company, met at the home of the secretary. John O. MAKE IT YOURSELF

Says Many Persons Here Can Be Made Happy Again By Using It.

There is so much Rheumatism in our neighborhood now that the following advice will be highly appreciated by those who suffer;

Get from any good pharmacy one half ounce Fluid Extract dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bed time; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffer from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them. 14-16

MISERY IN STOMACH.

And Indigestion Vanishes in Five Minutes and You Feel Fina.

Why not start now—today, and forever rid yourself of Stomach trouble and Indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, one triangule will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Dirpepsin works your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decided to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of Indigestion. 15-18

If your Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys are weak, try a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly: Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the heart or kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers,

STAMP OUT TUBERCULOSIS

Minn. Board of Health Conducting Educational Campaign.

The holiday season has witnessed a general revival of interest thruout the state in the anti-tuberculosis crusade. This has been affected by the sale of the National Red Cross Society's Christmas stamps for the benefit of the crusade. This society originally organized to afford relief in war, pestilence, and sudden disaster, decided that tuberculosis belonged in that catagory, and so lent its aid to local anti tuberculosis societies by supplying stamps at cost of printing to be attached to Christmas packages and mail, the same to be sold for a cent a piece. Not only in Minnesota but thruout the country Christmas givers purchased large quantities of these stamps, each one of which in addition to holiday greetings, bore a message of hope and help to the neglected consumptives.

About 200,000 of these stamps were disposed of in Minnesota, largely thru the efforts of Dr. H. M. Bracken, Secretary of the State Board of Health, and Mrs. George H. Christian, Chairman of the Health and Hygiene Committee of the State Federation of Womens' Clubs.

St. Paul and Minneapolis in addition to the stamp idea had "tag" days; in the former city wholly for the benefit of the consumptives, and in the latter, partly for their benefit. Tag day receipts in the Twin cities amounted to $32,000, which will mean that a complete municipal program on the most improved lines will be instituted for the care and instruction of the 1000 or more needy consumptives in the Twin cities.

The Traveling Exhibit of the Minnesota State Board of Health was again put on the road early in December. Two exhibitions and lecture series have already been conducted, and in both places, Duluth and Two Harbors, the result was the formation of local anti-tuberculosis committees. In Two Harbors, nearly half the population attended. In Duluth a very elaborate program of instruction for all classes and sections of the city was carried out, over eighty addresses being delivered. The success of the Duluth exhibit was largely due to the splendid work of a few public spirited citizens. A feature of the Duluth and Two Harbors campaign has been a determined crusade against nailed-on storm windows. That a considerable portion of the population of these places sleep all winter in air-tight bedrooms was shown to be a serious menace to public health. In Two Harbors the head of every household where storm windows are found fastened on in such a way as not to be readily opened, will be requested by the local committee to make the necessary changes. The window tent also as a convenient device to secure pure air at night in a cold climate will be recommended.

The Publisher's Claims Sustained

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is, in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation."

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

Rev. Fr. Fayolle of St. Joseph's church left on his southern trip Tuesday morning. As previously stated in THE GAZETTE, Fr. Fayolle will spend the winter in Old Mexico. En route he will visit the Grand Canyon in Colorado and will go on a hunting trip in Arizona, near Tucon. Fr. Fayolle's health has become slightly impaired and he believes that a change in climate and a rest from his labors will bring about an improvement. Fr. Fayolle will return to resume his work about April 1 and his many friends hope that at that time he may be enjoying vigorous health. Rev. Fr. Pichery of Winnipeg is here and will have charge of the work of the church in the absence of Fr. Fayolle.

John E. King, publisher of THE GAZETTE, was up from St. Paul Tuesday. Editor Sid Bagley of Thief River Falls and Editor Harry Ives of St. Hilaire were here, too. Tuesday evening Mr. King, believing that the new Sanford restaurant should have a house-warming, invited the brother editors and a few friends whom he happened to meet during the evening to an "oyster" at the restaurant. It was a jolly crowd of men who enjoyed the hospitality of THE GAZETTE "boss" and some good toasts were given—when Harry Ives wasn't talking. Now, don't misinterpret that statement. Ives said some good things, too—but so many of them that the others would be forgotten without the "special mention." The good things provided by the Sanford man made every one feel good physically and mentally.

THE BIG STORE

THEO. LaBISSONIERE, Prop.

The Red Lake Falls orchestra went to Plummer last Saturday to furnish music for the New Years dance given that day. A large number of young people were present to enjoy the occasion.

The Christmas number of the Red Lake Falls Gazette, with special write-ups of interest to all its readers, reached our exchange table last week. It showed clever ideas and journalistic brightness.—Mahnomen Free Press.

The members of the M. W. A. lodge will entertain a few of their friends at a public installation of officers-elect at their hall next Wednesday evening, Jan. 13. Following the ceremony of installation the Woodmen, Royal Neighbors and invited guests will enjoy a dance.

The following officers have been elected by the Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church: President, Miss Ethel Bourdon; Vice President, Miss Boyd; Cor. Sec., Miss Hazel Healy; Rec. Sec., Miss Sigrid Anderson; Treasurer, Miss Igna Hamry; Organists, Miss Alice Zaiser and Miss Jessie Carver.

Henry McCrehin and Jennie Sorenson of Thief River Falls were united in marriage Tuesday. The ceremony was performed at the court house in the probate court room, at 10 o'clock a.m., Judge S. A. Swanson officiating. Mr. McCrehin and his bride were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James Bulman of Thief River Falls who witnessed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. McCrehin will reside at Thief River Falls.

James Bulman of Thief River Falls has been appointed a depty by Sheriff Nelson, but Mr. Bulman had better look to his lourels and get a short arm hold on his job, for there is a young man in Red Lake Lalls who is making a strong bid for the place. The little fellow appeared at the Nelson home shortly after the appointment was made and he is such an important individual and protests so vigorously that it is doubtful that he will be satisfied with a place of less importance than on his dad's staff

Farm Loans, low rates, and privilege payments. Merchant State Bank. tf

Red Lake Falls is not the only cold place on the map. The thermometer registered thirty below zero at St. Paul Tuesday. Here the the thermometers did about five degrees better—or worse.

We make farm loans at lowest rates. Call and see us—First State Bank, Red Lake Falls.

A reception was held at the M. B. A. hall Monday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. O. Payment. After the regular lodge meeting at which officers-elect for the year were installed, the remainder of the evening and the early hours of the next day were devoted to social diversion. The guests enjoyed a delightful social dance, and other pastimes. A large number of the members of the order were present for the affair and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

TOO MUCH MONEY

Chisholm Relief Committee Will Have $31,000 Left.

After all the assistance that is needed has been extended to the people of Chisholm there will be left in the hands of the relief committee about $31,000.

About $77,000 was paid into the hands of the relief committee. About $40,000 has been paid out, leaving a balance of $31,000.

The surplus is to be sent to the local committees to be returned proportionately to the individual contributors.

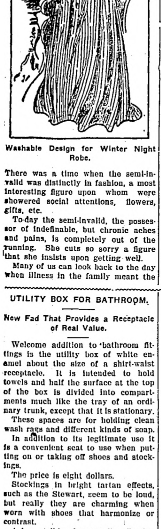
DRESS FOR WINTER

PLAN WARDROBE TO FIT THE SEASON.

Sewing Room Responsible for Duty of Keeping the Body Warm So That Bedroom May Be Properly Ventilated.

This is what may be termed the age of defensive therapeutics. The up-to-date physicians, as well as students of hygiene and sanitation, are concentrating their efforts on the prevention, not the cure, of illness.

We are so accustomed to connecting the word fashion with mere raiment that it comes with something of a shock to learn that there are also fashions in health and sanitation.



Washable Design for Winter Night Robe.

There was a time when the semi-invalid was distinctly in fashion, a most interesting figure upon whom were showered social attentions, flowers, gifts, etc.

To-day the semi-invalid, the possessor of indefinable, but chronic aches and pains, is completely out of the running. She cuts so sorry a figure that she insists upon getting well.

Many of us can look back to the day when illness in the family meant the turning on of extra heat and the shutting out of all air, dubbed dangerous drafts.

To-day pure air in unlimited quantities and exercises of all sorts are prescribed. Hence in planning the family wardrobe, whether for the sick or the well, the new methods of preventing or attacking disease must be considered.

How to keep the body warm and the bodroom filled with pure air is one household problem which can be solved largely in the sewing room. It is generally agreed that with warm sleeping attire and warm feet, all under ample covering, the cold room will work good instead of harm to the sleeper.

This means a winter farewell to muslin, nainsook and dimity night gowns, with low necks and elbow sleeves. A famous specialist in bronchial and lung troubles says that the low-necked short-sleeved nightdress worn in cold weather is a common cause of colds which if not fatal are deep-seated and difficult to cure. The proper nightdress for cold weather is the simplest model made in wash flannel, a pretty model for which is shown.

Barring a few tucks on the shoulder for the full figure, this gown is plain back and front, a factor in laundering all flannels. It also fits snugly around the throat and has long sleeves fitted into a narrow cuff.

In the model, silk-and-wool cloth was used with german val lace for trimming, but equally satisfactory results can be secured by employing a good grade of wash flannel at about 12 cents a yard, with trimming of torchon lace. Do not use hamburg embroidery on wash flannel. It does not wash as well as the heavy torchon laces. If you do your own laundry work, and are sure that your night dresses will not be frozen in the process of drying, use fine striped designs in blue and white, and pink and white. But if your clothing is at the more or less tender mercy of an outside laundress, pin your faith on gray and white, which will not fade under freezing. There are also some pretty designs in tan color and white.

Another fashion in hygienic living is exercise outdoors, no matter what the weather, and this means warmer out door raiment than the smart tailored suit and in fabrics which will with stand rain and snow.

For this use, a skirt clearing the ground by at least four inches and a stout storm coat are essential. Cravenetted or rain-proof cloths can be bought from two dollars a yard upward, in 52-inch width, and a variety of subdued colorings, like oxford gray and tan.

DESIGNS IN LINENS

CONSIDER UTILITY AS WELL AS DAINTINESS.

Very Fine Bureau and Sideboard Covers Entail Heavy Laundry Bills—Good Ones That Can Be Made at Home.

Every housekeeper appreciates the difficulty of keeping the covers of bureaus and sideboards spotless. The woman who has enough fresh covers to do away with hasty laundering is yet to be found.

As frequent changes are necessary, the average housewife should sacrifice her love of daintiness to utility. Sheer linen scarfs inset with lace and hand embroidery are lovely, but distinct luxuries in this day of soot and big laundry bills.

Have them by all means if you can afford extra sets for special occasions; if not, choose covers that are serviceable as well as good looking.

Among the best for general utility are the plain scarfs of heavy linen or fine pique that can be made at home for nothing but the cost of the materials. White linen is probably the most used, the pique is preferable, as it wrinkles less quickly.

The simplest, most effective, and, at present, the smartest of these heavy covers are those in pique, embroidered on the edges with a heavy, graceful scallop and with no other trimming but a large monogram directly in the center of the front, about two inches in from the scallop.

Pad the scallop heavily with darning cotton, using a chain stitch, and buttonhole closely to form a strong edge.

The monogram, if one cannot draw it in for herself, can usually be designed for about fifty cents. The size for the bureau scarf is useful for towels, pillow cases and can even be used on the largest napkins; as the one monogram can easily be transferred with impression paper, the initial cost is worth while.

At the same time, it is well to have two smaller monograms made to match, one for the pincushion top and smaller napkins and the smallest to be used on handkerchiefs and lingerie. It is quite the thing just now to have a distinctive marking and use it on all one's belongings.

How the monogram is worked depends upon the style chosen. Some are done entirely in solid embroidery, others are combined with seeding. Care should be taken to do the padding smoothly and heavily. In working the satin stitch do not use too heavy a cotton and be careful about the slant of the stitches and to keep the edges even.

The woman who has leisure will find it convenient to cut her covers to fit a special bureau or sideboard and make at least two for each one; three is better yet. The scallop can be run on the four sides or on the ends and front, as preferred.

The pincushion tops are also scalloped and have a monogram in the center. The square or round ones are better liked at present than the oblong.

Sometimes these tops are made with a bottom that laces to the top through eyelets; more often the top is cut to fit and is held to the satin-covered cushion by tiny white pins.

A specially good-looking one and easily laundered was for a round cushion. The top was a circle big enough to fit over the cushion and come half way down. The edge had a small scallop with a monogram in satin stitch in the center. Underneath was a small ruffle of pique scalloped on the edge. This was sewed in a circle, finished with a narrow band that just fitted on the sides of the pincushion when slipped over the top.

The effect is elaborate, yet both pieces could be washed with only the trouble of pulling out a few pins.

"A STUDY IN MAUVE."

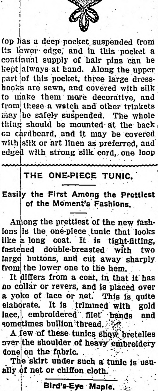
WALL POCKET FOR TRINKETS.

Useful Device for Hair Pins and Other Small Articles.

The accompanying illustration shows a very useful device in the way of a wall pocket, combining in one and the same article three distinctly different things. The roll-shaped cushion at the top has a deep pocket suspended from its lower edge, and in this pocket a continual supply of hair pins can be kept always at hand. Along the upper part of this pocket, three large dress-hooks are sewn, and covered with silk to make them more decorative, and from these a watch and other trinkets may be safely suspended. The whole thing should be mounted at the back on cardboard, and it may be covered with silk or art linen as preferred, and edged with strong silk cord, one loop of which is used to hang the pocket either against the wall or across the corner of a toilet glass. On front of the pocket the words "Hair Pins" are embroidered in some contrasting color, surmounted by a spray of flowers.



Washing a Plume.

You don't need to be aghast at the idea of washing a plume.

The advice given by one woman is as follows: Lay the plume in a suds made of good white soap and cold water and let it stand for two or three hours. Then put into hot water, where it should remain about twenty minutes. Then, with a piece of soft cloth or silk dipped in soap suds, remove any dirt which may remain. Lay it on a clean towel and touch with a piece of cloth rolled up to restore the curl. When almost dry shake until fluffy, place in tissue paper and put it in the warming oven of the stove to dry thoroughly. If necessary use the dull side of an ivory paper cutter in restoring the curl.

For Boy or Girl.

A charming little costume for the small boy or girl going to kindergarten could be made from golden brown broadcloth, trimmed with black astrakhan. The box coat could cover the dress or knickers as the case may be, and close double-breasted with black frogs. The coat sleeves should be deep shawl and the collar and cuffs of the black astrakhan. The hat of hussar shape will have a draped crown of the brown cloth and brim of astrakhan. A white brush on the left side will be held in place with a black-cord ornament. Supposing a boy is the wearer, a black patent leather belt may be added.

Make Your Tapers.

If you run out of wax tapers make one by twisting a string and dipping it in melted paraffin wax and holding it up by one end to drip. It hardens instantly and you can place it in the lighter and use immediately.

UTILITY BOX FOR BATHROOM.

New Fad That Provides a Receptacle of Real Value.

Welcome addition to bathroom fittings is the utility box of white enamel about the size of a shirt-waist receptacle. It is intended to hold towels and half the surface at the top of the box is divided into compartments much like the tray of an ordinary trunk, except that it is stationary.

In addition to its legitimate use it is a convenient seat to use when putting on or taking off shoes and stockings.

The price is eight dollars.

Stockings in bright tartan effects, such as the Stewart, seem to be loud, but really they are charming when worn with shoes that harmonize or contrast.

A less striking but equally effective combination is the plaid of the black watch in hose, worn with dark-green suede shoes closing with smoke-pearl buttons.

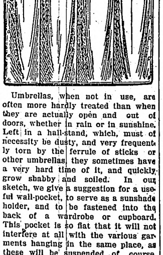
The vamps of the shoes are in narrow raised stripes, like corduroy, the uppers of plain smooth suede. Plaids in wood brown and cream are lovely when the shoes are of tan suede.

Silk Umbrella Covers.

This usually discarded article has many uses for the thrifty housewife. Cut the full length next to the seam. Dampen and press. Then roll up ready to be used to line a standing collar, replace a worn collar band, convert by folding and stitching into a tape to hang up coats and dresses, facing for sleeves, instead of a thickness of dress material, or binding for sleeves, as it is much softer than binding ribbon.

Handsome pillow covers in Egyptian designs are shown in the fancy goods departments.

PROLONG LIFE OF UMBRELLA.



Umbrellas, when not in use, are often more hardly treated than when they are actually open and out of doors, whether in rain or in sunshine. Left in a hall-stand, which, must of necessity be dusty, and very frequently torn by the ferrule of sticks or other umbrellas, they sometimes have a very hard time of it, and quickly grow shabby and soiled. In our sketch, we give a suggestion for a useful wall-pocket, to serve as a sunshade holder, and to be fastened into the back of a wardrobe or cupboard. This pocket is so flat that it will not interfere at all with the various garments hanging in the same place, as these will be suspended, of course, from pegs which are put in much higher up. It should be made in brown holland, with stitched tapes between each division, and it might easily be fastened to the back of the cupboard with large drawing-pins or brass-headed nails. Each pocket is bound at the top with ribbon.

Venice Too Wet for Her.

An Anthony woman who recently returned from a trip to Europe says wet weather hasn't bothered this country at all in comparison with what she saw abroad. She says that they ran into a town named Venice where the water covered every street and you couldn't get anywhere except in boats. She added "You bet we only stayed one day in that slosh."

The Limit.

Manager—Sir, your performance of Hamlet is the very worst ever presented behind the footlights. If there had been any money in the house I should have been bound in honor to return it at the doors. As it is, several friends have sent in and peremtorily ordered me to remove their names from the free list.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

Wigg—Do you think it is lucky to have a rabbit's foot?

Wagg—I might, if I were a rabbit.

THE ONE-PIECE TUNIC.

Easily the First Among the Prettiest of the Moment's Fashions.

Among the prettiest of the new fashions is the one-piece tunic that looks like a long coat. It is tight-fitting, fastened double-breasted with two large buttons, and cut away sharply from the lower one to the hem.

It differs from a coat, in that it has no collar or revers, and is placed over a yoke of lace or net. This is quite elaborate. It is trimmed with gold lace, embroidered filet bands and sometimes bullion thread.

A few of these tunics show bretelles over the shoulder of heavy embroidery done on the fabric.

The skirt under such a tunic is usually of net or chiffon cloth.

Bird's-Eye Maple.

Lucky is the woman nowadays who numbers among her assets some pieces of bird's-eye maple. During the last few years this wood, which was formerly overlooked in the universal passion for mahogany, has taken a wonderful grip on popular fancy, and the dealers in antiques say that prices for it have gone up two-fold in the past two years. Of course, too, bird's-eye maple owes its present popularity to more than a caprice. A fine piece possesses all the luster of satin and it has the added advantage of improving with years of service.

Of course, the maple is used more especially for bedroom duty, and the old four-posters in this wood, when finished with a canopy of blue or some other delicate hue of chintz, are truly beautiful.

Irish Linen the Best.

In buying table linen remember that Irish linen is considered the best. The French loses its gloss, which is its chief beauty, and the Scotch is partially bleached with chlorine, which weakens the fiber. The Irish is grass bleached and improves with time. Many housekeepers claim that the stores of household linen should be kept in piles on shelves rather than in drawers, where they are likely to become tumbled. If kept on shelves they should be protected from dust by thin curtains.

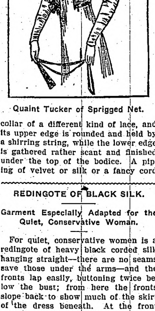
WOMAN'S REALM

USE TUCKER EFFECT

RELIEVES MONOTONY OF PLAIN LACE GUIMPE.

Combined with Collar of a Different Kind of Lace Garniture May Be Made Strikingly Effective.

To relieve the monotony of the plain lace guimpe, without which no gown is really fashionable at present, a quaint tucker effect is being introduced on dresses of rather simple design. The tucker is combined with a collar of a different kind of lace, and its upper edge is rounded and held by a shirring string, while the lower edge is gathered rather scant and finished under the top of the bodice. A piping of velvet or silk or a fancy cord makes a serviceable and effective edge trimming. Sprigged or dotted net combines as well as any other kind with the heavier variety of lace used for the collar. A lining may be added under the shirred guimpe and the upper part left transparent. This is a better arrangement and allows one to have quite a deep and graceful curve to the tucker without making it look too thin. The sash shown in the guimpe illustration is novel and pleasing in the way it laces under the front panel of the dress and fastens at the left side with a large rosette.



Quaint Tucker of Sprigged Net.

LAMP SHADE IN EMBROIDERY.

Costs Little, and Makes a Dainty and Effective Gift.

One of the most attractive of the new lamp shades is one that can easily be copied by the girl who can embroider. It is done in Madeira embroidery on the sheerest handkerchief linen or Persian lawn, and is made up over an empire frame covered with shirred silk.

A particularly attractive shade was made for a small lamp. The frame was circular, about ten inches in diameter at the bottom and six inches at the top. This was covered with emerald green silk, gathered to the frame at top and bottom.

The outer cover was of white batiste, finished on the upper and lower edge with a tiny scallop such as is used on a fine corset cover. The design was an open one of dragons and twining foliage interspersed with eyelets.

The work was done in a fine white mercerized cotton, in the over and over stitch wherever the work was raised, but most often in the eyelet stitch.

There was just enough of the satin stitch to relieve the flatness of the Madeira embroidery. Such a shade costs little for materials, yet is dainty and effective as a gift.

REDINGOTE OF BLACK SILK.

Garment Especially Adapted for the Quiet, Conservative Woman.

For quiet, conservative women is a redingote of heavy black corded silk hanging straight—there are no seams save those under the arms—and the fronts lap easily, buttoning twice below the bust; from here the fronts slope back to show much of the skirt of the dress beneath. At the front corners and in the middle corners of the back, where it is slashed waist high to allow walking room, are decorative bits of colored embroidery mingled faintly with gold and silver threads. Above the front closing, the material is cut away and the space is filled with lovely brocaded silk in faint dull shades of colors. This is adjusted in crossing folds that rise to shape a high directoire collar at the back; filling the space at the throat is a cravat of the new canvas that has wholly replaced the net and mull of the summer time. This new canvas is oddly woven in rather large meshes with line threads.—Vogue.

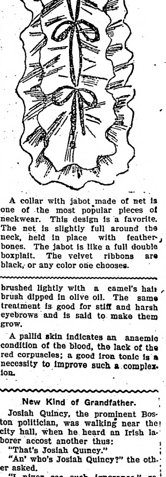
Persian Effects Popular.

Persian effects are still good and are conspicuous among the best members of trimming collections. One of the most charming class of trimmings is the one in which fine beadwork plays a large part. In these trimmings fine silk braids of exquisite weave furnish outlines and the beads, a solid filling for the centers of motives and for borders. The loveliest greens, blues, rose colors, etc., are worked out in these braids and beads. The solid beadwork of to-day is not embroidered on a background like Indian work, but is made in woven and strung patterns, the result of lighter effects.

In Mending Gloves.

A mistake that is often made is mending gloves with silk. At any notion counter you can get for 15 cents a plait of cotton threads of various colors, especially intended for this purpose. With it should be kept a small piece of wax, a thimble, a glove mender and a paper of regular glove needles, which have the points slightly flattened.

POPULAR NECKWEAR.



A collar with jabot made of net is one of the most popular pieces of neckwear. This design is a favorite. The net is slightly full around the neck, held in place with feather-bones. The jabot is like a full double boxplait. The velvet ribbons are black, or any color one chooses.

TOILET TABLE.

To get the full value of cold cream, it must be let dry on the face. It takes time for the skin to absorb it.

In massaging wrinkles, use the tips of the fingers and thumb, always working across the line. Never follow the lines of the creases.

Bushy, irregular eyebrows should be brushed lightly with a camel's hair brush dipped in olive oil. The same treatment is good for stiff and harsh eyebrows and is said to make them grow.

A pallid skin indicates an anaemic condition of the blood, the lack of the red corpuscles; a good iron tonic is a necessity to improve such a complexion.

The Correct Charge.

"What is this poor fellow charged with?"

"Attempted suicide, yer honor," replied the bulky officer.

"Explain the case."

"Yer honor, he wanted to fight me."

Giving It Time.

Jeweler — Is your watch all right now, Mr. Smart?

New Kind of Grandfather.

Josiah Quincy, the prominent Boston politician, was walking near the city hall, when he heard an Irish laborer accost another thus:

"That's Josiah Quincy."

"An' who's Josiah Quincy?" the other asked.

"I niver see such ignorance," rejoined the first. "He's the grandson of the statue you see in the yard."

INTOLERABLE ITCHING.

Fearful Eczema All Over Baby's Face —Professional Treatment Failed.

A Perfect Cure by Cuticura.

"When my little girl was six months old I noticed small red spots on her right cheek. They grew so large that I sent for the doctor but, instead of helping the eruption, his ointment seemed to make it worse. Then I went to a second doctor who said it was eczema. He also gave me an ointment which did not help either. The disease spread all over the face and the eyes began to swell. The itching grew intolerable and it was a terrible sight to see. I consulted doctors for months, but they were unable to cure the baby. I paid out from $20 to $30 without relief. One evening I began to use the Cuticura Remedies. The next morning the baby's face was all white instead of red. I continued until the eczema entirely disappeared. Mrs. P. E. Gumbin, Sheldon, Ia., July 13,'08."

Naming the Culprit.

A member of the flock was nodding with closed eyes during the sermon. The preacher said:

"I thing mebbe some membah. has been up too late durin' the ebenin' precedin'. He better set up or I'll name him."

Failing to accomplish the desired result, the preacher soon stopped his sermon again. Shaking his finger at the culprit he shouted:

"Jim Shepherd, dis is de secon' time I stops to wake yo' up! If I have to stop a third time I'' expose yo' by name to de whole congregashun!"

The Old Familiar Faces

By WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT

(Copyright, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

Peele was a wandering Englishman with certain virtues and a great deal to say. Keeler, who sat beside him on the balcony of a fonda overlooking the plaza of Bogota, was a Chicago special writer, just now engaged in covering the features of a Colombian revolution for the Express Syndicate. The two were talking about Graver, a free lance, who sat in his room back of the balcony, goading unto desperation an unoiled and tropical-rusted typewriter. The hopes and memories of Graver also moved in a Chicago setting, though it appears that he bunked and rode and shared labor with Keeler for other and unknowable reasons.

"It isn't in human fiber to endure any such amount of work," Keeler whispered. "Gravey's been at it for 16 hours a day for 16 times 16 days."

"It's a desecrytion," said Peele. "It shauws money-greed an' is baund t' be shoddy, y' knauw."

"That's where you're wrong, Peele," Keeler remarked. "I know Gravey's stuff. It's good and clean and gritty. You can turn it in without editing. He was liked back in Chicago; so was his stuff. I don't pretend to understand his energy since we came here, because he liked to lounge back in Chicago as well as any of us—"

"No, he's been married for three or four years. That didn't make the difference. He was always square at home, you know."

"'E's a freelawnce, I'm tauld," Peele said languidly, "un-limited spyce 'n' all that. Tell me nauw, 'ow much does 'e myke?"

"Altogether too much—an amount, wholly unnewspaperlike. Fifty or sixty dollars a day, likely. And he don't write easily—labors, groans, sweats blood before he gets it coming—"

A fit of coughing in Graver's room silenced the typewriter. Afterward there was the squeak of a drawn cork, the suggestion of a gurgle, followed by a harsh expulsion of breath, as from one nauseated.

"And that's all new, too," Keeler resumed, half-angrily. "Stimulant! It's so easy, so devilish easy, to get used to working that way. I believe I'll go and rope him down, strangle him and make him see the right way!"

"I wouldn't, y' knauw," Peele said thoughtfully. "Myby 'e's got his reasons. . . . What I have seen! What I have seen! Wyte till y've been back 'n forth 'ere for five years as I 'ave. . . . 'I 'ave 'ad playmates; I 'ave 'ad companions . . .; all, all are gone, the old familiar fyces!'"

And thereupon Peele went down deep into his inner consciousness and brought forth a tale, a repellant, barbaric tale of Colombia, that would have been bad enough in a metropolitan clubroom, but had no place whatsoever in the midst of a land that swarmed with sinister menaces and swift and dreadful modes of death.

The bells had rung midnight, but Bogota was still awake. For hours Luapo's column of 18,000 men had lain partly in, but mostly out, of the town, like a snake with its head in a foul jug. White-coated, bare-footed figures slid to and fro across the plaza, complicating the shadows and corrupting the patches of light. On the following dawn, Gen. Luapo was to move his column of government defenders out into the Cordilleras to meet and stop the rebel, Torron, who was marching his army in to take the capital.

"I haven't been here quite a year yet, much less five," said Keeler, breaking the silence which followed the tale, "but I have seen enough, God knows! I have been shot at and apologized to because I was missed. I have seen children cowhided into soldiers; I have seen fifteen hundred dead on one field; I have seen the teeth of the dead knocked out with musket-butts for the gold they contained! I do not know about the rest of South America, but I do know that compared to Colombia, darkest Africa is as bright as the Southern Cross and Siberia as chaste as the Milky Way! . . . And I was told when I left the office in Chicago to bring out the opera bouffe. I thought I would lie in a hammock and watch pea-shooter revolutions—hell!"

"Say, fellows," he said bashfully, "what is that smell that comes up over the balcony—jasmine or magnolia? I want to use it, and I never could tell the difference between a tulip and a turnip."

"Jasmine or magnolia!" Keeler repeated. "They'll be bloomin' over your long-geared grave if you don't quit pushing this work-matter into fanaticism. You smell garlic and dobie cigarettes and have worked yourself into a maudlin state of flowers."

Graver drew back with a smile. He was exceedingly tall, apparently about thirty years old. Pallor overpowered the tan upon his face and his brown eyes were misty, half-desperate with illness and fatigue. Peele sought his mosquito netting soon afterward, and Keeler remained upon the balcony to finish a cigar. . . . The coughing began again, and the spell was prolonged. Keeler hurried to the other's room. He found Graver doubled over in a chair, nervously endeavoring to hide the evidences of a hemorrhage. Keeler helped his friend to the cot in the corner.

"And may I ask one more favor?" came in a whisper from beneath the mosquito curtains.

"Of course! What is it, Gravy?"

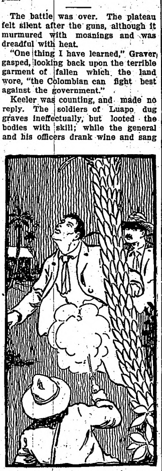
"Put the typewriter—case and all—under my pillow. It props me up, you know. You see my chest tickles if I lie flat. I hope to get even with you sometime. . . . Ah, that's so much better! Thank you. And say, Keeler, don't let the column get away without us in the morning."

It may have been that Gen. Luapo's mustachios resisted their regular lance-pointing from wax that morning; at all events the army waited until the heat of full day steamed up from the gutters and pranced upon the highways. What was left of the populace when the great column moved out at last, vented neither tears nor cheers, since war had become a mere stale and costly fad of the men-folks. The two from Chicago waved an adios toward Peele on the balcony, and set about the day's work with many thoughts and no emotion. As the hours passed, Graver saw much to smile and chat about, although his gray-white face was drawn and shadowed by pain.

The battle was over. The plateau felt silent after the guns, although it murmured with moanings and was dreadful with heat.

"One thing I have learned," Graver gasped, looking back upon the terrible garment of fallen which the land wore, "the Colombian can fight best against the government."

Keeler was counting, and made no reply. The soldiers of Luapo dug graves ineffectually, but looted the bodies with skill; while the general and his officers drank wine and sang the songs of victory. Keeler counted the fallen until his brain roared with reflected agony and the shadows grew long and deep upon the weltering field. The two were returning to the general's camp as the moon was rising; and often they looked back, though the sight tortured the brain and nerves that moved them.



There Was the Crash of a Pistol and Garver Tumbled Forward.

"I counted and I counted!" Keeler muttered hoarsely. (His face seemed chalky in the moonlight, and his eyes darted and started here and there.) "Then I would lose it all bending over some crying, dying lump; then I would try again, until the numbers flew from me like a scared swarm of bees! I couldn't clutch 'em. I don't understand, quite. I couldn't write the story now. Why, Gravey, there are thousands—thousands of dead and dying back there! And I don't know even the name of the battle!"

"Nor I," whispered Graver, "but I've got pictures! Maybe I've got two or three views on one film, I don't know; but some are right, and they'll cover! My head was gone, too, at times. Once I had to shut one eye to see things—as if I were drunk. But I've got some, and they're good! Luapo, crazy with fear, is there; the charge of Torron is there; the dead and dying and the ghouls are there—$1,000 worth of things in this little black box! Hark, somebody's calling!"

Then the two heard plainly a thin, whining voice from a blotch in the moonlight to the right, crying in mongrel Spanish: "Ah, gentlemen, gentlemen—come here a moment! For the love of the Holy Mother, straighten out my limbs!"

They hurried toward the voice. Graver was the first to kneel over a white-coated body, the face of which was partly covered. . . . There was a streak of white fire and the crash of a pistol. Graver tumbled forward. The figure wriggled from beneath and zig-zagged away, dodging six shots from Keeler's weapon.

And the message follows which Graver found time to whisper:

"It was all on account—of those pictures. Luapo sent one of his bodyguard to get them—but don't let 'em know you know, Keeler! Please don't. . . . I'm sorry, but I was gone, anyway. They wouldn't give me any life insurance when I left—that's how I knew—that's why I worked so! . . . Had to make insurance, you know—ten dollars a column—and, God, I've written 500—all checks sent home, too! . . . They'll get along! You'll know best what to tell 'em—bless 'em! . . . And say, Keeler, when you write the story—say—thousands of dead in the moonlight—don't look like toadstools! Dick Heldar said 'they did . . . and put—put the typewriter—case and all—under my pillow—'"

LEVELING TRACKS FOR RAILS.

The Working of the Whitewash Car—A New Scientific Method.

Curiosity is often displayed by travelers over the method employed in making mile after mile of trackage so level that scarcely an undulation can be felt as the whizzing train reels off the laps. This levelness is maintained by the "whitewash" car.

The "whitewash" car is an ordinary vehicle fitted out with a sort of whitewash magazine. As the cars run over the rails at a moderate gait the developed sense of the division officials notes any inequalities, and at each one a valve is pressed, whereat a dash of whitewash falls on the tracks at the points where later the working gangs get busy to make things even.

This homely "whitewash" car is giving way rapidly, however, to a more modern and scientific arrangement in the way of a handsome coach elegantly fitted out with many comforts and in which is to be found a delicate instrument. This latter is so constructed that it registers all unevenness in the tracks on paper, which has indicated on it the mileage and names of stations along the way, so that when a run is completed it will be shown just where repairing needs to be done. The indicating sheet is sent to the proper department heads of the company, and by them the work of making the roadbed level is prosecuted.

Railroad Has Floating Elevator.

Promised about two years ago as a small concession to the demand of the grain trade of Philadelphia for a new grain elevator to take the place of the old Girard Point elevator A, which the company tore down, the Pennsylvania railroad has put in service a new floating grain elevator with a capacity for handling 10,000 bushels per hour.

These additional harbor facilities have been greatly needed in transferring grain from the grain elevators at Girard Point and Washington avenue to line steamships which take on cargo at their regular piers.

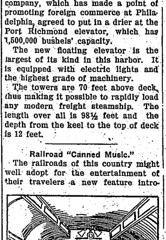
The two grain elevators of the Pennsylvania railroad at Philadelphia have an aggregate capacity of 1,600,000 bushels. The Commercial Exchange, speaking for the grain trade of the port, asked for a new modern elevator of 1,500,000 bushels capacity, provided with driers. This the company refused. When it hinted to the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, that company, which has made a point of promoting foreign commerce at Philadelphia, agreed to put in a drier at the Port Richmond elevator, which has 1,500,000 bushels' capacity.

The new floating elevator is the largest of its kind in this harbor. It is equipped with electric lights and the highest grade of machinery.

The towers are 70 feet above deck, thus making it possible to rapidly load any modern freight steamship. The length over all is 98½ feet and the depth from the keel to the top of deck is 12 feet.

Railroad "Canned Music."

The railroads of this country might well adopt for the entertainment of their travelers a new feature introduced by the Great Central Railroad of England. It has placed phonographs in its dining cars and its passengers may now listen to the voices of Melba, Tetrazzini, Caruso and many of the other grand opera stars while speeding to his or her destination.



The Stop.

J. Hampton Moore, Philadelphia member of the Waterways and Forestry Preservation commission, was describing, on his return from Europe a wretched railroad in Brittany.

"I never imagined such slow trains existed," said Mr. Moore. "They are certainly tedious to ride on. They bore you dreadfully.

"All sorts of stories—very likely ones, too—are told about the Breton trains. Thus it is said that one day, when an express pulled up in the middle of a dreary field of gray rocks, a passenger put his head out of the window and shouted angrily to the conductor:

"'Well, what have you stopped this time for?'

"'Engineer's dropped his cigarette, sir,' was the reply."

A railroad ticket issued in 1859 was tendered the conductor by a passenger on train No. 4, which left Pittsburg for the east at 8:30 o'clock. The ticket was issued by the Louisville & Lexington Railroad Company, and read:

"Good for one first-class passage between Cincinnati, Ohio, and Washington, D. C." It was so worn with age, however, that great difficulty was experienced in deciphering the full name of the railroad.

The conductor telegraphed to the superintendent of passenger transportation at Philadelphia for instructions and was advised to honor the ticket.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Criticism.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the government's famous food expert, was talking at Mackinac Island about impure whiskies.

"I once saw an old Kentuckian," said Dr. Wiley, "take up a glass of whisky, sniff it, set it down and shake his head sadly.

"'One thing,' he said, 'was never seen coming through the rye, and that's the kind of whisky they send us nowadays.'"

"A vast rich country and a contented prosperous people."—Extract from correspondence of a National Editor, whose visit to Western Canada, in August, 1908, was an inspiration.
Many have paid the entire cost of their farms and had a balance of from $10.00 to $20.00 per acre as a result of one crop.
Spring wheat, winter wheat, oats, barley, flax and peas are the principal crops, while the wild grasses bring to perfection the best cattle that have ever been sold on the Chicago market.
Splendid climate, schools and churches in all localities. Railways touch most of the settled districts, and prices for produce are always good. Lands may also be purchased from railway and land companies.

ASSOCIATION MEETING

Officers Elected and Other Business Transacted at Creamery Association Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Red Lake Falls creamery association was held at the city hall in Red Lake Falls Tuesday afternoon.

The following officers and directors were elected to serve for the ensuing year:

President—Ildidge Baril
Vice President—Geo. Hennings
Treasurer—John Linnertz
Manager—Frank Grenier
Directors—Geo. Walker, Fred Bane, Mike Kees, Carl Hundermark and D. Patnode.

During the past eleven months $22,693.79 has been paid to the patrons for butterfat.

During the past year the creamery has enjoyed a good run, and the indications are that the showing for next year will be more satifactory. During the past year nearly $500 was spent for new machinery. The creamery is now well equipped and that means a reduction in running expenses for the coming year. A dividend fo 7per cent was declared.

Bids For Cord Wood.

Sealed bids will be received by the school board for one hundred and fifty (150) cords of sound bodied green poplar wood to be delivered at the Red Lake Falls school buildings as directed by said board on or before January 18, 1909, at 1 o'clock P. M.

Bids will be considered on lots of ten (10) cords or more.

Dated January 5. 1909.

A. P. Toupin, Clerk.

IMPROVEMENT OF RED LAKE RIVER

Congressman Steenerson Introduces Bill Providing for Large Appropriation

Congressman Steenerson has been making an investigation of the needs of northern Minnesota with reference to river and harbor improvement. He has introduced a bill in congress providing for the expenditure of $325,000 to carry out certain projects that will aid in the development of northern Minnesota. The bill provides that the greater part of the money be expended in the construction of a dam at the outlet of Red lake to regulate the flow of water in the river.

The items of the bills are as follows: For construction of a dam across Red Lake river at the outlet of Red lake, and a reservoir in Red lake for aiding navigation and regulating the flow of water in Red Lake river and the Red River of the North, in accordance with plans heretofore approved by army engineers, $274,456; for deepening and removing obstructions in Red Lake river between Red lake and Thief River Falls, $50 000; for dredging at Oak Point, Lake of the Woods, $10,000; for the construction of a dike at Warroad harbor $15,000; for maintenance of a harbor and channel at Warroad, $12,000; for survey and soundings of Zipple bay, Lake of the Woods, with a view to establishing a harbor of refuge, $100; for survey and soundings at mouth of Rainy river Lake of the Woods with a view to preventing filling, $1,000.

NEW COUNTY OFFICERS

A Few New Faces at Court House—All on Hand Tuesday Morning.

The are some new faces at the court house, the new county officers being sworn in Tuesday. The new officers are, Herman F. Anderson, superintendent of schools; Frank Jeffers, resister of deeds; S. A. Swanson, judge of probate; Wilhelm Michelet, county attorney.

Mr. Michelet will not give up his practice at Thief River Falls, but will make frequent visits to the county seat.

Mr. Auderson is busily engaged getting familiar with the work in his office and is being assisted by the retiring superintendent, H. T. McAnulty.

Judge Swanson looks the part and he was scarcely settled in his new quarters when a wedding party appeared, but Swan (beg pardon, Judge) never budged. He didn't stammer and he didn't blush and everything passed off so perfectly lovely that there is sure to be a rush of business in the county's matrimonial department.

Frank Jeffers was an old county official so recently that he doesn't look a bit new and he is very much "at home" in the register's office, Miss Amelia Berget is deputy in the office of register of deeds and Miss Margaret Rose is assistant.

DEATH OF JOHN OLESON

Prominent Farmer of Garnes Township is Dead.

John Oleson died at his home in Garnes township, January 1, 1909, at the age of 84 years, 6 months and 21 days. Deceased was born in Upper Felmarken, Norway, June 10, 1824. He was married to Miss Anna Broghton of the same place in 1845. They came to America in August, 1852, residing for many years at Madison, Wis., and in 1873 they came to Minnesota, settling on a homestead near Adrian, Nobles county. Mrs. Olson died at Adrian February 4, 1882. In 1901 Mr. Oleson moved with his children to Red Lake county and the home of the family has since been in Garnes township.

Deceased is survived by five children and nine grand children, left to mourn the loss of a loving father and grandfather. The children are Ole, Orville, John and Charley, sons, and one daughter, Mrs. A. Westlaker. Mr. Oleson was loved and esteemed by everyone and many of his friends will grieve to hear of his death. Funeral services were held from the home Sunday and interment was at Clearwater cemetery.

Meaning of Words.

Many words which are spelled alike and pronounced alike have different meanings. The word "rare" is an example. It may mean scarce as used to denote something not usually found or it may mean choice. This is the meaning when we say that golden grain belt beer is a rare beverage, highly prized for its wholesome qualities and tonic properties. It should be kept in every home. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Notice of Sale of Bonds.

Notice is hereby given that the city council of the city of Red Lake Falls will meet at the city hall in said city on the 21st day of January 1909, at 8 o'clock P. M. to receive and open bids for, and negotiate the sale of $5,000.00 refunding bonds of said city, due in ten years, bearing interest at the rate of 5½ per cent. All bids must be sealed and filed with the city clerk at or before said time. The Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Conductor Beats Bandits.

Coolly disregarding a command to throw up his hands, backed by revolvers held in his face by two masked highwaymen, Charles Larson of Minneapolis, a conductor on an Eighth avenue and Columbia Heights car, attacked the highwaymen and before the fight was over had both of their revolvers. The highwaymen escaped.

OIL TRUST WINS

Supreme Court Will Not Review the Big Fine Case.

WRIT OF CERTIORARI ASKED

Decision Simply Denies Petition of the Government.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The $29,000,000 fine case of the Standard Oil company will not be reviewed by the supreme court of the United States. The decision of the court to this effect was announced by Chief Justice Fuller. The case came to the court on a petition filed by the government asking the court in a petition for a writ of certiorari to order up the record in the case for a review of the decision of the United States circuit court of appeals for the Seventh circuit, by which Judge Landis' original decision imposing a fine of $29,000,000 against the Standard Oil company for accepting rebates from the railroad companies was reversed.

In the supreme court the case turned largely upon the right of the court to interfere in view of the fact that the case had been passed upon by the court of appeals, the government contending for such privilege as a right, while it was urged in behalf of the oil company that the precedents were all against such a proceeding. The action of the court consisted in the announcement that the government's petition would not be granted. The effect of this announcement will be to leave standing the decision of the court of appeals, which was adverse to the government and favorable to the company.

YUAN SHI KAI DISMISSED

Chinese Grand Councillor Loses His Position.

Peking, Jan. 2.—An edict just issued dismisses from office Yuan Shi Kai, grand councillor and commander-in-chief of the forces. The reason given for this action is that he has rheumatism of the leg. The edict orders Yuan Shi Kai to vacate all his offices and to return to his home, adding: "Thus our clemency toward him is manifested."

The members of the diplomatic corps at Peking are well nigh thunderstruck at the sudden dismissal of Yuan Shi Kai. The step is believed to be the outcome of a Manchu plot and there are indications that the Japanese representatives alone had any inkling of what was on foot.

There are grave apprehensions here of revolutionary outbreaks in such centers as Canton and some of the most conservative diplomats already are suggesting the return of foreign troops to the lines of communication between Peking and Tientsin. It is no exaggeration to say that the foreigners of Peking are overcome with astonishment at this evidence of China's capacity to take such a reactionary step.

BURTON HAS CLEAR FIELD

Taft and Foraker Quit Ohio Senatorial Contest.

Columbus, O., Dec. 31.—Congressman Theodore E. Burton of Cleveland was decided upon as the next United States senator from the state of Ohio. Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, brother of the president-elect and Mr. Burton's most formidable opponent, withdrew from the race and Senator Joseph B. Foraker issued a statement later admitting for the first time since the attacks made upon him during the recent national campaign that his defeat for re-election was certain. All the minor candidates have withdrawn so that the naming of Mr. Burton in a party caucus will be but a formality.

TRAGEDY CAUSED BY GRIEF

Father and Mother End Lives Following Death of Daughter.

New York, Jan. 2.—Professor J. P. Gordy of New York university and his wife committed suicide a few hours after the death of their daughter. The young girl, eighteen years old, died of pneumonia. After giving way to their grief for nearly two hours the parents of the young woman appeared to grow more resigned and the physician and nurses left.

The two then retired to their apartments and, getting into bed, swallowed the contents of three bottles of chloroform. Two hours later they were found dead in each others' arms.

COUNT'S PETITION DENIED

Princess de Sagan Retains Custody of Her Children.

Paris, Dec. 31.—The petition of Count Boni de Castellane that the custody of his three sons be given to his mother, the Marquise de Castellane, was denied. The court ruled that the children remain in the custody of their mother, Princess de Sagan, formerly Miss Anna Gould of New York.

The court ruled further that the children should not leave the Continent without its permission. Beginning Oct. 19, 1909, they are to be placed in a college situated within a hundred miles of Paris.

FATHER JOHN OF CRONSTADT

Noted Russian Priest Dies After Long Illness.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 2.—Father John of Cronstadt is dead. The noted priest for some time has been suffering from chronic dropsy and intestinal complaints and the end, though sudden, was not unexpected.

Father John was born Nov. 30, 1829. After graduation at the St. Petersburg seminary he became a priest of the Andrew church at Cronstadt, where his zeal and devotion drew about him hosts of followers and attracted the attention of the emperor, who constantly befriended him. The late years of Father John's life were clouded by the ill repute of the sect of Johnites, which was exploited by an unscrupulous and immoral group of men and women to their great financial advantage. The priest's eyes were opened to this only last summer, when he anathematized the false leaders.

RELIEF FOR SUFFERERS

Congress Appropriates a Large Sum for Italians.

Washington, Jan. 4. — President Roosevelt, in a message to congress, asked for a direct appropriation of $500,000 for the relief of the stricken people in the earthquake zone of Italy. This, the most generous fund ever contributed by the American people for succor of sufferers in other lands, is to supplement the dispatch of the supply ships Celtic from New York and the Culgoa from Port Said for Messina with their big cargoes of necessaries, originally intended for the American fleet diverted to the immediate use of the Italian victims. It also supplements the president's proffer of the services of the entire American fleet of sixteen battleships, whose use, in whole or in part, hinged only on the acceptance or declination of the Italian government. The message was brief and both houses immediately enacted into law the recommendations made.

SLAYS HER FOUR CHILDREN

Iowa Woman Then Commits Suicide by Shooting.

Rockwell City, Ia., Jan. 5.—Mrs. John A. Powell, a young mother, shot to death her four children following a quarrel with her husband. She then placed the rifle against her body and fired, the bullet piercing her throat. She and the eldest boy, Ned, nine years old, lingered for awhile, when both died within an hour of each other.

LILLEY CASE DISMISSED

Connecticut Corrupt Practices Act Unconstitutional.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 2.—The case brought against Governor-Elect George E. Lilley under the corrupt practices act by George L. Fox of this city, before two judges who were to constitute an election court, was dismissed. The act is declared to be unconstitutional in that it contravenes the state constitution.

TO BOOM DAIRYING

Northern Minnesota to Be the Scene of Activities.

WISCONSIN MEN BEHIND PLAN

Propose to Bring in Settlers to Occupy the Land.

A thorough and comprehensive scheme for the development of the dairy industry of Eastern Clearwater and Northern Beltrami counties will soon be taken up by a Wisconsin corporation which has become interested in 30,000 acres in that section of the state, according to the statement of Roger C. Spooner, brother of former United States Senator John Spooner of Wisconsin.

Mr. Spooner says that Professor Moore of the Wisconsin school of agriculture, with other practical dairymen of Wisconsin, has become deeply interested in the possibilities of that part of Northern Minnesota as a dairy country and will soon begin the work of practical development.

Professor Moore and other Wisconsin men have thoroughly tested the soil and are convinced that there is nothing that can prevent the plan from resulting in great good to the northern part of the state.

The plan of the Wisconsin company is to bring in settlers. So far as possible men who are acquainted with the practical side of dairying will be taken to the land of the Wisconsin company. It is probable that many students from the Wisconsin school of agriculture will be taken to the northern section of the state for the purpose of starting the movement under the best possible conditions.

OLSEN DECLINES POSITION

Will Remain at Head of Farm School for Short Time.

John W. Olsen has declined the deanship of the state agricultural college. Owing to the strong feeling of opposition developed among some members of the board of regents Mr. Olsen refuses to serve, but has agreed to fill out the present school year. Dean Randall's resignation took effect Jan. 1 and Mr. Olsen took charge at the agricultural school Jan. 2, turning over the department of public instruction to his assistant and successor, C. G. Schulz.

Mr. Olsen's decision is announced in a letter sent to John Lind, president of the board of regents.

MONTH OF JULY AHEAD OF JUNE

Month of Roses Was Not the Month of Orange Blossoms.

A Little Slump in the Matrimonial Industry—Due to the Panic Possibly.

Ninety-two marriage licenses were issued during the year 1908 by C. W. Johnson, clerk of court and private secretary to Dan Cupid. This is three less than during the year 1907. This condition is due no doubt to the money stringency, so called, of last season. Of course that did not have much effect, but monetary considerations do sometimes rudely deter the carrying out of the promptings of the heart. But whatever may have been the cause for the falling off in the matrimonial traffic, there was a strong effort made in the later months of the year to overcome the shortage.

June was a good month, but, in spite of all precedent, it was not the best month—for weddings. There was one more wedding in the month of July than in June. This does not mean that June has ceased to be the month of roses and brides and orange blossoms and mosquitos, but it is possible that some of the young people who had bargained to take the fateful plunge, grew faint hearted, and it was not until the Fourth of July orator had given a recital of the brave deeds of dead heroes, that they were fired with the spirit that prompted them to do and dare.

The list below includes those to whom licenses were issued and a few who were married in the county but procured licenses elsewhere:

KELLOGG-HINDS WEDDING

A Quiet Wedding at the Kellogg Home Tuesday Noon.

The pleasant country residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Kellogg south of town was the scene of a happy event on Tuesday of this week. At high noon on that day their daughter, Miss Hazel L. Kellogg, was married to Mr. Bruce A. Hinds of Batavia, Illinois, Rev. Philip A. Schwaiz, Jr., of the Presbyterian church, officiating. The bride was becomingly gowned in white. Only relatives and a few intimate friends were present on the occasion. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served.

The bride is a most charming and estimable young lady who has a host of good friends in and around Red Lake Falls. Mrs. Hinds is a niece of the Hon. Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinds have left for Batavia, Illinois, which will be their home in the future. They take with them many congratulations and best wishes in which THE GAZETTE joins.

WOULD OPERATE SYSTEM.

Citizens of Thief River Believe in Municipal Ownership.

At a meeting of the citizens of Thief River Falls held last Saturday night there was an unanimous vote in favor of public ownership of the local telephone exchange.

The local system is now owned by one of the large companies of the Northwest and the action at Saturday night's meeting was taken to avoid contentions and to settle the question of service by two competing companies. Because of the telephone "war," the company owning the local exchange is unable to get satisfactory long-distance connections.

FRANCHISE QUESTION

Light Proposition Before the City Council at Meeting Tonight.

Sentiment at the mass meeting held at the city hall last Saturday night demonstrated that everybody in Red Lake Falls is satisfied with the service of the Red Lake Falls Electric Light company and that all believe that the rates are fair. The only question on which there is any contention is the granting of the franchise, and that contention has to do only with the time when the franchise shall be granted.

Some believe that the franchise should not be granted until next spring, the company to continue to light the city as in the past and be permitted to operate without a franchise, and that the service be paid for at the rate asked by the company or at a greater rate if such is not remunerative for winter service.

The officers of the company contend that this is not a fair proposition and that they are entitled to have their proposition to the council considered and accepted or rejected on its merits. In this contention they are supported by a number of the citizens.

Tonight's meeting of the city council promises to be an interesting one.

BUSINESS CHANGE

H. W. Anderson Has Sold to Rudolph Holzman.

A deal was completed this week whereby H. W. Anderson disposes of his jewelry business to Rudolph Holzman of Osnabrock, N. Dak. Mr. Holzman was here the first of the week, but returned to North Dakota to close up his business affairs. He will return next week to take possession of the business. Mr. Holzman comes to Red Lake Falls with the reputation of being an excellent workman and no doubt he will do a satisfactory business here. Mr. Anderson is not to leave Red Lake Falls until about February 1.

SHOW IS POSTPONED

High School Minstrel Company Will Appear Next Monday Evening.

The loud and noisy show to be given by the loud and noisy minstrel company of all star performers of the high school has been postponed. The performance is to be given next Monday evening, Jan. 18, instead of tomorrow night.

GOING TO "THE DEVIL?"

Much Talked About Play at the Metropolitan Opera House Next Week.

"The Devil," the much talked about play, is to be at the Metropolitan opera house, Red Lake Falls, next Wednesday evening, Jan. 20. Many local people have expressed a desire to see this unusual play and that fact induced Manager Anderson to make an extra effort to book the play.

Wants Big Judgment Set Aside.

Julius Schutt, a Minneapolis real estate man, against whom Parris Richardson has a judgment now amounting to about $140,000, has asked the district to have a rehearing in the matter with a view to setting the judgment aside. The judgment arose over a transaction whereby the big Fisher farm in Lockhart was sold some twelve years ago to Julius Schutt. Schutt was at that time agent for the sale of the Fisher farm and finally made a deal whereby Fisher traded the farm, valued at $80,000, for some lots and buildings in Minneapolis. Later Fisher sued to have the transfer set aside and he also asked damages. Judge Ives ordered the transfer set aside and also gave a judgment against Schutt for $88,000. This judgment was assigned to Harris Richardson, a St. Paul attorney, and with interest now amounts to $140,000. It is claimed Schutt was never served properly with notice of the judgment and he asks what is really a rehearing of the case.

Halvor Steenerson is attorey for Schutt and the whole matter is being considered by Judge Watts.—Ada Index.

MRS. THEODORE GARCEAU.

Passed Away at the Family Home Tuesday Night.

Mrs. Theodore Garceau passed away at the family home in this city at eleven o'clock Tuesday night, January 12, after an illness of many weeks and from which the most skillful and careful attention could give her no relief.

At the time of her death Mrs. Garceau was not quite forty-five years old. She was born in Harrison county, Indiana, April 9, 1865. Her maiden name was Sybil Rubertus. On June 28, 1883, she and Mr. Garceau were married in Red Lake Falls and the family home had always been in this city. To them eight children, three girls and five boys, were born, all of whom are at home. The children are Etta, Lenora, Marie, Harry, Theodore, Walter, Lester and Russel. Besides the children and her husband, deceased is survived by her mother, whose home was with her, and by six brothers and half brothers and two sisters. These relatives are, Mrs. O. M. Champlin of Minot, N. D., and Mrs. Ed. Sawyer, Rock Island, Ill., Andy Rubertus of Red Lake Falls and Frank Rubertus, Ambrose Rubertus, Will Rubertus, John Mettling and Peter Mettling of Montevideo.

Mrs. Garceau was loved and esteemed in the community. Many beautiful traits of character endeared her to friends and acquaintances. Hers was a life filled with good works and loving deeds. Knowing this, friends of the family can better understand the loss that has come to them and their sympathy is the deeper. Words are inadequate to express the sympathy that every one feels for the bereaved husband and children.

Funeral services will be held from St. Mary's church at ten o'clock Saturday morning.

A Gem and Medicine Mine.

Mining for precious stones and medicine in combination makes a novel and curious sort of industry in San Diego County in California. The medicine is lithia; the precious stones are tourmalines, a kind of gem that appears to be gaining in popularity. Steadily gaining in popularity, also, is golden grain belt beer, the ideal home beverage. The practice of keeping a case on hand at home is so general that it is well nigh universal. There is no other just as good. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

USE OF STICKERS DECLARED LEGAL

Supreme Court Holds Voter Has Right to Place Them on Ballot.

Decides Trial Over Office of Sheriff in Yellow Medicine County.

The supreme court holds that a voter has a right to use "stickers" in casting his ballot for a candidate for office whose name does not appear on the printed sheet.

The question arose in the appeal of G. O. Homme, of Yellow Medicine county, from the decision of the district court of that county which declared Oscar C. Snortum elected sheriff as the result of last fall's election.

Homme and Snortum were candidates for the republican nomination for sheriff and Snortum won by a small majority. At the election Homme supplied his followers with "stickers," which they placed in the blank space opposite the title of sheriff. The return of the county canvassing board declared Homme elected, but the lower court held that the "stickers" were not included in the law which provides that a voter may write any name he chooses in the blank spaces on the ballot.

The supreme court says that it is a constitutional right which every voter has to vote for whom he pleases, and that the statute must be liberally contrued. The conclusion is that the word "write" includes any modes of writing words or letters.

Farmer's Short Course.

A Farmers' Short Course will be held at the School of Agriculture at St. Anthony Park for one month commencing Friday, Jan. 15th. The course consists of lectures, demonstration and judging of stock and grains. The most practical subjects connected with farm life will be discussed. The course includes nearly all the farm subjects taught at the School of Agriculture. No entrance examination is given and there is no age limit. The expenses are low. It is hoped that there may be a large attendance of farmers.

Adverting Her Eggs.

Any way you take it, advertising pays. A mud turtle lays just as many eggs in a season as does a hen, and lays them all in a bunch at that, which is bound to be more of a mental strain; but the turtle doesn't advertise and the hen does, and the result is there's a hundred calls for hen's eggs in the restaurants where there's one for the turtle's.—Ex

FROM THE CAPITAL.

Some of the foremost composers of the country are in attendance in Washington at the annual convention of the Music Teachers' National association.

Carrying out its efforts to reduce the number of fatalities in coal mines, the United States geological survey is about to establish rescue stations in the principal coal fields of the country.

Announcement is made that the postoffice department is now prepared to issue limited quantities of postage stamps in rolls of 500 or 1,000 for use in stamp-vending and stamp-affixing machines.

Inspired by the sale of Red Cross Christmas and New Year's stamps this year, officials of the American Red Cross in Washington already are planning to make this innovation a permanent American institution.

PERSONAL.

Charles F. Phelps, formerly a judge of the supreme bench of Baltimore, and widely known as jurist, soldier and author, is dead at the age of seventy-five years.

Bishop Dennis J. O'Connell, rector of the Catholic University of America at Washington, has been appointed bishop coadjutor of San Francisco. The term of Bishop O'Connell as rector expires Jan. 11.

Rev. Father G. Lyons, Society of Jesus, a member of the faculty of Boston (Mass.) college, has assumed the duties of president of Gonzago college and rector of St. Aloysius church at Washington.

Robert Emmett Fisk, for thirty-five years editor of the Helena (Mont.) Herald, and confidential friend of President Garfield and James G. Blaine, died at his home at Berkeley, Cal., aged seventy-one years. He served in the Civil war, attaining the rank of major.

CASUALTIES.

While skating on a pond near Trenton, N. J., Albert Blanchard and Carl Hildebrand, each twelve years old, broke through the ice and were drowned.

Fire broke out in the Paramonoff mine in Russia and as a result 2,500 miners are idle. It has been necessary to seal up three shafts of the mine.

Rev. Wilbur I. Davis was stricken blind while delivering a sermon in his pulpit at the High Street Methodist church at Springfield, Ohio. The bursting of a blood vessel was given as the cause.

Fire, which for a time threatened the whole business section of Oneonta, N. Y., destroyed the Arlington hotel and seven other buildings in the heart of the city, causing a loss of $100,000.

The fertilizing plant and tank room of the Nelson Morris packing plant at St. Joseph, Mo., was destroyed by fire. The loss is about $125,000. The fire will not interfere with the working of the plant.

W. T. B. Allen, aged sixty-seven, one of the best known Englishmen in Northwestern Iowa, was found dead in bed at Sioux City, having accidentally turned on the gas stove in turning off the gaslight.

Oscar Herr ignited with a cigarette stump a bottle containing mine powder at Fairmont, W. Va., and he and three companions were probably fatally injured and several others were seriously hurt.

As a result of a wild automobile race on the Foothill boulevard, at Oakland, Cal., one man was instantly killed and another man and two young women were severely injured. The accident occurred a short distance from San Leandro.

Leo Bosworth, aged thirty, was killed at Charlotte, Mich., by the explosion of a gun in the hands of a hunting companion, who escaped unhurt. Part of the barrel hit Bosworth in the neck and severed his jugular vein. He died in an hour.

A fire which caused a loss of $100,000 occurred in the Occidental hotel building in Los Angeles. An explosion in the basement, where a decorating company stored paints and oils, caused the fire. Two firemen were injured. The hundred guests in the hotel escaped without injury.

In a collision at New York between a trolley car and an automobile George C. Hurlburt, the aged librarian of the American Geographical society, and his daughter, occupants of the automobile, were crushed in the ruins of the machine and fatally injured.

Mrs. Bertha Vacha and her three-year-old boy were found dead from asphyxiation in their home at Cleveland. Frank Vacha, the husband, was unconscious but may recover. Some time during the night gas escaped in the house. An investigation is being made.

FROM OTHER SHORES.

Messrs. Wright, Farnam, De Lagrange, Bleriot and Renault-Polterie, the noted aeronauts, have promised to take part in the international aviation races at Brescia, Italy, in August, 1909.

A Rome newspaper publishes a report which has caused a sensation in ecclesiastical circles that Joan of Arc recently appeared in a vision to the pope and addressed to him solemn words of encouragement.

A Roman lady, the daughter of Signor Lollini, a former Socialist deputy, has been called to the Italian bar. She is Italy's first lady barrister, and this victory of the feminist movement is welcomed cordially by public opinion at Rome.

Private Councilor Klehmet of the German foreign office has been displaced. He was the officer who examined and passed the "interview" with the kaiser, which was published in the London Telegraph and caused such a stir in Germany and abroad.

The determination of King Leopold of Belgium to sell all his art treasures rather than let his daughters inherit them has taken definte form. The king is expected to offer the old works to the nation. If they are inclined, he will immediately sell them.

The financial commission of the duma has decided to introduce an excise duty on liquor in the Russian parliament of the Island of Sakhalien. The low price of liquor in this territory has led to universal drunkenness among the natives and the convicts.

As a consequence of the manifestations by students of the medical school of Sabonne, France, over the inauguration of a new system of examinations, to which they objected, the university council closed the school of medicine for the first and second year students for three months.

CRIMES.

Indications are that there will be no more arrests in connection with Pittsburg's councilmanic scandal in the immediate future.

Lawrence W. Peters committed suicide at Washington after shooting and attempting to kill his sweetheart, Jennie W. Beaudette. The woman probably will recover.

Miss Florence Jones, grandniece of Rev. William Jones, chaplain for Gen. Robert E. Lee during the Civil war, was attacked and almost killed at her home in Richmond, Va., by an unknown burglar.

A battle between strike promoting miners and five United States marshals took place at Stearns, a coal mining town in Whitley county, Kentucky, and resulted in the death of two men and the wounding of several others.

Judge Trieber in the federal court at Little Rock, Ark., imposed a $15,000 fine on T. H. Bunch, a prominent grain dealer, who pleaded guilty several weeks ago to having accepted rebates from the Missouri Pacific, St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern systems.

Asserting she had discovered the murderer of Patrolman Fred Widmann, Mrs. Will Kelley of Waterloo, October, Mrs. Will Kelly of Waterloo, Iowa, attempted to kill her son-in-law, Fred Cordell, also of Waterloo. She called him from his home and fired four shots, three of which struck him but produced only flesh wounds. Mrs. Kelly is under arrest.

OTHERWISE

At a mass meeting in New York an organization was formed for the purpose of raising the price of printing.

While riding alone in his auto near Spring Valley, N. Y., Hiram B. Berry of Warwick, a wealthy manufacturer and formerly an officer of the Morton Trust company of this city, died of heart disease.

Heir to half a million dollars, according to his own statement, and entitled to a position in Baltimore society, William Jefferson Powell has been sentenced to serve 180 days in the workhouse in Los Angeles on a vagrancy charge.

The dates for the national encampment of the G. A. R. at Salt Lake City will be Aug. 9 to 13. This announcement was made by Phil Cheek, Wisconsin's member of the executive council of the G. A. R., which held a meeting recently for the purpose of fixing upon the time of meeting.

Judge Kunkel, in the Dauphin county court at Harrisburg, Pa., fixed April 5 as the date upon which the third of the series of trials growing out of the scandal surrounding the contracts for the capitol furnishings will be started.

For the first time probably in its history the Episcopal church in the United States reports a decrease in the number of its clergy, due in part to an unusually large list of depositions from the priesthood and to an abnormally high death rate during the past year.

The State Day by Day

CROP BREEDERS NEXT.

Grain and Live Stock to Be Discussed in Minneapolis.

The Minnesota Field Crop Breeders' association will hold its annual meeting and seed fair in the court house at Minneapolis Jan. 12, 13 and 14. The Minnesota Agricultural society and the Live Stock Breeders' association will hold their annual meetings, and the State Dairy association and other kindred organizations will give programs at the same time.

The seed to be entered in the Field Crop Breeders' association is restricted to that grown in Minnesota, and only that grown during 1908 will be allowed to compete for prizes. L. B. Bassett will be superintendent of exhibits.

Wednesday forenoon, Jan. 12, there will be held a joint session of the Field Crop Breeders' and the State Agricultural society. Following the election of officers and a business meeting, "Vegetable Growing for Profit" will be taken up by R. S. Gould in an address, with a general discsussion led by F. H. Gibbs, Alvin Rowe and J. V. Bailey.

"Maintaining and Improving Soil Fertility" will be the subject of an address by W. H. Olin of Fort Colling, Colo. The discussion will be led by George H. Welsh and J. A. Hummell.

Wednesday afternoon the Field Crop Breeders will listen to crop reports from the district vice presidents. "Some Results of Crop Rotation at the State University" will be handled by A. D. Wilson, superintendent of the farmers' institute. The discussion will be led by W. H. Olin. An address on "An Exposition With a Purpose" will be given by J. W. Jones, manager of the National Corn exposition. "The Oat Problem," by Prof. A. L. Stone, and "Hubbard Squash Breeding and Marketing," M. F. Libby, are other addresses which will be made.

The usual grain and corn auction will be held at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

STATE'S BALANCE BIGGER.

More Money in Treasury Than at the Close of Previous Year.

Receipts into the state treasury for the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of State Treasurer C. C. Dinehart, were $12,446,280.70, and disbursements were $11,878,430.68. The year began with a balance of $2,400,432.62 and ended with a balance of $2,968,282.64. Expenditures for the year came from the different funds as follows:

Revenue fund	$7,299,855.33
Soldier's tax fund	82,951.62
Funding tax fund	160,937.50
Internal improvement fund	6,500.00

DONAHUE ON DISTRICT BENCH.

Gov. Johnson Names Him to Succeed Judge Brown, Resigned.

W. H. Donahue of Minneapolis was appointed judge of the Fourth judicial district federal court by Gov. John A. Johnson, to succeed Judge Fred B. Brown, resigned.

Judge Brown tendered his resignation, to take effect Feb. 4, 1909, and will resume his private law practice in Minneapolis. The reason given is that the salary of $5,750 is inadequate.

Judge Donahue has been a resident of Minneapolis for twenty-seven years and is highly recommended by the bar. Judge Brooks and Brown came to the capitol to recommend Judge Donahue.

Judge Brown was appointed by Gov. Johnson two years ago, when Judge Elliot resigned, and at that time Judge Donahue's name was suggested to succeed Judge Elliot.

LIKE OUR BOARD.

Michigan Wants Immigration Department Similar to Minnesota's

Minnesota's board of immigration will probably be patterned after by Michigan and possibly by other states. Max Socha, an official under Gov. Warner of Michigan, was in St. Paul recently looking for information regarding the state immigration board here, and Gov. Warner will recommend in his message tomorrow the establishment of such a board by the legislature of that state.

Michigan has found that her industrial population has grown faster than the farming population, and it is the desire to do something to fill up the vacant farms and increase the population.

State Adds to Its Income.

Minnesota has received six months' interest on the bonds in which the various trust funds of the state are invested. The Massachusetts bonds returned an interest amounting to $39,925; the Virginia bonds, $31,725.

The state has also received $10,830, the fees for filing articles of incorporation. The fee is $10 on each $50,000. An inheritance tax of $268.74 was received by the state from the C. McCabe estate of Carleton county. The estate is valued at $15,000.

HAVE TRAINED TEACHERS ONLY.

J. W. Olsen Wants Requirements Made Stricter.

The establishment of provisions for professional standard for the teachers of the state is recommended by J. W. Olsen, state superintendent of public instruction, in his biennial report.

In 1900 a state standard was established so far as the subject matter is concerned. County examinations were abolished in favor of state examinations, and the result has been highly satisfactory. But as the regulations now stand any one who knows the subject can teach. Mr. Olsen believes that in two or three years a standard of professional training ought to be established.

Mr. Olsen says:

"I believe that the time has come when a law, to go into effect at some future date—say in two or three years—providing a definite professional standard, should be enacted. It is not enough that the teachers have such a knowledge of the subjects he is to teach, as will enable him to pass a creditable examination in them. To secure the best results, he must have had training directed toward the development of skill in the art of teaching. Fitness to teach presupposes not only a knowledge of the subject matter to be presented, but the ability to present it skillfully and in its natural order—a knowledge of methods and processes of presentation. Every teacher should understand psychic laws and how to make use of them in the strengthening of human faculties."

OFFICIAL TO CARE FOR LANDS.

State Auditor Urges Creation of State Land Department.

A state land department, in charge of a land commissioner, to be elected by the people, to have control of all state lands and questions concerning them, is recommended by the state auditor in his biennial report to the legislature.

The lands of the state are now under the control of the state auditor, and the care of this large body of wealth consumes a large part of his time.

"The question should be stripped of every consideration, save that of the public welfare and our responsibilities and obligations to future generations."

He intimates that the legislature is not in favor of creating more offices, but is of the opinion that the department would pay for itself in the saying it would effect the state in the management of the lands.

In 1883 the permanent school fund of the state was estimated at $20,000,000. It is now worth that amount, and Mr. Iverson predicts that in 1950 it will amount to $125,000,00.

There are now 1,052,171 acres of state land, in the school, state and indemnity funds, in addition to 1,446,921 acres of swamp land, which are being rapidly drained. These also belong to the state, and will greatly increase the school fund.

The enactment of a new mineral leasing law will add to the present work of the state auditor.

State Helps Build Roads.

This state paid $62,608 the past two years in aid of roads and bridges in forty-six counties.

The figures given out by State Highway Engineer George W. Cooley show only the amount of road of various sorts of which the state has assisted in constructing. The total of the roads on which the state's money was expended is 440 miles, the state paying about one-third of the total cost of the road and twenty-nine bridges.

The number of miles of different sorts of road construction has been as follows:

General repairs and preparing road bed for grades, 34.73 miles; clearing, 111.80 miles; ditching, 28.97 miles; grading, 192.5 miles; corduroying, 5.95 miles; sand-clay roads, 3.82 miles; gravel roads, 52.41 miles; macadam roads, 8.95 miles; experimental roads, 2 miles; iron culverts, 119; steel and concrete culverts, 12; steel bridges, 17; total length, 941 feet.

Taxes in Dispute.

A suit involving $10,090.98 in disputed gross earnings taxes has been filed by the attorney general against the Great Northern railway. The items involved are transportation issued for advertising contracts. Some of the roads have classed this is earnings, while others have not.

The action begun is only applied to 1906 business, but its settlement will determine the same question for other years back to 1897. The 1906 case calls for the 4 per cent tax on $20,454.22 of advertising trip tickets and $8,257.77 of advertising mileage honored, a total of $28,711.99 on which the tax would be $1,148.48.

Ask Anti-Pass Law Ruling.

A question which will come up, now that the anti-pass law is going into effect, is, are mileage books and commutation books illegal? The attorney general's office recently gave out the opinion that telephone rate books will be illegal under the law, which goes into effect Jan. 1, on the ground that they create unfair discrimination. It seems that mileage books will have to go into the same class, and the opinion, which is expected from the attorney general today, may cause many to be anything but pleased.

BOOM DAIRYING IN MINNESOTA.

Wisconsin Men Select Northern Counties for Scene of Operations.

A thorough and comprehensive scheme for the development of the dairy industry of Eastern Clearwater and Northern Beltrami counties will soon be taken up by a Wisconsin corporation, which has become interested in 30,000 acres in that section of the state, according to the statement of Roger C. Spooner, brother of Former United States Senator John C. Spooner of Wisconsin.

Mr. Spooner says that Prof. Moore of the Wisconsin school of agriculture, with other practical dairymen of Wisconsin, has become deeply interested in the possibilities of that part of Northern Minnesota as a dairy country and will soon begin the work of practical development.

Prof. Moore and other Wisconsin men have thoroughly tested the soil and are convince dthat there is nothing that can prevent the plan from resulting in great good to the northern part of the state.

The plan of the Wisconsin company is to bring in settlers. So far as possible, men who are acquainted with the practical side of dairying will be taken to the land of the Wisconsin company. It is probable that many students from the Wisconsin school of agriculture will be taken to the northern section of the state for the purpose of starting the movement under the best possible conditions.

"The company that has secured the acreage and is planning the making of a great dairy settlement in the northern part of the state has many advantages over other companies or corporations that have begun similar settlements," said Mr. Spooner.

"You see they have the settlers right at hand. That is, they have them in Wisconsin, one of the greatest dairy states in the Union. Those interested in the settlement are in touch with men who will come to this state. They are among the best class of dairy farmers.

"Tests have shown that the soil is splendidly adapted to the dairy industry. Hay grows splendidly up in that country, and then there are the natural conditions that are fitted for the dairy business. The men behind the movement have not taken anything for granted. They have studied the conditions thoroughly and are convinced that dairying will be the great industry of the northern part of Minnesota."

Mr. Spooner lives at Wilton, Minn., and has taken a great interest in progress that the men interested in dairying in the northern tier of counties are achieving.

STRENGTHEN RURAL SCHOOLS.

Dean Randall Establishes Summer Agricultural Teachers' Course.

Dean E. W. Randall of the state school of agriculture has established a short summer course in agriculture for teachers, principals and superintendents of the schools of the state. This is a new departure in the educational line and is the outgrowth of suggestions made at the meeting this week of the State Educational association that better rural schools are needed.

This course is planned for three weeks, beginning Monday, June 21, and closing Saturday, July 10. Instruction will be given in agriculture, agricultural chemistry, animal husbandry and animal nutrition, dairy stock, domestic art, domestic scence, entomology, horticulture and forestry, plant diseases, poultry and soils. The registration fee for the course will be $3 and board will be furnished for $3.50 a week.

Upon recommendation of the faculty those perfect in attendance will receive a credit in agriculture toward a first grade state certificate that will exempt them from examination in plane geometry or in physical geography, as they may prefer.

This is the first practical step toward the upbuilding of the rural school system and the establishment eventually of rural high schools, with manual training, domestic science and agricultural departments, by means of which it is hoped that the boys and girls of the farm will be made more satisfied with life in the country and will remain there, instead of joining in the fierce competitive strife of the big cities, as most of them now do.

John L. Madden of Two Harbors, formerly a locomotive fireman on the Duluth & Iron Range road, has commenced an action to recover $35,000 for injuries received while working between Biwabik and Allen Junction.

Guard Health of Children.

Legislation requiring school authorities to have a medical inspection of pupils at least once a year is suggested by J. W. Olsen, state superintendent of public instruction in his biennial report.

He suggests that the extent to which medical examination can be extended will depend upon the number and character of the school population, "but in no school, however small, is it impossible to find some of the physical defects which mar childhood."

THE SMALL FARM IN THE GREAT CORN BELT

It Can Be Made Profitable—Farmers Who Have Worked the Plan Out—By J. A. Warren, Scientific Asst. Farm Management Investigations.

In the great corn belt, or at least in that portion of it comprised in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, northern Missouri, eastern Kansas, eastern Nebraska, southeastern South Dakota and southern Minnesota, the majority of the farms contain 160 to 320 acres. Farms of only 80 acres are comparatively scarce, and not many farmers consider less than 160 acres sufficient to furnish a respectable living. Yet no careful observer can travel this region without being convinced that many a man would have a larger net profit and an easier and happier life if he farmed less extensively and more intensively.

Mr. C. E. Beadle owns and operates 40 acres of gently rolling upland prairie, much of it nearly level, in Saunders county, east-central Nebraska. The soil is a deep, dark silt loam characteristic of that region. The house, which is worth about $2,000, stands near the highway and is surrounded by a well-kept lawn bountifully supplied with trees and ornamental shrubbery. The farm buildings are not of special interest, because they were mostly on the farm when the present owner purchased it and are not such as he would have built.

The cropping system followed is very simple, consisting of potatoes two or three years and mixed hay two or three years. In 1906 there were 14 acres in potatoes, seven acres in hay, 11 acres in pasture, 1½ acres in sweet corn to supplement the pasture (but this was not needed), 5½ acres in garden, orchard and grounds, and one acre in a public road. In 1907 there were seven acres of grass on the land that was in potatoes the previous year. Otherwise no changes were made. Hay enough for home use is produced, but all grain is purchased.

It will be seen that the net income derived is 15.4 per cent. on $9,764, the total value of the farm, stock and equipment. While more cattle were disposed of in 1906 than can be sold every year they did not bring more money than it is hoped the smaller number will bring when the herd is better established. In 1907 much more was realized from small fruit, but the acreage of potatoes was reduced one-half.

Suggestions as to Improved Methods.

Under the present practice one mare does nothing but raise a colt, while the old team is probably not in use more than half the time. The work could easily be done by a team of brood mares. Two colts a year could be raised instead of one, and the expense of keeping an extra horse would be avoided.

The cropping system now in use is very irregular. Two years there are seven acres of potatoes and the third year 14 acres. Three consecutive crops of potatoes on the same land are not advisable on account of danger from disease, but even if grown for three years the system would be just as irregular. One year there would be seven acres of old grass and two years there would be seven acres of old grass and seven acres of new seeding. This makes the hay supply irregular. The hay ration, too, can be much improved by the introduction of alfalfa. To correct these difficulties the following changes are suggested: Lay out the fields as shown in Fig. 2. This will not require any change in fences, as no fences are needed between fields. It will eliminate the sweet corn fodder, but will supply alfalfa, which is more productive and a more valuable feed. A large proportion of the alfalfa will be near to the pasture and can conveniently be cut and thrown over to the stock, if necessary. There will be 9¾ acres of alfalfa, 4¾ acres of old grass, 4¾ acres of new grass, and 9½ acres of potatoes each year, with a regular rotation of two years in grass and two years in potatoes. Assuming yields of 200 bushels of potatoes, six tons of alfalfa, four tons of old grass and one and one-fourth ton of new grass to the acre, the proposed plan gives 1,900 bushels of potatoes, 25 tons of timothy and clover hay, and Assuming the above yields, two 19½ tons of alfalfa, while the present plan gives an average of 1,833 bushels of potatoes, 34 tons of hay, and six tons of fodder.

By the change 67 bushels of potatoes and four and one-half tons of feed are gained, a much better quality of feed is obtained, and a regular rotation, giving the same acreage in each crop each year, is adopted. The feed supply will therefore be more regular, as there will not be so much danger of a shortage or surplus of hay. horses, two two-year-old colts, two yearling colts, two spring colts, five cows, one bull, two yearling heifers, and four calves can be kept, and about the same quantity of corn as now used will be needed. The pasture will usually summer this number of stock or at least has furnished feed enough for the last two years. In case of a scarcity of grass, stock could be pastured out at reasonable prices, or the pasture could be supplemented with alfalfa and a little hay purchased in winter if necessary. Some patches in the garden that will be vacant by the middle of summer can be utilized for catch crops of feed.

Care of Seed Corn.—Seed corn at picking time has a high content of moisture. Sometimes it is dried by artificial heat, but this is dangerous. The chances are that the germ will start to grow. The important things are ventilation, a dry atmosphere and an even temperature. Corn suspended on a wire in a well-ventilated granary or shed in such a way that there is free circulation of air about each ear is a very favorable way. Corn that is thoroughly dry cannot be injured by a freeze.

THE SMALL GREENHOUSE GOOD THING ON FARM

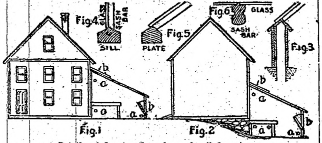
The farmer who would make his crops of vegetables most profitable, or the small gardener who would have an early supply of early vegetables for home use or market must employ some kind of glass structures to hasten these crops. The hotbed or cold frame have been much in use in the past, but the cost of sash, shutters and mats is nearly as much as the materials needed for a permanent structure, while the labor of caring for cold frames or hotbeds is often much more than that of the small greenhouse. In the latter one may work with comfort no matter what the weather may be outside. It requires much more skill to run hotbeds successfully.

Small greenhouses may be built against the south side of the house or stable, Figs. 1 and 2, or they may be built entirely away from other buildings, but the shelter of larger buildings on the north or west will be found of great advantage. If one has a basement to the house or stable, a lean-to house may be built, and heat from the open cellar in a large measure will heat the greenhouse in the mild weather of fall and spring.



Details of Construction of a Small Greenhouse.

A cheap and efficient house may be made by setting chestnut or cedar posts in the ground, covering the sides with lining boards, then two thicknesses of tarred building paper and sheathing outside, Fig. 3. Cement, stone or brick will be cheaper in the end. The durability of glass structures will depend much upon the form of the materials. Clear cypress is now more used than any other material. Sills should be of the form shown in Fig. 4. Plates may be made of plank as in Fig. 3, or as in Fig. 5. Sash bars should have grooves along the sides to catch the drip from the glass, as in Fig. 6.

The glass for ordinary work may be No. 2 double thick, large sizes, 16x20 inches or 20x24 inches, being much used. Smaller sizes will be cheaper in price, but more sash bars will be needed, and they cut off much of the sunlight. The glass should be put in with putty, made with about one-third white lead in it, and firmly tacked with triangular zinc tacks of large size, or the double-pointed tacks, which are so bent as to prevent glass from slipping down.

Glazing should be done during the summer or early fall, as putty will soon become loose if frozen before well hardened.

In building there should be no mortises, but all joints be made by toeing in with long, slender nails. All woodwork should be thoroughly painted before fitting, and all joints filled with white lead paint. After all is done the frame should be painted before the glass is put in.

The most important and expensive feature of the small greenhouse is the heating. If one has a hot water or steam heater in the house, to which the glass house is attached, it will be a very simple matter to carry pipes through, as at a, a, Figs. 1 and 2. Hot air may also be let into such houses, or a small kerosene heater in very cold weather may be used, if the house is built opening into the cellar.

Ventilators must be located as shown in Figs. 1 and 2 at b b. Very small structures may be run without much heat if opening into cellars or other heated rooms by having shutters or curtains to draw down at night and in very cold, cloudy weather.

Houses of small size may be made by building a frame upon which hotbed sashes may be screwed. If one has the sash this is a cheap way of building, and such a house has the advantage that the sash may be entirely removed during the summer, but it is very difficult to make a close house with such sash.

The woodwork of greenhouses and hotbed sash should have a coat of thin linseed oil paint every second year. Much of the success to be obtained from any glass structure will depend upon the skill of the operator, and the thermometer, both outside and in, must be watched very closely. The temperature should be maintained as nearly as possible like that in the open air under which the plants grown thrive the best.—Farm and Home.

ACETYLENE GAS AS ILLUMINANT

A reprint and revision of bulletin No. 57 of the state department of agriculture of Pennsylvania has been issued by the department of chemistry of the Pennsylvania state college, under the authorship of George Gilbert Pond, Ph.D. The whole subject of calcium carbide and acetylene is covered most thoroughly without the use of technical language, and the book contains complete and authoritative information, so simply told that the public generally will find the book not only instructive but extremely interesting.

The use of acetylene commercially is an evolution covering ten or twelve years. The rapid strides which the new illuminant has made, especially in country homes, is making it a formidable competitor for favor wherever illumination is required.

The spectral analysis of the light shows it to be a practical duplication of sunlight, so that colors have their true value when illuminated by this brilliant gas. Recently the use of acetylene for the headlights of automobiles, its adoption by the government for beacon lights, lighthouses, forts and Indian schools, has given acetylene new impetus.

Prof. Pond has shown that the dweller in the country home can secure this excellent illuminant at a cost which compares, to the advantage of acetylene, with city gas when burned in the open flame burner costing a dollar per 1,000 cubic feet.

The board of engineers of the national board of fire underwriters have, after a year's examination of the subject, declared that acetylene, when installed with approved apparatus, is safer than the illuminants which it replaces, and the national board of fire underwriters has revised its rules in such a manner as to encourage its more rapid introduction. Calcium carbide, which has in some quarters been regarded as a dangerous substance has been investigated and declared to be without hazard by the fire underwriters. These facts will come in the nature of a great surprise to many who have regarded acetylene as dangerous. In dealing with this phase of the subject, Prof. Pond has given thorough information as to the safe use of acetylene and the precautions which must be taken with this substance, the same as with any other illuminant.

An interesting phase of the subject is the remarkable use of what is known as the oxy-acetylene blow-pipe. By burning acetylene in an atmosphere of pure oxygen, the highest temperature in chemistry is evolved, practically equaling the electric arc. A pencil of flame two or three inches long, and no larger than the barrel of a fountain pen, can be drawn across a piece of sheet metal, and literally melts the metal in two. The process can be reversed and sheet metal, iron, brass, copper, aluminum, and, in fact, any of the ordinary metals can be literally melted together and, curiously, the joint is so perfectly formed that a file will not disclose the point of fracture. Bridge girders have been cut with great rapidity, and it is stated that this simple pencil of flame promises a revolution in the methods of metal working establishments.

Another curious phase of the subject is the fact that calcium carbide at certain temperatures has the power of fixing the nitrogen of the air and in this way will produce a fertilizer called cyanamide, which is found equal to the Chilian nitrates. Few people realize that $15,000,000 worth of Chilian nitrates have been imported into this country and used by the farmers here during the past year.

The bulletin on calcium carbide and acetylene can be had free by application, accompanied by six cents postage, to the Department of Chemistry, the Pennsylvania State College State College, Pa.

THE TUBERCULOSIS PROBLEM IN THE DAIRY

A Disease Which Is a Menace to a Most Important Industry—By A. R. Ward, Veterinarian and Bacteriologist, California.

Bovine tuberculosis is a menace that no stock raiser or dairyman can afford to ignore. There is no problem confronting agriculture to-day of more fundamental importance than that constituted by this disease.

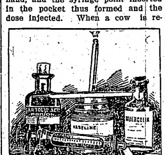
The United States department of agriculture furnishes tuberculin free to health officials.

On account of the ease with which variations in temperatures are caused, it is important to keep the animals, that are being tested, under normal conditions. They should be fed, watered and milked as usual. Avoid as much as possible the violent handling of nervous cows in taking their temperatures.

Cattle suffering from any disease causing a fever (garget, "fox-tail abscess," retained afterbirth, etc.) should not be tested until the fever has subsided. If the cattle have been recently injected with tuberculin, a retest within one month will be unreliable, and it is safer to allow six or eight weeks to elapse. Most authorities state that the test should not be applied to cows within four days of calving, or during the period of heat, for fear that these conditions might cause a rise. It is the usual practice to inject all animals, and take the above-mentioned conditions into consideration, and re-test if a rise in the temperature does occur.

Manner of Injecting Tuberculin.

This is preferably done in the evening, eight hours before the time of milking in the morning. The syringe should be disinfected by drawing it full of carbolic acid, emptying it, and then rinsing in boiled water before beginning the test. In addition to this, just before injecting each animal, dip the tip of the syringe in strong carbolic acid to disinfect it. Fill the syringe through the needle from the bottle of tuberculin, and avoid contaminating it with dirt. Set the burr on the piston rod of the syringe so that not more than the dose intended can be injected. The large numbered divisions on the syringe piston rod stand for cubic centimeters (cc.). The size of dose will be stated on the tuberculin bottle. The injection is usually made in the side of the neck where the skin is thin and loose. A fold of the skin is taken in the left hand, and the syringe point inserted in the pocket thus formed and the dose injected. When a cow is restrained in a stanchion the position of the operator shown in our illustration insures the greatest security from interference or injury by the movements of the cow.



Tuberculin Test Outfit.

Take temperatures at about the eighth, tenth, twelfth, fourteenth, sixteenth and eighteenth hours after injecting, and continue in those cases showing a rising temperature. Where an animal shows a rise above 102.5 degrees Fahrenheit, it is well to take the temperatures at more frequent intervals. In hot weather it is essential that the injection be timed so that the eighth to sixteenth hours will occur in the cool part of the day.

When the tuberculin is furnished by this station the temperature record sheets may be returned as soon as the test is completed, and an interpretation of the results will be made. In case of a reaction (indicating the presence of tuberculosis) there must be a rise of 1.5 degrees Fahrenheit or more above the normal temperature as determined on the preceding day. The interpretation of temperature record of the animals showing a rise of less than two degrees Fahrenheit requires care. The elevation of temperature usually comes on gradually, although in the more pronounced reactions, where the temperature goes above 105.5 degrees Fahrenheit, the rise is frequently abrupt. This should usually occur between the eighth and the sixteenth hours. It should remain practically at a maximum for two hours or more and gradually subside. When the temperature reaches 104 degrees Fahrenheit or more, and is maintained for some hours, the animal is certainly regarded as a tubercular, if no fever was shown before the injection. Erratic elevations of short duration do not indicate a reaction. The slight variations caused by the weather, the drinking of cold water, or the irregular handling in applying the test are as apparent in the temperature records of the non-reacting cows as in the others, and a comparison of the temperatures of the animals which show no indication of a reaction should be taken into account in interpreting the records. In case of doubt, the animal should be separated from the herd and re-tested not sooner than a month.

If a Large Proportion of the Herd Is Found to Be Diseased.—In this case if the reacting animals are valuable breeders, they may be isolated and kept for breeding purposes by removing the calves at once and feeding them on milk of healthy cows, or on sterilized milk of their mothers. This is called the Bang method, a procedure devised by Prof. B. Bang, of the Copenhagen Veterinary college. The method is as follows:

"(2) Remove the reacting animals, and keep them isolated so that the disease can not be transmitted to the healthy animals, either by contact, by the attendants, or by the same feeding or drinking utensils.

"(3) Disinfect the stables to prevent transmission of the germs left by the infected animals.

"(4) Test the healthy herd with tuberculin regularly to detect any cases that may develop and remove such animals before they spread the disease Disinfect again.

"(5) Remove the calves from the diseased herd at birth and feed them milk from the healthy cows, or milk from the diseased cows which has been thoroughly pasteurized (heated to 185 degrees Fahrenheit)."

As the sound herd is replenished, the isolated cattle may, if desired, be fattened and killed, under proper inspection, for beef.

Three Best Farm Machines.—I consider the three best machines for the farmer to-day, writes a correspondent of Farm and Home, are the disk, that sows the grain and turns the earth all one way, thereby saving the farmer half his labor and doing the work better; the manure spreader, which saves labor and does better work, and the twine binder, which does the same thing. They are triplets that have never been duplicated on the farm. Of course, the threshing machine is also a special necessity, but that is a neighborhood machine instead of being for the individual farmer.

Most women keep a lot of ready-made sympathy on hand.

A Boston Touch.

Once upon a time De Wolf Hopper met a Boston person in that town whom he had not seen for a long period of duration.

"Hello: how are you? Where have you been?" said Hopper in his hearty way, giving the New York pronunciation the word "been."

"Please don't say 'bin,' but 'been.'"

"Sorry, but I can't," pleaded the big fellow. "I never had a bean in my mouth in my life, not even in Boston."

Plutocratic Greed.

Goodman Gonrong—Yes, I promised I'd divvy with ye, but that was when I had 20 cents. I've got 35 cents now. That cain't be divided in two ekal parts, an' I'm goin' to keep it all m'self. See?"

Saymold Storey—Yes, I see, blame ye! It's just as I've allus said; the rich is growin' richer an' the poor is growin' poorer!"

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

Over $650,000 is on time deposit in Red Lake county. In Red Lake Falls alone the two banks hold $250,000—a quarter of a million. These are savings deposits—owned largely by the poorer and middle classes. This money stays in Red Lake county, and furnishes a greater portion of the funds used in improving our farms; erecting new business buildings and taking care of the financial needs of our farmers and business men during the season between crops.

Under present banking laws there has been no general feeling that these deposits were not reasonably safeguarded against possible loss, and even in the severe stress of the 1907 stringency there was no apprehension on the part of the depositors. The banks of Red Lake county pay 5 per cent on time deposits, affording the same return for money as the average conservative investment in bonds or securities.

It is now proposed by congress, and a bill has been introduced by Congressman Steenerson of this district, to establish postal savings banks. It is proposed to pay 2 per cent interest to depositors, limiting the amount to $250 for each person and re-depositing the money in national banks in the locality from which the deposits are received. It is not likely the average person would take advantage of the opportunity to deposit with the government, owing to the lower rate of interest paid, except in times of financial stress. At these periods the local banks are less able to stand a "run," and the withdrawal of a large amount of time money would prove a serious embarrassment to the community as well as to the banks. The re-deposit feature would be of little avail, since Red Lake county has but one national bank, and the greater portion of the county would receive no benefit. Many counties have no national banks, and the postal banks would take the money out of the county entirely.

There is no criticism of the banking laws of Minnesota, but if there is a question of their safety the remedy is in further legislative enactment and a more thorough inspection. Then, too, a proper guaranty of deposits would afford the greatest possible protection to depositors and at the same time not interfere with the local fiscal arrangement.

If the people in the country towns will study the postal bank proposition they will soon discover that the plan would benefit only the larger financial centers and take away from the less-populated communities the money needed and properly belonging there.

THE TAX AMENDMENT.

The supreme court has decided that the "wide open" tax amendment voted on at the general election of 1906 was passed. After the returning board had come to this conclusion, the steel interests succeeded in getting a partial recount, and the action of the returning board was reversed by the district court. The attorney general appealed the case, and the district court is reversed by the supreme court, Judge Brown dissenting.

The decision means a new and broader policy relating to taxation and gives the legislature and tax commission a much wider scope. Probably the first result of the decision will be the passage of a tonnage tax on iron ore, giving the state a larger proportion of the revenue derived from the taxation of the iron properties. There is a general sentiment, outside of the locality directly affected, in favor of a tonnage tax. The iron mines belong, in the larger sense, to the people of the entire state, and they are entitled to a liberal share of the tax for general state purposes.

THERE is but one answer to the proposition, what is more potent than the dollar? Two dollars.

THE Little Falls Herald points out that this should be a great year for the Irish, as 1909 in Roman letters is MDMIX.

NORTHERN Minnesota has reason to be gratified over Governor Johnson's message. He appreciates the needs of this part of the state.

THE old adage that "there was never a rose without a thorn" may have to be revised before Luther Burbank gets through with his horticultural experiments.

THE Winnebago City Enterprise says that life has been robbed of half its joy for the politicians. First their railroad passes were taken away from them, and now they have to fork up their nickels when they take a ride on the street cars.

THE Minnesota presidential electors met at St. Paul Monday and cast the eleven votes for Taft. Mr. Sherman got through with the same majority, but he was in danger for a minute. At least two of the electors couldn't remember his initials.

THE annual county printing scrap brings forth the usual criminations and recriminations. In nearly every county in the state somebody "got left" and the defenseless heads of county commissioners and hated contemporaries show marks of the fray.

THE Ridgeway (Iowa) Review says that Iowa has 82,000 more men than women. "That's easily accounted for," says the Butterfield Advocate. "The Iowa women are so very attractive that they are constantly carried away by the sterner sex of other states."

DR. FRANKLIN L. MCVEY, chairman of the state tax commission, has been called to the presidency of the University of North Dakota. Dr. McVey was for many years professor of political economy at the University of Minnesota, and is universally regarded as one of the able educatorsof the country.

The prompt sentencing of the three labor leaders to terms in prison loses much of its moral effect, provided the men are guilty of the offenses charged, for the reason that the court was so much more prompt and vigorous in handling their cases than the cases against Standard Oil and other millionaire gangs of pernicious lawbreakers, observes the Fairmont Sentinel.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON'S appointments to the head of the various state departments were confirmed Tuesday morning by the state senate. The list includes C. G. Schulz, state superintendent; John A. Hartigan, insurance commissioner; W. E. McEwen, labor commissioner; John E. King, state librarian; Andrew French, dairy and food commissioner and E. J. Lynch, oil inspector.

IMPASSIONED orators will await with intense interest the verification or denial of the report that Scylla has disappeared as a result of the earthquake, says the Northfield News. Scylla and Charybdis were big rocks and reefs which imperilled all boats which passed between, and they have been in constant use by all impassioned orators as figures of speech ever since the days of the late Demosthenes.

A RECENT legislative letter reminds us of a matter that should not be lost sight of by the people, and especially the country newspaper man and country merchant, is the regulation of the rates of express companies. For instance, the maximum rate within a given radius for 100 pounds is 45 cents, but any sort of a charge under 45 cents for any weight under 100 pounds. It seems plain that the legislature should take cognizance of the situation and force express companies and other public service corporations to give the people the relief needed.

THE ready reason for rejecting Senator McColl's senatorial primary bill will be that it has been introduced by a member of the minority party, says the St. Paul Dispatch. Political partisians will see no good in it—for them. Yet why should not the voters in the republican party choose the republican candidate for United States senator directly and the democrates do likewise for their party? And why should not all the voters choose between the two candidates? They ought to be permitted to do so, on the ground that the personal character of a United States senator is of as much or more importance to the people as his party affiliations, in these days particularly.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Walker Pilot: Dame fortune refuses to smile on every person who tries to flirt with her.

Montevideo Leader: Congress is in session and the legislature will soon be in session and we will doubtless have more new laws than some of us can possibly keep.

Waverly Star: Just about the time the people of Germany were putting a seal on the kaiser's mouth his royal highness must have envied a number of prominent Americans, who are allowed to talk to their hearts content. Why, even Hobson is still talking.

Warroad Commonwealth: The possibilities of women suffrage are illustrated by the fact that a Wyoming man and his wife are running in the present campaign on opposite tickets for the same office. There may be some heart-burning over the result, but whichever wins, the salary will be in the family.

Austin Transcript: In the first eleven months of this year twenty people were killed in automobile accidents in Chicago as compared with fifteen for the same months last year; 327 were injured, but not fatally, compared with 231 for the same months last year. Worse than railroad traveling.

Two Harbors Iron Trade Journal: The question of establishing a sixth normal school will again come up before the Minnesota legislature at the coming session. Such a bill passed the house at the last session, but was defeated in the senate. There is no question of the need of the sixth school in this state.

Sauk Center Herald: Several ultra republican Minnesota newspapers are criticising Governor Johnson for attending the conservation congrsss at Washington called by the president, and for stopping off on the way to deliver a lecture or two. Had Minnesota a republican executive, would they take a similar attitude? And would the rabid democratic papers laud the executive under those conditions? The people are pretty well satisfied with the governor or they would not have re-elected him. Let the partisan organs roar; it pleases them and doesn't hurt anybody.

A. P. Toupin, Clerk.

Increase in Cholera Results.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 11.—Seventy new cases of Asiatic cholera have been reported in St. Petersburg during the three days following the Russian Christmas. This increase is due to overeating and heavy drinking during the holiday season. Up to the present time the epidemic shows a total of more than 9,000 cases and 3,559 deaths.

Stop That Cold

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure even a deeply seated cold, but taken early—at the sneeze stage—they break, or head off these early colds. That's surely better. That's why they are called Preventics.

Preventics are little Candy Cold Cures. No Quinine, no physic, nothing sickening. Nice for the children—and thoroughly safe too. If you feel chilly, if you sneeze, if you ache all over, think of Preventics. Promptness may also save half your usual sickness. And don't forget your child, if there is feverishness, night or day. Herein probably lies Preventics' greatest efficiency. Sold in 5c boxes for the pocket, also in 25c boxes of 48 Preventics. Insist on your druggists giving you

To CARL H. ASKE:

Whereas, heretofore and on the 7th day of December, A. D., 1997, you, the said Carl H. Aske, entered into a written contract with the undersigned, Oscar A. Bishop and Ella C. Bishop, for the purchase of the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section three [3] township one hundred fifty-three [153] north of range forty-three [43], except right-of-way of the St. Paul Sault Ste Marie Railway Co., and about three acres lying east of said track, said premises being situated in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and whereas, it was stipulated in and by said contract, that you, the said Carl H. Aske, should pay to the undersigned the sum of One Thousand Six Hundred [$1,600.00] dollars as the purchase price of said premises, payable at the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, as follows, to-wit: The sum of one hundred seventy-five [$175.00] dollars at or before the execution of said contract; the sum of four hundred twenty-five [$425.00] dollars on the 1st day of December, 1908, and the sum of one thousand [$1,000.00] dollars on the 1st day of December, 1909, together with interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, payable annually on the whole sum remaining from time to time unpaid, and to pay all taxes and impositions, that might be legally levied or imposed upon such land subsequent to year 1906. And whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of four hundred twenty-five [$425.00] dollars due according to the terms of said contract on the 1st day of December, 1908, and further default has been made by you in not paying the interest due on the 7th day of December, 1908, amounting to Ninety-nine and 75-100 [$99.75] dollars; and also in not paying taxes in the sum of Nine and 76-100 [$9.76] dollars, and whereas said contract contained a provision, that in case of the failure of you, said Carl H. Aske, to make either of the payments, or the interest thereon or any part thereof, or perform any of the covenants on your part, made and entered into, then, the whole of said payments and interest due thereon, should at the election of the undersigned become immediately due and payable and said contract should at the option of the undersigned be cancelled and determined and all the right, title and interest acquired thereunder by you should be forfeited, by giving to you thirty days notice in writing of the intention of the undersigned to cancel and determine said contract and to annul all right, title and interest, acquired thereunder by you; and whereas, said contract further provided, that 30 days is a reasonable and sufficient notice to be given, in case of your failure to perform any of the covenants contained in said contract and should be sufficient to cancel all obligations on the part of the undersigned and fully reinvest the undersigned with all the right, title and interest, agreed to be conveyed and that you, said Carl H. Aske, should forfeit all payments made by you on said contract and all your right, title and interest in all buildings and other improvements whatsoever, such payments and improvements, to be retained by the undersigned.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given to you, the said Carl H. Aske, that the undersigned did and hereby does elect and decide to cancel, terminate and forfeit said contract, and said contract will stand and be cancelled, terminated and forfeited on the 6th day of March, 1909, unless prior to that date, you comply with all the conditions and provisions of said contract and make said payments, so in default, to-wit: Four hundred twenty-five [$425.00] dollars principal, and interest in the sum of Ninety-nine and 75-100 [$99.75] dollars, and the further sum of Nine and 76-100 [$9.76] dollars taxes, and the costs and expenses of service of this notice. Payment of said principal, interest and taxes so in default, and costs, and expenses of service of this notice, may be made to the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, at any time prior to the 6th day of March, 1909.

S.S.S. CURES RHEUMATISM

Every case of Rheumatism has its origin and its development in the blood. It is not a disease which is contracted like a cold, but it is in the blood and system before a pain is felt, and the changes in the weather or any physical irregularities, such as a spell of indigestion, bowel disturbance, etc., are merely the exciting causes producing the pains and aches, which are the natural symptoms of the disease. Rheumatism is caused by an excess of uric acid and other corrosive, irritating poisons in the blood, which are carried through the circulation to every part of the system. Every muscle, nerve, membrane, tissue and joint becomes saturated with these acrid, irritating impurities, or coated with fine, insoluble caustic matter, and the sharp, piercing pains or the dull, constant aches are felt with every physical movement. When the blood is filled with uric acid poison, permanent relief cannot be expected from liniments, plasters, or other external treatment. Such measures give temporary relief, but in order to conquer Rheumatism and bring about a complete cure, the uric acid and other inflammatory matter must be expelled, and this cannot be done with external treatment. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it is a perfect and entirely vegetable blood purifier. It goes down into the circulation, neutralizes the acids, and dissolves the irritating deposits which are pressing on the sensitive nerves and tissues and producing pain, enriches the weak, sour blood, and removes every atom of impurity from the circulation. So instead of being a weak, sour stream, distributing uric acid to the different parts of the system, the blood is strong and healthy and therefore able to supply every muscle, nerve, bone and tissue with nourishment and strength. Then the inflammation and swelling subside, the pains and aches cease, and not only is Rheumatism permanently cured, but under the fine tonic effects of S. S. S. the entire general health is benefitted and built up. In all forms of Rheumatism, whether acute or chronic, S. S. S. will be found a safe and reliable treatment. Special book on Rheumatism and any medical advice you desire will be furnished free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Sometime ago, I had Rheumatism and had to quit work. The pain in my back and between my shoulders was so intense I could not rest or sleep. I tried everything, but nothing did me any good till I heard of and took S. S. S. This medicine cured me sound and well. It purified my blood and made me feel like a new man.

CONRAD LOHR,
Anderson, Ind. 122 E. 19th St.

I was severely troubled with Rheumatism. I had it in my knees, legs and ankles, and any one who has ever had Rheumatism knows how excruciating the pain is and how it interferes with one at work. I was truly in bad shape—having been bothered with it for ten years, off and on. A local physician advised me to use S. S. S. I did so. After taking two bottles I noticed the soreness and pain were greatly reduced. I continued the medicine and was thoroughly cured; all pain, soreness and inflammation gone. I recommend S. S. S. to all Rheumatic sufferers.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Sixty and no-100 Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas Germo, administrator of the estate of Berget Vettleson, deceased, Mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 26th day of July, 1906, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of July, 1906, at 2 o'clock P. M., in Book 11 of Mortgages, on page 257.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, to Emilia Ulmer by written assignment dated the 11th day of December, 1906, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds on the 11th day of December, 1906, at 2 o'clock P. M., in Book 9 of mortgages on page 351.

And Whereas, The said Emilia Ulmer, the Assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therin contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of One Thousand Eighty-Seven and 21-100 Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from the 2nd day of December, 1908, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz: The east half of the southwest quarter (e½ of sw¼) and the west half of the southeast quarter (w½ of se¼) of section twenty-three (23) in township one hundred and fifty-one (151) north: range forty-one (41) west of the fifth principal meridian in Red Lake county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the west front door of the Court House in the City of Red Lake Falls in said county and state on the 16th day of January, 1909, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of $1087.21 and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty Dollars, ($50) Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated December 2nd, A. D., 1908.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of eleven hundred four and 16-100ths ($1104.16) dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Christenson, a single man, Mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of April, 1901, and with a power of sale therin contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 12th day of June, 1901, at 4:15 o'clock P. M., in Book R of Mortgages, on page 392.

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, to R. H. McClellan by written assignment dated the 28th day of June, 1901, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds, on the 1st day of July, 1901, at 10 o'clock, A. M., in Book S of Mortgages on page 606.

And the said R. H. McClellan, assignee aforesaid, having died on the 23rd day of July, A. D. 1902, in the State of Illinois and County of Jo Daviess, whereupon such proceedings were duly had that Letters Testamentary were duly issued by the county court of said county and state to George W. McClellan, dated August 15, 1902, who was then and there duly appointed executor of the said R. H. McClellan, and a certified copy of said Letters Testamentary have been duly filed in the office of the Register of Deeds of Red Lake County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of December, 1908, at 2:30 o'clock P. M., in Book F of Miscellaneous page 191; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The south east quarter, (SE¼), of section twelve (12), in township one hundred fifty (150), of range forty-three (43), west of the 5th Principal Meridian for Minnesota, the said land lying and being in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 23rd day of January 1909, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of $1104.16 and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty Dollars, Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Are Doctors Any Good?

Foolish question! Yet some people act as if a medicine could take the place of a doctor! The best medicine in the world cannot do this. Have a family doctor, consult him frequently, trust him fully. If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds, we would not offer it to you. Ask your doctor. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

MAKE IT YOURSELF

Says Many Persons Here Can Be Made Happy Again By Using It.

There is so much Rheumatism in our neighborhood now that the following advice will be highly appreciated by those who suffer;

Get from any good pharmacy one half ounce Fluid Extract dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bed time; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffer from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them. 14-16

C. D. Whaley, of Mayfield township who went to St. Paul a couple of weeks ago for hospital treatment, writes us that he underwent a surgical operation in St. Joseph's hospital on December 19. He states that the operation was entirely successful and that he is now improving steadily. Mr. Whaley states that Charlie Wilson, who has been in the same hospital for several weeks, is also improving steadily but not so rapidly, owing to the more serious nature of the disease. Both these gentlemen have a host of warm friends in this vicinity who will be well pleased to hear of the improvement in their health.

ST. HILAIRE

From the Spectator.

S. M. Sivertson, manager of the Red Lake Falls Milling Company, was a visitor here on Monday. The burning of the mill at Red Lake Falls in no way affected their business here as their trade was supplied by the Crookston mill. Mr. Sivertson reports a very satisfactory business here the past year.

A pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized in the Swedish Lutheran church in this village on the sixth of January, when Rev. Alex Sand and Mabel Christina Swenson were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Rev. Moody, of Fergus Falls, officiating, Rev. Persenius, of Grand Forks, acted as best man while Miss Sjostrom, of Winthrop, acted as maid of honor. After the ceremony the bridal party with a few invited guest retired to the parsonage where dinner was served. Rev. Sand is the pastor of the local Swedish Lutheran church and is a man of high qualifications. During the time he has been here he has won the esteem and admiration of all his associates, He is a man whose actions are always founded upon sound judgement. The bride is the oldest daughter of August Swenson, of River Falls township. She is a very estimable young lady and has a host of friends and associates. The whole community extend their best wishes and congratulations to the happy couple.

OVERTAXED

The kidneys are overtaxed;
Have too much to do.
They tell about it in many aches and pains—
Backache, sideache,
Early symptoms of kidney ills.
Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.
A Red Lake Falls citizen tells here a certain cure.

Mrs. Zilda Paquin, living in the Northern part of Red Lake Falls, Minn., says: "I can speak very highly of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled for weeks by a dull pain in the small of my back, I suffered from headaches and also had pains in my limbs. My kidney were also disordered in action an the secretions of an unnatural appearance. I was told by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills and sent to Schreiter's drug store for a supply. I had only taken them a few days when I felt better and now I am well again. Doan's Kidney Pills have relieved me of all my troubles and I shall not fail to recommend them to others."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Croup positively stopped in 20 minutes with Dr. Shoop's Croup Remedy. One test alone will surely prove this truth. No vomiting, no distress. A safe and pleasing syrup—50c. Sold by all dealers.

MISERY IN STOMACH.

And Indigestion Vanishes in Five Minutes and You Feel Fine.

Why not start now—today, and forever rid yourself of Stomach trouble and Indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, one triangule will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapepsin works your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decided to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of Indigestion. 15-18

If your Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys are weak, try a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly: Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the heart or kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

(Coupon)

No...... $27.50

On the first day of April October 19 ..., the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will pay to bearer Twenty-seven and 50-100 Dollars, at the American Trust & Savings Bank in the City of Chicago, Illinois, for semi-annual interest due that date on its Refunding Bond dated October 1, 1908, No.

City Treasurer.

Section 2. There shall be levied annually a tax sufficient to raise the sum of $275.00 to pay the annual interest on said bonds and the further sum of $500 as a sinking fund to provide for the prompt payment of the principal of said bonds as same matures.

Section 3. There shall be advertised in the Red Lake Falls Gazette, a public newspaper published in the City of Red Lake Falls, for two weeks, notice that the bonds authorized to be issued by this ordinance, will be sold by the City council at its regular meeting to be held on the 21st day of January, 1909, at 8 P. M. at which time bids will be open and awarded to the person offering to purchase said bonds upon the terms considered most favorable to the City of Red Lake Falls. Council reserving the right to reject any bid.

Section 4. Any ordinance or resolution inconsistent herewith is hereby repealed.

Section 5. This ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage and publication.

Passed and approved this 31st day of December 1908.

Fred Borchers, President.
Approved January 6th, 1909.
J. A. Duffy,
Mayor.

HOUSE HITS BACK

Tables President's Messages Reflecting on Members.

COMMITTEE REPORT ADOPTED

Vote Taken After Long Discussion Stood 212 to 35.

Washington, Jan. 9.—After having made him the target all day for criticism with here and there words of commendation, the house of representatives, by a vote of 212 to 35, rebuked the president by tabling so much of his messages as reflected on members of congress in connection with his recommendations regarding the secret service detectives, and also declaring it to be the sense of the house that they shall decline to consider any communication from any source which is not in its own judgment respectful.

With feelings of outraged dignity and pride on the part of many of its members, the house gave itself up entirely to a discussion of one of the most momentous questions that ever came before it—its functions as a legislative body—in contradistinction to those of the executive branch of the government.

As had been forecasted, the report of the special committee appointed to deal with the language in the president's annual message and in his special message of last Monday bearing on the secret service affecting members of congress was submitted and it was used as the basis for some of the most earnest and vigorous speeches ever heard in the historic chamber. The house was in no mood to treat the subject otherwise than seriously, although in the remarks which were made the references to the president, almost invariably, were couched in parliamentary language. Nor was the president without his supporters.

In the last issue, in the report of the creamery association meeting, one or two mistakes were made in giving the names of the officers elected. Following are the officers elected: Ildidge Baril, president; Geo. Orr, vice president; John Linnertz, treasurer; Frank Grenier, manager; Geo. Hennings Sec'y; Geo. Walker, Fred Behn, Carl Hundermark and D. Patnode, directors.

Work on the pier for the bridge over the Clearwater river has progressed favorably considering unfavorable weather conditions. This week a foot bridge was constructed so that now pedestrians may cross the river without the inconvenience of going over the ice and climbing the mountain side. It is expected that work will be far enough along in about ten days so that teams may cross on the bridge.

—Laes Leffier says it isn't necessary to build an ice house in order to put up a supply of ice for the summer. Just pile up your ice on the bare ground, preferably in the shade of some trees, put sawdust under, and use about the same amount of sawdust as you would in a building, and when your pile is as big as you want it, cover it up with hay—common wild hay the best, Lars says he has seen a lot of ice put that way. —Hendrum Review.

The Duluth Herald says that the Great Northern railroad will soon begin the construction of a road from Warroad to Hibbing, via Baudette. The fact that this construction would shorten the route from Chicago to Winnipeg by over 80 miles, leads to the opinion that the report is correct. At the present time the Great Northern has very good connections at Hibbing. The extension to Warroad would prove a new outlet for some of the freight from Winnipeg and the Canadian Northern points to Great Northern territory, and would extend the Great Northern further into the new [illegible] that is being opened up on the Canadian frontier.

The trustees of St. Joseph's church and school—Rev. Fr. Fayolle, the pastor, T. A. Crompe, secretary; E. Normandeau, treasurer—gave an account of the financial affairs of the church Sunday morning which proved satisfactory to all. The receipts for the year were $4,342.13 and the expenditures $4,324,29. The mortgage indebtedness on the school building has been reduced by the payment of $894.00. There is still an indebtedness on the school of $880.00 and a few other smaller liabilities, but the affairs of the church are in a most satisfactory condition.

Hard After the Bridge.

W. G. Hunt, the well known editor of the Sunbeam, was in Thief River Falls the first of the week attending to business matters. Mr. Hunt is very much interested in securing a bridge across the Red Lake river at Sunbeam and to this end will cause a bill to be introduced in the legislature at this session appropriating $10,000 for this purpose. Next week, Mr. Hunt stated, he would go to St. Paul to give the matter personal attention and he is firm in the belief that the legislature will make the appropriation. As to the opposition to the bridge being built at Sunbeam, Mr. Hunt said it did not amont to anything as 95 per cent of the the people of the eleven towns wanted the bridge built there and at no other place.—Thief River Falls News.

High School Notes . .

Blanche Altstadt, Editor

Kathleen Spillane has entered high school as a freshman.

Grace Gervais has been absent from school since the holidays.

Superintendent Anderson visited the schools Tuesday afternoon.

Walter Garceau has re-entered school after an absence of several months. His school mates are glad to see him back.

Don't forget the Loud and Noisy Minstrels Monday evening. The high school girls are going to help along in a chorus.

The holidays are over and we have returned to begin our school work anew, with good resolutions, though many have already been broken.

The Spartan literary society will render their second program Friday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. It promises to be a good one, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

WOMAN'S INTERESTS

FLATTER A LITTLE

PLEASANT SPEECHES ALWAYS ARE WELCOMED.

Natural That Women Should Prefer to Hear Pretty Things About Themselves Rather Than Generally Unwelcome Truths.

"Do women like to be flattered?" is the question propounded by a mere masculine. Only a man would have asked it, because every woman, if she is willing to admit the truth to herself, knows that she likes it. Equally she is aware that frequently many of the charming things said or insinuated are flattery, and in that sense are not true. But even so, the mere fact that she knows their untruth saves her from putting any great faith in the statements, and she receives them on the basis of its being nicer to hear pleasant speeches than unpleasant ones.

But the great underlying reason that a woman is willing to be flattered, even when she knows the words are not sincere, is because the pleasant speeches are evoked from a desire to please. That in itself justifies the deception, if there is any, and makes flattery a desirable coin in the circulation of social currency.

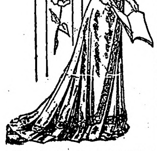
So even though a person is commonly known to flatter, the individual who does it will be far more popular and welcome than one who goes through life saying brusque truths with a manner regardless of the feelings of others. A flatterer is by no means necessarily an untruthful person; overdone it becomes nauseous, defeating its own end; judiciously employed, it oils social intercourse.

It is far wiser to tell a woman that she looks pretty or that she does not look ill, even though one knows her to be suffering. But if the woman has shown sufficient character to try to rise above the pain of the moment, or if her life is such that she has not time to give way to it, to tell her that she looks ill is like giving her a blow. It takes from her what little backbone she has, and in nine cases out of ten she begins to act as ill as she is, a condition she had refrained from previously.

On the other hand, to tell her she looks well means giving a moral brace. It helps her tremendously to feel that she doesn't show what she is suffering, and the person who has aided her becomes likable in her eyes. He is a flatterer, undoubtedly, but the good done more than justifies the means.

A little flattery to a young girl will strengthen her poise among strangers, and sometimes prevent embarrassment. Flattery, in moderation, is kindness of heart and should be encouraged; in excess it is silliness and a characteristic of the weak-minded.

EMPIRE DINNER GOWN.



The cut to-day shows an excellent model for a charming empire dinner gown. The material is dove gray satin and the embroidery as indicated by sketch is done in silver threads. The little ornaments on embroidered tabs on each side of bodice are silver tassels. Tiny ruffles of gray chiffon edge shoulder pieces and serve as a finish to elbow sleeves.

PARIS FAVORS THE OVERGOWN.

Sheathlike Gown Is Opened or Slashed to Give an Idea of Gown Beneath.

The overgown fashion is distinctive of the winter; that is, the sheathlike gown is open or slashed to give an idea of a gown beneath. One example of this shows an embroidery of soutache making the top of the princess gown, the long sleeves and the panel descending on the left side of the skirt to the hem. Starting from the bust is a drapery plain cloth tying together over the panel just below the knees.

Another example of the same idea is of elephant gray Ottoman silk and velvet, the silk making the trailing underskirt. The velvet tunic splits under the arms to show the underskirt, and then buttons for a few inches just below the knees. There is an under guimpe of tucked tulle, and the velvet is used in straps over this, two going over the shoulders and the remainder about the arms to the elbows. The sleeves themselves finish with ruffles over the wrists. Soutache motifs close these straps, and the top of the velvet skirt is heavy with embroidery.

Eighteenth Century Mules.

In the way of footwear nothing could be more captivating for young girls than the dainty little eighteenth century mules which have come again into fashion. It is so eminently proper for the wearer to display them that the directoire frocks which women wear which hang long on the floor floor are coquettishly caught up a bit in front for the express purpose of showing off the fetching mules. Girls who do not wear sweeping gowns are therefore at an advantage, for the length of their skirts is such that the pretty mules show all around.

The Half-Adjusted Coat.

As the season advances there are fewer high waists, even in outside garments. The half adjusted coat is the favorite model in Paris to-day, and, although this may suggest a waistline a little higher than the normal, it is far from the empire effect. Of course, gowns are wonderfully and beautifully straight; that is, there is no waistline at all.

FILET PUT TO GOOD USE.

Odd Squares Easily Made Into Charming Centerpieces.

Odd squares of filet picked up quite reasonably during bargain times are being made into charming centerpieces by inserting them in white linen, edging with a narrow border of lace and connecting the squares by a running design in eyelet embroidery.

Wallachian and Biedermaier embroidery, while still done both in colors and in white, are not so much in favor as a few seasons ago. The former when used on a graceful design and worked in white is a good choice for the girl who has not much time or skill.

Drawn work centerpieces are always in favor, but they take too long and can be bought too cheaply to be popular with the average maker of gifts. An effective piece can be made with an inch-wide, drawn work border, heading a two-inch hem. A monogram in satin stitch, inside an openwork medallion, is put in the middle of one side.

Ermine Very Adaptable.

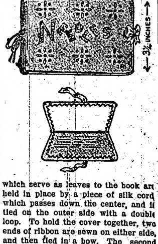
Ermine is proving itself peculiarly adaptable to fanciful effects and is particularly alluring in the form of a fichu stole, the fichu effect finishing short of the waist at the back and being drawn to the figure by various decorative devices.

TO HOLD THE NEEDLES.

Pretty Design for Case That Can Be Made at Home.

A pretty design for quite a simple needle-case is shown in these illustrations.

The cover is made in silk with the word "Needles," embroidered in some contrasting color. A conventional design in embroidery to match completes the decoration. The piece of flannel which serve as leaves to the book are held in place by a piece of silk cord which passes down the center, and is tied on the outer side with a double loop. To hold the cover together, two ends of ribbon are sewn on either side, and then tied in a bow. The second sketch clearly explains how this is done, and in the first sketch, a suitable size is suggested, in which the case may be made; but these measurements need not, of course, be adhered to, as the case would be equally useful, made either in an oblong or square shape.



The Width of Skirt.

The dressmakers have decided that about the best width for the modern clinging skirt is two yards or a few inches over. Street skirts cut above the ankles, made of rough fabrics, are not always this wide, but the two yards in unstiffened satin or tulle give enough fullness at footline.

AMERICAN DEBUT OF YOUNG RUSSIAN PIANIST

MISS TINA LERNER

Miss Tina Lerner is one of the younger Russian pianists who is making a brilliant name for herself—her American debut was with the Russian Symphony society in Carnegie hall. She was born in Odessa, Russia, moving while a child with her parents to Moscow, in which city her father is a prominent journalist. She entered the conservatory there, studied under Pabst, and in four years completed the nine years' course. During the years of her study she appeared in Moscow and St. Petersburg in concert.

Mr. Modest Altschuler, the celebrated conductor of the Russian Symphony society, relates the peculiar circumstances under which he first met Miss Tina Lerner, the eminent Russian pianist.

Mr. Altschuler was in Berlin, where he met Mr. Metzel, the composer of "Sinking Bell," which was presented here last winter by the New York Philharmonic society, conducted by Safonoff. While discussing the merits of the younger artists, Mr. Metzel expressed the desire that Mr. Altschuler just made her American debut. should meet Miss Lerner, who just returned to Berlin from England. There she finished a tour with Kubelik. Mr. Altschuler had to leave for Switzerland the same evening, and did not think he could make the call, but Mr. Metzel was so enthusiastic in his eulogy that Altschuler consented, and together they drove to Miss Lerner's apartment. Mr. Altschuler was astonished at the striking likeness of Miss Lerner to Miss Anna Held. Speaking of this, Mr. Altschuler said last night: "The resemblance between Miss Lerner and Miss Anna Held is remarkable. The same features, the same expression and the same bewitching eyes. I have never seen a more attractive young girl in all my travels.

"Regarding her playing I would compare Miss Lerner to any of our well known pianists, as her art is unique, peculiar of her own, and the most pleasing I ever had the pleasure of hearing."

She has studied with Gododsky, one of the greatest artists in the world, whose playing is distinguished with wonderful delicacy, which, however, does not prevent him from grappling with the most daring technical problems.

Octopus at the Font.

A couple in a country village took their baby to be christened, and on the cleryman asking what name they had chosen the happy father replied: "Octopus, sir!" "What!" ejaculated the astonished divine, "but you cannot call a child by so extraordinary a name."

"Yes, sir, if you please," was the reply, "you see it's our eight child and we want it called 'Octopus.'"

Marvelous.

We passed, in the course of an hour, two dead cows and more than fifty dead chickens. A strong smell of gasolene pervaded the atmosphere, and there were wheel tracks in the dust.

Sherlock Holmes became greatly interested.

"Watson," exclaimed he, after deep thought, "there has been an automobile along here!"

JOCKEYS AND THEIR MASCOTS.

One Buys Piebald Hats, Another Carries Prayer Book in Riding Jacket.

"I knew I should ride a winner this afternoon," said J. Plant, the well known jockey, after he had steered Arranmore, an outsider, first past the winning post in the race for the Great Tom Plate at Lincoln a few days ago. "I bought a piebald rat this morning for sixpence and regard the animal as an emblem of good luck. I have christened it Arranmore, and it will accompany me wherever I may be riding."

Plant is by no means the only jockey who is superstitious. As a matter of fact most jockeys carry talismans in one form or another. These range from bits of straw and horse skin, acquired in some curious manner, to jeweled whips and diamond pins presented by owners.

A certain Newmarket stable apprentice who has ridden several winners this year never rides without holding in his mouth a piece of straw, about three inches long, which he found while in the stable one day on the back of the first horse he was asked to ride in a race. For some unaccountable reason he regarded the piece of straw as an omen of good luck, more particularly after he won that first race.

Bits of the skin of famous race horses of the past are very much prized by superstitious jockeys, who would as soon think of riding without a saddle as without this peculiar talisman. If a bit of skin cannot be obtained the jockey contents himself with a few of the hairs out of a famous race horse's tail.

One well known jockey was in the habit, and so far as the writer is aware he continues the habit today, of carrying a small prayer book in his riding jacket. Quite a romantic story is attached to this mascot. It was sent to the jockey by an old lady who, requiring a certain sum of money to aid her daughter and not knowing where to get it, had the idea of backing the horse ridden by this jockey.

She got a friend to make the bet, and, the horse winning, she obtained all the money she required. Two or three days later the jockey received the little prayer book, with a note explaining the circumstances and saying it was the old lady's first and last bet. She would never forget the jockey, and asked him to accept the prayer book as an emblem of good luck. "And," said the jockey some time ago, "I firmly believe it has been my good talisman, for I have been wonderfully successful since I received it."

TWENTY TIMES A BILLIONAIRE

Is the United States Farmer—Seven Billions of Dividends.

"In all the circle of all your acquaintances, in all the circle of all your reading, do you know of a single billionaire?" inquires a writer in Outing. "That is a lot of money, you know. At 4 per cent interest it means an income of three and a third million dollars a month.

"I'm not talking of capital that is a quarter water and a quarter hot air and only half hard cash or convertible realty. I'm talking of wealth that can be handled with your hands and measured with your eyes, wealth that doesn't require convulsions of frenzied finance to be converted into terms of the mint.

"You acknowledge frankly you don't really know of a single billionaire in the history of the world. Much less do you know of any group of capitalists in the world whose combined wealth would make twenty billions and whose twenty billions pay a yearly dividend of seven billions. A dividend of $7,000,000,000 a year means an income of $580,000,000 a month, or $19,000,000 a day.

"Such a capitalist collectively, is the United States farmer. Such a dividend, collectively, does the soil of the United States yearly hand out to the farmer man.

"By the last census the capital invested in agriculture in the United States was $20,000,000,000, and by the last report of the agricultural department the products of the farm for 1907 yielded a grand total of $7,000,000,000. Compare these figures to the billion dollar steel trust, over which the whole world went daffy a few years ago, and the magnitude of the greatness—and of the growing greatness—of agricultural interests in America becomes apparent. Then remember, too, that of all the manufacturing interests in the United States 75 per cent are dependent on the farm for raw products."

A "Translated" Speaker.

What a relief and comfort it is to know that Mr. Speaker likes the injunction plank, and likes the Sherman act plank, and—mirabile visu—likes the tariff-revision plank. Notwithstanding that remark about "excessive" duties in it, he claims the tariff-revision plank as his own. "Bless thee, Bottom, bless thee! Thou art translated!"

"When I turn Jack loose in the junk yard at night I fear no intruders," Albian said. "I've had Jack ever since he was three weeks old. Yes, he could jump the fence, but he is perfectly tame and doesn't want to get away."

HURT IN A WRECK.

Kidneys Badly Injured and Health Seriously Impaired.

William White, R. R. man, 201 Constantine Street, Three Rivers, Mich., says: "In a railroad collision my kidneys must have been hurt, as I passed bloody urine with pain for a long time after, was weak and thin and so I could not work. Two years after I went to the —— hospital and remained almost six months, but my case seemed hopeless. The urine passed involuntarily. Two months ago I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and the improvement has been wonderful. Four boxes have done me more good than all the doctoring of seven years. I gained so much that my friends wonder at it."

HANDS RAW AND SCALY.

Itched and Burned Terribly—Could Not Move Thumbs Without Flesh Cracking—Sleep Impossible.

Cuticura Soon Cured His Eczema.

"An itching humor covered both my hands and got up over my wrists and even up to the elbows. The itching and burning were terrible. My hands got all scaly and when I scratched, the surface would be covered with blisters and then get raw. The eczema got so bad that I could not move my thumbs without deep cracks appearing. I went to my doctor, but his medicine could only stop the itching. At night I suffered so fearfully that I could not sleep. I could not bear to touch my hands with water. This went on for three months and I was fairly worn out. At last I got the Cuticura Remedies and in a month I was cured. Walter H. Cox, 16 Somerset St., Boston, Mass., Sept. 25, 1908."

HARE FOR JURY'S DINNER.

Hunted Morning, Served Evening, According to Old English Custom.

The quaint custom of hunting the hare in the morning, to be served up for the jury's dinner at the annual Court Baron, has just been revived at Chard.

The custom has been discarded for the last forty years, but in the old time it excited a great deal of interest. A local pack of hounds used to hunt the Manor lands in the morning, and the first hare killed was sent back to the chief hotel for the dinner of the jury appointed at the Court Baron.

It is said that another feature of the dinner was an enormous bowl of punch, the contents of which would cost as much as £8. The young Earl Poulett, who is the lord of the manor of Chard, brought over the Seavington pack of hounds this week and the Mayor presented his lordship with a gold mounted hunting crop as a souvenir of the occasion. Later in the day the Court Baron dinner was held and the hunted hare was served up with all the honors.

Judge Beresford held the monthly sitting of the County Court in the morning and in honor of the old custom decided to postpone judgment summonses till the next court in order that there might be no commitment of debtors to prison on that auspicious occasion.

THEN AND NOW

Complete Recovery from Coffee Ills.

"About nine years ago my daughter, from coffee drinking, was on the verge of nervous prostration," writes a Louisville lady. "She was confined for the most part to her home.

"When she attempted a trip down town she was often brought home in a cab and would be prostrated for days afterwards.

"On the advice of her physician she gave up coffee and tea, drank Postum, and ate Grape-Nuts for breakfast.

"She liked Postum from the very beginning and we soon saw improvement. To-day she is in perfect health, the mother of five children, all of whom are fond of Postum.

"She has recovered, is a member of three charity organizations and a club, holding an office in each. We give Postum and Grape-Nuts the credit for her recovery."

CURE

THE RING AND THE GIRL

By ZELLA ARMSTRONG

(Copyright, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

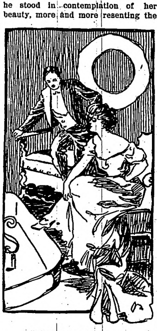
Close to zero the mercury plunged, as though to show the dwellers in Dixie by glorious contrast what an agreeable brand of weather is the sunny South variety. The girl shivered, and reflected whimsically that she was no better equipped for the cold than were the managers of the road over which she was being jerked through sleet and snow toward Chattanooga. The chill of the outer air was only slightly tempered within the coach; the wind whistled and the snow drifted through the rickety casements, while her pretty tailor-made suit seemed the least possible protection from such bitter draughts.

Marston saw the involuntary shiver, and, leaving his seat, he spoke to her in a winning, apologetic way.

"Won't you let me help you into my coat?" he asked, as he held out the garment of which he had divested himself. "I can go into the smoker where there is a red-hot stove. No you can't. There are too many men, and there is too much smoke." He shook his head at her suggestion, as he still held the coat in an authoritative manner.

Her thanks were scarcely audible, but she obeyed him meekly; and as she slipped shivering into the grateful warmth, a glance from the darkest of blue eyes spoke her gratitude. As virtue is sometimes its own reward, so that glance unexpectedly warmed his blood, and made him regret his voluntary exile to the smoker and the stove.

His destination, Dalton, was only a few miles away, and night was almost down when he left the smoke-thick atmosphere to find the other coach deserted, save for the blue-eyed one, who was fast asleep, close-wrapped in his overcoat. Her long lashes curled on cheeks pale with cold despite the relief he had conferred. A moment he stood in contemplation of her beauty, more and more resenting the thought of awakening her to claim his property.



"All!" Echoed the Girl.

"I can't do it!" he said under his breath. "Poor little thing," watching the long lashes on the smooth cheek, "at least she is not suffering now. I can get my heavy coat from my trunk at Dalton—I'll leave this one with her."

A hastily scribbled note on his card explained that he was off at Dalton, but that a few days later would find him in Chattanooga, at the Read house, where she could leave or send the coat. Edging the card into a conveniently gaping pocket, he gathered his belongings reluctantly from his own seat and swung from the platform just as the conductor yelled "All Aboard," and the long train began to rumble past the station.

Throughout his transactions in Dalton Marston felt an impulse of impatient haste toward Chattanooga and his meeting with her. More than once he wished frankly that he had gone on with her.

But after all, what awaited him at the Read was merely a bulky package, the coat. Searching the pocket post office vainly for a note, he suffered what he told himself was an absurdly bitter disappointment. On the heels of his defeat he found—a consolation prize—a ring set with a single pearl, which had evidently slipped from her chilled finger that cold afternoon. He gleaned a further grain of comfort from the fact that the ring was in the right-hand pocket, and "therefore not an engagement ring," as he reasoned. The trinket complicated matters; for in the mail came an envelope, white and square, addressed in an unfamiliar feminine hand, and without doubt from her.

"Thank you so much," were the words on the sheet within. No form of salutation, and no signature!

"Well, I like that!" said Marston, ruefully. "Nice impression I must have made, if she couldn't trust me with her name and whereabouts. If she were not so haughty—or so shy—she could have her ring," he grumbled. "Serves her right," and thereupon he made formal arrangements with himself to immediately dismiss the matter once for all from his mind, and in the same breath fell to wondering whether hauteur or timidity prompted the brevity of the communication and caused her to withhold her name. In memory he studied her face, analyzing the delicate features, recalling the clear, direct, yet half-shy glance of those deep blue eyes, the long childish lashes, and all the tender contours—timidity, of course. He admitted now that he had accredited the little circlet as a possible ambassador, and laughed mirthlessly as he twisted the ring on his own smallest digit, but he decided to carry it always.

Perhaps, in possession of her name, he might, after the manner of men, have forgotten all about her. As it was, he remembered. At first he was always expecting to meet her. Again and again he thought he had a glimpse of her on some crowded street; but just as often the tailor-clad figure eluded him. Once he followed into a florist's shop, determined to bribe the saleswoman, should the shy quarry vanish again; but the tailored maiden with the well-set shoulders chose a shaggy chrysanthemum and fastened it in her furs as she turned a velvety brown glance inquiringly upon his eager gaze. He hastily purchased the violets for an amazed debutante who did not expect them, and threw the gushing note of thanks, when it came, into the fire with an unnecessary scowl, for he remembered suddenly with a pang the simple little "Thank you so much." A girl whose name he did not know was despotically ruling his ideals.

Another winter and a summer had come and passed. Marston still carried the little pearl. When he thought of it at all it was with a feeling half sad, half resentful. Somewhere this girl with the wonderful blue eyes was living her life without him, loving and being loved. If he found her it would be too late.

But he was possessed of a married sister who dragged him out on all possible occasions, and on some which Marston pronounced impossible.

"A tea—a tea!" he fumed. "I'd rather—"

"Yes, I know," she cut in, promptly. "But you must come to this one. I simply will not accept any excuse. It's for Miss Stacy, you know. She is going to marry Jack, and you must meet her."

"Oh," said Marston, plaintively, "I've met Jack—won't that do?"

"Paul, you are a good boy, after all," said little Mrs. Hollister, when he found her in the midst of the crush. "As a reward of merit I'll introduce you to Miss Stacy—oh, you know each other already? Why didn't you tell me?"

The question was reproachful; but other people demanded attention from the hostess; and Paul was gazing into the bluest, bluest eyes in the world—eyes that had haunted his dreams for a year. And she was going to marry Jack! Had he not said it would be too late? He never knew quite what words he uttered, or whether he managed a decent appearance as he took her hand. He noted the long uncurling lashes on the cheek, rosy now—Jack's fiancee!

Later, when the crowd was thinning, he found himself moving with the girl toward the open fireplace. In the comparative isolation he turned, and, taking the little girlish circlet from his pocket, let it rest for a moment regretfully in his palm.

"This is all I have had of you for a year," he said, almost without his own volition.

"All!" echoed the girl, laughing, but a little startled, "it was enough, wasn't it? Why, it's my pearl ring! Where did you get it?" she questioned, the deep blue eyes opening on him in amazement.

"In the right-hand pocket of my coat. You might have given me a chance—to return it. You can wear it now, with your wedding ring and Jack's diamond," he ended, with a touch of bitterness.

"Can—can wear it with—" she faltered, "when—"

"Good-by, Miss Stacy," chorused a group in the hall to a vanishing blue figure; and the girl with the ring in her open hand stirred not.

"Miss Stacy," he whispered, wonderingly. "Then—aren't they calling you?"

"I believe you did not meet my cousin," she answered. "She was summoned to the telephone just as you came in." And then she finished, with a bit of the old demure shyness: "She was the guest of honor."

"What!" he almost shouted. "Then she is engaged to Jack! Not you!"

"No, indeed; that is Constance Stacy. I am only Stacy—" she paused with the first little touch of coquetry he had seen in her. "You do not know my name yet," she whispered.

"No," he answered, slowly; "no, I don't know what it is now,"—the color deepened on her cheek as his hand, unseen, closed over hers—"but I know what it is going to be."

Its Meaning.

"Every occupation affords opportunities of its own for the study of human nature," says a Boston man, "if only there be a little aptitude for putting two and two together.

"I was browsing in a bookshop at the Hub, which does a little business in stationery on the side, when a young woman was asked by the genial old proprietor:

"'And when does the wedding take place, Miss Blank?'

"'The wedding!' exclaimed the young woman, blushing. 'Why, you don't think—'

"'Ah, Miss Blank!' rejoined the old bookseller. 'When a young lady buys a hundred sheets of paper and only 25 envelopes I know there's something in the wind!'"—Harper's.

ILLINOIS TURTLE FARM.

Owner Expects Also to Raise Gold Fish and Guinea Pigs.

A mud turtle farm, which will also be devoted to the raising of mushrooms, gold fish and guinea pigs, is the latest venture of the head of one of the big Western railroads. President H. I. Miller of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois is the man who has hit upon this novel form of diversified farming as a relief from business cares, and he intends incidentally to show the farmers of the grain belt that 200 acres of terrapins and guinea pigs will pay bigger dividends than even 80 cent corn.

The farm is located at Barrington, a suburb of Chicago, and is a tract of rolling, timbered land. Numerous lagoons and roads are being dug at various points on the property, and an elaborate system of irrigating ditches will be established. The guinea pig yards will cover several acres and will be the largest, it is expected, in the country. The mushrooms will be allowed to grow wild wherever they will in marshy spots and damp nooks in the woods.

With the starting of the farm comes to light some interesting facts about a little known industry. It is estimated that over 10,000 turtles are consumed annually in Chicago restaurants. Some of them are terrapin, but the greater part are mud turtles, soft shells and snappers. The demand for mushrooms is enormous.

Crows on a Spree.

Sitting in an Indian garden one day, and irritated beyond measure by the petty larcenies and effrontery of a party of Indian crows, the writer was tempted for once to put them to the proof in this matter. They had taken the bananas from the table in front and the biscuits from the plate at his side with shameless persistency. So a few more biscuits were procured and surreptitiously soaked in rum. It was not long before half a dozen crows came down and cleared the plate as usual.

The spirit worked very promptly upon them, and in ten minutes they were all in a state of semi-intoxication. While a few made futile efforts to reach branches overhead others essayed to perch on the roof ridge of the nearest bungalow and helplessly falling, rolled into the gutters.

Profitable Mussel Gathering.

Owing to the low water the mussel gathering industry on the Indi[illegible] side of the Wabash river west [illegible]wensville has been more pro[illegible] this season than at any period in [illegible] past. Those engaged in the business assert that $30,000 worth of pearls have been taken from the bed of the river this season. This includes a territory only thirty miles long on the Indiana side. Mussel shells are now selling for $13 a ton, and there is a ready demand for them from the manufacturers of pearl buttons. One hundred and sixty tons were shipped from Grayville to an Iowa factory this week.

Tim's First Impression.

Little Tim had never enjoyed a glimpse of the country. All his little life had been passed among the crooked courts of a great city. One day the teacher took him out for a jaunt in the woodlands.

"Tim," she said, impressively, as they stood on the crest of a hill, "isn't that a beautiful sunset! Just look at the great yellow orb surrounded by the white fleecy clouds."

Tim gazed at the beautiful picture for a few moments and then answered:

Rather Strenuous.

"Stop this instant!" exclaimed the old lady as she passed the crowd of bad boys on the lot. "What do you mean by punishing that poor little boy?"

"We ain't punishing him, ma'am," grinned the leader of the gang.

"But you are standing him on his head until he is black in the face."

"Dat ain't nuttin'. We are going to give a show in old man Dooley's back yard and we need a black-face comedian."

Green Room Gibes.

Leading Lady—That dear little Pittsburg millionaire named his auto after me.

Low Comedian—Good head. It reminds me of you every time I look at it.

Leading Lady—Because it is pretty?

Low Comedian—No; because it is so well enameled and does a lot of puffing.

The Proof.

"Calling names don't make any real difference," said the conservative campaigner.

"No," answered the scientist. "If it did those Latin titles we have bestowed on germs would have discouraged them along ago."

Unappreciated Distinction.

The Lion—We shall probably be shot.

The Elephant—Cheer up, it won't be slaughter; we will just be specimens.

A Doubtful Compliment.

"The professor says my bathing suit is rather exiguous."

"Is that a compliment?"

"I don't know. I'm goi[illegible] dictionary now."

LAME BACK PRESCRIPTION

The increased use of "Toris" for lame back and rheumatism is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is an almost infallible cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. The following formula is effective: "To one-half pint of good whiskey add one ounce of Toris Compound and one ounce Syrup Sarsaparilla Compound. Take in tablespoonful doses before each meal and before retiring."

Toris compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Chicago, but it as well as the other ingredients can be had from any good druggist.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE
As further inducement to settlement of the wheat-raising lands of Western Canada, the Canadian Government has increased the area that may be taken by a homesteader to 320 acres—160 free and 160 to be purchased at $3.00 per acre. These lands are in the grain-raising area, where mixed farming is also carried on with unqualified success. A railway will shortly be built to Hudson Bay, bringing the world's markets a thousand miles nearer these wheat-fields, where schools and churches are convenient, climate excellent, railways close to all settlements, and local markets good.

WIDE OPEN TAX

Tax Amendment Was Adopted in 1906 Says Supreme Court.

Way Cleared for the Passage of Tonnage Tax Law by Legislature.

The wide open tax amendment was carried by popular vote in this state in 1906 and is now a law, according to a ruling of the state supreme court. The state canvassing board, which held that the amendment was adopted, is sustained. The district court of St. Louis county, which held that the amendment had not passed, is reversed and the state tax commission now will have authority to impose a gross earnings tax on iron ore if it sees fit to do so.

It was for this decision that Governor Johnson and the state legislature had been waiting before giving serious consideration to gross earnings tax laws on the iron ore of the state.

At the same time the ruling of the district court that the good roads amendment was adopted will stand, so that both amendments may now be considered law.

By deciding that the wide open tax amendment had been adopted the court opened the way for a number of new taxation bills, the most prominent of which is the tonnage tax, which will be strongly urged at the present session of the legislature. The decision also strengthens the position of the tax commission and removes the doubt as to the constitutionality of the mortgage registry tax.

This amendment, which is now declared to have been adopted in November, 1906, was also voted on last fall and was lost. It grants to the legislature power to impose taxes of any sort so long as equality in the several classes is maintained, although the old exemptions of public institutions, church property and cemeteries are not disturbed.

COSTS $19 PER TO BE GOVERNED

Total Annual Cost of Government in Minnesota is $37,000,000.

State Tax Commission Recommends Tonnage Tax and Other Changes.

It costs every man, woman and child in Minnesota $18.92 to be governed, according to the figures gathered by the state tax commission.

Statistics on this phase of government have never been collected and published before in the state, but the tax commission in its annual report, which will be out in a few days, shows that the money expended for the government in the state during 1908 reaches the altitudinous proportions of $37,000,000. This includes the expenditures of all towns, villages, cities, counties and the state government for all purposes during the year. When the state's share of the federal expenditures is added, the cost for this state amounts to $50,000,000.

The report of the commission is in the hands of the printer, but a preliminary report has been given to the legislature. The commission summarizes its recommendations as follows: "The whole attitude of the commission in the matter of recommendations is to proceed in a careful, orderly manner to the modification of the law, and to that end they have made recommendations for a county assessor system, some change in the taxation of corporations, and, under the new amendment, the special taxation of credits, the extension of the gross earnings tax principle, and the enactment of a tonnage tax law."

A FEW TESTIMONIALS

Lincoln. Minn., Dec. 10, 1906
Dr. A. J. Klimek,
Dear Sir:

I promised you that I would write you in two weeks from the time I war there but have neglected it. I am getting along fine. I feel very grateful to you for what you did for me. If I can do you a service by recommending you to my friends I will do so with the greatest pleasure. I will close by wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Dear Sir:

Pardon me for not answering your letter in which you inquired how I am getting along. I am happy to say that since I have received the treatment with the Repression glasses last year in August. I am enjoying perfect health and have not had a single spell of the dreadful dizzy fainting caused from brain irritation.

My son is getting along fine. He was cured almost immediately. I am well pleased with the treatment regardless of the price. the good I received is many times worth the cost of treatment.

Wishing you great success with your new treatment, I remain,

Yours truly,

NEW TELEPHONE LINE

Hans Hommi of Erie was in town this morning and informed THE GAZETTE that the farmers north of the Red Lake river are planning the organization of a company for the construction of a rural phone line. The proposed line, if constructed, will extend from Rainier to Thief River Falls and will be thirty miles long. The people of Highlanding, Kratka, Anton, Erie and other localities will be given phone service.

On Saturday of next week meetings will be held at the various localities to be benefited by the construction of the line and these meetings are to select men to attend a general meeting to be held later. It is planned to form a stock company and incorporate.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS

Wednesday, Jan. 6.

Senate—Message received from the president in response to resolution of inquiry asking why steel trust was not prosecuted for absorbing Tennessee Coal and Iron company.

House—Roosevelt's African trip discussed in connection with report that Major Edgar O. Hearns of the army was to accompany the president and that in order to do so he had been put on the retired list with increased rank.

Thursday, Jan. 7.

Senate—Mr. Culberson (Tex.) replied to president's message denying information regarding lack of prosecution of steel trust, declaring the latter's action "arbitrary and lawless."

Friday, Jan. 8.

Senate—Mr. Culberson's resolution instructing the committee on judiciary to report whether the president had authority to permit the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the United States Steel corporation was adopted. Bill providing for taking of thirteenth census passed.

House—Entire day devoted to criticism of president's civil service messages, which were laid on the table.

Saturday, Jan. 9.

House—Over five hundred private pension bills passed.

NIGHT RIDERS GUILTY

Six Convicted of Murder in the First Degree.

Union City, Tenn., Jan. 8.—With a verdict of guilty in varying degree, the jury in the night rider trials reported. The twelve men found Garret Johnson, Tid Burton, Roy Ranson, Fred Pinion, Arthur Cloar and Sam Applewhite guilty of murder in the first degree, with mitigating circumstances, and Bud Morris and Bob Huffman, the other defendants, guilty of murder in the second degree, and fixed their punishment at twenty years in the penitentiary. The punishment of the six first named defendants was left to the court, and may be death or life imprisonment. The defense filed a motion for a new trial, which was set for hearing Saturday and which will be overruled, as indicated by the court, when sentence will be pronounced.

The court sentenced the first six named defendants to death.

PITCHFORK VS. BIG STICK

Senator Tillman Replies to President's Charges.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Senator Tillman replied to charges made against him by the president of having exerted his official influence as a senator and for his own benefit to bring suit against railroads of the Northwest in order that he might be able to purchase land held by the Southern Oregon company and granted to the state of Oregon in 1868 for the construction of a military road. The galleries and floor of the senate were crowded when the senator arose to speak.

Senator Tillman's speech was read from manuscript and was a characteristic mixture of argument and invective. He admitted the genuineness of letters and telegrams quoted by the president, but emphatically denied that he was guilty of any wrongdoing.

NO MONEY FOR WATERWAYS

House Committee Opposed to Action at This Session.

Washington, Jan. 11.—It is practically certain that the house committee on rivers and harbors will report no general bill providing appropriations for waterway improvements. A measure calling for an expenditure of probably not more than $10,000,000 will, it is believed, be reported to the house, this money to be used for surveys, maintenance and emergencies. The committee will meet again Saturday in an effort to reach a definite conclusion as to rivers and harbors legislation.

THE TURNER ART COLLECTION

Two Hundred Beautiful Reproductions of Masterpieces Will be Shown.

At the Court House Thursday, Friday and Saturday Next Week.

Our citizens are to enjoy during the three days of next week one of the privileges usually limited to cities of much greater population, a real Art Exhibit. In fact, the collection which is to be on exhibition at the Red Lake county court house has been shown and well received in some of the best cities of ourand. Not the least is St. Paul, for the Dispatch of that city said of the Turner Collection, "The art exhibit now in progress at the Rice Building, opposite the Ryan, continues to attract many visitors." The Minneapolis Journal, speaking of the exhibit, said, "Crowds of art-lovers thronged the floors and admired the artistic reproductions of the world's masterpieces. There can be nothing but praise for the works shown."

There are in the collection 200 reproductions ranging in size from two to eighteen square feet. Someare in Turner Brown, others in black, while many are as near the original colors as modern printers' art can make them,—and that's pretty close. The total amount of picture surface is about 1600 square feet.

And why is the collection brought to Red Lake Falls? Because there are some rather bare spots on the walls of the rooms in our public school buildings, and it is hoped that, through the means of this exhibit, funds may be raised to purchase the pictures necessary to cover these bare spots. And the management tells us that this can be done by making a small admission charge. The cost to adults will be fifteen cents for a single admission and fifty cents for a season tickets. Season tickets are sold because, as with every exhibit of this kind, one brief glance at the exhibit can not do it justice. These season tickets will not be transferable. Pupils of the public schools are offering tickets for sale.

The collection will be open to the public each afternoon and evening of Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week.

HOUSE BURNED FRIDAY

Property Owned by Edward Bedard—Loss Not Great—Covered by Insurance.

At three o'clock last Friday morning fire was discovered in the house owned by Edward Bedard and located about a block and a half west of the court house. The house was occupied by George Maquin and family. The fire was discovered by Mr. Maquin, but he does not know how it originated. He gave the alarm and then he and his family removed their household goods. They saved practically all of their goods.

By the time the firemen could get water to the house, the fire had made such headway that nothing could be done to save the building, though the boys exercised a little to keep warm. It was a very cold night and there were some frosted noses and toeses.

The house was insured for $700.00 and the loss is probably not much more than that amount.

The Need of Fresh Air.

Surely we need a fresh air campaign in this country as much as we can possibly need anything. We need a truer understanding of the marvelous benefits of fresh air and also of the benefits to be derived from the use of a good malt tonic such as golden grain belt beer. A glass at mealtime and before retiring will aid digestion and induce sound, refreshing sleep. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Creamery Meeting.

The Emardville Creamery association had its annual meeting of stockholders here on Monday last and elected officers for the ensuing year as follows:

President, A. J. Hemstad; Vice-president, Oscar Anderson; Secretary and Treasurer, P. S. Medehill; Directors, Oscar Anderson, John Froiland, Olaf Tande, Anton Lee, A. J. Hemstad.

The annual report of the treasurer showed that the total receipts of the creamery for the year past amounted to some over $27,000 which was an increase of about 17 per centover the preceding year. The association is in fine shape and it is expected that the output for the coming year will show a much larger percentage of incease than did the past year.—Plummer Pioneer.

St. Paul Man Killed by Cars.

Otto Becker of St. Paul, a clerk in the office of the superintendent of the Northern Pacific roundhouse in the Mississippi street yards, was run down and killed in the yards. His body was horribly mutilated by [illegible] cars which passed over it.

The County Printing.

There is an axiom that it pays to be fair, honest and truthful. This applies most pertinently to newspapers, because the newspapers are relied upon by the general public to give the facts regarding public affairs, and to be honest in their criticisim of public measures and public officials.

These prefatory remarks are called forth by an editorial in last week's Thief River News, criticizing the board of commissioners, and particularly Commissioner Lindquist, for the crime of accepting the GAZETTE bid for doing the county printing. Among other insinuations we find that "a true explanation, however, might throw some light upon the subject of how Commissioner Lindquist is able to build large new barns and houses upon his farm." If the News had really desired to tell the truth or observe the ordinary decencies of the profession it would have told its readers that Commissioner Lindquist has not built any "large new barns and houses" since he became commissioner, and if he has ever taken a dishonest penny there has never been the slightest evidence brought forth. On the contrary, it might be shown that he has refused certain contributions proferred by friends of the News.

The prattle of the News about "inferior service" and "lowest bid" is childish. The GAZETTE bid contemplates furnishing supplements to the St. Hilaire Spectator, and while the bid does not say so, it was understood by the commissioners that supplements would be furnished the Thief River Press, thus having all of the important publications made in three of the [illegible] papers of the county having [illegible] legitimate subscription list.

The differance in the bids of the GAZETTE and News is insignificant, as compared with the better service the former affords. The entire printing bill under the GAZETTE's contract cannot exceed $700. Under the News bid it would have been about $600, so the alleged $500 saving in the event the News had been given the job is as much of a myth as are Bro. Eastman's usual extragant claims.

The people of the county are evidently satisfied with a saving of 50 per cent. on the county printing, especially in view of the service given. There will hardly be any claim on the part of the News or any person qualified to speak to the question that the GAZETTE will get rich on the county printing—not this year.

Big County Ditch.

After several months of waiting and after having delay until the settlers passed resolutions requiring action to be taken, the surveyors for the big drainage ditch mapped out to pass east and west through Marshall county and emptying into the Thief river near Thorwick, have appeared on the scene and have begun operations.

This is one of the biggest drainage propositions yet undertaken by a Minnesota county and is expected to result in untold good to the district through which it is to pass. The ditch will be 40 miles in length, including laterals, will pass through the towns of Esplee, Moylan, Grand Plain and Agdar, and will cost close to $50,000, it is estimated. The ditching work is to be done next summer.—Thief River Press.

Remembering his Friends.

Treasurer Tandberg is remembering his friends with neatly printed souvenir postcards. Mr. Tandberg has mailed more than two thousand of the cards, and they go to the tax payers [illegible] county informing them of the amount of their taxes now due.

The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub, give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its marvelous curative properties. Tight, tickling, or distressing coughs, quickly yield to the healing, soothing action of this splendid prescription—Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so safe and good for children, as well. CAVENY COMPANY NEXT WEDNESDAY

Next Number of Entertainment Course to be Given Next Week.

Chalk Talker and Soloist Will Give Delightful Entertainment.

The next number of the lecture course is to be given at the Metropolitan opera house next Wednesday evening, January 27. It is to be given by the Caveny company. The members of the company are J. Frahklin Caveny, chalk talker, and Marie M. Caveny, soloist. Mr. Caveny has the reputation of being one of the cleverest entertainers in the country. Press notice speak very flatteringly of his work. Mr. Caveny is a rapid fire talker as well as cartoonist. The Springfield (Mass.) Republican says his was "splendid oratory. His work was a revelation." The Chicago Tribune says: "Cavney's chalk talk was grand. His delineation is perfect. He is a genius." The Cincinnati Inquirer said: "His caricatures were loudly applauded."

It is not often that an entertainer of Mr. Cavney's ability comes to a city no larger than Red Lake Falls.

Kicked by His Horse.

On Tuesduy evening Charley Olson, storekeeper at Rudell, drove in from home after a load of merchandise. When he was unhitching his team one of the horses kicked and struck him on the knee. He bent over to rub the limb with his hand when the horse kicked again and struck him in the head and cut an ugly gash. He hastened to Dr. Clark's office and it was found necessary to take several stiches in the wound. Mr. Olson remained in town until next morning when he left for home feeling better than might have been expected. He might easily have been killed instead of sustaining a compaeatively slight injury.—Plummer Pioneer.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN EPITOME

Important Events at Home and on Foreign Shores Briefly Told.

WASHINGTON.

Secretay Root has signed arbitration treaties with Ecuador, Bolivia and Haiti.

Dr. W. H. Wiley of the bureau of chemistry, department of agriculture, declares that rumors that he is to resign and that there is friction between President Roosevelt and himself are entirely without foundation.

President Roosevelt sent to congress a message recommending legislation to give the interstate commerce commission powers to compel witnesses to answer questions. This is the result of the supreme court decision in the Harriman case.

Senator Cullom's amendment to the diplomatic and consular bill appropriating $50,000 for the participation of the United States in the international prison congress, to be held in Washington in 1910, was reported favorably to the senate.

The supreme court dismissed the case of Oscar Reid, one of the negro soldiers summarily discharged by the president on account of the Brownsville riot, holding that the amount involved was not sufficient to justify the bringing of the case to the supreme court.

Hon. Eugene D. Saunders, judge of the United States circuit court for the Eastern district of Louisiana, sent in his resignation to the president. He states his reason for leaving the bench is his desire to re-engage in the practice of law. He was appointed two years ago.

To provide a means for selecting the successor to a president-elect in the event of his death before March 4. Representative Burke has introduced a resolution to amend the constitution so as to give congress the power to determine how the successor in that event should be chosen.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT.

William J. Bryan will visit Florida early in February. The exact date has not been fixed. He may also visit Cuba.

Alonzo Erastus Horton, founder of the present San Diego, Cal., and its oldest inhabitant, is dead, aged eighty-five years.

The president has reappointed Rear Admiral N. E. Mas[illegible] chief of the bureau of ordnance, navy department, for a term of four years.

Dr. E. C. Neyman is dead at Saltillo, Ind., aged a hundred years and ten months. The doctor insisted that he was a son of Marshal Michel Ney of France.

President Roosevelt has nominated Col. George H. Torney to be surgeon general of the army. Col. Torney is now stationed at the general hospital at San Francisco.

Sister Louisa Mary of Boston, for thirty years mother superior of the Episcopal order of Saint Margareta Sisters in the United States and Canada, died in Montreal, aged eighty-five years.

Aaron Tiffany Bates, ninety-five years old, who, it is said, once turned down John D. Rockefeller when the present-day multimillionaire wanted to borrow $4,000 to start his little oil business in Cleveland, is dead in Cincinnati.

Philip Brushart, said to be the oldest man in the State of Michigan, died at his home in Burlington, aged 104 years. His father, who fought in the battle of Waterloo, lived to be over a hundred years old, and he had seven uncles who lived beyond the century mark.

SINS AND SINNERS.

Fred Dircks is dead at Little Rock, Iowa, as the result of a blow on the head, received during a drunken quarrel with Alfred Zart of Chicago. Zart is in jail.

Hah Hong, a Chinaman, was hanged at MacLeod, Alberta, by Radcliffe, Canada's official hangman. The Chinaman went to the gallows with the customary racial stoicism.

While members of the family were at dinner porch climbers entered the home of Harry B. Cow, president of the Rand-McNally company of Chicago, and escaped with $4,200 worth of diamonds and jewelry.

Two masked highwaymen who held up twenty-five men near Tulsa, Okla., were captured by a posse of officers and landed in jail. The robbers proved to be Hershell Wolfe and Charles Harbaugh, young men of Tulsa.

George Groen lies dead at his farm home near Ashton, Iowa, Ernest Groen, who is accused of murdering his father in a quarrel, is lodged in jail at Sibley. The son says his father attacked him with an iron plow lever and that he shot in self-defense.

Robbers forced an entrance to the First National bank at Melvin, Iowa. They blew off the outer door of the safe but were unable to blast the inner door and so got no money. They escaped on a handcar, which they left near Hartley. The building was partially wrecked.

FOREIGN.

The designation of Washington as the place of meeting of the next Pan-American scientific congress gives general satisfaction in Chile.

Four men were killed and three wounded in an encounter between Polish socialists and Nationalists at Warsaw. The police did not interfere.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra certainly will visit Emperor William at Berlin in February and probably will be tendered an elaborate state reception.

Yellow fever has broken out in Santiago province, Cuba. Ten cases of the dreaded plague were reported Saturday. It is not believed, however, that an epidemic will result.

The exports from Great Britain to the United States in 1908 amounted to $11,675,000, as compared with $17,320,000 in 1907. The decline is principally in manufactured textiles.

The prohibition by the police, in deference to Hindu feelings, of Mohammedan sacrifices of cows, led to serious riots at Tittegun, just outside Calcutta. Troops were summoned from Barrack Pur to quell the trouble and were compelled to fire upon the rioters, several of whom were killed and sixty seriously injured. Two hundred arrests were made.

The military court at Yekaterinoslav, Russia, pronounced forty-one death sentences, of which nine were for recent crimes. Thirty-two of the condemned men were strikers in the railroad troubles of October, 1905. In addition to the death sentences, twelve strikers were condemned to penal servitude for life, forty-eight to lesser terms of exile and thirty-nine were acquitted.

ACCIDENTAL HAPPENINGS.

John Reed and Jesse Reynolds were killed when the boiler of a sawmill at the Shenango Limestone company's quarries at Newcastle, Pa., exploded.

The large warehouse of Codville & Co., grocers, at Brandon, Man., was gutted by fire. Loss, $25,000 on building and $75,000 on stock.

Guests of the Central hotel at Grayling, Mich., had a narrow escape from death when the hotel was destroyed by fire. The loss is about $8,000.

Four men lost their lives and a number of others had narrow escapes when the steamer Samuel collided with a raft during a heavy fog on Green river, at Rockport, Ky.

Seven persons were injured, three seriously, when a crowded auto early crashed into and demolished another machine in Lincoln Park, Chicago. All the victims are wealthy.

Fred P Lowe, nineteen years old, was dangerously injured at Kansas City when he was struck by a motor car owned by Walter S. Dickey, chairman of the Republican state committee of Missouri.

The plant of the Puget Sound Mills and Timber company at Bellingham, Wash., probably the largest shingle mill in the world, burned. Loss, $415,000. W. L. Cleveland, a saw filer, was burned to death.

The Transcontinental Express of the Canadian Pacific went into a ditch at Gull Lake, near Medicine Hat, Sask. The baggage and colonist cars were ditched, but the locomotive stayed on the rails. Two people were injured.

A spectacular fire at the stock yards in Chicago destroyed a large part of the fertilizing plant of Darling & Co., and after burning large stores of chemicals, causing explosions and injuring a number of firemen by falling walls, caused a total loss of $500,000.

GENERAL.

The official call for a national tariff convention, to be held in Indianapolis on Feb. 16, 17 and 18, has been sent out.

Gertrude Atherton, the California novelist, announces that she will soon issue a novel written around the reign of Ludwig, mad king of Bavaria.

James J. Corbett, formerly heavyweight champion, has announced his willingness to meet Jack Johnson if it were necessary to bring the championship back to the white man.

State wide prohibition laws went into effect last week in three Southern states, North Carolina, Mississippi, and Alabama. Georgia is the only other state wherein statutory prohibition exists, the law having been in operation one year.

W. J. Bryan was last week initiated as a member of Lincoln Aerie 147, Fraternal Order of Eagles. Mr. Bryan was hardly a novice in the initiation, being a member of nearly a dozen secret orders, and he came through the ordeal happily.

George Washington Hough, professor of astronomy at Northwestern university and director of the Dearborn observatory, died suddenly at his home in Chicago. Prof. Hough, who was seventy-two years of age was found dead in his bed, having retired in apparently good health. Prof. Hough was one of the world's greatest astronomers.

Prof. Thomas C. Chamberlain of the University of Chicago and his son, Dr. Roland Chamberlain, have left Chicago for an investigation of economic and educational conditions in China, as well as the study of the geology of that country.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe road annonces that it will operate the entire main line from Chicago to the Pacific coast by telephone instead of telegraph. The entire cost will be about $2,000,000, but the company believes it will pay and insure greater

WANTS HALF A MILLION.

State Historical Society Will Appeal to Legislature for New Building.

The Minnesota State Historical society will ask the present legislature for $500,000 to be used for the purchase of a site and the erection of a building for housing their records and exhibits of the society.

This important decision was made at a meeting of the society held at the old capitol, in St. Paul, at which Cass Gilbert, architect for the new state capitol, was the chief speaker. Mr. Gilbert explained the advantages of grouping the state building on Capitol hill, using as illustrations the buildings that are provided in Wisconsin and Iowa for the historical societies. He spoke at some length on the approaches according to the plans that are now being developed.

At the conclusion of the address by Mr. Gilbert the following members were called upon for remarks. State Auditor Samuel G. Iverson, Channing Seabury, former chairman of the state capitol commission; Gen. William G. Le Duc of Hastings, Prof. Robert Koehler, president of the State Art society, and Mrs. Winifred M. Deming and Mrs. Irene C. Buell of the Daughters of the Revolution. The committee to be named by President Langford of the historical society to prepare the bill asking for the appropriation will be composed of the councilmen of the society.

Edward B. Young of St. Paul was elected a member of the executive council, the vacancy having been caused by the death of J. B. Cheney. Two new members were admitted, Prof. Samuel B. Green of the state agricultural school and Jarvis W. Mason, 544 Wabasha street, St. Paul.

FAIR OFFICERS ELECTED.

Mower County Agricultural Society Has All New Officials.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Mower County Agricultural society took place Tuesday, and an entire new set of officers and board of directors were chosen. President, Charles L. Rice; treasurer, J. E. Crippen. Board of directors, William Christie, Austin; Frank Hambrecht, Le Roy; Harry Rutheford, Austin; John Rahilly, Dexter; Dr. W. F. Leffingwell, Austin; John Heimer, Adams; L. W. Decker, Austin; August Smith, Red Rock; W. D. Bassler, Austin. Delegates to the State Agricultural society, H. W. Lightly, W. C. Harrabin.

The retiring president, John J. Furlong, has been at the head of the association for over a quarter of a century. Several of the directors have been members of the board for fifteen years.

TAB COMMISSION REPORTS.

State's Income, Exclusive of That Realized From Gross Earnings, Was Twenty-seven Millions.

Preliminary sheets of the biennial report of the state tax commission, which is being prepared for the two branches of the legislature, have been given out. The document is a voluminous affair, and contains much valuable information.

From its taxable property the state for 1907 secured over $27,000,000. This was exclusive of gross earnings and other revenue-producing sources. In 170 the amount realized was less than $2,50,000.

A county assessor system is recommended by the board in place of the township assessor, of which the state has now employed nearly 2,600. In the opinion of the board eighty-five officials could do the work better.

IOWA COLONISTS FOR RANGES.

Sixty Families Buy Lands in Country South of Hibbing.

A party of five families from near Cedar Rapids, Iowa, arrived last week at Stewart, twelve miles south of Hibbing, on the Great Northern, where they will settle permanently and engage in farming and dairying. They brought their household goods and farming effects with them.

The party comprised the advance members of a colony of about sixty families who will settle near Stewart. They state that the region is ideal for dairying and the colony expects to establish a creamery and devote much attention to dairying.

The colony will be tributary to Hibbing commercially and will be another argument in favor of the establishment of the county experiment farm in Hibbing.

BONDS REDEEMED.

State Has Almost Cleared Up Its Debt.

C. C. Dinehart, state treasurer, has received from the state auditor a check for $62,000, representing the redemption of Minnesota funding bonds. The original issue of funding bonds was $1,659,000, and the last of the bonds will be taken up Jan. 1, 1910. The state treasurer also received today $12,058.02 from the state prison swine fund.

FOOTBALL PAYS AT MINNESOTA.

Gopher Athletic Board Takes In $25,816.08 During Fall Season.

Net football receipts at the University of Minnesota totaled $26,103.48 for the season of 1908, as compared with $25,816.08 for the preceding year. These amounts do not take into consideration the expenses during the season, but are the share of the gopher institution of all the gate receipts at games in which Minnesota participated.

The receipts at games played on Northrop field were $36,325.27, of which one-half went to the opposing teams. Minnesota's share, amounting to $18,162.63, is added to half of the receipts of the Chicago game, which was played at Chicago. Last year the total receipts at the home games were $48,607.26, and Minnesota's share from the Wisconsin game, which was the only contest played away from home, was $1,512.45.

The receipts during 1908 were as follows: Lawrence, $1,122.50; Ames, $2,566.81; Nebraska, $6,840.32; Wisconsin, $13,798.31; Carlisle, $11,997.33. One-half of each sum went to the opposing team. Minnesota's share from the Chicago game was $7,940.85.

The athletic board now has a balance of about $30,000, as compared with $22,000 last year at the same time. With the close of the school year in June the board will have a balance of $20,000 or more. This is due to the act that the board is spending $6,000 as its share of the cost of the new natatorium and running track, which will shortly befinished.

PUSHES TERMINAL WORK.

First Train to Duluth Station Not Expected Till August.

As fast as 300 men working all day and 100 working all night can accomplish it, the tunnel, open cut and concrete work on the Wisconsin Central's Duluth terminal are being rushed to completion. The instructions to the contractors from the railroad officials are to "push" the work, and this is being done. No more men than are employed can be worked to advantage at the present time.

When the tunnel is put through and the standard gauge tracks are laid in it as far east as Eighth avenue west. work will proceed much faster.

Those in charge of the work of construction in Duluth believe the rails will be laid so that it will be possible to run a train to the Duluth station site by the 1st of August.

MAKE GUARD STRONGER.

Adjt. Gen. Wood Recommends Material Improvements.

Another assistant adjutant general, a new state arsenal appropriation for armories for militia companies and a boat house at Duluth for the boats of the naval militia are among the recommendations of Adjt. Gen. Fred B. Wood in his annual report to the governor.

He desires the legislature to appropriate money to the militia companies of the state for the maintenance of armories. Many of the companies own their own armories, but have no means of keeping up the buildings, which in many cases are mortgaged. A little assistance from the state treasury would help greatly.

ACCIDENTS WITH KEROSENE.

Five people were burned to death and twenty-seven others badly injured by accidents connected with kerosene and gasoline, according to the biennial report just issued by W. E. McEwen, state oil inspector.

Mr. McEwen's invesetigations extend over only a few months, but during that time he investigated 102 fires, resulting from the use of illuminating oils, and found that property valued at $536,980 had been endangered and an actual property loss of $36,442 suffered. In addition to those killed, eight were terribly burned and eighteen were less seriously injured.

All but three of the people injured were women and children.

MAKES HIS LAST REPORT.

W. W. McEwen, state oil inspector, has issued his report, covering the inspection for December. It was the last monthly report he will make in his capacity as oil inspector, provided the state confirms his appointment as state labor commissioner.

The report shows that 29,350 barrels of oil were inspected last month, the receipts aggregating $4,402.50. There were 2,132 barrels of oil shipped out of the state, which netted the state $319.80 in inspection fees.

In December, 1907, there were 24,671 barrels inspected, the gross receipts being $3,700.65.

STATE REDEEMS BONDS.

Funding Tax Amounting to $62,030 Applied on Debt Which Soon Will Be Repaid.

The original issue of Minnesota refunding bonds, amounting to $1,659,000, was further decreased, when the state treasurer received a check for $62,080.27, representing the funding tax.

Less than $190,000 remains to be redeemed, and it is said that all the bonds will be taken up by this time next year.

PLAN FOR TROLLEY ON RANGE.

Mining Towns Stand Ready to Renew Expired Franchises.

There seems the strongest of probabilities that the near future will see actual operations begun on the long-discussed electric railway to connect the towns along the range.

Capitalists have been at work on the scheme over two years, and at various times their labors have all but come to a head, but each time something has delayed operatoins.

Two companies are interested, one with its headquarters at Virginia and Biwabik, the eastern end of the proposed line known as the Mesaba Rapid Transit company, in which the Lowry interests are said to have part, and the other the Northern Traction company, with headquarters at Hibbing.

The two companies are rivals, as both propose ultimately to extend their tracks into the territory covered by the other.

Over a year ago the Mesaba Rapid Transit company obtained franchises from the towns of Virginia, Biwabik, Aurora and McKinley. Eveleth, however, held up operations by refusing to grant a franchise. Eveleth is the central point between the towns, and it was necessary to obtain a franchise from it. Before it could be secured the financial trouble last year came and those interested thought best to hold operations for a while.

The several franchises were granted on condition that operations should begin within a year. This was not done and, of course, legally the franchises have run out, but all the towns are likely to renew them if a line is assured to them, and Eveleth also is said now to be willing to grant rights under any reasonable conditions.

The plans of the second company include the building of a line about Hibbing to Chisholm and Buhl. If this pays the line will be extended to Virginia. The company has secured a franchise along the county roads as far as Virginia and last year it graded three miles of the proposed line. Those on the inside say that operations are to begin again early in February.

This line proposes to circle the village of Hibbing about a mile to the south, taking in the various locations, and then run on to Chisholm.

STATE TO BE ASKED TO HELP.

Bridge Building Problem Not Yet Fully Solved at Mankato.

Blue Earth county and the city of Mankato have entered into a contract with the Hennepin Bridge company of Minneapolis to build the second bridge across the Minnesota river at Mankato for $23,900. The contract is contingent upon the legislature changing the site and appropriating a little more money.

Two years ago it appropriated $6,000, and since then the city of Mankato and county of Blue Earth have each voted $6,000, and the county of Nicollet $2,000. This leaves $3,900 to be raised, which it is hoped to secure from the legislature, because the floods last June placed an unexpected burden of $40,000 on the taxpayers of the city. The bridge is badly needed and will be 343 feet long, of two spans and will be completed by Aug. 1.

NO HOUSEWORK FOR WHITEMEN.

"White men are not intended to do housework," said Miss H. A. Clinton, superintendent of the woman's department of the St. Paul branch of the state free employment bureau.

"I have places for ever so many girls," she continued, "but the girls don't come."

When it was suggested that some of the men who are unable to find work be substituted for the girls who don't put in an appearance, Miss Clinton said that if they were Japs she might send them out, but that housework isn't a white man's job.

"If the men begin to take the women's places in the kitchen," she said, "more girls will be driven to the factories."

NOTARIES CAN RESIGN.

Lawyers who wish to lay down their notarial commissions may be able to do so by simply tendering their resignations to the governor.

On account of the anti-pass law, many lawyers have been willing to resign their commissions in order to keep their pass privileges, obtained through connection with railroads. The point was raised whether on account of the commissioners having a term of ten years to run, they could be canceled before the expiration of the period. Attorney General Simpson has given an opinion in the affirmative on this question.

BEES NOT AFFECTIONATE.

That the confidence of a bee cannot be won was the conclusion reached by the Minnesota Beekeepers' association, which held a little auxiliary meeting of their own in the mayor's reception room in Minneapolis, while more comprehensive state farm interests were getting under way down stairs.

Affection, or even gratitude, they determined, were not parts of the bee's makeup.

Judge F. M. Crosby of the First judicial district completed an enviable and unparalleled record last week, having served continuously thirty-seven years on the bench. Jan. 1 he entered upon a new term of six years, seemingly with as much vigor as ever. Although past three score and ten, he is still hale and hearty.

While on the way to church in Minneapolis Ernest A. Arnie Evans, eleven years old, is dead at St. Paul, as a result of burns sustained in a very mysterious manner. The child had been left alone in the house by the parents, who, on their return a few hours later, found him lying in bed burned to a crisp. A search of the house failed to reveal any evidence of a fire which might have been accidentally started by the lad.

MIXING OF SOLUBLE OILS FOR SPRAYING

The lime-sulphur spray is one of our most important insecticides, and is destined to play a prominent part in the horticulture of the future. It is eminently satisfactory for use against the San Jose scale and some other insects; and a number of fungous diseases, such as peach leaf curl, and peach blight. It also aids in a general way in clearing up and improving the condition of the trees. Its good points are sufficient to outweigh any objections to its use for the above purposes, except in special cases.

Every one is familiar with the fact that oil does not readily mix with water. There are processes, however, by which an emulsion may be made with the oils, and this emulsion will mix with water at almost any desired strength. Some patented brands of emulsions have been on the market several years, and have gained wide publicity as substitutes for lime-sulphur. One of the main objections to these prepared oils is their cost. Prof. Penny of the Delaware experiment station, published recently a method of preparing the oils for spraying purposes, the products of which he termed "Home-made Miscible Oils." These preparations appeared to be so promising that we undertook, during the spring of 1908, to test some of his formula. They are less trouble to prepare than lime-sulphur, though the method is a little more complicated from the fact that more materials enter into their preparation. By carefully following directions, however, no trouble should be experienced. The cost is a little greater than that of lime-sulphur.

There are three distinct processes in the preparation of the home-made soluble oils:

1st. Making the "soap solution."

2d. Adding the required amount of oils and water to make the soluble oil.

3d. Diluting the soluble oil with water to make the emulsion ready for applying to the trees.

Formula for the Soap Solution.

	Gallons.
Menhaden oil	5
Carbolic acid (liquid, crude, straw color, 100 per cent. pure)	4
	Pounds.
Caustic potash	7½
	Gallons.

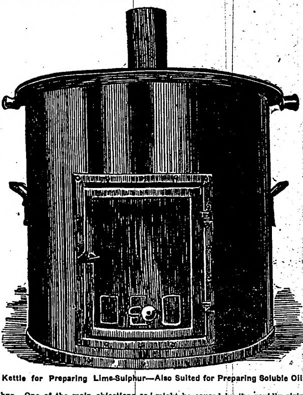
Heat to 290 or 300 degrees Fahrenheit, and add the following quantities of kerosene (refined) and water, while it is still hot:

Kerosene	7
Water	11

This will cost about 17 to 21 cents per gallon.

Do not forget that this mixture is highly inflammable while hot, and that disagreeable odors are given off from it. For these reasons it is well to conduct the operations out of doors, or under an open shed roof. Heat does not readily escape from a mixture of this consistency, and very little heat is required to raise the temperature to the proper point. About three-quarters of an hour is sufficient to make up one lot.

The Menhaden oil, carbolic acid, and caustic potash should be put into the kettle before it gets hot. The mixture should then be stirred for a short time, to prevent the potash from caking to the bottom of the kettle, after which the kettle should be covered. The kettle should not be more than half full, for when foaming begins, at about 260 degrees, it may overflow. Keep the fire well under control, and raise the temperature gradually from this point even reducing the fire, if necessary, to prevent a rapid rise in temperature. At 290 to 300 degrees, either remove the material quickly, and put into a barrel before adding the oil and water, or throw earth on the fire to almost extinguish it. The oil must be added while the mixture is hot, but should then be allowed to cool down to about 212 degrees before the water is added, to prevent any slight explosion that might be caused by the rapidly rising steam.



Kettle for Preparing Lime-Sulphur—Also Suited for Preparing Soluble Oils.

The whole should then be stirred, so as to mix it thoroughly, after which it should form a somewhat ropy soap mixture, that does not separate or deteriorate upon standing. It will evaporate to some extent, if left open, hence a cover should be placed over the barrel. A sample, left open in a warm room in a 500 c. c. graduate, lost about 15 per cent. of its bulk in a month's time.

No heat is required after the soap solution is prepared. It may be mixed with the oils even at a freezing temperature, but mixes better when moderately warm, and much less stirring is then necessary to bring the mass to a good soluble oil. The oils should be kept in a moderately warm room in cold weather, so they will mix better.

The formulae we have tested are given below. It will be necessary to reduce the quantities by one-third or one-half in formulae 1 and 2, if the mixing is to be done in a 50-gallon barrel.

Formula No. 1.

	Gallons
Soap solution	9
Crude oil	20
Rosin oil	5
Water	7½

Cost, about 11½ cents per gallon.
Contains about 69 4-5 per cent. of oil.

Formula No. 2.

	Gallons.
Soap solution	9
Crude oil	20
Paraffin oil	10
Rosin oil	6
Water	6¼

Cost, about 12 4-5 cents per gallon.
Contains about 78 per cent. of oil.

Formula No. 3.

	Gallons.
Soap solution	9
Paraffin oil	40
Rosin oil	6
Water	1¼

Cost, about 16¼ cents per gallon.
Contains about 88 9-10 per cent. of oil.

Keep distinctly in mind the fact that there are three separate steps in this process: 1st, preparation of the soap solution; 2d, making the soluble oil; 3d, dilution of the soluble oil to make the emulsion ready to apply to the trees.

Wasting Portion of Corn Crop.—"Do you know," says P. J. Julian of Kossuth county, Iowa, "I think the time is passing when we are going to have our big corn fields, with 40 per cent. of the value of the corn plant left out in the field, to be worth perhaps 50 cents an acre for cattle to pick over? We have got to stop that, and we are going to do it by the silo. We cannot afford, with land worth $100 or more per acre, to allow nearly half of this valuable product to lie out of doors."

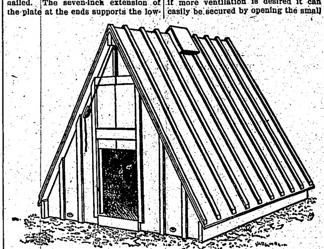
A HOG COT GOOD FOR SUMMER OR WINTER

A-Shaped Structure Which Is Equipped with a Door and a Ventilating System.

The A-shaped hog cot is adapted to both summer and winter conditions. It has a permanent floor, a door in each end, and a ventilating system. It is constructed by nailing inch boards on six joists, two inches by four inches, eight feet long for the floor. Beneath the joists are nailed three stringers, two inches by six inches eight feet long, which serve as runners for moving the house. Next is spiked a piece two inches by eight inches, nine feet four inches long, at the ends of the joists, having the bottom of the two inch by eight inch even with the bottom of the joist which will allow it to project above the floor three inches. It will also extend out seven inches at each end. This two inch by eight inch forms a plate to which the rafters and roof boards are nailed. The seven-inch extension of the plate at the ends supports the lower corners of the roof which otherwise would be easily split off. These 2x8's, besides strengthening the house, raise the rafters and roof boards nailed to them at least three inches off the floor and thereby materially increase the floor space and the capacity of the house. If the house is to be used in extremely cold weather a movable door is necessary. The illustration shows a door two feet wide and two feet six inches high, made to slide up and down and held in place by cleats. It is suspended by a rope which passes through a pulley at the top and is fastened to a cleat at the side near the roof. The cut also shows two iron eyes bolted into the front joist of the building to which the hitch is made when the building is moved.

A rear door, identical in size with the front door, is held in place by cleats nailed across it on the inside and by buttons fastened on the outside. This door is not opened regularly, but provides ventilation in summer and aids in handling sows at farrowing time. Above the rear door is a small sliding door, 8x12 inches, to admit light and air.

Another important feature of this house is the ventilator, which is a small cap covering a hole at the top and the center of the roof. The hole is made by sawing off opposite ends of two roof boards and covering it with a cap so arranged as to leave openings three inches by 12 inches on each side of the roof. This is sufficient ventilation for two or three animals when all the doors are shut, and if more ventilation is desired it can easily be secured by opening the small sliding door in the rear. This simple plan of ventilation avoids any direct drafts upon the animals and proves very efficient.

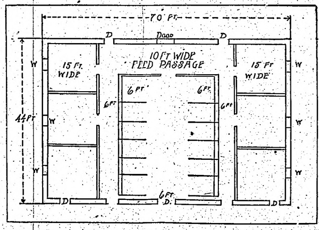


Front View of A-Shaped Hog Cot.

With these improvements the cost in building the A-shaped house is somewhat increased. All the boards except those used for the floor should be dressed on one side.

The following lumber is necessary to construct this portable house: Nine pieces 1x12 in., 16 feet long, and 11 O. G. battens 16 feet long for roof; 5 pieces 1x12 in., 14 feet long, for ends; 1 piece 2x4 in., 10 feet long, for ridge; 2 pieces 2x8 in., 10 feet long, for plates; 7 pieces 2x4 in., 16 feet long, for rafters and braces in frame; 3 pieces 2x6 in., 8 feet long, for stringers and 4 pieces 1x12 in., 16 feet long rough, for flooring.

Stable With Box Stalls



The ground plan shown above is for a stable 44x70 feet. The arrangement gives three box stalls in each end, which can, if desired, be arranged into stalls. The two cross feed passages are six feet wide. Stalls for cows six feet wide and six feet long from front of manger, to rear of stall. The main door can be made in two doors and six feet wide, which will admit of a stone boat or sled being taken in to clean out the stable. There will be space enough to drive in a horse and turn around.

Lost Art Rediscovered.

A chemical discovery, or rather rediscovery of what was an old Roman secret known to have been used about 600 years ago, is a liquid preparation to prevent iron rust and wall dampness. When applied to the bottom plates of ships it is said to prevent oxidation, animal or vegetable marine parasites and growths and, besides preserving the life of the iron plates, will also add to the speed of liners and warships. When the inside of a ship is coated over with this liquid it stops the "weeping" of the inner skins of the iron sides, which, as shippers so well know, is so often the cause of much damage to ships' cargoes.

Freshly plastered rooms when painted with the same preparation admit of immediate occupancy or decoration, as the paper can be applied without delay or damage. The tests have extended over a period of many months, and the results have been announced as successful.

Have Plenty of Litter.—If hens are confined to the poultry house on cold days see to it that they do not have to stand on the bare floor. Use straw, corn stalks, corn husks, or other dry material for a floor covering. Hens with cold feet will not lay very many eggs.

They Sell Best.—When raising turkeys for market medium sized ones will be found better than extra large ones.

Used To.

"Can you support her in the style she's used to?"

"Living in, or reading about in trashy novels?"

Not His Role.

"You use too many cigarettes," said the manager.

"That's my affair," responded the actor, haughtily.

"Not much; I didn't hire you as a smoked ham."—Philadelphia Ledger.

BUILDING A CEMENT WATERING TANK FOR THE LIVESTOCK

The Round Tank Is Much Easier Built Than One Which Is Square—By Joseph E. Wing.

Fig. 1 shows a cross section of the square tank. The walls will penetrate the earth only till they reach a firm foundation and the bottom will rest right on the earth; there is nothing better. The walls will be 36 inches high and six inches thick at the top and 16 inches thick at the base. The bottom need be no more than four inches thick, though it may well be thicker where it joins the walls, so as to strengthen them somewhat. We will reinforce this tank well with steel rods spaced 12 inches apart about the wall, placed as shown in the illustration—these rods 36 inches long and one-fourth inch in diameter. At the top we will imbed close to the outer edge rods 24 feet long, bent around each corner and their ends lapping. This reinforcing is imperatively needed in so large a tank, especially when built in square form. The bottom has no especial need of reinforcing, though a few rods through it will tend to prevent its ever cracking. They should bend up at the ends and reach nearly to the top of the wall.

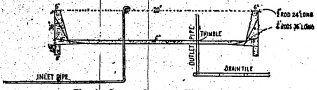

Fig. 1.—Square Concrete Watering Tank.

To build this tank is an extremely simple matter. One makes a box for the outer form, levelling it at top, digs his trench for the foundation; it need be no more than eight inches wide and perhaps 16 inches deep, then puts in his concrete floor and on it the box for inner form, then the walls, and all of it ought to be put in on the same day. Make a rich mixture, rather wet, so that it will pour, and keep it agitated well with sticks as it is poured in so as to work all air and bubbles to the surface. Take off the inner form in 24 hours and paint the inside with a wash of cement and water, thick as gravy.

The inlet and outlet pipes must be put in before the tank is built, the inlet pipe reaching just above the water line and if it is a curving piece or "return" put on it all the better, since then no boys will drop pebbles into it. The outlet pipe should be at least two inches in diameter and have a thimble set in the concrete bottom. Grease the threads well so that it will be easy to screw in and out. Water overflows over the top edge of this pipe and runs down into the tile provided, or it is screwed out and the whole tank is emptied.

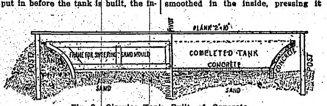

Fig. 2.—Circular Tank Built of Concrete.

Fig. 2 shows a much better tank that is much more easily and more cheaply made if you have sand in your neighborhood to use for a form. To make this form one sets up a piece of stiff pipe, or an iron bar, P, in the center of where he is to build his tank. In line with it and outside the proposed tank he sets two posts, across them a strong plank; this stiffens up the pivot. Now he needs a frame for sweeping around and making his mold. Four boards nailed together, one of them a wide one hollowed a little to make a neat curve as shown on the left hand side of Fig. 2, makes this frame. Now pile up sand about your circle and wet it and pack it with the shovel, then swing your frame about and let it scrape off the sand till you have a complete circle moulded in your sand pile. Then you are ready to put in your concrete. No inner form is needed; as the concrete is put in, sand is thrown against it to hold it in place, after it has been fairly well placed with the trowel. Use moist concrete but not too wet to be held in place.

After the sand mold is ready then clean out your trench (it had better be dug at the beginning) and fill it with concrete. If you wish to make the outer surface of this tank absolutely smooth and fine do it in this manner: Screen some coarse sand and mix with cement, 1 to 2; do not wet it. Spread it over the sand in its dry state about one inch thick, pressing it down hard (of course not hard enough to disturb the packed sand). You may use your frame and sweep this if you wish by shortening the frame one inch. When this dry cement and sand is in place you may moisten it with a fine sprinkler, or the wet sand may give it enough moisture to make it set. Then put in the bottom, reinforcing it somewhat, say a quarter inch rod each 16 inches in two directions, and then the walls, about six inches thick and for each 12 inches of vertical height lay in a big wire or one-fourth inch rod bent to fit. As the concrete is placed and smoothed in the inside, pressing it hard against the form, throw up a little sand against it to hold it up. At the top edge place a rod one-half inch in diameter bent to shape; it need not be continuous, short rods hooked together will serve.

This sand mold is built in less time than the square mold and requires no lumber. It makes a stronger and more beautiful tank. With good gravel mix one and one-fourth barrels of cement with each yard of gravel, or if stone is used and sand mix one cement, two sand, five stone. For the hogs make near by, but not too near, a smaller tank, connecting the two with an underground pipe. Do not have the hogs near enough to the large tank so that they will get hurt by cattle and horses.—Breeders' Gazette.

Like Dark Nests.—Hens like rather dark or hidden nests in which to lay. This condition can be met by tacking dark pieces of cloth in front of nest boxes so that they will hang like curtains. When nests are located and arranged to suit the hens' tastes they will not so readily seek other places to lay and hide their nests. It is best to have all the laying done where the eggs can be conveniently gathered each day and their age accurately known.

Express Company Responsible.—A woman the other day won a suit for damages against an express company for carelessly exposing her fowls to the biting frosts of winter, thereby causing the loss of combs. Even express companies must recognize the fact that pure bred fowls have a value above that of ordinary scrubs, although it may take a legal struggle sometimes to prove it to some people.

Plan Your Work.—Ten hours a day on a farm, with the work well planned, is better than 15 or 16 hours, hit or miss.

Overfat Ewes.—Do not feed the ewes too heavily these days. Remember that overfatness results in a small and puny lamb crop.

Dogs and Matrimony.

Everywhere is the dog the friend of man, but in Manchuria he is more strictly the friend of woman. There the dowry of the young woman does not consist of hard cash as in Europe, but in a certain number of sleek dogs with thick fur or silken hair. The girl's status may almost be guessed by her wedding portion of dogs. If she receives six, she is poor; if a dozen, her parents are in easy circumstances; and if 12 dozen it may be taken that she comes from a rich family. They are carefully fattened for their savory flesh, and their skins after death become coverlets, pelisses, vests for hunters, or bedside carpets which scarcely ever wear out. Even to its fur the devotion of the dog is warm and lasting.

Growing Wool in Winter.—Sheep grow wool more rapidly in cold than in warm weather. Cool, well ventilated, but not draughty barns will help, therefore, to increase this growth.

Make Women's Work Easy.—Man's work on the farm is long, but woman's is longer. Therefore make the house attractive and supply all labor-saving devices possible, particularly as to the water supply.

A Boston Touch.

Once upon a time De Wolf Hopper met a Boston person in that town whom he had not seen for a long period of duration.

"Hello; how are you? Where have you been?" said Hopper in his hearty way, giving the New York pronunciation the word "been."

"Please don't say 'bin,' but 'been.'"

"Sorry, but I can't," pleaded the big fellow. "I never had a bean in my mouth in my life, not even in Boston."

Plutocratic Greed.

Goodman Gonrong—Yes, I promised I'd divvy with ye, but that was when I had 20 cents. I've got 25 cents now. That cain't be divided in two ekal parts, an' I'm goin' to keep it all m'self. See?"

Saymold Storey—Yes, I see, blame ye! It's just as I've allus said; the rich is growin' richer an' the poor is growin' poorer!"

Clubs for men have added [illegible] the comforts of home.

STATE senators are not eligible to state office next year. This disposes of a promising lot of gubernatorial booms.

SIX weeks from today Mr. Roosevelt will retire from the presidency. How the weary hours will drag—that is, to congress.

MUCH to the disgust of the Pioneer Press and other partisan organs the legislature refuses to quarrel with Governor Johnson.

IF President Taft is sincerely desirous of converting the solid south to republicanism it might be a good idea to begin with Texas.

As the days of Roosevelt's tenure become less the courage of the senators and representatives becomes increasingly greater. Caesar dead had no friends.

IT looks as though President Taft will be compelled to worry along on the meager stipend of $50,000 per year. If he isn't satisfied, perhaps he can find a substitute for the job by calling up Lincoln, Neb.

STATE senators are ineligible as candidates for governor in 1910, and all because they voted to raise the governor's salary at the last session. This is sad news for some of the willing Barkises.

SENATOR TILLMAN is said to be receiving congratulations for his recent onslaught on Teddy. We hope the senator will be content to rest upon his honors rather than prolong his war on the white house. We ought to see things get quiet in congress.

SOME young doctor at the head of an infants' science academy says the mother is the worst eneny of the baby. If we had to be a baby again we should prefer to take our chances, however, with a real live mother as against a patent incubator.

THE Fairmont Sentinel lost the county printing but takes a philosophical view of the situation, remarking: "Our mission is to boost, not kick; so here goes for a big effort for another year to print the best country newspaper in the state, We are here to give all the news and shall not neglect county affairs."

REPRESENTATIVE Holten of Polk county has introduced a bill in the legislature providing for a special election to establish a] county seat after a new county has been set off. This measure is probably in the interest of eastern Polk county, which has been unable to get away from the mother county because of the conflicting county seat ambitions of the numerous towns in that section.

THE bequests and donations of the Americon people for the public good during the past year reach the astounding total of ninety-one millions of dollars. Of the donors Andrew Carnegie stands at the head with a total of gifts amounting to $7,690,000. John D. Rockefeller comes next with a total of $2,000,000 in round numbers. Mrs. Russell Sage takes third place and her gifs amount to $1,559,000.

QUENTIN'S corner in Minneapolis Tribune: That movement afoot to make the upper berths of the sleeping car, which are now just as high as the lower berths, lower than the lower berths is a good one. As it is the upper berths being just as high as the lower berths, most people take the lower berths, while if the upper berths were lower than the lower berths. lots of people would take the upper berths when we couldn't afford to go so high as the lower berth. Get the thought.

THE Ortonville Herald-Star observes that there will be several ambitious men in the legislature. During the session covetous eyes from several directions will be cast upon the elegant apartments of the governor, as well as upon most of the other offices in the capital, while a congressional barkis will develop in almost every district. Even embryo United States senators will bob up and gently feel the public pulse. It will be a session worth watching.

THE Atchison Globe asks if a woman was ever known to blow out the gas or to be bunckoed by a man who wanted to borrow money to pay a freight billl. Does she ever get her pockets picked or lose money on a little "game?" If she has a roll of money with her, does she ever flash it when she wants to buy a cake of chewing gum? Isn't it a fact that she is wiser than the the men and more to be trusted? Instead of a woman having a man along to "protect" her, the daily papers prove that every man who goes away from home should have a woman to act as a guardian and keep him from making a bigger fool of himself than he natually is.

J. W. OLSEN, state superintendent of public public instruction, has released for publication advance sheets of his biennial report to the coming legislature, covering the subjects of summer schools of agriculture, teachers, medical inspection and play-grounds. The superintendent says the first summer school of agriculture was successful. He also says there should be a definite professional standard for teachers. He points out the connection between education and health and recommends medical inspection of school population.

PASTOR RILEY of a Baptist church in Minneapolis advances the idea that cataclysms of nature and human upheavals alike spring from the some source—the wrath of offended deity, says the Fergus Falls Weekly. He says that Paris felt that wrath when the revolution caused its streets to run with blood; and Whitechapel in London and the Haymarket massacre in Chicago furnished other instances; and the San Francisco and Italian calamities were later instances. Fortunately, all the interpretations of the acts of deity have been furnished to mankind by men; and men are proverbially prone to error. Mr. Riley may be mistaken. We hope so, for the sake of the reputation of deity.

A FRENCHMAN quoted in a Paris letter of the London Globe tells of the origin of the present day bank check. It is well known, he says, that the fog is at times so dense in London that everything is blotted out. That is the opportunity for the marauder, and he is not slow in turning it to his profit. At the beginning of last century the attacks made upon bank messengers and others became so numerous that tradesmen and manufacturers began to think seriously of devising some means of protecting themselves. They therefore invented the check, which enables a man to go about with litttle ready money and renders useless the indiscreet exploration of a pocketbook.

ABOUT the time the trustees of the University of Minnesota were adopting a rule that professors in that institution who reach the age of 65 must retire, on the ground that their services are of lessened value, distinguished men in London were assembled to do honor to Lord Ripon, who recently resigned from the cabinet at the age of 81, after having been in public life almost continuously since 1852, and were regretting his retirement. Lord Asquith said of him: "When other hearts have failed and other feet have lagged, and other men's courage has grown faint and dim, he was always in the forefront of the fight." It is said of him also that at 81 he is an incurable youth. It seems likely, remarks the Indianapolis Star, that with these at tributes Lord Ripon, were he a professor in Minnesota university, would be a valuable quantity there even now. A man's usefulness depends something upon what he is, as well as upon his years.

A Praying Man.

When men begin their prayers with "Oh, thou omnipotent, omniscient, omnipresent, all-seeing, ever-living blessed Potentate, Lord God Jehovah!" I should think they would take breath. Think of a man in his family, hurried for his breakfast, praying, in such a strain! He has a note coming due, and it is going to be paid today, and he feels buoyant; and he goes down on his knees like a cricket on the hearth and piles up these majestically moving phralses about God. Then he goes on to say that he is a sinner; he is proud to say that he is a sinner. Then he asks for his daily bread. He has it; and he can always ask for it when he has it. Then he jumps up and goes over to the city. He comes back at night and goss through a similar wordy form of "evening prayers," and he is called "a praying man." A praying man? I might as well call myself an ornithologist because I eat a chicken once in a while for dinner.—Henry Ward Beecher.

TWO ACCIDENTAL DEATHS

One Suicide and Three Attempts at Suicide at Minneapolis.

One suicide, two accidental deaths and three attempts by one man to end his life is the record in Minneapolis for twenty-four hours.

Nels Calm, eighty-three years old, tied a new rope around his neck and to the barn rafters, and they being too low to allow him to hang he held his feet up behind him while he slowly strangled to death. No motive is known for the man's action.

William Eastman, twenty-four years old, was asphyxiated in his room. A small gas heater had turned over, breaking the connection of the rubber tubing, and allowing the room to fill with gas.

J. L. Neilson, a freight conductor residing at Mason City, Ia., died at the city hospital as the result of a rear end freight collision on the Minneapolis and St. Louis line, near St. Louis Park.

John Malmquist, confined in the Hennepin county jail on suspicion of being insane, made three unsuccessful attempts to end his life. Two attempts were frustrated by the night jailer and later he was discovered trying to burn himself up in his cell.

Use Wagon in Carting Away Loot at Minneapolis.

Burglars operated with express wagons in Minneapolis in the confusion following the bursting of a big water main at Fourth street and Fifth avenue.

They backed a two-horse wagon to the curb in front of Lindberg's tailor shop on Seventh street south and loaded it with practically the entire stock of suitings and notions in the store, leaving the counters and shelves bare. The value of the goods taken is $1,500.

The bursting main attracted practically all the policemen in the down town district and gave the burglars a clear field.

Notable Missionary Meeting.

The most notable foreign missionary meeting ever held in the Northwest will meet at Minneapolis the week of Feb. 4. It will be conducted under the general direction of the Laymen's Missionary Movement of North America, which has conducted remarkable meetings both in the United States and Canada during the past two years. Prominent speakers from different sections of the country will attend.

Costly Fire at Hawley.

Fire at Hawley destroyed the Double front department store. The building was owned by William Rittman and was of brick with a steel covered warehouse on the west side. It was valued at $10,000. The stock of general merchandise, owned by the firm of Bilben & Eid, valued at $15,000 and insured at $10,000, was a total loss.

Johnson's Official Majority.

Official figures as announced by the state canvassing board show that J. F. Jacobson, Republican candidate for governor, received a total of 147,357 votes, a gain of 300 over the unofficial returns. Governor Johnson received 175,136 votes, a gain of 100 over the unofficial count. The official majority of Johnson is 27,779.

Acquitted After Three Trials.

After three trials, two of which resulted in a disagreement of the juries, James H. Pinkerton is finally freed from the charge of embezzling $3,000 of the funds of the town of Schroeder, Cook county, of which he was treasurer. A jury in the district court returned a verdict of not guilty.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is Hereby Given, That on the eleventh day of February 1909 at one o'clock p. m. at the Court House in the City of Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the ditch No. 34 of Red Lake county established by the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, State of Minnesota, by their order bearing date 6th day of January A. D. 1909, viz: For the work as one job, and also for one or more sections of ten feet each and also for one or more of the construction jobs, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet and from thence, successively up stream to the one including the source said sections being numbered from No. "O" to No. 216 inclusive, to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in manner specified in said Engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent, over and above the estimate cost of the construction in any case, as stated in said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond to be approved by the Auditor of said County, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

The approximate amount of work to be done in the construction of such ditch is as follows:

The excavation and removal of 33,908, cubic yards of earth the same to be placed along the north side of the ditch so as to form a turnpike or grade. All work will be neatly cleared up on completion according to the engineer's directions and be left in a neat and orderly condition ready for use, and all roads after grading shall be dressed with a road machine as required by the plans, from station "O" to station No. 216 inclusive. The estimate cost per yard is ten cents.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the Auditor of said County, for not less than ten per cent. of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated January 14th, 1909.

If your Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys are weak, try a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly: Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the heart or kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of a necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

S.S.S. HEALS OLD SORES

No old sore exists merely because the flesh is diseased at that particular spot; if this were true simple cleanliness and local applications would heal them. Whenever a sore or ulcer refuses to heal readily, the blood is at fault; this vital fluid is filled with impurities and poisons which are being constantly discharged into the place, feeding it with noxious matter and irritating and inflaming the nerves and tissues so the sore cannot heal. These impurities in the blood may be the remains of some constitutional trouble, the effect of a debilitating spell of sickness, leaving disease germs in the system, or the absorption by the blood of the fermented refuse matter which the bodily channels of waste have failed to remove. Again the cause may be hereditary, the diseased blood of ancestry being handed down to posterity; but whatever the cause, the fact that the sore will not heal shows the necessity for the very best constitutional treatment. There is nothing that causes more worry and anxiety than an old sore which resists treatment. Every symptom suggests pollution and disease—the discharge, the red, angry looking flesh, the pain and inflammation, and the discoloration of surrounding parts, all show that deep down in the blood there are morbid and dangerous forces at work, constantly creating poisons which may in the end lead to Cancer. Local applications are valuable only for their cleansing and antiseptic effects; they do not reach the blood, where the real cause is located, and can therefore have no real curative worth. S. S. S. heals old sores by going down to the fountain-head of the trouble and driving out the poison-producing germs and morbid matters which are keeping the ulcer open. It removes every particle of impurity from the circulation and makes this life-stream pure, fresh and health-sustaining. Then as new, rich blood is carried to the place the healing begins, all discharge ceases, the inflammation leaves, new tissue and healthy flesh are formed, and soon the sore or ulcer is well. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers and finest of tonics, just what is needed in the treatment, and in addition to curing the sore will build up and strengthen every part of the system. Special book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice desired furnished free to all who write. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

I want to recommend S. S. S. to any who are in need of a blood purifier, and especially as a remedy for sores and obstinate ulcers. In 1877 I had my leg badly cut on the sharp edge of a barrel, and having on a blue woolen stocking the place was badly poisoned from the dye. A great sore formed and for years no one knows what I suffered with the place. I tried, it seemed to me, everything I had ever heard of, but I got no relief and I thought I would have to go through life with an angry, discharging sore on my leg. At last I began the use of S. S. S., and it was but a short time until I saw that the place was improving. I continued it until it removed all the poison from my blood and made a complete and permanent cure of the sore. JNO. ELLIS.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of eleven hundred four and 16-100ths ($1104.16) dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Christenson, a single man, Mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of April, 1901, and with a power of sale therin contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 12th day of June, 1901, at 4:15 o'clock P. M., in Book R of Mortgages, on page 392.

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, to R. H. McClellan by written assignment dated the 28th day of June, 1901, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds, on the 1st day of July, 1901, at 10 o'clock, A. M., in Book S of Mortgages on page 606.

And the said R. H. McClellan, assignee aforesaid, having died on the 23rd day of July, A. D. 1902, in the State of Illinois and County of Jo Daviess, whereupon such proceedings were duly had that Letters Testamentary were duly issued by the county court of said county and state to George W. McClellan, dated August 15, 1902, who was then and there duly appointed executor of the said R. H. McClellan, and a certified copy of said Letters Testamentary have been duly filed in the office of the Register of Deeds of Red Lake County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of December, 1908, at 2:30 o'clock P. M., in Book F of Miscellaneous page 191; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The south east quarter, (SE¼), of section twelve (12), in township one hundred fifty (150), of range forty-three (43), west of the 5th Principal Meridian for Minnesota, the said land lying and being in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls in said County and State, on the 23rd day of January 1909, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of $1104.16 and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty Dollars, Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure and disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

C. A. Lindquist,
Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners.
John B. O'Brien,
County Auditor and ex officio Clerk of Board.

Red Lake Falls, Minnesota,
January 6, 1909.

On the call of the county auditor, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 230, of the Laws of 1905 and acts amendatory thereof, the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, met in special session at the office of the county auditor at one o'clock p. m., for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition of A. C. Mayfield and others for the establishment and construction of County Ditch No. 32 in said county and the engineer's and viewers' report thereon, for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition of Oscar Y. Anderson and others for the establishment and construstion of County Ditch No. 33 in said county and the engineer's and viewers' report thereon, for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition of John Gunderson and others for the establishment and construction of County Ditch No. 34 in said county and the engineer's and viewers' report thereon.

Commissioners present, Lindquist, Aubol, Shaw, Demann and Pigeon.

Commissioners absent, none.

The petition of Oscar Y. Anderson and others for County Ditch No. 33 was read and the arguments and objections of all persons interested were heard.

Motion made by Shaw seconded by Demann that this hearing be postponed and the engineer instructed to abandon that portion of the ditch between section 32 town of Silverton and section 5 Town of Smiley and extend the said ditch on the Range line as far north as the engineer deems expedient and that the viewers be sent back over the ground, the petitioners' bondsmen having filed their consent to said change in the course of said ditch. Motion carried.

The petition of A. C. Mayfield and others on ditch No. 32 was read and the arguments and objections of all persons interested were heard.

By agreement of parties for and against the ditch the board postponed the hearing on ditch No. 32 until four o'clock p. m.

The petition of John Gunderson and others on ditch No. 34 was read and the arguments of all persons interested were heard. No one appearing against the construction of ditch No. 34, on motion made by Shaw seconded by Demann and carried unanimously the reports of the engineer and viewers were accepted and the following order establishing County Ditch No. 34 was made:

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Red Lake. }

In the matter of the Petition of John Gunderson, and others for a Public Ditch in the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, Designated and Numbered as County Ditch No. 34.

The above entitled matter came on duly to be heard by and before the County Board of the County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, at a Special meeting of said Board duly called for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition for said ditch in the above entitled matter on the 6th day of January, A. D. 1909, at one o'clock p. m., of said day: and it appearing by proper evidence that due notice had been given of the pendency of said petition and of said time of hearing thereon, and that C. H. Martz the Civil Engineer appointed by this board to survey the route of said ditch, has completed his work and duly filed his report thereon in the office of the County Auditor of said County and that the Viewers appointed by said Board to view and report upon said work have duly completed their labors and made and filed their report in due form of law in the office of said County Auditor, the said County Board did, at the time above specified, proceed to hear said petition and said viewers' report thereon; and said Board having duly considered said petition and heard all the parties interested for or against the construction of said ditch and all other matters pertaining thereto, find as follows, to-wit:

FIRST: That the said Civil Engineer has completed his work and made and filed his report thereon in all respects according to law.

SECOND: That the Viewers appointed herein have duly completed their labors and have made and filed their report thereon according to law.

THIRD: That the estimated benefits to be derived from the construction of said work are greater than its total costs including damages awarded.

FOURTH: That the damages and benefits arising from the construction of said ditch have been duly awarded and assessed, and that said work will be of public utility and promote public health and that said reports of said Engineer and viewers are complete and correct.

FIFTH: That notice of this hearing of said petition and of said Viewers' report and said Engineer's report has been duly given, published and posted and mailed as by law required, and that proofs of said service of said notice has been duly made and filed in the office of the County Auditor of said county, and that all other proceedings in the matter have been made and taken in accordance with the provisions of law.

Now, Therefore, As conclusions from the foregoing findings, we, the County Board of the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, at said Special Session of said Board, held at time above specified, being satisfied that the proposed ditch will be of public utility and conducive to public health and public benefit and convenience, do hereby locate and establish the said ditch according to the report and the specifications of said Civil Engineer made and filed herein, and do hereby establish and confirm the report of the Viewers made and filed herein.

It Is Further Ordered, that the damages awarded to the persons and corporations named in the Viewers' report herein, in excess of benefits, be paid out of the County Treasury of said County on warrants to be drawn and attested by the Auditor of said County and signed by the Chairman of this board and delivered to the persons entitled thereto as provided by law.

By the Board,
C. A. Lindquist
Chairman of County Board, of Red Lake County, Minnesota.
Attest: John B. O'Brien, (Seal)

EMBEZZLEMENT IS CHARGED

Warrant Issued for Missing Creamery Employe.

Andrew Golberg, secretary and treasurer of the Crescent Creamery company of St. Paul, has been missing several days and a warrant has been issued for his arrest, charging him with embezzlement. The amount taken is reported to be between $15,000 and $20,000 and covers a considerable period.

Edward A. Cammack, president and general manager of the company, says Golberg was living beyond his means.

The missing treasurer is forty-five years old and formerly lived at Rochester, this state. He entered the employ of the Crescent Creamery company as a clerk and gradually advanced until he became head bookkeeper for the firm.

Upon the resignation of the treasurer he was made secretary and treasurer of the company, which position he retained up to the time of his disappearance.

TWO COACHES DESTROYED

Occupants Forced to Escape in Scant Attire.

By the explosion of a gas tank in a day coach on a Northern Pacific passenger train two cars were destroyed and the train was delayed two hours in reaching St. Paul. The explosion occurred at 5 o'clock in the morning as the train was pulling out of St. Cloud.

A day coach was burned to the trucks, not any of the woodwork remaining. A tourist sleeper was about half destroyed before the fire department succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

Both the day coach and sleeper were filled with passengers, but all escaped without injury, those in the sleeper being forced out into the snow in night clothes.

Many passengers lost grips and wearing apparel.

HER BODY FOUND IN TRUNK

Woman Ends Life in Remarkable Manner.

A most extraordinary suicide occurred at Rochester. Mrs. Nellie Cook Purcell, a beautiful woman of twenty-nine, whose former home was in St. Paul, killed herself at the home of her sister by covering her face with a handkerchief saturated with chloroform and then curling up in a large trunk, the lid of which she tightly closed that all air might be excluded.

Mrs. Purcell had been in the state hospital at St. Peter and Rochester about three years, but some four months ago was discharged as cured. She had been divorced from her husband at St. Paul several years ago.

BLOWN UP BY DYNAMITE

Claus Carlson, a homesteader, twenty-eight years old, living north of Deer River, Itasca county, committed suicide by sitting on a box of dynamite and setting it off in a tent back of his house, where a lumberman's outfit was kept. Fellow workmen heard him say as he was setting the dynamite off, "Run for your lives, I am going up."

The camp was badly shattered and the men inside barely escaped. The body was blown fifty feet and badly mangled. Carlson received a letter from Sweden recently that his sister committed suicide in a similar way.

One Hundred Dollars In Gold.

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

Farmer Henderson borrowed a half bushel measure of the Widow Bailey, and one of his cows kicked the bottom out of it. He offered to pay 15 cents for the damage, and the widow wanted 30. This led to hard feelings on both sides.

One day the farmer sold off some live stock and was paid $100 in gold. The sale was made at his barn, and instead of going at once to his house to put away the money the man wrapped the ten pieces in his handkerchief, put them in his pocket and went to the back end of his farm to see about building a dam across a creek. He was poking around for two hours, and then he cut across a portion of the widow's property to get home. In so doing he came across an old white horse that had been turned out to live as long as he would without more work.

In passing, the animal Henderson stubbed his toe and took a sprawl, and the incident was to bear fruit. When he reached his house those ten pieces of gold wrapped up in the bandanna were missing.

Henderson flew to the barn and searched around for half an hour. Then he was off for the creek. He had two hours of daylight, and he searched the ground almost inch by inch. Not a sign of his missing money could be found. He did not return past the old horse nor give him a thought until near midnight that night. He blamed himself, his wife blamed him more, and his evening was anything but joyous. He woke from a sleep troubled with bad dreams to cry out to his wife:

"I've found it, Hannah; I've found it!"

"Well, don't yell the news to the whole county. Where did you find it?"

"Say, now, I passed Widow Bailey's old white horse in her pasture, and while I was looking at his spavins I fell down. The wad must have worked out of my pocket then. I'm going to take the lantern and go over there and look."

"And little good it'll do you. If you lost the money there the old horse has eaten it up. There's an article in our county paper this week about a horse that ate up money. He had that hundred dollars hogged down before you were home. He might have swallowed it all at once, but I rather think he took a piece at a time, so as to enjoy the richness of it."

"But what in thunder am I going to do?" exclaimed the husband in desperation.

"Go out in the morning and look. If the money is there, it's all right; if the old horse has swallowed it, you'll have to buy him to get it back."

They sat up the rest of the night discussing the matter, and when daylight came the farmer was off to take a look. He found the old equine lying down and fast asleep, but he didn't find the money. It had been gulped down. When he returned and reported his wife said:

"Then you eat your breakfast and go over and see the widow. You've got to bow the knee. You've got to be slick. You've got to get up some sort of a story. You've got to have that old horse before noon."

The husband felt that he had. It hurt and humiliated him, but there was a hundred dollars at stake. When he had finished his meal he walked over to the other farmhouse, having at his tongue's end what he thought was a pretty good yarn. The widow was drawing water at the well. She ceased to draw and stood looking at the caller.

"Mrs. Bailey," began the farmer after clearing his throat two or three times, "you have an old white horse. I have known him for years and years. I always had a soft spot in my heart for him. He's no good to you any more, and I want to buy him."

"About that half bushel measure?" replied the woman.

"Here's a dollar for it. Sorry we had any trouble. What do you think the old critter is worth?"

"Well, as he has served me faithfully, I thought I would never part with him, but being I'm thinking some of moving to South Dakota, and being I know you'd use him well, I might let him go. I should want a hundred dollars, though."

"Good lands, widow, but you know he isn't worth five!"

"No, he isn't, but there's a sentiment about it, you know. If I wasn't thinking of South Dakota I wouldn't take $200. No, I couldn't look him in the face if I took less than a hundred."

The farmer offered ten, twenty, forty, but it was no good. After an hour's haggling he went home and got seventy-five, and the old white horse was his. He promised to be kind to him and love him and help him to live twenty years longer, and it was affecting to see him leading the old wreck home and cheering his crippled pace.

He took him direct to the ban, and after dinner he would knock him in the head and have a search for that gold mine. He was in the very act of entering the barn when he trod on that lost "wad." He had lost it before starting for the creek. The wife appeared just in time to see him pick it up and hear the jingle. She looked from him to the horse and from the horse to the bandanna and then softly said:

"If I had my way about it, Sam Henderson, you'd live on horse meat until you withered up and blew away like an old cabbage leaf." M. QUAD.

OVERTAXED

The kidneys are overtaxed;
Have too much to do.
They tell about it in many aches and pains—
Backache, s'deache,
Early symptoms of kidney ills.
Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.
A Red Lake Falls citizen tells here a certain cure.

Mrs. Zilda Paquin, living in the Northern part of Red Lake Falls, Minn., says: "I can speak very highly of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled for weeks by a dull pain in the small of my back, I suffered from headaches and also had pains in my limbs. My kidney were also disordered in action an the secretions of an unnatural appearance. I was told by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills and sent to Schreiter's drug store for a supply. I had only taken them a few days when I felt better and now I am well again. Doan's Kidney Pills have relieved me of all my troubles and I shall not fail to recommend them to others."

Advice of Noted Authority, Also Gives a Simple Prescription.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manfacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at betime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity, when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them. 17-19

Owing to the storms and cold weather of the past few days the Soo people have experienced considerable difficulty in keeping the west line through Dakota open for traffic. During all of this time the train service has been very uncertain. Conductor Jeffers, accompanied by his wife, went west a week ago Monday expecting to be gone but a couple of days, or three at the most. They did not get back home until Tuesday of this week, Mr. Jeffers having been out on the line the greater portion of the time, while Mrs. Jeffers spent the time visiting friends.

MISERY IN STOMACH.

And Indigestion Vanishes in Five Minutes and You Feel Fina.

Why not start now—today, and forever rid yourself of Stomach trouble and Indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and. Dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, one triangule will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Dirpepsin works your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decided to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of Indigestion. 15-18

ELEVATED TO ANANIAS CLUB

Tawney Says He Has Been Taken Out of the Criminal Class.

"I have been elevated from the ranks of the criminal class to the Ananias club," declared Representative Tawney of Minnesota, chairman of the house committee on appropriations, commenting on President Roosevelt's special message relative to the secret service. Mr. Tawney returned to Washington from Minnesota. "I have nothing to say in reply to the president's message at this time," continued Mr. Tawney, "except that he has misinterpreted my speeches to the house. This controversy lies between the chief executive and the legislative branch of the government, and there it should rest until settled. The president is unwarranted in trying to make an issue between himself and the appropriations committee."

COSTLY FIRE AT ST. PAUL

Property Valued at Forty Thousand Dollars Destroyed.

Fire which broke out in the three-story brick building owned by the Merriam estate on the southeast corner of Fourth and Wabasha streets at St. Paul caused a loss of about $40,000.

The chief sufferers by the fire were: C. E. Banker, saloon, $20,000; Review Publishing company, $8,000; Merriam estate, damage to building, about $5,000; Virtue Printing company, $4,000; Connolly Plumbing and Heating company, Thomas F. Birmingham, gas and electrical fixtures, and the occupants of the upper floors damaged slightly by smoke and water. The losses are only partially covered by insurance.

NEW WORLD HELPS FEED OLD

Returns from the Hibbing postoffice for the year just closed give some interesting facts as to the amount of money that is yearly sent off the range towns. Many of the miners are foreigners with families still in the old country and a good share of their wages go as regularly as they receive them to feed hungry mouths across the waters.

In 1908 $123,953.42 went out from the Hibbing postoffice to the old countries, or more than a dollar for every man, woman and child in the place. The total amount of money sent from the office during the year amounted to over $300,000.

WILLIAMS MAKES CHARGES

Retiring Head of State Labor Bureau Takes Parting Shot.

That the labor department of this state is run for political purposes only is the accusation of the head of the department, W. H. Williams, who has been replaced at the end of his term by W. E. McEwen. Williams' parting shot comes in the form of a supplementary report which was delivered to the legislature. To improve matters Williams recommends that the position be made elective, that the inspectors in the department pass a civil service examination and that no one be appointed who does not give his entire time to the work of the department.

HELD TO THE GRAND JURY

Minneapolis Private Detective Accused of Extortion.

William Baxter, a Minneapolis private detective charged with extortion, waived a hearing before Judge C. L. Smith. He was taken to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

The accused man promises a number of sensations when he is tried in the district court.

Conductor Beats Bandits.

Coolly disregarding a command to throw up his hands, backed by revolvers held in his face by two masked highwaymen, Charles Larson of Minneapolis, a conductor on an Eighth avenue and Columbia Heights car, attacked the highwaymen and before the fight was over had both of their revolvers. The highwaymen escaped.

Returned to the Donors.

The St. Paul subscribers to the Chisholm relief fund have received checks for 72½ per cent of the amount they contributed, representing the sum that was not used by the committee for relief purposes. It was proposed to use the remainder for the relief of the Italian disaster sufferers, but this was overruled.

Hero of Bank Raid Dead.

Anselm R. Manning of Northfield, the hero of the Younger-James brothers raid there over thirty-one years ago, dropped dead of heart disease. When the raiders began shooting Manning took a gun from his hardware store and wounded Cole Younger and shot Bill Stiles through the heart.

Legislature in Session.

The thirty-sixth session of the Minnesota legislature met at St. Paul and completed its organization. A. J. Rockne of Zumbrota was elected speaker of the house and Archibald H. Vernon chief clerk. George W. Peachey was chosen secretary of the senate.

SCORES KILLED OR INJURED

Ancient Church at Sion, Switzerland, Collapses.

Berne, Switzerland, Jan. 11.—During divine service an ancient church near Sion suddenly collapsed, burying the worshippers in the ruins. Practically all members of the congregation were killed or injured. A wild panic followed, those who escaped rushing through the fields shouting that an earthquake had overtaken the village. Other villagers joined in the outcry and were with difficulty calmed After an hour's exertion the fire company of the place extricated forty corpses, but it is believed there are still a number under the timbers. Sixty persons were badly injured. The collapse of the church was caused by the time worn pillars in the underground crypt giving way.

TOO COLD ON THE OUTSIDE

Forty-five Prisoners Escape and All but Three Return.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 7.—Forty-five prisoners in the city jail tunnelled their way to freedom. Getting a breath of the icy air all but three returned. They declared they preferred prison to freedom in zero weather.

If your Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys are weak, try a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly: Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the heart or kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

Do your CHILDREN ASK QUESTIONS

Of course they do. It is their way of learning and it is your duty to answer. You may need a dictionary to aid you. It won't answer every question, but there are thousands to which it will give you true, clear and definite answers, not about words only, but about things, the sun, men, machinery, places, stories and the like. Then, too, the children can find their own answers. Some of our greatest men have ascribed their power to study of the dictionary.

GRIEF ENDS LIFE

Hunter Who Killed Companion Dies of Broken Heart.

SERVED TIME FOR MISTAKE

Refused to Fight Charge When Placed on Trial.

The state board of control has received news of the death at his home in Koochiching county of Charles Wingren, a paroled prisoner. He died suddenly of heart disease, though the board thinks it was his troubles more than anything else.

Wingren while hunting last March killed a man, mistaking him for a deer, and was arrested under the law which designates such errors as manslaughter. It was plainly an accident and though friends tried to induce him to make a fight for his liberty he insisted on pleading guilty and was accordingly sentenced to the reformatory.

Wingren was at once released on parole and was sent back to his family. His health failed rapidly, however, and it is said that he died of a broken heart. He had a wife and seven children.

FOUR CHILDREN CREMATED

Others in Family Escape but Are Badly Frozen.

Rice Lake, Wis., Jan. 7.—Four boys, whose ages ranged from eight to sixteen years, sons of Christ Lee, near here, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the home of Mr. Lee. Mr. and Mrs. Lee, with three other small children, escaped from the burning house in their night clothes.

With the thermometer registering 22 degrees below zero Mr. Lee and the members of his family who escaped from the fire started for the nearest neighbor's house, a mile distant, clad only in their night clothes and with bare feet. Mrs. Lee and two of the children collapsed when within a quarter of a mile of the neighbor's house and the husband was compelled to carry the three. The third child walked and reached the house, but both feet were frozen.

My Secret.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

I was awakened by quick words and hurried footsteps outside my window. I arose and looked out. Evidently something had happened, for I saw people moving about, nearly all of them with horror depicted in their expressions.

My colored man, Sam, was coming, carrying my heavy shoes. He had taken them from my door, opening on to the porch, for the purpose of blackening them.

"What's up, Sam?" I asked as he put down the shoes.

"Why, haben't yo' heered, Marse Tom? Yo' uncle done been murdered in de night."

"My uncle! Heavens!"

I lost no time in putting on my clothes. Nathan Clingham, my uncle, had made a will, I knew, leaving his plantation and what other property he possessed to me. As soon as I was dressed I went to his house and found the neighbors in charge. At my appearance all fell back, giving place to me. My uncle had been killed with an ax, and several hundred dollars which he had with him were missing. There was no clew to the mystery.

My first act was to summon a doctor to learn how long my uncle had been dead. He gave it as his opinion that the period was not less than two hours nor more than three. I saw at once the importance of quick pursuit. I organized a party at once and sent them in every direction. I, with several men and boys, took the road running past the plantation and, sending a part of my force southward, led the balance northward.

Coming to a place in the road coincident with the northwest corner of the plantation, I saw fresh tracks that had evidently been made by some one who had left the plantation at that point. I stooped to examine them. Long I looked at them, bending my face down over them rather to conceal the terror that was in me than to get a close view. Then I arose and, staggering to the side of the road, leaned against the fence.

"What's the matter with you?" asked Steve Burton, one of the party. "You're white as a ghost."

"I'm sick. I must go home. You fellows go on."

"All right," said Burton. "Better take one of the boys with you."

They insisted, but I wouldn't have any one with me. They helped me over the fence, and I made a bee line for home. When I saw them turn around the base of a hill, where they couldn't see me, I ran, never stopping till I reached the house and had gained my room. Then I sank into a chair with a "Thank God!"

And what was it that so suddenly threw me into such a condition?

I had on the shoes that Sam had blacked. From the heel of the right shoe the lowest layer of leather was gone, leaving six protruding nails. The forward part of the sole of the left shoe I had cut with an ax while chopping wood. The moment I had caught sight of the tracks in the road I knew they had been made by my shoes. There were the indentations of the six nails, and the cut in the toe had left its mark. If this discovery were made by those tracking the murderer, it would be proved that I had killed my uncle doubtless to gain possession of the property he had willed me. I took off the shoes, hid them and put on another pair. Then I began to think.

First, the murderer had seen my shoes on the porch, and it had occurred to him that, since he must leave his tracks, it would be safer to leave the tracks of my shoes than of his own; second, he had either come back after using them and was probably now on the plantation or he had a partner; third, he was not Sam. It was more sensible to believe that Sam had taken the boots to black after the murderer had used them than to believe that he had committed the murder himself, for he had been owned by our family in the days of slavery and was very much attached both to my uncle and to me.

The question with me was what should I do. To make known that my shoes had been used by the murderer would be equivalent to putting my neck in a halter. And the shoes—should I destroy them? If I did and it was discovered that I had done so, I would be in danger. If the shoes remained intact, were found and compared with the tracks, I would swing for murder.

I took the shoes from their hiding and placed them with my other pairs. A committee hunted all over the plantation for the shoes that had made the tracks and sent diagrams of them everywhere. I waited, in terror every moment, fearing that my shoes would be examined. In a week the excitement died down, and I breathed easier.

Nevertheless for years I lived burdened by my secret. In time I sent the shoes off in a box of clothing for a poor minister's family in a far distant state. It was a comfort to get rid of them, but I could not get rid of the fear that the person who had worn them on that fatal night might some day accuse me.

At last, four years after the murder, the murderer, before being hanged for another crime, confessed, telling how he had thrown his followers off his track by wearing my shoes. He had brought them back after using them and remained on the plantation for several weeks.

LAURENCE FOSTER CHURCH.

Stones, Bones And Bugs.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

When the —— university scientific expedition was made up it was decided to unite professional work with pleasure. Some of the professors took their wives, some their daughters, and among the bachelors and young ladies were one or two incipient love affairs. For instance, Miss Nellie Marchand, whose father occupied the chair of the French language and literature, had been attracted to young Professor Stewart, curator of the university museum. Professor Stewart was so intent upon stones, bones and bugs that he had no eye for the charms of the young lady, who, by the bye, was very pretty.

Having reached a far western spot rich in geological and other specimens, the party settled for the summer in camp, making forays in parties, in couples or individually. When they left the east the Indians on a not far distant reservation were as peaceful as a litter of kittens. Before the university party had been in camp a fortnight the red men had broken their limits and were ready to tomahawk any white man, woman or child they met. One morning a cowboy rode into the camp and announced the fact to the startled intellectuals. What added to the terror occasioned by the news was that there were several small groups at the time out looking for specimens.

Among those who were out and did not come in was the curator. Miss Nellie Marchand took note of this fact before any one else. Although she was in agony at his danger, she said nothing, but started out in the direction she had seen the professor go an hour before to warn him. She walked a mile, regardless of her own danger, in her effort to warn the man she loved, when, coming to a rise in the ground, she saw a sight that paralyzed her. Barely 200 yards from her was Professor Stewart cracking a stone with a hammer, and not a hundred yards from the professor were a dozen Indians on ponies dashing toward him with blood in their eyes.

The first thing Miss Marchand did was to faint. This was blind luck, for, falling, she was concealed from view.

Meanwhile the red men swooped down on the professor, who on hearing a clatter looked up to behold immediate redhot death. However, since he was one white man against their dozen they were not in a hurry. Torture or murder might wait. What they were first absorbed in was their captive's possessions. They knew enough of civilization to appreciate the value of his watch, hammer, loose change and penknife. They plunged their hands in his other pockets and took out stones. Every receptacle was filled with them—stones, stones, nothing but stones. But in his inside vest pocket were some decayed bones. The Indians looked at one another in wonder.

A tiny box lay near. Suddenly noticing it, they made a rush for it. Here at last must be something they could exchange for fire water, for powder, lead, blankets. Opening it, their wonder was tenfold. It was full of bugs.

Suddenly an explanation came to the leader. He tapped his forehead with his finger. The others saw his meaning and assented. The professor was an imbecile.

One of the redeeming features of the North American Indian has always been kindness for the feebleminded. Any injury to such persons they consider sure to be visited upon them. They closed the bug box and handed it to their captive. They picked up the stones they had scattered about and placed them again in the professor's pockets. They restored his watch and other useful articles. Then, their march for a definite purpose having been interrupted, they mounted their ponies and rode hurriedly away. Professor Stewart turned his face straight toward the camp and began to triangulate in that direction.

Miss Marchand recovered consciousness, crawled forward and, looking over the crest, saw the Indians rifling what she supposed to be the curator's dead body. She fainted again. When the professor came that way with his stones and bones and his box of bugs he saw a sight that astonished him—the body of Miss Marchand. Perhaps it was an exuberance of feeling at his escape; perhaps it was the girl's condition. At any rate, it struck him that there was something in her dearer than stones, bones and bugs. Kneeling beside her, he pressed his warm lips against her cold ones.

Now, it happened that after Miss Marchand started out to warn Professor Stewart not only she, but the professor, was missed. Every one in camp started out in a different direction to hunt for them. Mrs. Marchand and Professor Mackinnon happened to meet near the very spot where Professor Stewart found Miss Nellie and at the moment he kissed her.

Under the warmth of the curator's kiss the young lady revived, gave a little shriek of delight at seeing him safe, then caught sight of her mother approaching. She rose, blushing. Professor Stewart, elated at his escape, shouted:

"Hurrah! I'm crazy."

"I should think so," said Mrs. Marchand severely.

This recalled the professor to himself, and while the four were hurrying to camp he explained what had occasioned his apparently idiotic remark.

Professor Stewart says it was Miss Marchand's brave act in going to look for him that settled matters between them.

ANNA BI[illegible]

A Valiant Feat

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"But I have told you the story a dozen times."

"And every time you tell it I wish to hear it again. You may tell it well or you may tell it badly. You cannot add to it nor can you spoil it. Such stories are independent of the narrator. They are great in themselves."

"Well, then, to begin at the beginning, I was in the cavalry, on scouting service in the Shenandoah valley, with a view to finding out something about the movements of that foxy Stonewall Jackson. We numbered forty men. I have always thought that we would have done better with fewer—either fewer or more. We had too many for skulking and too few to make a fight. We did make a fight, though, because we couldn't help ourselves.

"We met a Union man who had seen General Jackson a few hours before, and he gave us a very good estimate of the number of the men he had with him. He was marching up the valley. What we had to do was to march up the valley ourselves, but by another route. The Union man agreed to pilot us, and we started to do some quick work in transmitting the valuable information we possessed.

"The captain sent three men to sneak through independent of the rest of us or each other. But there wasn't one of 'em got there. When the information was delivered we of the main body took it in. You can judge how desperate was the situation when I tell you that every skulker was taken or killed.

"A Confederate sympathizer who met us mounted a swift horse and carried the Confederates information of our presence in the enemy's country. They sent two mounted companies after us, and for about ten hours we were driven east, west, north and south—anywhere, everywhere, to keep away from a force the number of which we didn't know. Our Union friend stuck to us and, since he knew the country better than our chasers, put us on short cuts and passes in the mountains that often enabled us to distance our pursuers. But what good did it do, since we couldn't keep a northern course?

"At last by one of these cuts we left our pursuers so far behind that they couldn't strike us for at least an hour, or, rather, we thought we had left them, but some thirty of them got on to a shorter cut than we. Suddenly we came upon a ravine a couple of hundred feet deep and no way to cross. We must reach the other side by hook or by crook or be taken. As to getting the horses over, that was impossible. The captain looked about for a way to cross. Seeing a tall tree leaning toward the chasm, he ordered it cut down. We had nothing to cut with except our sabers, and it was probable that our chasers would come up before we got it hacked through. We worked lively, you may be sure, four men working at once—there wasn't room for more—and did the job in about three-quarters of an hour. The tree fell in the right direction, the branches lying on the other side of the chasm.

"But what was our horror when we were ready to cross to see the detached force I spoke of—it had crossed lower down—dash up on the other side to head us off. Every man of us slumped except the captain. He coolly counted the number of the enemy. There were thirty of them. We numbered about five more. The Confederates drew up in line about a hundred yards from the ravine to dispute our passage.

"The captain ordered us on to the log one man at a time. Our bridge was a round tree, the gap twenty feet wide and the chasm below about 200 feet deep. On the other side were thirty men ready to pick us off. A youngster of eighteen, reckless and brave as boys of that age are apt to be, started to run over the log. There was a cracking of carbines; the boy pitched headlong into the chasm. The second man got three-quarters of the way over when he met the same fate. I was close behind No. 3 when he too fell and came near dragging me down with him."

The veteran paused, while a look of pain from a mental vision of what had happened more than forty years agone passed over his face. Some one asked him how he felt.

"How did I feel? Oh, a lot of horror mingled with a lot of excitement. Somehow I didn't feel sure that I would meet the fate of the others, though there seemed to be no chance for me. My terror at the chasm below canceled that of being shot. When the man before me caused me to totter I got down on my hands and knees and, scuttling along, reached the branches of the tree. They screened me from the enemy. The man behind me was shot, but the next got across, and the next, and the next, for so appalled were the men firing on us or so astonished—I don't know which—at our exploit that some of them ceased firing, while others aimed badly.

"The captain came over about the middle of the line and, forming us on the farther side, we charged and scattered our enemies like chaff.

"Night came on, and we went into hiding. The next day we had good luck and reached camp without any more fighting. We lost our horses, but we got the information we went for. However, it didn't do any good, for Jackson was too foxy for our generals. The next heard of him he was turning McClellan's left flank near Richmond."

BEVERLY WORTHINGTON.

How He Happened to Get Rich.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"There are a great many 'blessings in disguise,'" said an old Californian when telling stories of the early days of the Golden State. "In fact, blessings usually come in disguise. Another adage akin to it is, 'It is the unexpected that happens,' and still another, 'It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good.' This group of sayings when boiled down means 'you can't tell unless you bet.'

"When I lost one of my eyes in a fight with an Indian I didn't know that, though I would suffer from not seeing murderous enemies on that side, inconveniences resulting in judging of distances and little things like that, the circumstance would lead to fortune, with its consequent comforts, independence and freedom from worry. Frisco was looming up in those days, and lots of the attendants of our superior civilization, such as logwood wines, poisonous patent medicines and such like, were being brought around the Horn and dumped on the settlers. Among other things, a Connecticut Yankee took out a lot of artificial limbs, teeth and glass eyes.

"As soon as I saw one of those eyes in a shop window it struck me as a means of restoring my departed good looks, for, though I was red headed and freckled, the girls all said that before my disfigurement I could rake 'em every time with the feeling I would throw into my blue orbs. You see, after the loss of one of 'em I had to concentrate all the expression into the other, which only half did the business. I went in, and the feller spent half an hour hunting for an eye to match the one in my head, finally being obliged to give me one of a few shades lighter blue than the other—in fact, it was rather a steel gray. When I got away from the shop and looked at it in a mirror it struck me that the devil was looking through it. It was the coldest blooded thing you ever saw. So long as I wore it I never ran the risk of losing the other one, for all I had to do was to cover a man with it to wilt him. I kept it for my enemies and my real eye for the girls.

"The accession of the Chinese developed the spirit of gambling among us, at the same time diminishing our funds. There was a gradual passing of our dust into the clothes of these varmints. In fact, it got so bad that I determined something had to be done. I had a plan, but no money to start a game with. But when I stated the case to two or three more prosperous friends they agreed to put up for me and give me all the winnings if I succeeded, they to stand all loss up to $1,000. What they wanted was to let the copper colored thieves know that they couldn't always win.

"A Chinaman named Ting Ling had won a lot of money from our crowd, and I invited him to have a small game with me. Before we sat down I put a patch over my glass eye. I wanted to seduce him with the heavenly blue of my natural one into a real noble game. I proposed to let him win for awhile, but that wasn't necessary. It was just as easy for him to hold five aces as a pair of threes. I just let him go on, betting light, till he had got half my pile. Then I got up between deals to find a match for lighting a cigar and before I returned to the table took out my 'devil spyglass,' as the boys called it, and laid it on a table on Ting Ling's right, letting down the patch over the empty socket in my head the same as before.

"It was a half hour before the rascal turned and saw it. At first I was afraid I had scared him off. I called his attention back to the cards by making a bigger bet than usual, but not for long. He kept looking sideways at the eye, and, as I had placed it just far enough behind him to look into his hand, I saw him holding his cards in a position to escape its glance. For awhile he kept on with his rascality, being very careful that the eye should not get a glimpse of his hands, but he at last got rattled and stopped cheating entirely. Every time he looked to his right there was that eye, with its devil's expression, staring at him and doubtless noting his every movement.

"The oftener he looked at it the more he got rattled. When I saw that the proper time had come, I did a little slight of hand myself and held some fine combinations. Ting Ling was hard to draw in, and I didn't win much money, but somehow he took it into his head that us Melicans had got on to the Chinese delicate methods, and after that game there was no more yellow sharping for a long while. I managed to rake $600 out of him when he got so rattled that he settled up as the game stood and got away from the eye.

"I was sailing out on to the street, when who should come along but Jim Rogers, who I supposed was off prospecting. 'Hello, Jim!' says I. 'Hello, Tom!' says he. 'Where you been?' I asked. 'In Calaveras county all the while,' says he. 'Any luck?' says I. 'Not a bit. Got a few specimens, but I don't suppose any of 'em is worth anything.' 'Let me see 'em,' says I. He pulled out a lot of rock clippings, and I looked 'em over. 'That one is live rock,' says I. 'No,' says he; 'is it?' 'Yes,' says I. 'I'll bet that will assay from $300 to $600 to the ton.'

"Jim was flat broke. I financed entering the claim with the money I had won, and we established the celebrated Glass Eye company, of which I owned half.

"It was a long while after the game I played with Ting Ling before any Chinaman would play with a white man." EDMUND S. SPINNEY.

Notice.

To CARL H. ASKE:

Whereas, heretofore and on the 7th day of December, A. D., 1997, you, the said Carl H. Aske, entered into a written contract with the undersigned, Oscar A. Bishop and Ella C. Bishop, for the purchase of the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section three [3] township one hundred fifty-three [153] north of range forty-three [43], except right-of-way of the St. Paul Sault Ste Marie Railway Co., and about three acres lying east of said track, said premises being situated in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and whereas, it was stipulated in and by said contract, that you, the said Carl H. Aske, should pay to the undersigned the sum of One Thousand Six Hundred [$1,6 0.00] dollars as the purchase price of said premises, payable at the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, as follows, to-wit: The sum of one hundred seventy-five [$175.00] dollars at or before the execution of said contract; the sum of four hundred twenty-five [$425.00] dollars on the 1st day of December, 1908, and the sum of one thousand [$1,000.00] dollars on the 1st day of December, 1909, together with interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, payable annually on the whole sum remaining from time to time unpaid, and to pay all taxes and impositions, that might be legally levied or imposed upon such land subsequent to year 1906. And whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of four hundred twenty-five [$425.00] dollars due according to the terms of said contract on the 1st day of December, 1908, and further default has been made by you in not paying the interest due on the 7th day of December, 1908, amounting to Ninety-nine and 75-100 [$99 75] dollars; and also in not paying taxes in the sum of Nine and 76-100 [$9.76] dollars, and whereas said contract contained a provision, that in case of the failure of you, said Carl H. Aske, to make either of the payments, or the interest thereon or any part thereof, or perform any of the covenants on your part, made and entered into, then, the whole of said payments and interest due thereon, should at the election of the undersigned become immediately due and payable and said contract should at the option of the undersigned be cancelled and determined and all the right, title and interest acquired thereunder by you should be forfeited, by giving to you thirty days notice in writing of the intention of the undersigned to cancel and determine said contract and to annul all right, title and interest, acquired thereunder by you; and whereas, said contract further provided, that 30 days is a reasonable and sufficient notice to be given, in case of your failure to perform any of the covenants contained in said contract and should be sufficient to cancel all obligations on the part of the undersigned and fully reinvest the undersigned with all the right, title and interest, agreed to be conveyed and that you, said Carl H. Aske, should forfeit all payments made by you on said contract and all your right, title and interest in all buildings and other improvements whatsoever, such payments and improvements, to be retained by the undersigned.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given to you, the said Carl H. Aske, that the undersigned did and hereby does elect and decide to cancel, terminate and forfeit said contract, and said contract will stand and be cancelled, terminated and forfeited on the 6th day of March, 1909, unless prior to that date, you comply with all the conditions and provisions of said contract and make said payments, so in default, to-wit: Four hundred twenty-five [$425.00] dollars principal, and interest in the sum of Ninety-nine and 75-100 [$99.75] dollars, and the further sum of Nine and 76-100 [$9.76] dollars taxes, and the costs and expenses of service of this notice. Payment of said principal, interest and taxes so in default, and costs, and expenses of service of this notice, may be made to the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, at any time prior to the 6th day of March, 1909.

A very sad case of insanity is that of Mrs. Philipina Klose who was taken to the hospital at Fergus Falls last Thursday night. Alfred Levick of Cloquet is undoubtedly a boy who had been stirred to action by the reading of nickel literature. The boy, who is fourteen years old, arrived in this city last week and stopped at the home of E. Normandeau. He said that he was bound for the "west" and told enough of his plans to arouse the suspicion that he was not doing what he should. Communication with the his parents revealed the fact that the boy had run away from home. He was held here at the request of his parents and taken to his home this week. The boy's parents formerly lived in Red Lake Falls.

The loud and noisy minstrel company of the high school made a loud and noisy noise at the opera house Monday night and the coons were a whole lot more fun than the Georgia grown variety. An imitation coon show is harder to give satisfactorily than any other form of entertainment, for the attention of the audience must be held without anything in particular to hold with. The boys performed their stunts in a very satisfactory and noisy manner. They realized a fair profit and the money will be used to make up a deficiency in the treasuary of the athletic association.

Yonkers (N. Y.) Statesman: J. Franklin Caveny delighted his audience last evening in the hall of the Woman's Institute with his rapid and artistic picture work. As fast as his hand could travel over the paper Mr. Caveny produced, in almost bewildering succession, various types of human countenance, transformations and landscapes. He did not depend alone upon his skill in caricature, but with the colored chalks produced beautiful scenes of land and water, day and night, winter and summer. Each step of his work was a surprise, and the interest and wonder of the audience increased to the end. The bright and entertaining talk with which Mr. Caveny accompanied his drawing was an added element of amusement and interest, and his evening was one of the best of the entire course. WHY NOT OWN LAND?

ONE OF THE BEST WAYS TO MAKE MONEY IS TO INVEST IN WESTERN CANADA.

"Deep down in the nature of every properly constituted man is the desire to own some land." A writer in the Iowa State Register thus tersely expresses a well-known truth. The question is where is the best land to be had at the lowest prices, and this the same writer points out in the same article. The fact is not disguised that the writer has a personal interest in the statement of his case, and there is no hidden meaning when he refers to Western Canada as presenting greater possibilities than any other part of the American Continent, to the man who is inclined to till the soil for a livelihood and possible competence. What interests one are the arguments advanced by this writer, and when fairly analyzed the conclusion is reached that no matter what personal interest the writer may have had, his reasons appear to have the quality of great soundness. The climatic conditions of Western Canada are fully as good as those of Minnesota, the Dakotas or Iowa, the productiveness of the soil is as great, the social conditions are on a parity, the laws are as well established and as carefully observed. In addition to these the price of land is much less, easier to secure. So, with these advantages, why shouldn't this—the offer of Western Canada—be embraced. The hundreds of thousands of settlers now there, whose homes were originally in the United States appear to be—are satisfied. Once in awhile complaints are heard, but the Canadians have never spoken of their country as an Eldorado no matter what they may have thought. The writer happened to have at hand a few letters, written by former residents of the United States, from which one or two extracts are submitted. These go to prove that the writer in the Register has a good basis of fact in support of his statements regarding the excellency of the grain growing area of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. On the 29th of April of this year W. R. Conley, of Lougheed, Alberta, wrote a friend in Detroit. He says: "The weather has been just fine ever since I came here in March, and I believe one could find if he wanted to some small bunches of snow around the edge of the lake. There is a frost nearly every morning: at sunrise it begins to fade away, then those blue flowers open and look as fresh as if there had been no frost for a week. . . . There is no reason why this country should not become a garden of Eden; the wealth is in the ground and only needs a little encouragement from the government to induce capital in here. There is everything here to build with: good clay for brick; coal underneath, plenty of water in the spring lakes, and good springs coming out of the banks."

Mabel's Wish.

Small Mabel—Mamma, they sell cream at a creamery, don't they?

Mamma—Yes, dear.

Small Mabel—If I were to buy some tan at a tannery, mamma, do you think they would throw in a few freckles?

Neurotic Jelly.

Little Wilbur was eating luncheon with his mother. Presently she noticed that he was eating his jelly with his spoon.

"Wilbur, dear," she said to him, "you must not eat your jelly with your spoon."

"I have to, mother," he replied.

"No, dear, you don't have to. Put your jelly on your bread."

"I did put it on my bread, mother," said Wilbur, "but it wouldn't stay there; it's too nervous."

A Domesticaed Princess.

The kaiser's new daughter-in-law who is a sister of the duchess of Saxe-Coburg and a niece of the kaiserin, is a very domesticated girl. She is not specially good looking nor is she very smart, but she is exceedingly amiable and capable. She has all her imperial aunt's love of home and has been carefully trained by her in all her views. Like her sister, the grand duchess of Saxe-Coburg, the Princess August is typically German and prefers German fashions, German literature, music and food. As a matter of fact, she has never been out of her native land and cannot speak any English. It is the kaiser's wish that all his sons should choose German wives, and so far they have done so.—Lady's Pictorial.

ROSY AND PLUMP

Good Health from Right Food.

"It's not a new food to me," remarked a Va. man, in speaking of Grape-Nuts.

"About twelve months ago my wife was in very bad health, could not keep anything on her stomach. The Doctor recommended milk half water but it was not sufficiently nourishing.

"A friend of mine told me one day to try Grape-Nuts and cream. The result was really marvelous. My wife soon regained her usual strength and to-day is as rosy and plump as when a girl of sixteen.

"These are plain facts and nothing I could say in praise of Grape-Nuts would exaggerate in the least the value of this great food."

HOW I GOT A HUSBAND

A Lonely Woman Reveals the Ingenious Schemes by Which She Gained Her Heart's Desire.

A husband and a home are the birthright of every woman, and if she forfeits them for a mess of pottage there is generally no one to blame but her indifferent or indolent self.

I have had two bites at the matrimonial cherry, and I know whereof I write. The first was in accordance with the time-honored custom of conventional society; the second was of my own making, and its success prompts me to "'fess up," as children say, that others may profit by it. When I think of the thousands of husbandless, homeless, heart-hungry women in this great city, wasting vitality in mad pursuit of careers, aging in the unequal struggle for bread, scattering their forces upon chimeras, I feel like crying out:

"Stop! Stop, before it is too late! Consecrate your misdirected energies upon getting a husband and a home, and both will be yours!"

A GOOD HUSBAND AND A GOOD HOME ARE WITHIN THE REACH OF EVERY WOMAN WHO TRULY DESIRES THEM AND IS WILLING TO BRING TO THE GAME THE SAME TACT, INDUSTRY AND VIGILANCE SHE SO UNHESITATINGLY GIVES TO WHAT SO LARGE A NUMBER OF NEW WOMEN ARE PLEASED TO CALL "THEIR WORK, THEIR DUTY."

I was once the loneliest, the hardest worked woman in New York, and in all probability I would still be a dray horse in the industrial army had I not suddenly awakened and looked life—my life—squarely in the face.

What had love, poetry, romance, brought me?

Nothing! Absolutely nothing but heartaches, gray hairs and eyes bloodshot with weeping over blasted hopes, shattered ideals. My first marriage was in an ecstacy of girlish love, which was quickly uprooted by the brutal heartlessness, the inhuman selfishness of the man of my parents approved, the church blessed and society deemed a paragon of domestic virtues. Pride kept me in bondage, until one day I found courage to revolt. I fled from my gilded cage and plunged into the work-a-day world.

Long and hard was the road I traveled until my husband died. Not a tear did death draw from me, for they had all been shed during my life with him. I was devoutly thankful when he was no more. God had joined us together, and never had I consented to man-made law putting us asunder. His death gave me a new lease of life. Being a woman of resource, I made various business ventures. But how few women, however clever or industrious, can earn more than a bare living; can really achieve anything worth while outside that kingdom for which they were originally created!

At first the novelty of the situation spurred me on. There was inspiration in independence, joy in the discovery that I, who had always been cared for and protected, could battle my own. But I came of a race of home makers.

The instinct of home and husband and children was stronger in me than love of independence, money or a career.

Try as I would, desire for a home, for companionship, would not be stifled. To the cheerless walls of the hall bedroom in which I found shelter at $8 a week I poured out my anguish. I was lonely! O God, how lonely!

How often since a home has been mine have I thought of the anguish of those days, anguish which countless women continue to suffer, beating out their hearts in like surroundings.

The social opportunities of the well bred, refined, educated woman thrown at mid-life upon her own resources in a great city are not conducive to matrimony. The more I realized the hopelessness of my situation, the more I hungered for husband and home. I felt that I deserved them; I had a right to them. I resolved I would have them.

But how was the seeming miracle to be accomplished?

The smart world I had known was no longer for me. I was past forty before I found an occupation that brought an income, which, to quote Mark Twain, "really came in." I originated the unique business of house opener. I opened and closed town and country houses and made them ready for occupancy.

Early in th eventure I went, in response to an advertisement, to an old homestead in Courtland park. While the agent was haggling over the price the owner came in.

"What fuss and feather!" said he. "I wager that the laborer is worthy of her hire. Give the price, my good man, and let's see what order and cleanliness the young woman will bring out of this worm-eaten pile.'

With a smile and a low redolent of old school gallantry he was in a room on the top floor of a Fift havenue boarding house.

He has asked the privilege to call and personally express his appreciation of the transformation I had wrought in his house. I had learned in the interval that while he had been a widower for many years he was likely at any moment to sit up and take notice.

I made no apology for the humble quarters in which he found me, but in the ease with which he took to my Morris chair and in the conversation which the open hearth, rose colored candles and tea brewed from a Russan samovar invited I had the man's character as no number of meetings in fashionable society would have given me. My mind travels quickly. Here, thought I, is an eminently respectable, agreeable, level-headed man, with the fires of youth spent.

He has been a wanderer over the face of the earth and he longs, without knowing it, for the anchorage of a home with a woman who will not before him and who will be comfortable to live with.

I made up my mind that I was the woman! How to make him see me in that light was the problem which I set to solve.

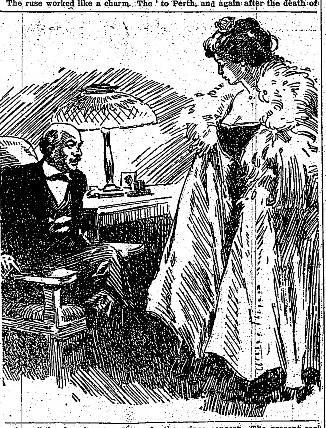
He had a few acquaintances outside of an exclusive business circle, and there were scarcely any women of his old set in town. I began kepeing tab upon his movements, as does a Wall street statistician on the rise and fall of the stock market. I devised all sorts of ways to attract him to my "sky parlor," until he realized that it was the most "comfy" nook in Gotham to smoke an after-dinner cigar or turn to his favorite books or magazines, which I never failed to have in ready reach. There was scarcely a commercial or political queston current that I had not at my tongue's end.

Now, when a man has passed fifty he needs spurring on. His blood does not surge with the impetuosity of youth the excitement of contest. I saw thatif I was to hold him I must not be too easily or too cheaply won. There must be a rival or two, but how to conjure them up? I had no men friends of the "drop in, take you out sort." My imagination and invention, however, served me well at this crucial point in my wooing.

Tony, the negro butler, was my slave, and never was a Cleopatra better served. It was to Tony I intrusted visiting cards of men I knew, had known or was likely to know—men who stood for something in business or society. Obedient to instructions, scarcely had my one and only caller cuddled for the evening in his favorite chair than Tony appeared on the threshold with a card, which I took with ill concealed annoyance and read aloud to my guest.

Invariably Tony was instructed to convey to the gentleman below my profound regrets that a previous engagement prevented me from seeing him.

The ruse worked like a charm. The vanity of the favorite was flattered, while his interest was quickened. Visiting cards were varied by notes written by myself and delivered at a psychological moment by an A. D. T. messenger. The notes were usually an invitation to a dinner or to the theater. Before answering them I had a way of deferring to the occupant of the Morris chair, who rarely failed to forstall his imaginary rival by making then and there an engagement for the specified date, thereby enabling me to reply in good faith that acceptance was impossible. Occasionally the "sky parlor" was fragrant with flowers, bought, alas! out of my hard earned pennies. A billet doux half hid in the heart of a rose never failed to pique a curiosity which I never found convenient to appease.



And now I am going to confess what will seem to some of my readers an unpardonable ruse. Of the beauty of my neck and shoulders I had a justifiable vanity. It was not probable that the widower and I would ever meet at a social gathering where decollette gowns were worn, and yet I longed to display my chief charms. To this end I was not at home one evening when he called. In my absence Tony ushered him as usual to the "sky parlor," assuring him I would return shortly.

When the time limit was up he heard a froufrou on the stairs and then, flushed with the joy of an imaginary social triumph, I swept into the room and, throwing off my evening wrap, stood forth in a decollette gown, concocted out of past finery for this quasi society event!

Old-fashioned sentimentalists, strong-minded moderns, don't be shocked! Don't dub me "coarse," "common," "vulgar," "indecent," for neither my husband nor my friends would recognize me in such company. But then they do not know what I am telling to you; perhaps if they did—well, it's too late, for I bagged my game fairly and squarely, as any sportsman in the field, and I have no hesitancy in saying that it was the happiest day of my life when I went from my self-made nest under Fifth avenue eaves to the old Courtland mansion as its owner's lawfully wedded wife.

In the seven years since we were married neither of us has had cause to regret and probably never shall, for ours is a union based on common sense, a common need. Our house is in every sense a home, and we are cited as a model of conjugal felicity, but what is more to the point, WE ARE HAPPY.

ANCIENT SCONE PALACE.

Modern Improvements in the Crowning Place of Scotch Kings.

One of the finest old Scottish residences is Scone palace, near Perth, the ancient center of the Pictish capital, former crowning place of the kings of Scotland, and now the residence of the Earl of Mansfield, representative of the ancient family of Stormont.

Although the old abbey of Scone was destroyed several hundred years ago and the site is now occupied by a comparatively modern building, much of ancient association has been preserved and the palace is still a noble and venerable looking pile, its dull red castellated towers backed by luxuriant woods and facing over stretches of rolling green park, the meeting place of the Almond and Tay.

The great gallery at Scone, which is 160 feet long, occupies the place of the old hall where kings were crowned in days of yore the coronation of Charles II. having taken place there in 1651 and that of the Chevalier St. George in "the fifteen." Among the valued relics of the house are the old four-post bed used by James VI. and another with hangings of richly wrought velvet, said to have been the work of the fair but ill fated Queen Mary during her imprisonment at Lochleven.

Even of later years Scone has been honored by the visits of royalty, her late majesty Queen Victoria having paid quite a long visit at the palace in 1842, the occasion of her first visit to Perth, and again after the death of the prince consort. The present earl has done wonders for the palace in the way of introducing modern improvements, both within and without, and bringing the domestic arrangements up to date in every way.

Only One Pupil in School District.

Johnny Jergensen, eleven years of age, probably occupies the most peculiar position of any pupil under the public school system in the United States. He is the only child of school age in the district near Kettle Falls, Ferry county, Washington, and has a teacher all to himself.

The instructor is M. R. Honeyman, formerly of Spokane, who took charge of the school early this month. There were three pupils at the beginning of the term, soon after which the parents of two of them moved out of the district taking their children with them. The district is regularly organized and has a school board, with chairman, secretary and treasurer.

It also has ample funds to its credit and in addition to this the state makes an appropriation of seven cents a school day in the year for each pupil. This is the highest appropriation of any state in the Union.

QUEER OLD ENGLISH LAWS.

Acts of Parliament That Were Severe on Railroads.

Some of the provisions of acts of parliament relating to railroads in their early days seem very curious to us now.

The Great Western Railroad Company was specially forbidden by act of parliament to build a railroad within three miles of Eton college without the consent of the provost and fellows.

More singular still was a provision that the company should maintain at its own expense a number of watchmen to insure that no Eton boy got on the line. The Great Western Company actually observed this obligation for more than 40 years.

The "vice-chancellor," the proctor and pro-proctors for the time being of the university of Oxford, the heads of colleges and halls and the marshal of the said university," and persons appointed by them, have to this day, under the Great Western railroad act of 1843, the right of free access "to every depot or station for the reception of passengers proceeding by the trains on the said railway," and can demand information "with reference to any passenger or person having passed or applying to pass upon the said railway who shall be a member of such university or suspected of being such." The penalty upon any person refusing access or information is $25.

So recently as 1862 the Cambridge university authorities put the Great Eastern railroad under obligation by a clause in their act of that year "not to take up or to set down passengers at Cambridge station, or at any place within three miles thereof between the hours of 10 a. m. and 5 p. m. on any Sunday," the penalty for a breach being $25 a passenger.

"It shall not be lawful for the railway company to use any locomotive engine upon the railway within the town of Liverpool," enacts the Liverpool and Manchester railroad act of 1826; but the why and wherefore of this drastic enactment do not appear, even in a preamble.

An amusing enactment is contained in clause 16 of the Liverpool and Manchester railroad act of 1892, which provides that "no steam engine shall be set up in the township of Burtonwood or Winwick, and no locomotive shall be allowed to pass along the line within these townships which shall be considered by Thomas Lord Lilford or by the rector of Winwick to be a nuisance or annoyance to them from the noise or smoke thereof."—Railway Magazine.

Sound Philosophy.

Of all methods of making another person angry and disagreeable the worst is to tell him that he will "have to" do something. How often do we hear: "You will have to go to the other window," "you will have to go into the other car," "you will have to wait an hour," "you will have to write the general passenger agent or superintendent," and the like. Primarily we are all free agents and don't "have to" do a darned thing. We may find it expedient or necessary to a certain end, but we don't even "have to" eat if we don't want to.

How easy to put the direction in an other manner, such as: "The other window, please," or "will you kindly take the car ahead," or "the rules require," a short, very short, explanation of why a certain thing is necessary will always work wonders in avoiding trouble.—Railroad Employe.

Busy Railway Stations.

A claim has been made that the suburban traffic at the Flinders street station exceeds that of any other station in the world, for the reason that while there are many larger cities than Melbourne the railway traffic in them is distributed over various stations in the hands of different companies, says the British Australian. Mr. Valentine of the railway department has collected some statistics giving the normal traffic at several important stations. Flinders street heads the list with 150,000 passengers a day, and the Liverpool street station (London) comes next with 128,000 passengers a day. This statement, however, is at variance with that given by the general manager of the Great Eastern Company recently, who puts the number of passengers at Liverpool street daily at about 180,000.

Third-Rail System for Tunnels.

After building several experimental single-phase locomotives and thoroughly trying them out with various trolley constructions over an experimental five-mile track, equipped with various forms of trolley constructions the Pennsylvania railroad has decided to adopt a third-rail direct-current system for its tunnels under New York city. Three-phase 25-cycle current will be supplied at 11,000 volts from Long Island City, and at various sub-stations it will be converted into 600 volts direct-current. Steel motor cars and trailers will be used for the suburban traffic, while electric locomotives will be used for through trains. The design of these locomotives has not as yet been definitely decided upon.—Scientific American.

Ran Gantlet of Fire.

Passengers on a southbound Hocking valley passenger train had a narrow escape from death when the train going at full speed ran into a burning trestle near Creton, says a Gallipolis, O., dispatch. When the engineer saw the danger he dashed the throttle wide open and dashed safely over the 60-foot structure that was a blazing mass of timbers. The fireman jumped and was injured, but not fatally.

PATIENT SUFFERING.

Many Women Think They Are Doomed to Backache.

It is not right for women to be always ailing with backache, urinary ills, headache and other symptoms of kidney disease. There is a way to end these troubles quickly. Mrs. John H. Wrght, 606 East First St., Mitchell, S. D., says: "I suffered ten years with kidney complaint and a doctor told me I would never get more than temporary relief. A dragging pain and lameness in my back almost disabled me. Dizzy spells came and went and the kidney secretions were irregular. Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of these troubles and I feel better than for years past."

Little William had planted some castor beans in the back yard, and as usual they grew very rapidly. Every day he would take note how much they grew. One day, while William, his father and mother were seated at the dinner table, William became silent and thoughtful, and after looking a long while at his mother, then at his father, turning to both in turn, he remarked: "Mamma, you're not growing — only me and the castor beans."

BREAKS A COLD PROMPTLY

The following formula is a never failing remedy for colds:

One ounce of Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, one ounce Toris Compound and one-half pint of good whiskey, mix and shake thoroughly each time and use in doses of a tablespoonful every four hours.

This if followed up will cure an acute cold in 24 hours. The ingredients can be gotten at any drug store.

Good Pay, Short Hours.

A certain cottage an its old mistress had improved so greatly in comfort and appearance that a visitor shrewdly surmised that the son of the house, a lazy ne'er-do-well, had turned over a new leaf. He inquired about it.

"Yes, sir, my son's in work now," said the smiling old mother. "Takes good money, he does too. All he has to do is to go twice a day to the circus and put his head in the lion's mouth. The rest of his time 'e 'as to himself."

TRY THIS FOR COLDS

Mix half ounce of Concentrated pine compound with two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of good whiskey; shake it well each time and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours.

These ingredients can be obtained from any good druggist who will prepare the mixture, or it can be mixed at home.

This is said to be the quickest cough and cold cure known to science, and at the same time it has a splendid tonic effect which benefits the whole system. The Concentrated pine is a special pine product refined for medical use and comes only in half ounce bottles, each enclosed in a round case, which is air-tight, to retain all the original strength of the fluid, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated."

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

The Trouble with Meeker

By ELLIOTT WALKER

(Copyright, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

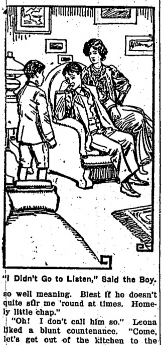
"If we could only get rid of Edison Peck, we might be able to scrump along until something turns up," complained Justin Meeker. "He eats so," was his mournful addition.

Leona Meeker eyed her unfortunate husband with a mixture of pity, concern and a shade of contempt. She nodded, then shook her head. It seemed impossible to get rid of Edison Peck.

The boy had fastened upon the too hospitable Meekers with the confidence and appetite of a leech. He was lively, opinionated, independent and shyly affectionate. For a year the youthful Edison had resided under the roof of Justin and Leona. Their original generosity was not intended to exceed a month. Edison, forlorn and tearful at the grave of his widowed mother—a sight to move the sternest hearts—was not the Edison of to-day. Then he was only a homeless youngster, red-eyed and appealing. Now he seemed to think a goodly portion of the earth was his, demanding a share with bright, aggressive stares and much activity of movement. Every one spoke of him as Edison Peck. Any shortening of his title was, for some unknown reason, felt to be inappropriate.

"He won't take hints," said Leona. "I'm fond of the boy. He's willing to do anything, always cheerful, never whines, but, as you say, there's the expense. He acts as if we belonged to him. I've made suggestions enough to drive off any one with a mite of proper understanding, but he goes right ahead, never thinking of the application. Dear me!"

"Good boy, of course," assented Justin. "I sort of like his freshness; it's so well meaning. Blest if he doesn't quite stir me 'round at times. Homely little chap."



"I Didn't Go to Listen," Said the Boy.

"Oh! I don't call him so." Leona liked a blunt countenance. "Come, let's get out of the kitchen to the parlor. I guess this is the fifth time we'll have set there wondering how to plan for bread and butter. I'm used to it, but I can't comprehend why a smart man like you is forever out of a job."

Her voice was even and sweet, though the brown eyes held a sadness as she led her husband through the small dining room to the "parlor" and moved his easy chair to where he liked to sit.

"I don't," rejoined Justin rather weakly. "Every time I start in first rate. I'm liked, and can do the work; but after a while things begin to drag. I come to a standstill, labor in a rut, doing my tasks properly, but as things become easy through practice, my interest goes. Nothing to agitate me as in the beginning for fear I can't keep up. And my employers give me no advance. It's like climbing a hill, quietly to sit on the top for a while and then—well, then I'm pleasantly shoved off to climb somebody else's hill. No hard feelings, or real fault to find; that's the way it goes, Leona. I always get a good recommendation and a new place. Honestly, I don't see where I'm to blame, do you?"

"No!" returned Leona, woefully. "People do not appreciate you, dear. After all your hard work to get settled, the mean creatures change their minds for no reason whatever. That's demonstrated by the manner in which they treat you. Folks never give good words and a money present if they don't feel obliged to for a salving of guilty consciences."

"That's so," replied Justin. "My record's clean. Well, there is nothing to do but wait for a suitable opening, make this $100 of 'salve' go as far as possible, and—Edison Peck."

They tried to smile at this unintentional stroke of wit.

"Here!" piped a shrill voice from the stairs. "If you're talkin' about me, I'm comin' in. You folks speak too loud. I heard every word."

"Perhaps it's as well." Meeker's frown faded as the eavesdropper's round visage peered at them from the doorway. His wife laughed. There was no sort of use in reprimanding Edison Peck.

"I didn't go to listen," said the boy. "I just happened to hear Mr. Meeker say that about startin' in."

"You—you didn't overhear us in the kitchen?" Mrs. Meeker spoke rather tremulously.

"Nope! I was coming downstairs. Why?"

"No matter. All you know is that Mr. Meeker is looking for another place?"

"Yes'm, and I know the reason."

"What!" exclaimed Justin, sharply.

The lad eyed him steadily as he walked into the room.

"You warn't worth keepin'," he said, boldly. "You was stalled. A feller's got to be a pacemaker, nowadays, to get anywheres. 'Tain't what he's done, or what he's doin' in a hole. It's what folks see he's good for, and is goin' to do in spite of 'em all. You've done right by others, but you ain't done right by yourself. You stopped pushin'. Don't you see that? They see it, and that minute you was put down as one of them as would be comin' along behind."

"Edison Peck!" the exclamation of Mrs. Meeker rang wrathfully. "Not another word. The idea of such impudence and audacity from you. Why! you're not out of short trousers yet. What are you thinking of?"

"Of you and Mr. Meeker," blurted the boy. "I can see and read and hear, can't I? Ain't I one of the family, with a word to say out of my own thoughts? I tell you he's got it in him and he don't know it."

"Go out!" cried Leona, aghast at what to her, sounded an unforgivable insult.

But Justin Meeker lifted a detaining hand as the tousled head turned toward the door.

"Wait!" he said. "Come here, Edison. Sit down. There! Who has been telling you this? Let him alone, my dear. Some malicious tongue has been busy as usual. Now, my boy, go ahead. What have you heard said?"

"Nothin' much. Mis' Meeker doesn't understand. Neither do you. It's all myself and hard pushin' to say, with her gettin' mad, but I ain't through yet. I'll keep a blowin' it out and get atop of wanting to back down."

Tears were starting in the anxious orbs of Edison; his lips quivered, but his jaw set, determinedly, as he clutched the chair's rungs. He looked like one bracing for the extraction of a tooth.

"I say you've got it in you and you don't know it," he bolted. "Didn't you give yourself dead away talkin'? 'Spose I'd hire a man who said what you did to Mis' Meeker and expect him to last? He couldn't. Why, he just couldn't last."

Justin was gazing thoughtfully at the floor.

"What is it I don't know?" he asked, quietly.

"How to kick yourself into doin' more than you're asked to do," said Edison Peck, solemnly. "That's what! If you was in business on your own hook, it would be pinch and worry and fret and reach up, shovin' by others, learnin' their ways, graspin' chances to get ahead, makin' yourself a boss in the crowd and then not stoppin'. Oh! you'd be agertated then, I guess, for fear of bustin' up, or lettin' others skate by you. You make circles on the ice, you do, when you ought to be pluggin' across the pond. There!"

He paused, red and panting. Meeker was biting his lip. Something about "children and fools" crossed his mind. He laughed nervously.

"I declare!" said Leona, hoarsely.

"He's right!" ejaculated her husband. "I've thought the same thing, my dear—about—well, you understand."

"Where are you going?" said Leona, as Meeker grabbed his hat.

"Out," returned that gentleman, hastily. "Blazewell and Company are short-handed, I heard. Hard men to work for—but—"

Leona lost the rest.

"Dear me!" she said to her disturbed soul. "I've thought so, too—about—that."

"I guess we'll have to give Meeker an interest, Manton," remarked the gray-haired manufacturer to his partner three years later.

"Exactly what I want," replied the other, warmly. "Can't get along without Justin. He knows every detail of the business. Remember that evening he came in and got off our stuck trial balance? Worked all night."

"I do," old Blazewell grinned. "Books didn't hold him long. How he did push! One couldn't keep him back. Nice fellow to get on with, isn't he? And Slager said he wouldn't last. Slager's a fool. Last? Why! If that man isn't a laster I never saw one. Who is that stocky young chap who comes in to see him?"

"Edison Peck. He lives with 'em. A great hustler, I've been told. Just graduated from the high school at the head of his class. Means to work his way through college, Meeker says. Justin swears by that boy. Say, how about a fortnight in Maine this fall?"

"Together? We-ll! I suppose Meeker can run matters, all right."

Manton laughed.

"Better than we can," said he. "You needn't worry about anything stopping, Blazewell. That man doesn't seem to know what letting up means."

Answer This Question

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured numerous cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are two letters which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Red Banks, Miss.—"Words are inadequate to express what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from a female disease and weakness which the doctors said was caused by a fibroid tumor, and I commenced to think there was no help for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman after all other means had failed. My friends are all asking what has helped me so much, and I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Willie Edwards.

Hampstead, Maryland.—"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and nervous, and could not be on my feet half a day without suffering. The doctors told me I never would be well without an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors, and I hope this valuable medicine may come into the hands of many more suffering women."—Mrs. Joseph H. Dandy.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

The Man of Melancholy.

Chamonix is a little village in a valley of the same name surrounded by the Swiss Alps. The chief occupation of the young men of Chamonix is that of guide to tourists.

One of these guides, William Lubken, came home one evening from conducting a stranger on a mountain climbing expedition without his charge. He reported that the stranger had been caught in an avalanche and carried over a precipice. Lubkin at the beginning of the snow's movement, which was slow, had succeeded in reaching a rock, to which he clung. The rope by which climbers are always united broke, and the stranger had been borne away from him. The broken part of the rope he showed in evidence of his story.

Albert Twingle started a suspicion that Lubkin had cut the rope to save himself; that Lubken had frayed the cut part to show that it had been broken. This suspicion grew till it was believed by many of the villagers, though the guides who at any time might be liable to the same charge would not hear of it. Lukben never recovered from the obloquy cast upon him. He left Chamonix, and the place knew him no more.

One day twenty years later a traveler with white hair and beard came to Chamonix. All the guides were anxious to be employed by him, but he engaged none of them. He sat all day looking up at the mountains and the glaciers, apparently suffering from melancholy. While he was at Chamonix a traveler appeared and asked for a guide. Albert Twingle, now nearing an age when guides usually give up a calling requiring both nerve and strength, was engaged. He started with the traveler to explore the Mer de Glace. In the evening Twingle returned and reported that while the stranger was attempting to look down into a crevasse the ice had broken and he had fallen between the cold jaws. When he told the harrowing story to the assembled people the man of melancholy—a name given to the unknown stranger—was sitting, as usual, on the porch of his hotel. He spoke the first words he was known to speak since coming to Chamonix.

"You lie! You have murdered and robbed him!"

Twingle was horror stricken at the accusation, but could not prove that it was false. The other guides took up the matter in his behalf, and it was agreed that one of their number should be lowered into the crevasse to bring up the body. The lot fell to one named Obers, and the next morning all went to the crevasse, the man of melancholy going with them. The sacrament had been administered to Obers before his dangerous descent, and as he was about to put the rope about his waist the man of melancholy seized it and, encircling his own waist, said:

"Do you think I am a coward to make this charge without bearing the brunt of a conviction or an acquittal."

There was something about the man which, surprised as they were at a mere traveler volunteering to undergo such an ordeal, awed those looking on. They were a superstitious people, and many of them crossed themselves, thinking that he who made the offer was some guide returned from his white tomb under an avalanche or the devil himself. No one opposed him, and, having placed the rope around his waist, taking a bell in one hand and an alpenstock in the other to push himself from the sharp ice edges, he was slowly lowered into the crevasse. Three times he rang his bell and each time was raised and revived from suffocation. More and more the rope was paid out, while the women prayed and the men listened for some sound from below. Six hundred feet had been paid out when there came a jerk on the rope, and the men began to pull.

The weight was doubled.

There was breathless silence while the men pulled, but when the man of melancholy came to the surface bearing a human body a shout arose from among the onlookers that long reverberated among the surrounding cliffs. The tourist's watch and money were found on the body. Twingle was innocent.

The people crowded around Twingle to congratulate him, but he broke away from them and strode toward the stranger.

"In heaven's name, who are you?" he cried.

"Who am I? I am the man whom years ago you accused of cutting the rope that bound me to my charge. I am William Lubkin."

Had an avenging angel come from heaven to punish Twingle the scene could not have been more awe inspiring than the sight of this man who had vindicated the name of one who had blighted his life. Twingle's eyes fell to the ground; his head sank upon his breast; then, staggering, he left both his vindicator and his friends and descended alone into the valley.

Silently the people gathered around the man of melancholy. Some of the older ones took his hand and kissed it, while the younger ones looked on awe stricken. Finally an old man who had known Lubkin when a boy said:

"This is an awful revenge, William. It would have been more merciful if you had driven a knife into his breast."

Lubkin made no reply. Turning from the faces that were all toward his, he walked down alone toward Chamonix. But if he went there no one saw him enter the town, and he was never seen there again.

MISERY IN STOMACH.

And Indigestion Vanishes in Five Minutes and You Feel Fine.

Why not start now—today, and forever rid yourself of Stomach trouble and Indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, one triangule will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Dirpepsin works your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decided to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of Indigestion. 15-18

Silenced Him.

A shrewd looking individual stood in front of a jeweler's window in Regent street, gazing at a peculiar sort of clock. The affable shopman was standing in the doorway.

"That's a funny clock," said the man. "What do you call it?"

"A spring lever chronometer," was the reply, "and it will run for four hundred days without winding."

"A very long time!" exclaimed the man. Then he said quizzically: "I say, how long do you suppose it would go if you were to wind it?"—Illustrated Bits.

Bargains in Used Steinway Pianos.

If you know of anyone who wishes very good piano at a moderate cost he will be interested in the fact that just at the present time the well-known music house of Lyon & Healy, Chicago, have a large salesroom entirely filled with used Steinway Uprights. These Steinways embrace a wide variety of styles. All of them, of course, are Steinways and all of them are in fine condition, but there is a great difference in the cost.

Besides these instruments Lyon & Healy are also now offering at a great Rebuilding Clearing sale, the pianos formerly owned by the Thompson Music Co., the Healy Music Co., and the big Thearle Piano Co., as well as their own stock. You can secure a fine instrument at 20 to 40 per cent less than usual prices.

These pianos will be sold either for cash or upon very easy monthly payments. Freight on an upright piano is only a matter of a few dollars. All of these instruments are fully guaranteed to be exactly as represented. The opportunity to secure one will undoubtedly be taken advantage of by the shrewd buyers in this vicinity.

A letter to Lyon & Healy, 10 Adams street, Chicago, will bring full particulars.

Art Exhibit, Court House, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, next week.

COUNTY'S VALUE AND ITS TAXES

Total Assessed Valuation is $3,724,306.00—Total Tax is $159,021.06.

The total valuation—the assessed valuation—of Red Lake county property, personal and real, for the year 1908 is $3,724,306.00. Of course those figures are conservative for they do not include the value of lost articles and articles of personal property are so liable to be "lost" in the spring. The total tax levy is $159,021.06.

Grady a Conspirator (?)

The Thief River Falls News says that there is a rumor in circulation to the effect that Ole J. Vaule, of Crookston, and Frank A. Grady of Red Lake Falls, have entered into a combination and are to oppose Judges Watts and Grindeland at the next election.

LOST BOY.

50 Dollars Reward for Information Leading to Whereabouts.

The Ortonville Herald-Star requests newspapers to give publicity to the following:

TURNER ART EXHIBIT

Two Hundred Beautiful Pictures Are Shown at the Court House.

The beautiful pictures of the Turner Art Collection are on exhibition at the court house and may be seen any afternoon or evening until the end of the week.

There are in the collection 200 reproductions ranging in size from two to eighteen square feet. Some are in Turner Brown, others in black, while many are as near the original colors as modern printers' art can make them—and that's pretty close. The total amount of picture surface is about 1600 square feet.

The cost to adults is fifteen cents for single admission and fifty cents for a season ticket; to children ten cents for single admission and twenty-five cents for season tickets. Season tickets are not transferable.

Little Lester Garceau is ill with preumonia.

RED LAKE COUNTY WINS SOME MORE

First Prize in Butter Scoring Contest in State Convention at Montevideo.

Gold Medal Awarded to Buttermaker Geo. Austin of St. Hilaire Creamery.

George Austin of the St. Hilaire creamery got first prize in the butter scoring contest conducted at the state dairymen's convention held at Montevideo last week. The prize is a gold medal. There are a few—a very few—prizes that are not coming to Red Lake county.

SEEK REHEARING OF CASE

Duluth Men Are Interested In View of Tonnage Tax.

Applications for the rehearing of the wide open tax amendment was filed with the clerk of the supreme court Saturday. Justice Elliot of the court filed a decision recently which held that the amendment was carried at the general election of 1906. This ruling reversed the decision of the district court of St. Louis county.

The petition was accompanied by a statement of the grounds on which the rehearsing is asked, signed by H. H. Phelps and C. O. Baldwin, and by a separate argument filed by J. L. Washburn of Duluth. It is believed that the dissenting opinion of Justice Brown led the St. Louis men to be interested in the case and to attempt to get a rehearing. The amendments is of special interest to the people of the northern county, as it opens a way for tonnage tax on iron ore.

Another point the court is asked to consider is the claim that the election was void as to the tax amendment, because the sheets had the amendments in an order different from that of the ballot.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN EPITOME

Important Events at Home and on Foreign Shores Briefly Told.

WASHINGTON.

A bill to extend the franking privilege to Mrs. Grover Cleveland, widow of the late president, has been introduced by Senator Penrose.

A match dropped into a bunch of newspapers on the floor in Speaker Cannon's room, just as a caller was leaving, caused a blaze to spring up that made it exceedingly warm in the speaker's quarters. Little damage was done.

The navy department has approved the court-martial proceedings at Boston by which Commander Charles C. Marsh was convicted of running the cruiser Yankee aground at Buzzard's bay on Sept. 23. He is the son-in-law of Admiral Robley D. Evans. The court sentenced him to lose forty numbers, but the department reduced it to twenty-five on account of previous good service.

The naval construction program for four battleships of the first class was cut in two by the house committee on naval affairs when it voted for but two battleships in 1909. There is a concession to the president in that the two ships authorized are to be of the 26,000-ton type, greater by 6,000 tons displacement than the Dreadnaughts now buildings; greater, in fact, than any fighting ships afloat.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT.

Mrs. Marie French, well known in theatrical circles, died suddenly at Hot Springs, Ark., of heart disease.

President Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to attend the midwinter dinner of the Gridiron club in Washington Jan. 30.

Otis Eddy Wood, who took the first telegraph message by sound, died at his home at Etna, N. Y., aged seventy-seven years. Mr. Wood was at one time associated with Prof. Samuel F. B. Morse in the promotion of the telegraph.

Peter MacQueen, traveler and lecturer, a personal friend of the president, told Mr. Roosevelt about the country he will visit in Africa this year. He said the president would be lavishly entertained at various points of his journey.

Capt. John Barr, who sailed the yacht Thistle when the Scottish challenger for the America's cup was defeated by the Volunteer in 1887, is dead at his home in Marblehead, Mass. He was sixty-three years old and a brother of Charles Barr, the skipper of the Columbia and Reliance of cup defense fame.

SINS AND SINNERS.

An attempt was made to wreck the north-bound Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger train at Boonville, Mo.

In a fight with burglars Marshal J. B. Rickey of Clarence, Mo., was shot and killed, and his son Sam was shot in the side of the face.

Anna M. Allen, assistant supervisor of music in Seattle, who trudged to school in the snow, fell dead of apoplexy in the presence of her pupils.

A reduction of 5 cents a hundred pounds has been made in the price of "confectioners' A" grade of refined sugar. No change in other grades.

Timothy Kimme, a blacksmith at Westfield, Iowa, killed himself by a revolver shot in the temple. Family troubles and dissipation were the causes.

A steel rail was placed upon the track, but fortunately the train struck it in such a manner as to kick it clear of the track. The pilot on the engine was demolished.

Julius K. Dillman, said to be the most successful manipulator of bogus bank checks in the country, was arrested at Pittsburg, charged with passing a bogus check at a department store.

Edmund Burke, who posed as a British nobleman, was sentenced to three years in the Leavenworth (Kan.) penitentiary and fined $1,000 on a charge of impersonating a federal officer at St. Louis.

Frank M. Chaplin, Mittie E. Chaplin, Washington Wilson and Margaret A. Wilson were arrested at Los Angeles, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government by spiriting away a witness in a land contest hearing.

In the arrest of Jim Powell, a negro, Birmingham officers believe they have captured one of the most desperate criminals that operated in Alabama. He is charged with seven distinct murders and numerous highway robberies.

Because she returned to her husband, from whom she had been separated, Mrs. Lizzie Harbin, the mother of seven children, was shot and killed at her home in Washington by Frederick J. Kraemer. Kraemer then killed himself.

The body of Frank Corbett, a well known and rich farmer at Eldora, Iowa, who disappeared on Saturday, was found in a vacant feed yard at Eldora. Corbett had committed suicide by shooting. Relatives, citizens and officers have been searching everywhere for him.

MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE

REVIEW OF THE MOST IMPORTANT WORK OF THE STATE LEGISLATORS FOR THE WEEK.

St. Paul, Jan. 14.—A joint committee of the legislature will draw up a bill for the new department of lands, mines and forests, according to a concurrent resolution introduced by Senator Works, which went over until today.

Investment companies which promise 6 or 12 per cent a month will be required to deposit a real estate bond amounting to $200,000 before they can do business in Minnesota, according to the bill of Senator Works. They will also be under the supervision of the bank examiner.

Loan sharks will find it more difficult to fleece salaried men if a bill introduced yesterday becomes a law. It provides that no assignment of future wages shall be valid unless accepted by the employer. Married men must get the consent of their wives to assignments.

In the House.

Members of the railroad and warehouse commission and their agents and employes will not be privileged to ride on passes, if the bill introduced by Representative Spooner becomes a law. Another feature of the bill amending the anti-pass law is that letter carriers may be carried free.

A resolution for a committee to instruction of the new steel plant at Duluth was offered yesterday. Information is desired as to how far the Steel corporation has gone toward fulfilling its promise made to the legislature two years ago.

St. Paul, Jan. 15.—Senator Pauly yesterday offered a bill providing for non-partisan nomination and election of district and probate judges. He would have a separate ticket for judges at the primaries and omit party designations after the names of nominees at the general election.

The resolution introduced by Senator Works Wednesday, providing for a joint committee to draw up a bill for the new department of lands, mines and forests, was yesterday referred to the judiciary committee.

The state will employ track walkers to inspect the roadway, bridges and rolling stock of the railways of the state, if a bill sent to the senate yesterday becomes a law.

Two bills providing for pensions for citizen soldiers in the Indian outbreaks of 1862 were introduced yesterday.

Senator Nelson offered a bill providing for a 10 per cent income tax on iron ore royalties, to be levied on owners and lessors of iron ore lands.

In the House.

The house yesterday adopted a resolution providing for a committee of five to investigate the packing plants at South St. Paul to ascertain whether those concerns are engaged in a combination in restraint of trade.

The time of the primary election is changed form the third Tuesday in September to the second Tuesday in June in a bill introduced by Representative Sangstad.

A bill proposing a constitutional amendment by which railroad companies may be assessed for local improvements, just as other property owners are, was offered by Representative Nimocks.

A bill by Representative Holmberg appropriates $10,000 for practical instruction for students of the forestry school of the state university and for experiments in preserving and creosoting timber.

A 5 per cent penalty upon corporations that fail to pay employes promptly is provided in a bill presented yesterday. The bill requires them to pay twice a month or pay the penalty.

Bounties for the killing of all kinds of destructive animals are provided for in a bill handed in by Representative Rustad.

Licenses are required for dining cars and buffet cars which sell liquor in a bill offered by Representative Elmer Adams. The license is $100.

Minors are prohibited from playing ten pins or boxball in any bowling alley connected with a saloon, in a bill introduced by Mr. Mork.

A bill for the establishment of county agricultural schools was introduced by Representative Johnson. Any county may establish such a school at a cost of not over $15,000. The school is to be governed by a county school board of five members.

A stamp tax on board of trade sales is provided in a bill introduced by Representative Thayer. The tax is 1 cent on each $100 on all sales or agreements of sale of any products at any exchange or board of trade, whether for present or future delivery. The tax goes to the state treasury.

* * *

St. Paul, Jan. 16.—Abolition of the forestry board, the forestry commissioner, the immigration commission and the timber board, and the formation of a board of public lands is contemplated in a bill introduced by Senator Works. The bill creates a board of three members at $5,000 a year, appointed by the governor.

Free rides on street cars for policemen, firemen and mail carriers in uniform is provided in a bill by Senator McColl.

Payment of a $2 fine for failure to vote at primary or general election in Minnesota is provided for in a bill by Senator Witherstine.

Township drainage is contemplated in a bill by Senator Clague. This is similar to a law passed two years ago and declared unconstitutional. Students of the state forestry school are to be paid a total of $10,000, according to a bill by Senator Sundberg. It is an annual appropriation to be used for the labor of students.

Another Indian outbreak pension bill was presented yesterday by Senator Calhoun.

In the House.

A bundle of claims, about twenty-five in number, and involving about $115,000, was presented in the house yesterday by Representative Spooner. The claims represent alleged damage to crops and lands in Traverse county, because of the overflow of what is known as the Mistinka river ditch. This ditch was built by the state several years ago to relieve the state swamp lands in Grant county, and ever since has overflowed annually.

Representative White presented a bill making the office of labor commissioner an elective one. The commissioner is to be elected every two years and will the appointment of the necessary assistants. The salary of the commissioner is fixed at $3,000.

Normal schools at Thief River Falls and at Bemidji are provided in bills introduced by Representative Hanson.

Chattel mortgages must be recorded with the register of deeds just the same as real estate mortgages are at present, if a bill introduced by Representative Nimocks becomes a law.

Ninety days in the county jail or $100 fine for all participants in a "charivari" is the provision in a bill handed in by Representative Lobeck.

Local option on the sale of liquor is provided for cities of the fourth class in a bill introduced by Representative Adams. At present only villages and towns have this option.

A bill appropriating $12,600 to pay bills for fighting forest and prairie fires during 1908 was introduced by Representative Davis.

The constitutional amendment for an educational qualification for county superintendents is resubmitted to the voters in a bill presented by Representative Ferguson.

A bill authorizing villages to purchase water, light and heating plants, where such exist, is before the house.

A bill directing the state superintendent of public instruction to establish a free public employment bureau for school teachers was introduced by Representative Johnson.

The house adjourned until Monday afternoon.

* * *

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—Two bills were introduced in the house yesterday amending the laws relating to foreign corporations. One bill compels foreign corporations to pay an annual franchise tax of one-tenth of 1 per cent upon their capital stock used in the state, and requires a filing fee upon their "authorized" capital, instead of their "paid-up" capital, as at present, when they enter the state. The other requires foreign corporations to file annual reports with the secretary of state.

A bill for a joint committee on claims for each session of the legislature was introduced yesterday. There shall be three senators and five representatives on the committee, and all claims against the state shall be referred to them.

County boards are given authority to grant to electric lines the use of public roads in a bill handed in by Representative Zelch.

The speed for running live stock trains is fixed in a bill presented by Representative Spooner. The minimum speed is ten miles an hour on branch lines less than 100 miles long, twelve miles on main lines from the starting point to the first division and fifteen miles between division points.

An attempted solution of the normal school question is contained in a bill by Representative Hinds. His bill requires the state normal board to establish a new school north of the main line of the Northern Pacific and west of the meridian running through Brainerd.

Private schools and academies are given the same privileges as state high schools for taking examinations of the state high school board, in a bill by Representative Lee.

A bill to encourage the consolidation of rural schools was introduced by Representative Holmberg. It provides an appropriation of $1,000 to each of the first ten consolidated schools during each of the next two years.

A bill prohibiting bucketshops was introduced by Representative Rodenberg.

Representative Saugstad presented a bill doing away with all conventions for nominating candidates for office in the state and extending the primary election system to state officers. The primary for all candidates is to be held the second Tuesday in June.

Radical changes in the mortgage registry tax law are proposed by Representative Bicknell. Instead of a flat tax of 50 cents per $100 on all mortgages, his bill proposes a tax of 1 mill per dollar for each year the mortgage runs, and for a term of five years when the time is not stated.

* * *

St. Paul, Jan. 20.—With only four votes in opposition the house yesterday authorized the speaker to appoint a committee of five to investigate the school book publishers, their methods of doing business and their relations to school authorities. This committee is empowered to summon witnesses, administer oaths and to make a searching investigation.

A bill to tax interurban and suburban electric railroads on the gross earnings was introduced in the house.

The sum of $55,000 for educational work, looking to the prevention and care of tuberculosis among human beings is appropriation in a bill introduced by Representative Conley.

A bill to abolish the death penalty for murder in the first degree was presented by Representative Bendixen.

Representative Peterson introduced a bill requiring all road taxes to be paid in cash, to abolish overseers of highways and to provide for an inspector of highways, to be elected by the town board.

The house adopted a resolution calling for a committee of three to go to Madison, Wis., to investigate the working of the public utilities act there.

The establishment of a state experiment station and an additional school of agriculture at Marshall is provided for in a bill by Representative Melby.

A bill repealing the law passed in 1907, compelling manufacturing corporations to pay the same fee for filing articles of incorporation as other corporations pay was introduced by Representative Wright.

The house yesterday afternoon listened to an address by Dr. Milo Roy Maltbie of the public service commission of New York.

In the Senate.

Local option for all cities of the fourth class is proivded in a bill presented in the senate by Senator Sageng. The measure provides that on the petition of 10 per cent of the voters of a fourth class city the question of license or no license shall be submitted to the voters and the majority shall rule.

Senator Sageng also presented a oill providing for an amendment to the constitution permitting any person over twenty-one years of age to vote. This woman suffrage bill is presented at the request of the women of the state who wish to vote.

A marble or bronze heroic statue of Alexander Ramsey, the war governor of Minnesota, to be placed in the statuary hall at Washington, is the object of a bill by Senator Wilson.

Consolidation of rural schools is encouraged in a bill handed in by Senator Sandberg.

A bill by Senator Clague makes it a criminal offense to permit debarred persons entering saloons after notice to the proprietor. In this it extends the present law, which merely prohibits the sale to minors, drunkards or wards.

The senate in committee of the whole agreed to report progress on the bill declaring the state to be owner of minerals under meandered lakes and streams.

REST CURE FOR HETTY GREEN.

Gives Up Business for Winter and Stays Close to Apartments.

New York, Jan. 21. — Mrs. Hetty Green, the richest woman in America, is taking the rest cure in Hoboken. She is in rather poor health as the result of too close attention to business and is not visiting her New York offices these days. She remains in her apartments in a flat house on Bloomfield until late in the forenoon and then goes for a walk.

HOPKINS FAILS TO LAND.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 21.—No candidate for United States senator having received a majority of either house in the balloting yesterday in the separate houses, the election of a senator to succeed Senator Hopkins is now thrown into a joint assembly of the legislature, in accordance with the constitution.

In the balloting yesterday the candidates received total votes as follows: Hopkins, 87; Foss, 25; Stringer, 76; Shurtleff, 3; absentees, 6.

WANT INDIAN CASE REVIEWED.

Counsel for Chippewas Making Effort Before Appealing to Supreme Court.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Clarence E. Richardson and L. A. Pradt, counsel for the Chippewa Indians in the case instituted by Gus H. Beaulieu for the swamp lands in Minnesota, are preparing to try and have the case reopened in the department before taking an appeal to the supreme court of the United States from the court of appeals of the District of Columbia.

The Week in the State

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

Closing Meeting of the State Agricultural Society Held.

The annual meeting of the State Agricultural society was held in Minneapolis, and all of the officers were re-elected. Following are the officers:

President, B. F. Nelson; secretary, C. N. Cosgrove; treasurer, E. L. Mattson; first vice president, J. H. Beek; second vice president, J. J. Furlong.

The only fight at the meeting occurred when the applications of a number of local societies were received for admission to the society. After much discussion the only applications accepted were those of the St. Paul and Minneapolis market gardeners. Several county fair associations applied for membership but were not accepted.

The report of Secretary C. N. Cosgrove reviewed the financial affairs of the board, called attention to the urgent need for a new grand stand, the somewhat less pressing need for various buildings, and asked the society to pass resolutions to be submitted to the legislature asking for an appropriation. Concerning one of the contemplated improvements the secretary said:

"We will improve some thirty acres of land recently purchased, lying west of the fair grounds, adjoining Raymond avenue, and having secured from the board of regents the use of forty acres of land for fair purposes, it was proposed to improve the lakes thereon. Forty acres of land adjoining the lagoon will be set aside for camping grounds, and fully equipped in a sanitary manner with a model camp laid out, in which it is hoped to accommodate at least 5,000 families within five years.

"The lagoon itself, which is to have at least three and one-half miles of shore line, is to be dredged, parked and laid out according to the plan of the leading landscape gardeners of the country."

GOOD ROAD MATERIAL.

State Engineer Cooley Says Minnesota Limestone Can Be Used.

The report of George W. Cooley, state engineer to the highway commission, now in the hands of the printer, contains some interesting facts as to the road material resources of the state.

It shows that the limestone, of which there is an almost inexhaustible supply within easy reach, has been unjustly condemned as poor materiay. Its cementing properties are unrivaled, and when properly mixed with granite or other feldpathic rocks this value is greatly enhanced. Recent tests put the cementing value of granite at 3, while the native limestone in the same scale has a value of 27. A proper mixture of the two gave a cementing value of 110.

"The trouble with roads treated with limestone in the state," said Mr. Cooley, "has been with the manner in which the roads have been constructed and not with the material, which is first class.

MAKES GOOD ITS PROUD BOAST.

Minnesota Shows Wonderful Increase in Dairy Products.

That Minnesota is the great "bread and butter" state is shown by the reports issued by the state dairy and food department. From 1898 to 1907 the creameries of the state produced 700,000,000 pounds of butter and cheese.

The increase from 1901 to 1907 was 44,007,933 pounds to 87,044,817, and the value increased from $10,121,824.59 to $26,113,445.

Only one-half of the cows in the state contributed to this result, and if the 1,040,000 cows had been at work the sum would have totaled $75,000,000.

The farms of the state produced 670,719,120 bushels of wheat, valued at $436,608,176 for the ten years.

DISCUSS STOCK RAISING.

Members of Association Make Things Lively.

A meeting of the Minnesota Live Stock Breeders' association was held in Minneapolis last week. Some lively discussions took place regarding the cost of raising live stock. Following President A. C. Cooper's address at the opening of the meeting a paper was read by T. P. Cooper of St. Anthony Park on "Facts Relating to the Raising of Live Stock."

"Vegetables Growing for Profit," was discussed by R. G. Gould of St. Anthony Park; "New Thoughts in Feeding Dairy Cattle," by Prof. T. L. Haecker of St. Anthony Park, and other papers were discussed by well known agriculturists.

LOUIS HILL ACCEPTS.

Two Men Decide to Take Chances With Anti-pass Law.

Two of Gov. John A. Johnson's appointees have decided that the anti-pass law will not affect them severely.

Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, has accepted the appointment on the state highway commission tendered by Gov. Johnson, and John L. Washburn, Duluth, has decided to remain on the state normal board and take his chances.

WILL EXHIBIT FINE POULTRY.

Display Will Be Held in St. Paul Feb. 10 to 17.

Exhibits of the finest poultry raised in Minnesota and other Northwestern states will be shown in St. Paul Feb. 10 to 17, when the Minnesota Fanciers' association will hold its seventh annual exhibition. A large premium list has been prepared, and special prizes will be offered for the exhibitors from the other states.

The association is a member of the Northwestern branch of the American Poultry association, and the exhibition will be held under the rules of that organization. The Espy building, on Fifth, near Robert, has been secured for the exhibition. The judging will be done by the comparison method, as heretofore, this having been found to be the safest method of avoiding errors and of giving the awards where they belong.

A new feature of the show this year is the list of prizes offered to the exhibitors from Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, North and South Dakota, Nebraska and Canada. In each case a prize of $5 will be given to the exhibitor receiving the greatest number of points and showing at least ten birds.

SEEK REHEARING OF CASE.

Duluth Men Are Specially Interested in View of Tonnage Tax.

Application for the rehearing of the wide-open tax amendment was filed with the clerk of the supreme court. Justice Elliott of the court filed a decision last week, which held that the amendment was carried at the general election of 1908. This ruling reversed the decision of the district court of St. Louis county.

The petition was accompanied by a statement of the grounds on which the rehearing is asked, signed by H. H. Phelps and C. O. Baldwin, and by a separate argument filed by J. L. Washburn of Duluth. It is believed that the dissenting opinion of Justice Brown led the St. Louis men to be interested in the case and to attempt to get a rehearing. The amendment is of special interest to the people of the northern county, as it opens a way for tonnage tax on iron ore.

Another point the court is asked to consider is the claim that the election was void as to the tax amendments in an order different from that of the ballot.

WILL FIRE SHIRKS.

New Labor Commissioner Says He Will Enforce Laws.

All the labor laws on the statute books are to be enforced, according to a statement issued by W. E. McEwen, the new labor commissioner. And in addition he will take up important questions for legislation, such as employers' liability, industrial insurance and other labor problems which may not be submitted to the present legislature, as it is a big task, but will be thoroughly worked out so that future labor laws will be as comprehensive as possible.

Mr. McEwen does not intend to make any radical change in the inspectors' staff; the only change that will come, he says, will be a result of unfitness of the inspector. Integrity, ability and faithfulness will be the chief qualificatons of deputies or factory inspectors, but the shirkers will be eliminated.

"I shall have," he says, "the co-operation of laborers and employers in this work. We cannot play politics and do this kind of work well."

BACK UP SCHOOLS FOR FARMERS

Educational People Will Push Number of Measures.

County agricultural schools will be advocated by C. G. Schulz, state superintendent of public instruction, and the legislative committee of the Minnesota educational association will back him up in this matter.

The county normal school, a new $150,000 building for the college of education of the state university, and a county board of education serving for four years, which is to elect the county superintndent, will also be supported.

The legislative committee consists of: P. C. Tonning, Willmar; Julius Boraas, Red Wing; W. A. Schoemaker, St. Cloud; Fred A. Weld, Moorhead; G. W. Peterson, St. Paul.

The county superintendents' executive committee met recently and discussed legislation which they will support. Those present were: G. F. Howard, Olmstead; J. B. Arp, Jackson; Paul Ahles, Stearns, and L. M. Mithun, Marshall.

Send Agents to Get Settlers.

The way to get people to settle in Minnesota is to send out representatives to advertise Minnesota, and to have an agent to secure immigrants in the ports or in Europe, is the method suggested by Immigration Commissioner George Welsh, in his first biennial report to the governor.

There are yet 1,048,114.89 acres of state land unsold, and 2,100,484 acres of government land in the state subject to homestead entry, which shows that Minnesota can accommodate a large increase in population.

HERE IS A GOOD ICE HOUSE FOR THE FARM

It Is Built of Wood on Top of the Ground—By J. W. Griffin, Kentucky.

An icehouse built on top of the ground, out of wood, with double walls, packed with sawdust and with good top ventilation and bottom drainage keeps ice better, is easier to get the ice in and out, and will not cost nearly as much as stone or concrete. The accompanying pen sketch will tell how to build one of this type.

At "C" "C" is illustrated the foundation wall, one foot deep and one foot wide. "A" shows the space between the foundation walls which is filled with broken stones or coarse gravel. "E" "E" is the outlet for drained water. "B" "B" represents the sawdust between the walls and the ice and inner wall.

The space between outer and inner walls is one foot. A space of ten or twelve inches should be left between the ice and the wall. The cakes of ice should be cut exactly square and so placed in the house that the cracks of all layers will be directly over each other. This is so the drainage will be complete.

A damp heavy atmosphere is what gets away with ice. With a good sized window in each end of the gable of the house and good drainage such as shown in cut, much may be saved.

A continuous door should be in one end and so boxed that the doorway may be packed with sawdust. This, of course, may be taken out as the ice is used down and the lower doors opened.

"D" "D" is heavy fence wire holding side walls in place when the sawdust is tamped in. The ice should be packed on about two inches of sawdust laid on the broken stone. The house may be built of any size, owing to the size of family to be supplied, but should be as nearly square as possible. For any ordinary family a house 14x14x14 feet on the outside will be sufficient. The ice should be filled into within one foot of the top of the square of the building and then covered well with sawdust.

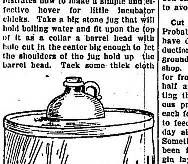
Plan for Good Farm Icehouse.

Sheep Need Exercise.—Give the sheep a 40 to 60-rod walk to the feed lot every day. This will go farther toward getting a good lamb crop than a half pound of feed given in confinement.

A GOOD STONE JUG BROODER

The Feathered World of London illustrates how to make a simple and effective hover for little incubator chicks. Take a big stone jug that will hold boiling water and fit upon the top of it as a collar a barrel head with hole cut in the center big enough to let the shoulders of the jug hold up the barrel head. Tack some thick cloth around the edges of the barrel head deep enough to reach almost to the bottom of the jug, having slit the cloth up from the bottom a little way at intervals of two inches. This cloth fringe radiates the heat evenly with the barrel head, keeping the heat from going rapidly to the top of the box in which the hover is placed.



Home-Made Hover.

The writer has seen this hover in use by a family who bought day-old chicks in March. The care-taker had a covered run to push up to the hover box and in rainy, damp weather let them out through a small low door to this run, keeping them confined in the box during the night. In warm, dry weather they were let out upon the ground with a low wire net keeping them in a small corral. Of course the box containing the hover was water-tight and the cover hinged so the jug could be easily lifted at night, the cool water thrown out and hot water put in. Only very young chicks in very cold weather need the water changed at night. In sunny days their run can be a new one each day. The covered run should have a floor and cloth on two sides to prevent draughts. Both the covered run and the hover box should be raised from the ground to avoid dampness.

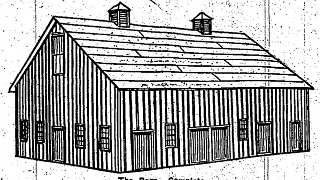
Cut Fresh Bones for Poultry.—Probably no other food that hens can have does more to assist in the production of eggs in winter than cut or ground fresh bones from the butcher shop. Bones may be obtained usually for from half a cent to a cent and a half a pound and machines for cutting them may be purchased at various prices. About half an ounce to each fowl per day is the right amount to feed or it may be fed every other day about an ounce to each fowl. Sometimes a flock of hens which have been fed nothing but grain will begin laying within a short time after the owner begins to feed cut bone regularly. This is because the elements which the bone contains were lacking, or did not exist in sufficient quantity, in the grain ration and as soon as those elements were furnished the hens were able to make eggs and the eggs were laid.

Make for Quick Growth.—Don't overlook the fact that quick growth is cheap growth. The least money is made from hogs that at some time or other are allowed to become stunted or that are fed so sparingly that their growth extends over a long period of time. When hogs are once put into the feed lot, every day that is subtracted from the feeding period by intelligent but heavy feeding will mean extra money in the owner's pocket.

Put in a Drain.—There is no place upon the farm where a system of drainage can be more profitably installed than in the feed lots and around the hog pens. In too many instances large wallows are formed around the hog house and these are both unsightly and unsanitary. If the hog house is not so situated that drainage is natural an artificial drainage system will repay its cost many times.

A GOOD SHEEP BARN—WHERE AND HOW TO BUILD IT

Select High, Dry Location—Mistake of Keeping Sheep Too Warm Must Be Avoided.

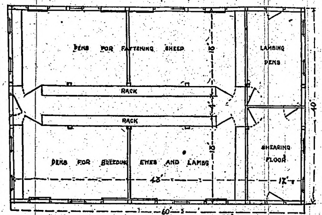


The Barn Complete.

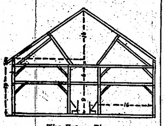
When in pasture sheep will always sleep on the highest and driest parts of the field. This should be kept in mind in selecting the site for a sheep shed. Warm close sheds are likely to be injurious to the health of the sheep as the temperature of their blood is high and the fleece keeps in the body heat. Crowding is to be avoided, especialy at the feeding rack. The accompanying plan, which is from the booklet "Practical Farm Buildings," by F. W. Bird & Son, Hamilton, Ont., shows a building 40 feet wide and 60 feet long. It is in two stories, the first being nine feet high and the second six feet from the floor to the eaves. The sills are 6 inches by 8 inches, resting preferably on stone foundation, and, if set on posts, they should be heavier. Doors are all four feet wide and those that are used by the sheep should be sliding. Windows are

The "Grand Young Men" of the sen-

3 feet wide and 4½ feet high. In the center of the sheep apartment there are double doors 10 feet wide. When both are opened and the center post removed a wagon can be driven through to remove manure. The feed racks are all permanent, as there is no necessity for their removal and they form a wall for the passage-way which runs through the center. The loft will give storage space sufficient for fodder for the sheep.



The Ground Plan.



The Frame Plan.

Light for Hogs.—Darkness and health in the hog business are never found in the same place. The mortal enemy of all disease germs is the bright sunlight and this at some time, or other should have access to every corner of the feed lot and breeding pens. Darkness brings dampness, dampness brings on bad health and the losses sustained from this source are hard to estimate.

Second Crop Clover.—Second crop clover hay fed alone to western sheep, has given better results at lambing time than any of the other feeds tried even clover hay and grain included.

FATTENING AND MARKETING HOGS

By Prof. W. J. Kennedy, Iowa Experiment Station.

The age at which hogs should be fattened will depend more or less upon the market demands and the locality. In some countries and in different sections of the same country we find that there are differences in the market demands. As a general rule in this country the fat or lard hog has been the most popular. When such is the case it is better to market hogs at the weight of from 300 to 400 pounds. These seem to meet with the most popular favor of the buyers.

In other sections of the country and in other markets where the bacon type of hog is preferred over the fat or lard hog, they must be marketed at an earlier age. The best weight for the bacon hog is between 160 and 200 pounds. They do not require to be nearly as fat as the fat or lard hog; still, on the other hand, a bacon hog is by no means a thin animal. They should have a covering of about one inch of fat over the back. They should be deep sided and long sided, and must be firm in quality. Where the bacon hog is desired, as a general rule it will be found most profitable to have the hogs fattened and finished for market at about five and one-half or six months of age.

Where the fat or lard hog is desired the most profitable age to market in order to meet the requirements of the market would be about eight to ten months. Hogs of this age should weigh in the neighborhood of 300 to 350 pounds. As a general rule, however, it may be stated that the greatest and especially the most economical gains are made on the younger animals. This is one point in favor of the bacon hog.

The season of the year at which the fattening should be done will depend upon various conditions. In a great many instances, hogs are fattened during the fall and early winter. In other instances they are fattened during the spring and early summer. Generally speaking the most economical gains can be made during the early fall or spring months. The weather is then not too cold nor too warm—in fact, about right for the best gains. In real cold weather a considerable amount of the feed is used for the production of heat to supply the heat required for the maintenance of the animal body. In real warm weather, on the other hand, a considerable amount of feed may be wasted. Where two litters per year are to be reared, it will be found best to fatten the first bunch and market them during the months of September and October. The second litter should be fattened and ready for market some time during the latter part of March or the month of April. These are things which each and every feeder must, to a certain extent, control himself.

Turnips for Ewes.—Turnips make fine feed for ewes. They are succulent and palatable—just the thing to keep ewes in good, thrifty condition. It is well to feed them all they will eat twice a day.

Nearly every man, no matter how dumb, marvels how easy it is to fool a woman.

POSSIBILITIES OF ALFALFA BREEDING

The great plasticity of the genus of plants to which alfalfa belongs in its adaptability to soil and climate is strongly emphasized when we compare the extremes of the types. The wiry stems, the low-spreading, much-branched habit and extreme hardiness of Turkestan alfalfa present such a contrast to the large, rather stiff, tall, upright and little-branched stems of the sub-tropical Peruvian alfalfa, that one would little suspect that he was dealing with plants of the same origin. This adaptability, or in other words ability to become acclimatized, has already been explained by the fact that within any one of the given types many variations as to form, habit, vigor, drought and cold-resistance occur which need only to be selected by soil and climatic factors killing out the less suited individuals in order that a type may be established. What, therefore, has been done by the slow process of natural seelction may be hastened and emphasized by the conscious selection and propagation of the best plants. There is thus opened, in this wonderfully plastic and variable group, a field for the breeder, pregnant with the probability of the most profound success.

The breeding of this forage plant is just beginning to receive the serious attention of the experiment stations and the United States department of agriculture in the alfalfa-growing states of the west and southwest. By a comparative study of the adaptability of regional varieties it is clear that the work of the agricultural explorer must now give place largely to that of the plant-breeder, and that we must in the future look to the improvement of our own rather than the introduction of new varieties for the amelioration of our alfalfa crops. Especially is this true for the states of the middle west, notably Utah, Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska. These states are the home of the American type of alfalfa, and in them no other alfalfa has been able to compete with it. When, therefore, the breeder has found that strain or type of alfalfa which is most suited to the locality within which he must work, it is from this strain that he should look to draw his materials for further selection and improvement. He must first study the needs of his locality and determine what lines of improvement are most necessary in order to increase the yield or feeding value. When this is done he may intelligently seek out and select for breeding purposes those individual plants which seem most likely to possess valuable characteristics.

For what points should we breed? In the first place, hardiness and vigor are indispensable, in order that the plant may not be driven out by weeds or killed by severe weather conditions. Moreover, hardy, vigorous plants will live longer, be more productive, and the expense of reseeding will not be so frequent.

Another aim of the breeder of alfalfa is to secure plants of greater drought-resistance, in order that the area over which this valuable plant can be grown with profit may be further extended into the semi-arid regions and that better crops may be secured in the drier sections in which it is already grown. Drought-resistance in a plant depends either upon its effectiveness in gathering water from the soil or its ability to retain it when gathered, or upon both. Obviously the best way to determine the drought-resisting qualities of plants is by means of comparative tests in dry sections, but where this is impracticable preliminary test may be made by measuring the quantity of water transpired by a given amount of leaf surface in a given time. The importance of such tests is suggested by the fact that of two plants, growing side by side in the breeding plots of the botanical department of the Kansas station, one showed an average transpiration rate for equal areas of leaf surface nearly twice as great as the other. It is but natural to suppose that, other characteristics being equal, the plant showing the least loss of water would be most suited for a dry region. Close-pollinated seeds of the above-mentioned plants have been secured and it is proposed to test by similar methods the transpiration rates of the offspring of each in order to determine to what extent these characters may be inherited, and whether by this method there may not be isolated and propagated, at once, extremely drought-resistant strains.

Alfalfa is susceptible to several diseases. All of these are capable of doing more or less serious damage, and there is as yet no practicable method of controlling them known. It would seem, moreover, that the only method in which there is offered any large degree of hope for success lies in the possibility of securing more disease-resistant strains by selection and breeding.

An ideal alfalfa plant should be very leafy. This is so for two reasons. In the first place, the greater the leaf surface spread out to the light the greater the assimilating power of the plant, and hence the more rapid and vigorous growth. In the second place, the leaf forms more palatable and digestible food than do the stems.

In selecting plants for breeding, habit of growth must be considered. This should be as nearly upright as possible in order that all of the stems may be cut by the mower.

While relatively a small number of alfalfa growers produce this plant for the purpose of harvesting the seed, still the question of seed production is one of prime importance. No better emphasis on this point could be made than to call attention to the present high price of alfalfa seed. The high probability of easy improvement along this line is suggested by extreme variations with respect to the seeding ability of different individuals found in any ordinary alfalfa field. For instance, in one experiment at the Kansas experiment station (Bulletin 151), some plants produced only 0.4 seeds per ten-gram weight of stem and leaf, whereas from other plants in the same field as high as 137 seeds per ten-gram weight were harvested. That these characters are strongly heritable is shown by the following, quoted from Bulletin 101 of the South Dakota experiment station:

"In the pedigree rows of 1906 a general tendency toward uniformity was observed in the plants from the same selection. For example, all the plants in pedigree row No. 162-98 exhibited exceptional forage qualities as compared with the plants of other rows grown, whatever the source, and all the plants of pedigree row No. 65-74 bore heavily of seed pods, while others from the same original source were light bearers of the pods."

However, in the breeding of alfalfa, the fact must not be lost sight of that it must be preeminently a forage plant, and that if the productivity of seed be increased it must not be done at the expense of the forage value.

Productivity is, of course, the most important of the qualities to be sought in the improvement of alfalfa, and may be said to include all the others described. Thus, in order to be productive of the largest quantity of the best quality of hay, the plant must be hardy, vigorous, disease and drought-resistant, very leafy, and of such habit of growth as to be harvested with ease and without great loss from low-lying and prostrate stems.

THERE are plenty of converts to the theory that our winters are not as cold as they used to be.

THE one hundredth anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth—February 12—will be celebrated in all parts of the country.

SCIENTISTS have long known that the taste for sweets and the appetite for alcohol almost never exist in the same person. It does not follow that a man who does not like candy is a toper, but if he does like candy it is extremely improbable that he likes alcohol, too.

A NEW YORK scientist who has made a study of longevity is responsible for the startling statement that man ought to live forever. At present there are not enough inducements to make everlasting life desirable. The scientist must find a way of guaranteeing a living as well as life.

THERE is serious question of the legality and propriety of President Roosvelt's libel suit against the New York World and the Indianapolis News, but it would seem that it is the duty of these papers either to prove or retract the charges made. It is hard to believe that our government is corrupt at its fountain head, but if this is so the people ought to know it in time to correct the abuses.

The St. Hilaire Spectator is right in saying that "there was absolutely no excuse for the slanderous article in the Thief River Falls News censuring chairman Lindquist of the county board. The old proverb: 'Evil to be who evil thinks' might in this case apply to Mr. Eastman."

UNDER a sweeping decision handed down by the supreme court in the attorney general's test suit to compel the Minnesota club of St. Paul to take out a liquor license, every club or social organization in the entire state henceforth will be compelled to observe the laws relating to the sale of intoxicating drinks.

THE president is getting deferential. He has asked consent of congress to issue a proclamation setting apart February 12, 1909, as a special holiday in recognition of the centennial of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. Some of the members were undoubtedly surprised that he did not issue the proclamation first and consult them afterwards.

JOEL HEATWOLE, of the Northfield News, heretofore an ardent champion of President Roosevelt, has lost faith in Teddy, and remarks:

> The course the president has seen fit to pursue has made of congress a bear garden and done more than anything else to defeat the reforms he advocated. The present turmoil however, will not be unproductive of advantages and beneficial results, if as a consequence future occupants of the executive office will see the propriety of a return to saner methods of composition and of couching their communications to congress in that courteous and diplomatic language of which Jefferson was a past master and which is characteristic of the documents which owe their authorship to Washington, Adams and Abraham Lincoln.

IN answer to the question "is the state of Minnesota in debt? If so, how much? If not in debt, how much surplus?" The author of "answers to correspondents in notes and queries" in the Pioneer Press says: "The state is technically 'in debt' to the amount of $250,000, represented by the remnant of the old railway bonds still outstanding. But this is only because the owners of said bonds do not present them for redemption. There is a balance in the treasury today of about $827,000. It has not been the policy of the state to accumulate a large balance. After paying current expenses, the greater part of the surplus is invested for the school funds, which now approximate $20,500,000 We doubt if there is any state in the Union where finances are in a better condition than Minnesota.

THE official gazette of the Manitoba government says that the Great Northern railway will be into Winnipeg from south of the boundary over its own roadbed by midsummer. Application is also made to build the line this year westward from Winnipeg, paralleling the Canadian Pacific railway to the western boundary of the province. Application is further made to build from the boundary line at Noyes, Minn., along the east side of the Red River in Winnipeg. Work on these lines will start at the opening of spring. The company two years ago purchased $1,000,000 worth of property in the center of the city for terminals and recently secured permission to connect the Great Northern and Northern Pacific lines at the boundary with the Manitoba system.

AT Moody's church in Chicago, cards are distributed with the following ten reasons why every respectable thinking man should swear as often and as hard as he can: Because it is such an elegant way of expressing one's thoughts. Because it is such a conclusive proof of taste and good breeding. Because it is a sure way of making one's self agreeable to his friends. Because it is a positive evidence of acquaintance with good literature. Because it furnishes such a good example and training for boys. Because it is just what a man's mother enjoys having her son do. Because it would look so nice in print. Because it is such a good way of increasing one's self respect. Because it is such a help to manhood and virtue in many ways. Because it is such an infallible way of improving one's chances in the hereafter.

THE establishment of the parcels post in America would be tremendously expensive, argues an exchange. Millions would have to be laid out in equipment, more millions in salaries and hundreds of thousands in rental for office space. Postmaster General Meyer's claim that parcels post would make the postoffice department pay is not well founded. He has not proved his case. Even if every word he said was based on demonstration, this country does not want a parcels post system that will crush out every country merchant and kill every business in the small towns except butter, eggs, vegetables and made to order clothing. What chance will the small dealer have in competition with Goliaths of merchandising who send out catalogs of thousands of pages and sell anything from a toothpick to a locomotive?

TWO TYPES OF MAN.

The man whose career means deeds, results—the man who does things—is not afraid to risk mistakes, says the Winona Independent. He of whom it can be said: "He has never made a serious error of judgement—his record is flawless," will be found to be one who has done little or nothing worth while. He is so cautious in contemplating a move that he hardly dares to make it before its possible effect has been minimized or lost. Guarding himself against the reproach of public failures be denies himself the satisfaction of work well done. It is his habit to study a situation until the time for action has passed. He shrinks from responsibility, as he fears criticism. He is swayed by the supercaution that goes with a futile mediocrity.

The other type of man investigates, decides and does. Criticism and the chance of ridicule are ignored by him. Between action and hesitation he chooses action every time. When it comes to taking a chance or waiting to see what will happen he takes the chance. He would rather risk a mistake than do nothing. He is willing to listen to both sides and then acts on his own judgment, welcoming the responsibility. If he meets with failure he does the best thing possible to amend it. If he is successful he gathers new hope in dealing with the next problem. That's the American spirit.

Many a man's failure to make good is due to the reversal of things. He pulls when he should push and pushes when he should pull.

Fire and Panic at a Show.

Fire at the Auditorium at Spring Valley, starting in the moving picture apparatus of Verne Caswell, damaged his outfit about $400, and the building, owned by Burdette Thayer, a member of the legislature, about $75. In the scramble by the audience to escape from the building Mrs. Louie Alberts was thrown to the floor and suffered serious injuries, as did also one or two small children.

Herds Must Be Inspected.

Sale of milk in St. Paul from a dairy herd that has not been inspected for tuberculosis is prohibited by the terms of an ordinance adopted by the St. Paul city council. The ordinance is designed to remedy defects in an ordinance of similar purport that was pronounced by the courts to be ineffective.

Mother's Effort in Vain.

After fighting her way through a flaming bed of fire in her home in West St. Paul in an attempt to save her two children Mrs. Edward Schaffer was severely burned and is in a total collapse from her efforts and grief. The older child, Chester, died a few hours after the fire, while the other lives.

If your Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys are weak, try a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly: Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the heart or kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

Council Proceedings.

Meeting called to order by President Borchers.

Roll called.

Aldermen were all present.

Minutes of the previous meeting read and approved.

On motion duly carried, the following bills were allowed:

Zaiser Bros., for livery	$ 5.25
John Drier, for services as fire warden	0.00
Joseph Sally, for coal	22.30
A. P. Toupin, for Justice fees	5.60
Red Lake Falls Electric Light Co., for street lights	110.91
J. C. Wilkinson, for Health Officer and Physician, bill of $137.55 allowed at	112.55

President Borchers, Samuel Gibeau and a third member to be appointed by them, were duly appointed a committee to obtain rates from different towns in this state or adjoining states, relative to electric lighting etc., and report to this council its findings, for the next regular meeting or as soon thereafter as possible.

An ordinance granting to the Red Lake Falls Electric Light company, the right to maintain, erect, construct, and add to an electric light and power plant in the city of Red Lake Falls, and providing for the lighting of said city, was introduced by Alderman Hennemuth, and the same passed its first reading.

On motion meeting adjourned to January 21st 1909 at 8 o'clock P. M.

Fred Borchers, President.

Attest:—A. P. Toupin. City Clerk.

Adjourned regular meeting of the city council held January 21st, 1909, pursuant to the adjournment at 8 p. m.

Present: Aldermen Borchers, Crompe, Paul and Hennemuth,

Absent: Remick.

Upon motion duly carried the council proceeded to open bids for the purchase of the five thousand dollar refunding bonds of the city.

Bids were received from the following firms and persons:

Wells & Dickey Co.
Trowbridge & Niver Co.

After due consideration of the bids, Alderman Hennemuth offered the following resolution and moved its adoptions:

Whereas, an ordinance has been duly passed, approved and published, providing for the issuance of five thousand dollars refunding bonds of the city, dated October 28th, 1908, payable in ten years from date of issue, and bearing interest at 5½ per cent per annum, and due notice of the sale of such bonds has been given, therefore,

Be it resolved that the bid of Trowbridge & Niver Co., for said bonds at par value with accrued interest, be accepted, that being the best bid, therefore, and be it further resolved, that the city Mayor, Treasurer and Clerk be and they are hereby authorized and directed to cause said bonds and interest coupons to be duly issued, executed and delivered upon payment into the city treasury, of the amount bid therefor, on the due cancellation and receipt by the city treasurer of the bond for the payment of which the same were issued in equal amount. Seconded by Alderman Paul.

Upon a vote being had the following Aldermen voted Aye: Crompe, Paul, Hennemuth and Borchers.

Nay: None.

Whereupon the president declared the resolution duly adopted.

On motion duly carried the following bills were allowed:

Julius Kiehl, for street work	$ 7.50
Red Lake Falls Fire Department for services January 15, 1909	67.00

On motion meeting adjourned.

Fred Borchers, President.

Approved this 27th day of January, A. D. 1909. J. A. Duffy, Mayor.

Attest:—A. P. Toupin, City Clerk.

S.S.S. CURES SKIN DISEASES

There is an evaporation from the body going on continually, day and night, through the pores and glands of the skin. This is nature's way of maintaining the proper temperature of our systems and preserving the softness and flexibility of the skin, and so long as the blood is free from impurities no trouble will result. When, however, the blood from any cause becomes infected with humors and acids, these too must be expelled, and coming in contact with the delicate fibres and tissues with which the skin is so abundantly supplied they produce irritation and inflammation, and the effect is shown by Eczema, Acne, Tetter, and skin affections of various kinds. These impurities and humors get into the blood through a deranged or inactive condition of the system; the members whose duty it is to carry off the waste and refuse matter of the body fail to properly perform their work, and this impure, fermenting matter is left in the system to be absorbed by the blood. The skin is not only affected by poisons generated within the system, but poisons from without, such as Poison Oak, Poison Ivy, Nettle Rash, etc., enter through the open pores and glands, and so thoroughly do they become rooted in the blood that they are ever present, or return at certain seasons of each year to torment the sufferer. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., cannot cure skin diseases. True, such treatment relieves some of the itching and discomfort, and aids in keeping the skin clean, but it does not reach the real cause, and at best can be only palliating and soothing. A thorough cleansing of the blood is the only certain cure for skin diseases. S. S. S., a gentle acting, safe blood purifier, made entirely of vegetable ingredients of the forest and field, is the proper treatment. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation, and neutralizes the acids and humors, thoroughly cleansing and purifying the blood, and curing skin affections of every kind. It supplies to the blood the fresh, nutritive qualities necessary to sustain the skin and all other parts of the body, and rids the blood of any and all poisons. S. S. S. cures Eczema, Tetter, Acne, Salt Rheum, Poison Oak and Ivy, Nettle Rash, and all other skin troubles, and cures them permanently by removing every trace of the cause from the blood. Special book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice desired furnished free to all who write.

> I have used your S. S. S., spring and fall, for the past two years, with the result that it entirely relieved me of a form of Eczema which my doctors were unable to cure. My arms, lower limbs, and, in fact, the biggest portion of my whole body was affected, and when I first began S. S. S. the itching, etc., was worse, but I continued the remedy with the result that the dry, itching eruption entirely disappeared. I think a great deal of your medicine, and have recommended it to others with good results. It is the best blood medicine made, and I can conscientiously recommend it for the cure of all blood and skin affections. CHAS. HORSTMAN.

Notice.

TO CARL H. ASKE:

Whereas, heretofore and on the 7th day of December, A. D., 1907, you, the said Carl H. Aske, entered into a written contract with the undersigned, Oscar A. Bishop and Ella G. Bishop, for the purchase of the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section three [3] township one hundred fifty-three [153] north of range forty-three [43], except right-of-way of the St. Paul Sault Ste Marie Railway Co., and about three acres lying east of said track, said premises being situated in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and whereas, it was stipulated in and by said contract, that you, the said Carl H. Aske, should pay to the undersigned the sum of One Thousand Six Hundred [$1,600.00] dollars as the purchase price of said premises, payable at the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, as follows, to-wit: The sum of one hundred seventy-five [$175.00] dollars at or before the execution of said contract; the sum of four hundred twenty-five [$425.00] dollars on the 1st day of December, 1908, and the sum of one thousand [$1,000.00] dollars on the 1st day of December, 1909, together with interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, payable annually on the whole sum remaining from time to time unpaid, and to pay all taxes and impositions, that might be legally levied or imposed upon such land subsequent to year 1906. And whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of four hundred twenty-five [$425.00] dollars due according to the terms of said contract on the 1st day of December, 1908, and further default has been made by you in not paying the interest due on the 7th day of December, 1908, amounting to Ninety-nine and 75-100 [$99.75] dollars; and also in not paying taxes in the sum of Nine and 76-100 [$9.76] dollars, and whereas said contract contained a provision, that in case of the failure of you, said Carl H. Aske, to make either of the payments, or the interest thereon or any part thereof, or perform any of the covenants on your part, made and entered into, then, the whole of said payments and interest due thereon, should at the election of the undersigned become immediately due and payable and said contract should at the option of the undersigned be cancelled and determined and all the right, title and interest acquired thereunder by you should be forfeited, by giving to you thirty days notice in writing of the intention of the undersigned to cancel and determine said contract and to annul all right, title and interest, acquired thereunder by you; and whereas, said contract further provided, that 30 days is a reasonable and sufficient notice to be given, in case of your failure to perform any of the covenants contained in said contract and should be sufficient to cancel all obligations on the part of the undersigned and fully reinvest the undersigned with all the right, title and interest, agreed to be conveyed and that you, said Carl H. Aske, should forfeit all payments made by you on said contract and all your right, title and interest in all buildings and other improvements whatsoever, such payments and improvements, to be retained by the undersigned.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given to you, the said Carl H. Aske, that the undersigned did and hereby does elect and decide to cancel, terminate and forfeit said contract, and said contract will stand and be cancelled, terminated and forfeited on the 6th day of March, 1909, unless prior to that date, you comply with all the conditions and provisions of said contract and make said payments, so in default, to-wit: Four hundred twenty-five [$425.00] dollars principal, and interest in the sum of Ninety-nine and 75-100 [$99.75] dollars, and the further sum of Nine and 76-100 [$9.76] dollars taxes, and the costs and expenses of service of this notice. Payment of said principal, interest and taxes so in default, and costs, and expenses of service of this notice, may be made to the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, at any time prior to the 6th day of March, 1909.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

SHAKE IN A BOTTLE.

Advice of Noted Authority, Also Gives a Simple Prescription.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at betime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity, when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them. 17-19

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is, in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation."

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is Hereby Given, That on the eleventh day of February 1909 at one o'clock p. m. at the Court House in the City of Red Lake Falls, Minnesota; I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the ditch No. 34 of Red Lake county established by the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, State of Minnesota, by their order bearing date 6th day of January A. D. 1909, viz: For the work as one job, and also for one or more sections of 100 feet each and also for one or more of the construction jobs, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet and from thence, successively up stream to the one including the source, said sections being numbered from No. "O" to No. 216 inclusive, to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in manner specified in said Engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent, over and above the estimate cost of the construction in any case, as stated in said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond to be approved by the Auditor of said County, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

The approximate amount of work to be done in the construction of such ditch is as follows:

The excavation and removal of 33,908, cubic yards of earth the same to be placed along the north side of the ditch so as to form a turnpike or grade. All work will be neatly cleared up on completion according to the engineer's directions and be left in a neat and orderly condition ready for use, and all roads after grading shall be dressed with a road machine as required by the plans, from station "O" to station No. 216 inclusive. The estimate cost per yard is ten cents.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the Auditor of said County, for not less than ten per cent. of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, one triangule will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Dirpepsin works your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decided to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of Indigestion. 15-18

There is no Quinine, nothing whatever harsh or sickening in Preventics. These little Candy Cold Cure Tablets act as if by magic. A few hours—and your threatening Cold is broken. Candylike in taste, Preventics please the children—and they break the feverishness, always. And least of all is the economy. A large box—48 Preventics—25 cents. Ask your druggist. He knows Sold by all dealers.

The Morning Cup of Pleasure

will be the cup of coffee that is made from our exquisitely flavored Mocha and Java that has an aroma that puts new life and appetite into those who arise with "that tired feeling." For Health — SUNKIST ORANGES — SUNKIST LEMONS — Mostly Seedless

Sweet "Sunkist" Oranges

Juicy "Sunkist" Lemons

The orange groves of Sunny California have never grown more perfect fruit than the present crop. And the choicest yield of 5,000 famous orchards have been labeled "Sunkist." Rich, golden globes of sweetness.

When you buy oranges and lemons insist upon the best. The "Sunkist" brands cost no more than the common varieties.

Always look for the name "Sunkist" on the box. It stands for the finest quality in oranges and lemons. It is there for your protection. It insures carefully selected fruit.

The California Fruit Growers' Exchange devote their energy, ambition and money to the cultivation of this brand. They are the richest in flavor, the firmest and the juiciest. Truly sun-kissed.

Tree-Ripened and Hand-Picked

Eat "Sunkist" oranges for health. To see them is to want them. To taste them is to want more. Keep them on your table at all times. Use "Sunkist" lemons for flavoring and for lemonade.

ANNOUCEMENT

On Wednesday, January 27th, I purchased the jewelry business of Henry W. Anderson. The business will be continued at the same location and along the same lines as before.

The stock, as before, comprises Jewelry and kindred lines and one standard of quality (the best) will be maintained in all departments.

It is my hope to merit a liberal patronage in return for strictly honest representations and methods and it is my desire to make for myself not a reputation for "cheapness" but for honest values. Uy watch and jewelry repair departments will be important features.

H. N. Johnson, newspaper publisher, banker and all around man of Lankin, N. Dak., was in Red Lake Falls over Sunday. He was accompanied by Mrs. Johnson and they were guests at the home of Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Toupin. Mr. Johnson returned to North Dakota Monday, but Mrs. Johnson is remaining for a longer visit.

The supervisors of the town of Terrebonne are to meet at Terrebonne tomorrow to receive and consider bids for the construction of a steel span bridge over the Clearwater river in the town of Terrebonne. The proposed bridge is to have a 150 foot span and will have a roadway sixteen feet clear between main carriers. Specifications also provide that distance from grade to bed of stream is to be 19 feet and that the bridge must be proportioned to carry in addition to its own weight 1600 pounds per lin foot of moving load.

The members of the local K. P. lodge banqueted at the Sanford Cafe last Saturday evening. The affair was gotten up in honor of Knight Anderson who is soon to leave Red Lake Falls. Covers were laid for fourteen and the good things provided by Chef Sanford filled the guests with good cheer and—nothing stronger than good coffee. The stunts that were pulled off, a la gridiron club, would cause "Chancy" DePew to wonder what right he had to the reputation of an after dinner speaker had he been present on the occasion. Some mighty nice things were said about the guest of honor right to his face and Andy proved his nerve by being able to respond to the many sentiments expressed. Those who aprtook of the banquet and who concealed their regret by pretending to be glad that Andy is to leave are Messrs. Zaiser, Gaass, Argue, Jeters, Johnson, Hunt, Germo, Brouillet, Buse, Sivertson, Watson, Henuings, Baker.

The Caverny company gave a delightful entertainment at the Metropolitan opera house last evening. This was the fourth number of the entertainment course. The last number of the course will be given March 19 by the Toranto male quartet.

At the next regular meeting of the R. N. A. lodge, to be held Friday evening, Feb. 5, a class of seven or eight new members will be initiated. After the ceremony of initiation refreshments will be served and social pastimes enjoyed. At the last regular meeting several new members were initiated.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the First State Bank of Red Lake Falls held Jan. 12, the following named stockholders were elected directors: Theo. Garceau, Frank E. Hunt, M. M. Watson, Chas. N. Bourdon, W. A. Schreiter, Geo. F. Hennings, Samuel Gibeau. At a meeting of the stockholders to be held this week the officers will be elected.

Two hundred beautiful pictures may be seen at the court house any afternoon or evening until the end of the week. The art exhibit is given under the auspices of the public schools which is a guaranty that the pictures are worth seeing. The single admission price is 15 cents for adults, 10 cents for children. Season tickets may be purchased at the price of 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children.

Christ Jule has purchased the Zeigler interest in the Terrebonne mill and he and Chas. O. Kankel, as copartners, will operate the mill in the future. Mr. Jule is an experienced miller and there is no doubt that the new firm will do a prosperous business. Eight years ago Mr. Jule was employed in this city by the Red Lake Falls Milling company. Since that time he has been employed in a mill at Atwater. Mr. Jule and family moved from Atwater to Terrebonne this week.

The deal involing the transfer of the Anderson jewelry business was completed this week and Mr. Anderson is now a "retired" business man. The new proprietor, Rudolph Holzman, has opened the store for business and the announcement to the public appears in this issue. Mr. Holzman has the reputation of being an excellent workman and there is no doubt that he will do a satisfactory business in Red Lake Falls. Mr. Anderson will not leave Red Lake Falls until about Feb. 10.

Prof. Erick Ecklund, the new band director, arrived last Saturday. The first practice was held Tuesday night, and if there was ever any doubt that Mr. Ecklund is the man the boys have been looking for that doubt has been dispelled. The way the new man put the boys through their paces made them sit up and take notice—and felt pretty good after the practice was finished. Mr. Ecklund is an excellent band director and there is no doubt that the music the people of Red Lake Falls are to enjoy next summer wont be the tin horn kind. There were twenty-six pieces in the band that got together Tuesday night and the number will probably be increased.

The construction of the new concrete pier at the east end of the bridge over the Clearwater river has been completed. The work of constructing the pier has been done under difficulties owing to the cold weather. An employee of the company doing the work informed THE GAZETTE that more than $75.00 worth of fuel was burned in heating the material used in the construction of the pier. Though there is always risk in doing this class of work in the winter time, in the work appears to have been done in a very satisfactory manner. The firm doing the work, the Hennepin Bridge company, is a reliable concern and there is no doubt that if the work does not prove satisfactory in every respect, defects will be remedied.

CATARRH IN HEAD.

Pe-ru-na—Pe-ru-na.

MR. WM. A. PRESSER.

MR. WILLIAM A. PRESSER, 1722 Third Ave., Moline, Ill., writes:

"I have been suffering from catarrh in the head for the past two months and tried innumerable so-called remedies without avail. No one knows how I have suffered not only from the disease itself, but from mortification when in company of friends or strangers.

"I have used two bottles of your medicine for a short time only, and it effected a complete medical cure, and what is better yet, the disease has not returned.

"I can most emphatically recommend Peruna to all sufferers from this disease."

Read This Experience.

Mr. A. Thompson, Box 65, R. R. 1, Martel, Ohio, writes: "When I began your treatment my eyes were inflamed, nose was stopped up half of the time, and was sore and scabby. I could not rest at night on account of continual hawking and spitting.

"I had tried several remedies and was about to give up, but thought I would try Peruna.

"After I had taken about one-third of a bottle I noticed a difference. I am now completely cured, after suffering with catarrh for eighteen years.

"I think if those who are afflicted with catarrh would try Peruna they would never regret it."

Peruna is manufactured by the Peruna Drug Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio.

BRETON TWO-STORY BEDS.

Many in Peasants' Huts, Richly Carved and Ornamented.

The Breton peasant has some charming qualities, courtesy, good humor, detachment from the prosaic side of life, but the virtue of cleanliness is not for him.

The cottages are frequently very dirty, and the approach to them is sometimes over a pile of refuse. There is nothing of luxury in a cottage interior, but you may generally count on two things to beautify even the poorest. One is the white coif of its mistress (always spotless, however dirty anything else may be), and the other is the brass trimmings of the armoire, usually polished to a degree of brightness that is positively dazzling. Some of these armoires are really beautiful, with elaborately carved panels, and in many cases are heirlooms that have been in the family for generations. Then there are the beds—one of them, of which the mistress is very proud, will be modern, with very coarse Nottingham lace curtains draped over it.

You give it a few complimentary words in order to satisfy its owner, but what you really want to see is the "lit-clos" in the far corner, and if it is a "lit-clos a deux etages" you are more than content. Some of these "lit-clos" are things of great beauty, like the armoires, and the carvings on the sitting panels are enough to make a collector green with envy.

HER MOTHER-IN-LAW

Proved a Wise, Good Friend.

A young woman out in Ia. found a wise, good friend in her mother-in-law, jokes notwithstanding. She writes:

"It is two years since we began using Postum in our house. I was greatly troubled with my stomach, complexion was blotchy and yellow. After meals I often suffered sharp pains and would have to lie down. My mother often told me it was the coffee I drank at meals. But when I'd quit coffee I'd have a severe headache.

"While visiting my mother-in-law I remarked that she always made such good coffee, and asked her to tell me how. She laughed and told me it was easy to make good 'coffee' when you use Postum.

"I began to use Postum as soon as I got home, and now we have the same good 'coffee' (Postum) every day, and I have no more trouble. Indigestion is a thing of the past, and my complexion has cleared up beautifully.

"My grandmother suffered a great deal with her stomach. Her doctor told her to leave off coffee. She then took tea but that was just as bad.

"She finally was induced to try Postum which she has used for over a year. She traveled during the winter over the greater part of Iowa, visiting, something she had not been able to do for years. She says she owes her present good health to Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

WOMAN'S REALM

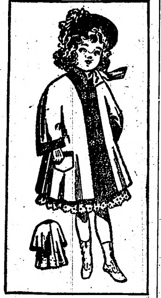
FASHIONS FOR TOTS

FOLLOW CLOSELY THOSE CHOSEN BY THEIR ELDERS.

Little Difference in Materials or Cut—Garments of Striking Hues Are Everywhere Worn by the Children.

Midwinter fashions for the young people of the family follow closely the rules laid down for the dressing of their elders.

The furs worn by the mother in her 30's or 40's appear in miniature for the small daughter in the kindergarten and the year-old babe in the nurse's arms. The empire back or directoire rever of mother's best wrap are closely followed in the development of the coat made for the girl not yet in her teens.



Attractive Wrap for Child.

The same may be said of trimmings, buttons and colorings. Not in many seasons have children worn such striking hues as this year. Those reliable shades, navy blue, garnet and tobacco brown, have been replaced by colorings once deemed "old," such as taupe, grays like London smoke, faded raspberry red, and even that peculiar brown, known as Catawba.

These are enlivened by touches of bullion trimming—particularly gold. For the bullion braid frogs and tassels have quite generally replaced those of silk on very dressy garments.

A word about fur coats. These are an excellent investment in a family where there are several children, for they can be handed down one size to another as the children grow. In climates where the winters are severe they are especially desirable. For the baby in short clothes who still rides in a coach, a favorite skin is coney, which is very much like soft white rabbit skin.

For a baby the pure white is of course preferable. For children of three and upward it can be dyed gray, brown or black. A very stunning combination for a girl of six is a full length loose coat of this black fur with a velvet hat showing a dash of flame color or scarlet.

Pony skin and caracul cloth are also used for children, but none of these are as light and yet warm as the coney skin. A fur coat for a child should be very plain without fancy braid or buttons, etc.

The navy blue chinchilla cloth, so long a standard cloth for school coats, reefers, etc., has been replaced this season by gray chinchilla.

Broadcloths, especially those in two tone effects and heavy weights, are used for general wear, while the satin finished fabrics are suitable only for the child who may have several outer garments. Sensitive mothers of babies in long clothes have two coats, an inner and outer garment.

Our illustration shows a model suitable for a child from four to eight years of age. This is a model of a loose coat that can be slipped on over fancy dresses. This especial model was seen evolved in heavy French serge in dull gray and the trimmings were of broadcloth in a lighter shade of gray and gilt frogs trimmed the front. It requires very little skill to make this coat as it is cut in only two pieces.

WRAPPERS NO LONGER WORN.

Loose Indoor Gown Is the One Now Most in Favor.

Wrappers are no longer in vogue. They may be worn when one is dressing or sleeping or attending to minor details in the house, but they are not the garment to be put on for other hours.

The morning wrapper for private wear is now an exceedingly pretty affair. It has nothing in common with the calico Mother Hubbard of other days. The kimona has settled all that. It has given its shape to all these garments. Therefore, the indoor robe is graceful and is made of pretty, soft fabric. But it has its place and its hours. The loose indoor gown is the one now popular for evening wear when there are no callers.

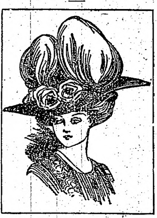
The busy woman, the tired woman and especially the woman who works during the day at any other order of task does not want to put on a tight gown every evening. She wants one that is comfortable and artistic.

The new ones which are generally worn are cut on empire line and do not require a corset under them. They are in one piece, fastened down front or back, and have a yoke and stock of lace or net.

Pockets Now the Style for Girls.

Neither bag, sachet, pocket book nor cardcase is carried by the truly tailored girl these days. If she has the proper kind of gownmaker all these things may be stowed away in her pockets. A slash in the deep belt affords a receptacle for change and small memoranda. A deep treasure gathering pocket is hidden safely beneath the front panel of the sheath. The girl of to-day swings her empty hands and shows no signs of secret burdens.

FASHIONABLE HAT.



A study in gray hat of satin tendu "gris acier," the crown covered with soft silver-gray plumes and a spray of silver roses.

Turbans and Muffs.

There is some comfort in the thought that when the huge fur turbans do go out of first style, which is only a matter of a few weeks, they will come in excellently for muffs. In this way a woman will not feel that she has thrown away money.

A good many of them already feel this discouragement when they remember the $20 paid for a good fur turban the first of the year, and the thousands now selling at three dollars apiece.

This is the kind of thing that makes a woman of moderate means glad she waited until the first rush of the season was over to put her dress allowance into a hat or a suit.

NEW IDEA IN FANCY WORK.

Darning Cotton Makes Product Both Pretty and Artistic.

Most women who consider the irksome darning they must do and the fascinating embroidery they love to do as irreconcilably separated would be surprised to hear of using darning materials for fancy work. Not in making artistic darns—though, as a matter of fact, every darn should be a thing of beauty—but by using darning cotton for solid work on linen and kindred materials.

One very pretty parasol worked in this manner was recently seen. The sunshade itself was an inexpensive, natural colored linen one, costing just one dollar, and it was embroidered with a heavy design of dots and wide scallops, in ordinary brown darning cotton.

On one side was worked the owner's monogram in a very light tan. Around the design was a line of cotton, with two strands of linen caught up by the needle at distances of one inch. The effect was striking, and the work was easy, to say nothing of the infinitesimal cost.

Keep the Garters Crossed.

Some French corsetieres are advising their customers to cross the garters which extend from the extreme front of the corset. This is said to prevent the corset's wearing away at the sharp point of the front steel—which sometimes happens while the garment is perfectly good in other respects. The crossing of the garters in no way intereferes with the ordinary use of the limbs in walking, especially in these days of narrow skirts. If each garter has two elastics, the outer ones may go down straight in the usual way, the inner ones crossing to the opposite leg and fastening to the stocking an inch beyond the outer garter.

RAGS BRIDAL GIFT

ACCEPTABLE PRESENT FOR THE YOUNG MATRON.

Scrapbag for Emergencies Was the Idea of a Wise Mother—Really Good Sense Marks Such an Offering.

The spic and spanness of the average trousseau leaves no place for a piece bag. Everything is new, and in a house otherwise well supplied the young matron is often at a loss to find a piece of linen to staunch a wound or a scrap of muslin to stay his buttons.

The sisters of a recent bride were amused to find their mother collecting old rolls of muslin, odd bits of linen, remnants of calico, and even ends of old stockings to send across the continent to a newly married pair.

The family remonstrances as to "waste of expressage on rags" had no effect. The older housekeeper knew that the young one, with her fine table linen, bed clothing and lingerie, could have no more welcome gift in that distant city than that despised scrapbag for emergencies.

Another seasoned housekeeper gives to every bride-to-be among her friends what she calls "The Bride's Friend." It is nothing more than an elaborate patch bag, but proves the most popular kind of an engagement present.

She makes a large laundry bag of art linen in some bright color, binds it with white linen tape, supplies it with several pockets, inside and out, and embroiders on the front the initials of the recipient.

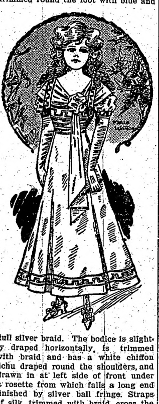
The bag is then stocked with scrub cloths, pieces of muslin for ironing boards, covers for pots and pans, several yards of gray canton flannel for wiping up floors, chamois skins, rolls of old muslin and linen and good sized pieces of silk and cloth.

The fame of this odd gift has been spread by enthusiastic young housekeepers, who have found it a delight to have a supply on which to draw before time provides them with "rags" of their own.

YOUNG GIRL'S PARTY DRESS.

Pretty Costume in Pale Turquoise Blue Chiffon Taffeta.

Here is a pretty evening-dress for a young girl; it is in pale turquoise blue chiffon taffeta. The skirt is trimmed round the foot with blue and dull silver braid. The bodice is slightly draped horizontally, is trimmed with braid and has a white chiffon fichu draped round the shoulders, and drawn in at left side of front under a rosette from which falls a long end finished by silver ball fringe. Straps of silk, trimmed with braid, cross the shoulders above the fichu.



Materials required: 6 yards 42 inches wide, 2 yards double width chiffon, about 2½ dozen yards braid.

NEWEST THING IN PERFUMES.

American Beauty Sachet Has Caught Fancy of Fashion.

Each year sees a new fashion in perfume. The winter of 1909 will give to the American Beauty the apple of success.

This is the new perfume, and the ultra-fashionable thing of the day is to have it in sachet or a drop of it for your clothes or a cake of soap to use on special occasions.

The Americans have taken it up not only with patriotism but enthusiasm. Heretofore they have always used the French perfumes under French names.

The sachets of this sell from 75 cents up and are confined in an envelope of American Beauty satin. The odor is subtle and lasting.

Only a small bottle of the essence is needed, as a drop is enough for a gown. The smart women put a drop or two on a piece of gauze or cotton and tuck it away in the evening gown.

One drop of it put on a blouse perfumes it as though it had been put away in a pot-pourri of American Beauty rose leaves.

With Every Frock a Flower.

The fad for wearing artificial posies with the evening frock has returned with a vengeance, and all the shops are showing natural-looking roses, lily-of-the-valley sprays, gardenias, orchids and violet clusters, ready to pin to the bodice. These made-to-order flowers are, however, not an economy, for in most cases the price runs far above that of an ordinary blossom of the same kind. The artificial flower, of course, has the advantage of keeping its usefulness far beyond the brief beauty of the real blossom.

The Width of the Skirt.

The dressmakers have decided that about the best width for the modern clinging skirt is two yards or a few inches over. Street skirts cut above the ankles, made of rough fabrics, are not always this wide, but the two yards in unstiffened satin or tulle give enough fullness at footline.

COVERS IN GLARING COLORS.

East Indian Designs Are Just Now Extremely Popular.

Since the fashion in making East Indian patterns and designs on many fabrics came back into fashion there has been a wide demanded for the printed cotton table cover in these colors.

These are used for bedroom, library and sitting room tables. They sell for small prices from a dollar up. The background is white and the figures are brilliant green and red and yellow.

Large peacocks in the brilliant blues and greens strut over the surface, and huge baskets of red flowers make a circle in the center.

The woman who needs new table covers and who does not wish to invest in expensive affairs could not do better than choose one of these.

In a bedroom or sitting room where old colonial furniture is used these table cloths are especially effective, for they were much used in the period that gave birth to the mahogany furniture.

One decorator has used four of the smaller covers, with baskets of roses and the cashmere border as a covering for a bed. It is quite effective and harmonizes entirely with the rest of the room, which is colonial.

The Toilet Table

Washing the eyes morning and night in water as hot as it can be borne is a wonderful tonic for those useful servants which are so easily injured.

To reduce the hips stand up straight and by bending forward make the fingertips touch the floor. Do not wear tight clothing and do not bend the knees. This is an old exercise, known as the "setting-up" exercise, and is much used in the army for this purpose.

JEWELRY OF ALL KINDS.

Real or False, the "Stones" Must Be Much in Evidence.

There seems no end to the jewelry women will wear this season. The workers in gems are having the busiest year of the last decade. Jewelry is as important as clothes. One has ever so many sets to match costumes, regardless of the fact that the stones used may be only of glass or composition.

No one pretends to wear real gems all the time. Why should they? When the extra rich put their real jewels in safety deposit boxes and wear paste imitation to the opera and balls, why shouldn't every one wear the paste ones without the expense of buying the real ones?

One doesn't go around with a certificate to prove that the real gems are deposited.

So in this day of fancy jewelry there are many kinds of earrings. Those who can wear pendant ones have discovered a brand-new method of making them. Seed pearls are used in tassels that drop an inch or two low from the ears. They begin in a flat or round stone which covers the edge of the ear.

It is rather ridiculous to hear the diatribes of the uninformed talk about the barbarism of women boring holes in their ears in this age of sense. No one does it. The earrings have a patent clamp that catches behind the lobe of the ear and does no more harm to the skin than a ring on the finger.

The girl who can wear a Greek gown of messaline satin with tunic bordered with gold, sandal slippers of gold, a filigree filet in her hair and a pair of tassel earrings is the girl of the moment.

Supper Favors.

Confectionery and fancy cakes are being used for supper novelties now instead of the favorite crackers, although these latter are not banished entirely from parties. There are eclairs, lady fingers, tartlets, fruit and even fish and small game made of paper or papier mache and looking for all the world like real sweets. But inside these dainties are tucked paper caps after the style of the better known supper party confections.

WESTERN CANADA'S 1908 CROP

WILL GIVE TO THE FARMERS OF WEST A SPLENDID RETURN.

"Last December, in reviewing the year 1907, we had to record a wheat harvest considerably smaller in volume than in the previous year. Against ninety millions in 1906 the wheat crop of the West in 1907 only totaled some seventy-one million bushels, and much of this of inferior quality. But the price averaged high, and the total result to the farmers was not unprofitable. This year we have to record by far the largest wheat crop in the country's history. Estimates vary as to the exact figure, but it is certainly not less than one hundred million bushels, and in all probability it reaches one hundred and ten million bushels. The quality, moreover, is good, and the price obtained very high, so that in all respects the Western harvest of 1908 has been a memorable one. The result upon the commerce and finance of the country is already apparent. The railways are again reporting increases in traffic, the general trade of the community has become active after twelve months' quiet, and the banks are loosening their purse strings to meet the demand for money. The prospects for 1909 are excellent. The credit of the country never stood as high. The immigrants of 1907 and 1908 have now been absorbed into the industrial and agricultural community, and wise regulations are in force to prevent too great an influx next year. Large tracts of new country will be opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific both in East and West. If the seasons are favorable the Western wheat crop should reach one hundred and twenty million bushels. The prospects for next year seem very fair." An interesting letter is received from Cardston, Alberta (Western Canada), written to an agent of the Canadian Government, any of whom will be pleased to advise correspondents of the low rates that may be allowed intending settlers.

"Dear Sir: Now that my threshing is done, and the question 'What Will the Harvest Be,' has become a certainty, I wish to report to you the results thereof, believing it will be of interest to you. You know I am only a novice in the agricultural line, and do not wish you to think I am boasting because of my success, for some of my neighbors have done much better than I have, and I expect to do much better next year myself. My winter wheat went 53 bushels per acre—and graded No. 1. My spring wheat went 48⅔ bushels per acre, and graded No. 1. My oats went 97 bushels per acre, and are fine as any oats I ever saw. My stock is all nice and fat, and are out in the field picking their own three square meals a day. The weather is nice and warm, no snow—and very little frost. This, in short, is an ideal country for farmers and stockmen. The stock requires no shelter or winter feeding, and cattle fatten on this grass and make the finest kind of beef, better than corn fed cattle in Ills. Southwestern Alberta will soon be known as the farmers' paradise; and I am only sorry I did not come here five years ago. Should a famine ever strike North America, I will be among the last to starve—and you can count on that.

"I thank you for the personal assistance you rendered me while coming in here, and I assure you I shall not soon forget your kind offices."

What the Dollies Had.

Little Mary was realy very ill. Mother said she was sure it was an attack of appendicitis, but grandma was equally sure the little one was threatened with convulsions.

The argument waxed warm in Mary's presence, and appropriate remedies were used; and the next day she was better.

Coming into her mother's room during her play, she said:

"Mamma, two of my dollies are very sick this morning."

"Indeed, dear, I am very sorry. What is the matter with them?"

"Well I don't really know, mamma, but I think Gwendolyn has 'a pint o' spiders' and Margurite is going to have 'envulsions.'"

HOME COUGH CURE.

Go to your druggist and get one-half ounce Concentrated pine compound, two ounces of glycerine, half a pint of good whiskey; mix it up, and use it in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours, shaking the bottle each time. Any druggist can supply ingredients.

The Concentrated pine is a pine product refined for medical use and comes only in half ounce bottles, each enclosed in a round case which is airtight and preserves the fluid in its full strength, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated." A prominent local druggist says he has filled this prescription hundreds of times and has seen it work wonders.

Sardou's Quip.

"Victorien Sardou hated shams," said a Cincinnati theatrical manager. "If you tried to impose on him, he would call you down.

"At the Ambigu, during a rehearsal, he said he doubted an actor's statement that he had given forty hours of study to his lines.

"'You doubt me?' said the actor, hotly. 'I assure you, Monsieur Sardou, I have never lied but twice in my life.'

"Sardou smiled dryly.

"'Then this makes thrice, eh?' said he."

TOLD TO USE CUTICURA.

After Specialist Failed to Cure Her Intense, Itching Eczema—Had Been Tortured and Disfigured But

Was Soon Cured of Dread Humor.

"I contracted eczema and suffered intensely for about ten months. At times I thought I would scratch myself to pieces. My face and arms were covered with large red patches, so that I was ashamed to go out. I was advised to go to a doctor who was a specialist in skin diseases, but I received very little relief. I tried every known remedy, with the same results. I thought I would never get better until a friend of mine told me to try the Cuticura Remedies. So I tried them, and after four or five applications of Cuticura Ointment I was relieved of my unbearable itching. I used two sets of the Cuticura Remedies, and I am completely cured. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

AN EXPERIMENT IN COLLECTIVISM

By LIONEL CHEWETTE

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Curly was talking. Although it had been more than two years since my last meeting with him, my recollection of our former acquaintance was sufficiently vivid to make that fact no surprise. But the subject matter of his discourse was rather unexpected. I had never regarded Curly as one to whom the great truths of modern socialism would appeal. But here he sat, forcibly inveighing anent the wrongs of labor and the greed of capital, and just as forcibly urging the claims of co-operation, or rather "collectivism" (for weighty reasons, which I have forgotten, co-operation was not the thing), as the sovereign remedy for all the ills of the state.

Certainly, as we sat on our bench in the common that morning, there was nothing in Curly's appearance that denoted discontent. And yet, he was preaching the gospel of unrest, as if he actually believed in it. I was a little mistrustful, however.

"What is the scheme, anyway, Curly?" I asked, when he paused for an instant.

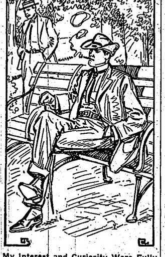
The effect of my question was marked. He showed no surprise, but he colored slightly, he hung his head, and presented as crestfallen an appearance as a man well could.

"Does it strike you that way, honest, Bill?" He faltered in his utterance. "Now, I've put in a good deal of time and work getting up that game of talk. It means a good deal to me."

I laughed joyfully. My renewed acquaintance with Curly promised to be as full of interest as my former one. I slapped him on the shoulder.

"Cheer up!" I said. "You would convince a wooden Indian, easily; but you see I remember that—that last time." I hesitated somewhat in my effort to say nothing that might hurt my companion's feelings.

He looked at me thoughtfully. "Yes," he said. "Do you know, Bill," he went on, "I've wondered, sometimes, if I didn't put you in bad by going off that time. I wouldn't have wanted to do that."



My Interest and Curiosity Were Fully Aroused.

I laughed again. "Don't say a word, Curly," I said. "One or two of them did rather suggest that I got half of the—er—proceeds, but no one really believed it. But what is the new scheme, anyway?" I repeated.

"Well," Curly settled himself a little on the bench, "as I was saying, the way it's run now, the working man only gets about a quarter of what he produces; and I thought I'd try to even it up a little in one place anyway. You see, I closed up last season over $500 to the good, and I've put that five hundred into an option on a hundred and twenty acres out at Wedgewood. You know where that is?"

I nodded. I had a passing acquaintance with that eminently exclusive town of summer residences.

"I haven't got my plans in shape yet," Curly went on, "but I'm going to put a collectivist colony there, about 50 or 60 men and their families, if they have any." He paused a moment, and then went on. "I'm going to give each one a little place where he can live if he wants to, but most of it we'll all run together. They'll pay me as they can, just what I've paid for their shares and we'll all have a say about what we raise or make; that is, on the part we own together. Understand?"

I didn't understand. "Why, yes," I said, "I comprehend what you are saying, but, really," I laughed a little, "I don't see where you come in, Curly."

"Well, you see, it's this way," he began, but he got no further. Instead, he looked at me for a moment. Then he placed a hand on my arm. "You don't mind, do you, Bill, if I don't tell you, just now?" he asked deprecatingly. "You see, it's rather ticklish business, and it means a good deal to me, too," he repeated. "Anyway, you'll probably guess it. There'll be a lot in the papers about it."

Of course I did not urge him and I left him soon after. I was somewhat disgusted. All that I could see to his scheme was "False and fraudulent misrepresentation" and even so, I doubted very much if he could make it work. To be sure, in order to be a socialist, one's mind must be, well, somewhat receptive, but I doubted if even a socialist would give Curly the custody of his money without receiving value therefor. Besides, there are laws and we were in Massachusetts where the way of the transgressor is hard.

I was disgusted but I was more disappointed. I felt that I had a right to expect, if not something better, at least something more original than this from Curly. Nevertheless, in pursuance of his hint, I did watch the daily papers. Perhaps it would be too much to say, as Curly had predicted, that there was "a lot," but there was certainly a good deal about him and his projects. But I got no enlightenment from that source as to the real nature of his scheme. There were items, however, which seemed not to harmonize with my false pretence theory. For instance, it was stated that "Mr. Hermes (Curly) was greatly annoyed at the premature announcement of his plans," and that "He does not wish to receive subscriptions until he is in a position to give a title to the land in exchange."

A few days after the first public announcement of Curly's intention, a story appeared which, perhaps, ought to have made the matter clear to me. It was to the effect that Wedgewood objected, objected decidedly to the idea of a socialist settlement in its midst. The wealthy summer residents did not care for such neighborhoods, and, to put it mildly, the natives dreaded the effect on the value of their real estate. They were talking of calling a town meeting to take measures for protection and there was even talk of repelling the threatened invasion by violence. The story concluded as follows:

"When seen at his apartments, Mr. Hermes expressed his regret at the attitude taken by the people of Wedgewood, and said that it could only arise from a misapprehension of his real design. He said, however, that it would make no difference in his plans. Mr. Hermes said further that he would be able to complete his title to the estate much sooner than he had anticipated and that probably he would be in a position to receive members sometime within the next two weeks."

It must have been a month before I saw Curly again. For the latter half of that period there had been no newspaper mention of his socialistic experiment, and, having been a good deal occupied with my own affairs, the matter had nearly slipped from my mind. However, both my interest and curiosity were fully aroused as I was crossing the common one morning by the sight of the man himself, seated on the identical bench where we had held our previous conversation. As I approached him the thought was uppermost in my mind that he did not look either like a man who had lost $500 or like one who expected to lose that sum. He greeted me cordially and almost immediately I put the question that had been in my thoughts.

"Well, how are the socialists coming on?" I asked.

"You mean out at Wedgwood?" My question seemed to surprise him a little. "Oh! that's all done with."

"Wouldn't it work?" I asked.

"Work! Work!" Curly repeated. "Say, boy, if all my schemes had worked the way that one did, I'd be a millionaire." He looked at the ground reflectively. "It came out just the way I played it, too," he added.

A wave of joy swept over me. Curly was not going to disappoint me, after all.

"Tell me about it," I urged.

"Well," Curly replied, slowly, "you see, it was this way. I knew that those society people wouldn't want any freaky bunch of cranks roosting out in their part of the country. So I did my best to have the papers set the thing out big, and I went down there myself and I just talked to everybody that would listen, talked just as crazy as I could, you know."

"Go on," I said, as he paused.

"Well," he continued, "one day a lawyer called on me and tried to convince me that I didn't want any colony at Wedgewood, anyway. Said the people would make it as hard for me as they could. He said I'd do better to go to some other place and lots of things like that. Well, he convinced me after a while and I let him have the option." Curly stopped as if the story was finished.

I said nothing for a minute. The whole was clear to me now and my admiration prevented speech. Then I held out my hand.

"Shake, Curly," I said. "I owe you an apology, besides," I went on. "I thought you intended to get it out of the socialists."

He shook his head. "No," he said, "there's nothing in that end of it, and, besides, it's risky." His words left no doubt that he had considered the matter in all its bearings.

"Do you mind telling how much you got?" I asked, after a minute.

"Twenty-five hundred," he answered, without looking up. "Two thousand profit."

I laughed. "Did you have to split it any?" I asked.

"Well, no, not much," he returned, slowly. "I gave a fellow fifty for giving it away; to the papers, you know, and I guess I paid lawyers about as much more. I didn't want to take any chances I could help."

We were both silent for a moment. Then I said: "It beats working, don't it, Curly?"

He nodded emphatically. "Forty ways," he said, and after a minute he said again, more quietly: "Forty ways."

Curly broke the silence next time. "What did you say you were driving at now?" he asked.

"Writing stories," I answered.

Curly gave me a comprehending glance. "Well," he said, reflectively, "it beats working, anyway."

"All are loud in their praises of the great crops and that wonderful country."—Extract from correspondence National Editorial Association of August, 1908.
It is now possible to secure a homestead of 160 acres free and another 160 acres at $3.00 per acre. Hundreds have paid the cost of their farms (if purchased) and then had a balance of from $10.00 to $12.00 per acre from one crop. Wheat, barley, oats, flax—all do well. Mixed farming is a great success and dairying is highly profitable. Excellent climate, splendid schools and churches, railways bring most every district within easy reach of market. Railway and land companies have lands for sale at low prices and on easy terms.

MEETING OF LAYMEN

Important Gathering of Churchmen at Minneapolis Next Week.

The Laymen's Missionary Movement, which has crossed the continent, spread through Canada, England, Scotland, Germany and Austria, has reached the Northwest. The Minnesota conference is set for February 4 7, at Minneapolis. It is expected that it will be attended by 1,500 laymen representing churches in every county in the state, besides a large gathering of pastors, who are invited to attend as honorary members.

The movement is inter-denominational and does not interfere with the methods of missionary work of the churches, but simply seeks to interest the laymen in the missions, and through them strengthen their support.

A number of notable speakers are to deliver addresses, among them Col. Elijah W. Halford, the founder of the Chicago Inter-Ocean; Wm. T. Ellis, well known as a newspaper correspondent on missionary topics; J. Campbell White, considered the greatest foreign missionary speaker of this generation and D. F. Wilber, U. S. consul general at Nova Scotia.

The conference will be inaugurated by a dinner Thursday evening at the West Hotel, at which Cyrus Northrup of the State University of Minnesota will preside. Governor John A. Johnson is to be one of the speakers.

The meetings at the Wesley M. E. church, where the conference is to be held, begin Friday morning with a pastors' meeting to be addressed by Col. Halford, Rev. Charles E. Bradt, of Chicago, and J. Campbell White. In the afternoon campaigners' conferences are to be held and in the evening a mass meeting for men, presided over by Hon. David P. Jones of Minneapolis. Saturday morning there will be another campaigners' conference at which practical questions of missionary work will be discussed by speakers from the standpoint of experience. Saturday afternoon the conference will be divided into denominational meetings for consideration of the amount of support of foreign missions that should be undertaken and the steps necessary to secure it.

Saturday night a mass meeting will be held, which will be presided over by Jas. Suydam of St. Paul. At the churches Sunday morning and evening the pulpits will be occupied by laymen speakers on the subject of foreign missions. In the afternoon an inter-denominational conconference will be held.

This is by far the most important gathering of the kind ever held in the Northwest and will bring together for united effort many of the most influential churchmen of the state.

RAILROAD VALUATION

Expert Making Appraisal of Railroods Submits Report to State Legislature.

The report of Dwight C. Morgan, on the value of the physical properties of the railways of the state of Minnesota, has been handed to the members of the legislature in a supplementary report of the railroad and warehouse commission. In brief it shows that the aggregate cost of reproduction of all the railways of the state is computed by the state to be $360,961,547, the report covering the period up to June 30, 1907.

The cost of reproduction of all railways in the state, as claimed by the companies for June 30, 1906, was $500,675,780.

DON'T NEED THE MONEY.

Red Wing Judge Lets State do His Banking.

The Minnesota state treasury is considered a safe place to keep money by Judge W. C. Williston of Red Wing, district judge for the First judicial district.

Judge Williston's salary is $4,200, but he has drawn no money from the state since early in 1905. The state auditor's books show $14,035.06 now to his credit and it is growing at the rate of $350 a month. The judge is well along in years and in good shape financially and seems willing to make the state treasury a savings bank, though it pays him no interest.

State officials generally draw their salaries once or twice a month and there are few exceptions to that rule.

VICTORY FOR MINNESOTA

Wins Swamp Land Case Before Secretary of the Interior.

Minnesota won her swamp land case before the secretary of the interior at Washington, at least to the extent of obtaining what Attorney General Simpson and State Auditor Iverson believe will result in the acquisition of nearly 200,000 acres of land by the state under a policy which Secretary Garfield has agreed to pursue in determining whether lands on Indian reservations claimed by the state are swamp or not. A plan was outlined and agreed to, which was presented to Secretary Garfield with the result referred to.

Organize to Work Together.

For the first time in many years the interests of the Republican party in the state legislature will be committed to the hands of a regular organization. The senators already have taken action by the appointment of a steering committee and the house members are considering a similar move. The object is to organize and act as a party in putting through a programme of constructive legislation to which Republicans can point as a party record in the next campaign.

MUST HAVE LICENSE SAME AS SALOONS

Supreme Court Says Social Clubs Selling Liquor Must Have Licenses.

St. Paul's Leading Club Was Basis of Test Case Just Decided.

The Minnesota club of St. Paul, composed of that city's leading business and professional men, is a saloon, according to a decision handed down by the state supreme court. This means that the Minnesota club, the Commercial club, the Elks' club and like organizations will have to pay for saloon licenses just the same as ordinary saloons and that the "speak easies" will have to take to the tall grass.

The suit was originally instituted by former Attorney General E. T. Young against the club to force it to obtain a license. It was a test case and was therefore followed with much interest. The lower court decided that the license law does not apply to social organizations and the case was appealed.

According to the decision social clubs taking out licenses must obey the 11 o'clock and Sunday closing law.

GROWTH OF MINNESOTA.

Commissioner Welsh Shows an Increase in Products.

The farm products of Minnesota have increased approximately from $9,000,000 in 1860 to $260,000,000 in 1907, according to the figures just issued by State Immigration Commissioner George Welsh, in his first biennial report to the governor.

As a result of the steady increase of urban population, which comes largely from the rural districts, the land owners find it difficult to get men to till the land and in consequence farms decreased in value. The farm products in Minnesota had been erroneously placed very low by people in other states, so that few immigrants were attracted to come to this state. In reality Minnesota ranks very high in the value of production per acre. It is exceeded by Illinois alone, but the average in that state is $152.38, while here it is $37.97. Although only 34.1 per cent of the land in Minnesota is actually tilled, she stands fourth in the rank of cereal production, when a comparison is made with the forty-six states in the Union.

The manufactured products of the state have increased by leaps and bounds in the last half century. In 1860 the value of the manufactured products was $3,000,000 and in 1907 it reached the total of $350,000,000.

NEW SOO LINE.

People of Thief River Falls Elated Over Prospect.

That the Soo line may build an extension, running southeast from Thief River Falls to connect at Sotan with the Brooten-Duluth line, now building, was the announcement made by Vice President Edmund Pennington at the Soo headquarters building in Minneapolis. This extension, which will be 250 miles long, probably will not be built until 1910.

While it has been expected for some time, from surveys made, that Northern Minnesota was to have a new transverse line the question of what road would build it has been unsettled. As first announced the proposed extension was to have been a branch of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic, another of the Canadian Pacific lines. The territory which will be opened up is a farming and hardwood country.

VALUABLE INFORMATION

Things Worth Knowing About Postal Regulations.

When you address your letters or cards with a lead pencil see that the address is plainly written. Most letters are improperly addressed. You had better use a pen and ink.

When you address a letter see that you spell the name of the town correctly. Many postoffices have similiar names. Don't write Cin. for Cincinnati, or Col. for Columbus.

When you address a letter or card leave room for the stamp and postmark in the upper right hand corner. Postmarks often blur your address.

Do not put writing in newspapers or packages; if you do the matter becomes first-class mail and you must pay letter postage—two cents an ounce, or you are liable to a fine of $10.

Written or typewritten letters placed in unsealed envelopes are subject to the same rate of postage as when sealed—two cents an ounce.

Post cards in transparent envelopes will go at the rate of one cent if unsealed, provided there is nothing more than the address of the one to receive it and the name of the sender. Stamp must be placed on envelope, and not on card when enclosed in transparent envelope.

Post cards containing writing and enclosed in transparent envelope whether sealed or unsealed, must bear a two cent stamp and the stamp must be placed on the envelope instead of the card.

Send valuable papers or merchandise by first-class registered mail, for the Post Office Department will make good any loss in the mail not exceeding $25.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The thing a woman suspects about a strange man in a car who won't look at her is that he is trying to.

A girl can cry over how, if there were any sleigh riding, she couldn't go because she hadn't the right kind of furs.

Generally a woman's reason for doing a thing is she hasn't any, and it turns out much better than with a man, who has.

When a woman wants to be particularly proud of her husband, she speaks of his whisky bottle in the pantry as the wine cellar.

The average man seems to be able to get more fun out of going to a funeral with his friends than to the theater with his family.

Thief River Falls Warriors Have Carried County Seat Fight to State Capital.

Don't Want Local People to Decide Local Question---Ask Legislature for Help.

The Thief River Falls warriors in the county seat fight, like the North Dakota Irishman who hit the man from Iowa, after "licking" everybody in his own country, are taking in too much territory. Indeed they had about as much fight as they needed to keep them busy right at home, but, defeated at every turn, they have carried the fight to the state legislature. A bill introduced in their behalf provides that when a petition bearing names equal in number to sixty per cent of the legal voters of the county has been filed with the secretary of state it shall be the duty of that official to call an election within ninety days. The bill makes no provision for determining the genuineness of signatures and there is no alternative for the secretary of state—he must call the election. The county officials would have no duties to perform in the matter no matter how fraudulent the means employed to secure names for the petition. The people could vote, when the opportunity came, and they would have the privilege of paying the expenses of the election.

Obviously the bill is intended as a piece of snap legislature, and, naturally enough, its provisions are such that it would be practically impossible to secure a second removal of the county seat, it having been once moved. They are going to get it and nail it down—if they can.

There is to be an interesting fight on the bill. The county seat towns of the state are becoming aroused to the dangers of the situation. They see in the bill the opportunity for ambitious towns to start county seat contests resulting in unsettled conditions and useless expense and contentions.

A number of Red Lake Falls business men have gone to St. Paul to engage actively in the fight against the propesed legislation and to try to undo the work of a large number of Thief River Falls men who have been laboring at St. Paul for several days.

There is little doubt that the foolishness, the selfishness and the unfairness of the proposed legislation will be apparent to the members of the legislature and that the bill will be defeated.

Don't Need Normal.

The people of Thief River Falls are more in need of a union depot than a normal school. Indeed the school would be an insignificant affair compared with the mammoth structure it will be necessary to construct to accommodate trains from the elevated roads and the subways, for when all the railroads they are dreaming about are constructed there wont be room on the surface of the earth for trackage. Perhaps the metropolis to the north will spread out all over the north half of the county and maybe we'll hear the noises and smell the smoke from the great center of industry. Get off the map, Crookston and Bemidji.

Former Red Lake Falls Man Will Have to Make Another Fight for Fortune.

Appeal Taken From the Decision Awarding Son of Pierre Bottineau $23,000.

James M. E. O'Grady, former congressman from Rochester, New York, has taken an appeal from the decision of the supreme court of the District of Columbia awarding John Bottineau $23,000 as attorney's fees for putting the claim of the Turtle Mountain Indians through congress.

John Bottineau, known as "Turtle Mountain John," is a son of Pierre Bottineau, the famous scout of pioneer days, and formerly resided in Red Lake Falls and is well known here, and consequently people here are interested in the outcome of the case.

About Christmas time Judge Barnard of the supreme court of the District of Columbia rendered a decision awarding Bottineau $23,000 as his share of a fee for recovering from the government payment for 10,000,000 acres of land in North Dakota.

Bottineau went to Washington several years ago with a contract from his tribe to secure payment of their claim. The government offered to settle for $1,000,000 but Bottineau refused and later turned the matter over to a former member of congress from New York. This man went to North Dakota and made a contract with the Indians whereby they agreed to accept $1,000,000.

Bottineau, however, had a contract with the ex-member of congress for a percentage of any fee which might be allowed and brought suit for $50,000. Bottineau appeared as his own attorney and the case was decided in his favor. The result of the appeal will be watched for with interest.

DAIRYING IN THE RED RIVER VALLEY

Article Written by Supt. Wm. Robertson of the Crookston Agricultural School.

Published in January Number of the Minnesota Dairyman.

The wet seasons which lately terminated in Northwestern Minnesota and which by many were thought to be the undoing of this section, were doubtless the best thing that could have happened to force that change which always has to be forced when a section of country starts out with a one-crop system for which it seems at the start to be especially adapted. The Red River Valley is not yet done growing small grains as evidenced by the fact that it captured prizes on oats, wheat and barley at the recent Omaha exposition. But weeds are developing—they always do with the one-year style of farming—and something must be done to head them off. Summer fallowing is always the first attempt made, but this is too expensive.

The first co-operative creamery was organized in this section quite a number of years ago, but dairying was too slow business for the man who could grow No. 1 northern wheat in summer and spend his winters in California, so the creamery developed slowly. It was not till the wet season came that the grain farmer saw the advantage his neighbor with some cows had when reverses came. By next spring there will be about ninety co-operative creameries at work here. Each year sees the number increase and the individuality grow in strength. Moreover the bankers say here as elsewhere that as the creamery grows in strength the opportunity for the bank to loan money to the farmer grows less. Some laughed and said that with the return of the first good crop in the valley the co-operative creameries would be standing idle. But we do not find this true. There never was a stronger dairy sentiment here than there is at present. Only the fore part of the present week we attended a creamery meeting of farmers at Gary where the first creamery was organized and there were about 150 enthusiastic farmers present. Those who attended our annual meeting of the Red River Dairymen's association at St. Hilaire in November say, without exception so far as I have heard, that it beat anything they had ever attended before for enthusiasm.

But some outsiders ask, "Can you grow clover way up there?" Did you read that the Red River Valley took the prize in clover seed against the world at Omaha last week? Roots, yes, we can grow roots with little effort. Silos, yes we have them too, and we can grow the corn to fill them. So if you see any dairy cow hesitating about whether she had better come to the Red River Valley to live, or if you find anybody trying to discourage her by telling her that this section is not adapted to her class, tell her here where the winter atmosphere is dry and where the finest qualities of grains in the world are grown for her to feed on, here she has an opportunity to establish a tribe that shall be known the world over as the famous dairy cattle of the Red River Valley of the North. Minnesota has earned for herself the title of "Bread and Butter State." I look forward to the time when the Red River Valley in no uncertain manner shall have a strong grip on both of the adjectives in the title.

Those interested in the construction of the proposed new rural phone line north of the Red Lake river will meet at Erie Saturday, Feb. 6, at 1 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of hearing reports from the delegates elected by the people of different localities that the line if constructed will serve. It is expected that at this meeting arrangements will be made for the organization of the company.

Sunny Brook John in Bad Shape.

John Kotschevar, familiarly known as "Sunny Brook John," the Plummer saloon keeper, last week slipped and broke his leg just above the ankle. This while bad was not serious; it remained for John to imbibe of liquor until he was on the verge of delerium. While in this condition he kicked off the splints and stumped about his room above the saloon on his broken leg making a bad accident much worse.

He was brought to the local hospital Sunday, and once since has succeeded in loosening the bandages on his leg, which is now in fearful condition. The man's system is saturated with whiskey, he either has or is on the verge of having delerium tremens, and it need cause no surprise if death results shortly.—Thief River Press.

MANY CITIES WANT NORMAL SCHOOL

Red Lake Falls Can Show Best Location for the Building Site.

Many Ambitious Cities Are After School With Cass Lake in the Lead.

During the past two weeks many bills have been introduced in the state legislature providing for the establishment of the proposed sixth normal school. Bemidji, Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls, Cass Lake, Wadena and Warren are after the prize. The Red Lake Falls bill was introduced last week by Representative J. J. Opsahl.

While the question of location is still unsettled Cass Lake seems to be a little ahead in the race. The desirability of Cass Lake as a location for the school is not what gives that city the present advantage. Indeed there are better locations. Even Thief River Falls has a better claim. Sure, that's true, though Red Lake Falls has still more advantages.

Cass Lake's favor is due to peculiar circumstances. The range districts are afraid they are going to get something from the legislature that they don't want and they are going to help Cass Lake get what she does want and powerful Cass Lake influences are to be exerted to prevent the legislature from giving the range districts what they don't want. Yes, that is a peculiar consideration to determine the location of so important an institution as a normal school, though as a method employed to obtain results it is old, quite as old as politics.

All of the towns except Cass Lake favor a bill that would leave the question of location to be decided by the normal board. That plan ought to appeal to the members of the legislature as the business like way to determine the location.

Red Lake Falls has a location to give to the state that for natural beauty and natural advantages for securing sanitary conditions—very important considerations—cannot be equaled by any of the other cities. In fact because of these advantages the school could be located here at a saving of at least $10,000 to the state.

MRS. CHARLES W. LATTA

Mrs. Chas. W. Latta, wife of the editor of the Plummer Pioneer, died at the home in Plummer at 2:15 a.m. last Friday morning. Though Mrs. Latta had been unwell for some time her death came suddenly. Her favorable condition had promised complete recovery until a few hours before the attack which resulted in her death.

Mary E. Latta was 36 years and 7 months old. She was the only surviving child of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Sargent of Crookston. Deceased came to Crookston with her parents from Rice county in 1879 and had resided there since until four years ago since which time she had lived at Plummer. Besides her husband she is survived by three little boys, seven, five and three years old.

Funeral services were held at Crookston Monday at the Sargent home, Rev. Willard S. Ward of the Presbyterian church officiating. Many friends were in attendance to pay a last mark of respect to the memory of one loved and respected by all who knew her. Floral offerings were numerous, one being "from the newspaper fraternity." An especially sad feature of the funeral was that Monday was the anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Latta's wedding which took place at the family residence ten years ago.

A Fair Statement.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Editor Eastman, of The Thief River Falls News is still at work trying to make it appear that the county board and everybody else in sight were bribed not to give him the county printing. The true facts in the matter are that the News circulates only in the northern part of Red Lake county and in Marshall county and the board could not accept his offer if they wished the taxpayers of the county to be able to see the proceedings. It is true that he offered to furnish supplements to the other papers in the county but it is equally true that he did so without any authority and it is not in any way probable that the other newspapers of the county would do his work on a charity basis. The bid of the Gazette and Spectator was accepted because it gave the best service for the money. For the benefit of all concerned we wish to state that there was no bribe offered or received in the county printing deal. Chairman Lindquist or any member of the board did not receive a cent and they never will. We have lived twenty-five years in St. Hilaire without bribing officials and do not intend to commence now. As a general rule the man who is continually howling about the misdeeds of others is not himself above suspicion.

Election At First State Bank.

The directors of the First State bank, who were elected at the meeting of the stockholders held Jan. 12, met at the bank building Tuesday evening for the annual election of officers. Theodore Garceau, who has been cashier of the bank for many years, was elected president. Frank E. Hunt was re-elected vice president. Geo. F. Hennings, who has served the bank as assistant cashier, was promoted to to the position of cashier. Harry Garceau and Noel Delorme were re-elected tellers.

Eastman's Scoop.

The enterprise of the editor of the Thief River News is beyond comprehenson. He had one of those "he said" stories in the last issue—something about what a traveling man said that a Red Lake Falls business man said that the Minneapolis Journal said that—well, nobody knows what it was all about except that the traveling man worked his little game all right and probably sold some goods at Thief River. There is not another newspaper man in the state who could see any news value in the story, but that makes Eastman's enterprise the more unusual. Deep man, that Eastman—so deep that you can't find any bottom, 'tis said.

RIVER AND HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS

Deepening Red Lake River and Removing Obstructions in River.

Harbor Improvement at Warroad Favored—Dam Proposition Unsettled.

The subcommittee of the rivers and harbors committee of congress has agreed to report favorably upon the proposition for a survey for deepening Red Lake river and removing obstructions from the river between Thief River Falls and Red Lake and an appropriation of $50,000 for this purpose will be recommended. An appropriation of $15,000 for the survey for a dike at the outlet at Warroad to prevent the channel from filling and an appropriation of $10,000 for a survey and soundings at the mouth of the Rainy river have also been agreed upon.

The proposition in the Steenerson bill asking for a dam across Red Lake river at the lake outlet to cost $270,000 is not recommended, but Mr. Steenerson has been asured that it will be included in a general river and harbor bill at the next regular session of congress.

HILL PLEDGES $10,000.

Mitchell, S. D., Jan. 24.—President Kerfott of Dakota Wesleyan university has been in the East for a week in the interests of the school. On his way he stopped in St. Paul for a consultation with James J. Hill. The president is trying to raise the $30,000 indebtedness that hangs over the college, and the railroad builder agreed to present the university with $10,000 when the rest of the debt has been provided for.

ROBBERS' VICTIM DEAD.

Wisconsin Man Struck Down While Thinking to Do Kindness.

Janesville, Wis., Jan. 24.—Michael Cronin, who was struck upon the head with a club last night by two unidentified men who came to his door and asked to be directed to a neighbor, died yesterday in a hospital without regaining consciousness. Cronin was supposed to have considerable money, and robbery is believed to have been the motive.

The Week in the State

DAIRYMEN END CONVENTION.

Meeting of State Association at Montevideo Closes.

The annual convention of the Minnesota State Dairymen's association closed a three-day session at Montevideo. The attendance of old members was not as great as usual, due to the fact that most of them live in the southern and southeastern part of the state, but the attendance from this immediate vicinity and from neighboring towns was quite good. List of papers and readers:

"The Farmer's Duty to the Local Creamery," F. D. Currie, Nicollet, Minn.

"The Management of Cheese Factories," J. N. Jack, Stanton, Minn.

"Moisture in Butter," George L. Austin, St. Hilaire, Minn.

"Cause of Mottles," H. J. Credicott, inspector of dairy division, Washington.

"Corn—Its Value as Food for Live Stock," A. S. Wilson.

"The Silo," L. A. Sweet, Fairmont.

"Cow Testing Associations," Chester McNelly.

"Selecting the Dairy Cow," George P. Grant of Minnesota experiment farm.

"Care and Feed of Dairy Cows," Prof. Haecker.

"Value of By-products," A. J. McGuire.

The following officers were elected at the meeting:

President—W. F. Schilling, Northfield.

First Vice President — A. J. McGuire, Grand Rapids.

Second Vice President — F. M. Wolfe, Montevideo.

Secretary—F. D. Currier, Nicollet.

Treasurer—J. M. Jack, Stanton.

Wednesday evening a banquet was tendered to the members of the association by the Montevideo Commercial club in the Odd Fellows' building. Two hundred guests sat at the tables and partook of the supper served up by the Rebekah lodge. There was a splendid program of speeches, with music by the Montevideo orchestra. The visitors were well pleased with the treatment they received and carry home pleasant memories of the Montevideo meeting.

RECLAIM SWAMP LANDS.

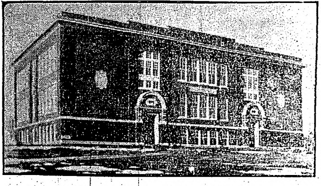
State Drainage Commissioner Says Time Is Ripe.

"The time is ripe to reclaim swamp lands and to prevent the destruction of valuable farm acreage, caused by the overflow of rivers," said George A. Ralph, state drainage commissioner, at the fourteenth annual meeting of the staate surveyors at the old capitol. "Impounding reservoirs must be constructed so that the water powers may be fully utilized, and the corporations that makes use of the state water should be compelled to pay a tax for the same. We must construct drainage systems that will be serviceable for many years to come, and not the kind that lasts only for a short time.

E. K. Whiteley, the president, gave his address of welcome. An interesting analysis of conditions of the Kettle river basin was made by W. R. Hoag.

The society intends to have legislation introduced at the present session providing for the licensing of engineers of the state.

HANDSOME HIGH SCHOOL REPLACES BUILDING THAT WAS BURNED LAST SPRING



NEW HIGH SCHOOL, SPRINGFIELD, MINN.

Springfield has just dedicated a new, modern high school building, costing $50,000, to replace the one destroyed last April by fire. It is one of the finest buildings in the state in its lighting, heating and ventilation. The rooms are all so arranged that they are lighted from one side only and the upper half of the windows are of prism glass, which gives a soft, even light in every portion of the room. It has a double system of heating and ventilation with thermostatic control, shower baths, and is lighted by electricity throughout. The seating capacity is 500.

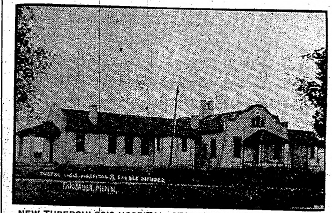
STATE HAS MUCH LAND.

Report of Commissioner of Immigration Shows Millions of Acres.

The annual report of the Minnesota state board of immigration, which has just been issued by the immigration commissioner, contains many matters of interest. It shows that there are still 1,048,114 acres of state lands unsold, subject to the laws governing them, and that there are 2,100,484 acres of government land subject to homestead entry in the state.

The number of farms in the state is given at 173,107, and their total acreage is 53,943,378. The total personal assessed valuation of these farms is $193,043,319, and the total assessed valuation $897,641,617. The total number of cattle owned by farmers in the state is 2,093,387; horses, 734,823; sheep, 671,981; swine, 972,654. The number of rural schools is 8,449.

HOSPITAL FOR ANTI-"WHITE PLAGUE" BATTLE IS COMPLETED AT STATE SCHOOL



NEW TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL, STATE FEEBLE-MINDED SCHOOL.

The new tuberculosis hospital recently completed at the Minnesota School for the Feeble-Minded at Faribault, is a model structure of its kind. The building is fireproof and is constructed of brick, concrete and tile. It is fitted out with all modern appliances of every description. The building is situated considerable distance from the many other structures, thus obtaining the best of fresh air. The architecture is of mission style.

WOLVES ARE ACTIVE.

Make Quick Destruction of Moose and Caribou.

Moose and caribou are being killed off so rapidly in the northern part of the state by timber wolves that big game threatens to be scarce next year. The state bounty of $7.50 is too small to make it worth while for hunters to go after the wolves, as the animals weigh 125 pounds and must be dragged whole to the county clerk.

BONDS GO UP IN SMOKE.

One of the biggest bond fires the state has ever had was carried out recently in the presence of Gov. J. H. Johnson, State Auditor S. G. Iverson, State Treasurer C. C. Dinehart, Attorney General George T. Simpson and Secretary of State Julius Schmahl, when bonds aggregating $412,000 went up in some. They were $1,000, as follows: Sixty-two redeemed on Jan. 5, 1909; 150 redeemed April 1, 1908; 50 redeemed July 1, 1907, and 150 redeemed Jan. 1, 1909.

BEES AID FRUIT GROWER

By AUGUST WOLF

"Give the bee a chance, and it will literally break the boughs of your trees with the weight of fruit."

Frank G. Odell of Lincoln, Neb., beemaster, who gave a series of demonstrations with 50,000 bees at the National Apple show in Spokane, made the foregoing observation in the course of an interview, discussing beekeeping and scientific agriculture and fruit growing. He said:

"The bee is the expert assistant of the horticulturist and the farmer. So indispensable are its functions in the pollination of fruits, vegetables, cereals and grasses that its activities may be said to lie at the foundation of all successful agriculture. Nature has ordained one supreme law, that of creation, the perpetuation of the race type. This law, universal in its application and absolutely identical in its form, obtains in the plant world as in the animal world. The luscious pulp of the fruit is the envelope, the package, the strong box, devised by nature to protect the seeds within from injury and render it susceptible of germination so that the type may be reproduced in all its perfection.

"The bee, like other insects, effects incidental pollination of flowers in its search for nectar; but its great value to the fruit grower lies in this, that it goes to the flowers specifically to gather pollen, literally by the carload, in the hairy baskets on its legs, hastening from bloom to bloom, rolling and packing and literally rioting in the golden dust, pregnant with the microscopic germs of plant life, until the golden pellets are packed away in its hair baskets, to be carried to the hive for storage as an indispensable portion of the food of its young during the winter months to come.

"It requires no expert knowledge to comprehend how perfectly the bee thus performs the office of pollination. Indeed, it is nature's chief agent in this indispensable work. No seed, no fruit, is the universal law. Here is the only insect useful in all its habits, having a fixed habitation accessible to man, dependent upon the pollen of every variety of flower as an indispensable portion of the food of its young, and going to the bloom specifically to gather that pollen, thus making possible the marvelous fruit crops in Washington and the Pacific northwest. That is why I say, give the bee a chance, and it will literally break the boughs of your trees with the weight of fruit.

"Delve into the realm of applied mechanics or structural engineering, and your search is incomplete until a lesson is conned from the structure of the honeycomb with its marvelous strength as compared with the fragile nature of its fabric. No more marvelous structure exists among the myriad marvelous works of nature. This waxen fabric, derived primarily from liquid honey converted into wax in that marvelous laboratory of the bee, formed by some mysterious instinct or intelligence into the very form of all others designed for economy of materials, space and extremity of strength, passes beyond the measure of human skill in its perfection.

"Somewhere between 1744 and 1768 it was discovered that wax is produced between the plates on the lower side of the worker bee's abdomen. It was John Hunter, the celebrated anatomist, who discovered just how the bees secrete wax, and thereby settled a vexed question. He communicated his discovery in a paper read to the Royal Society of London, February 23, 1793.

"Wax is produced at the will of the bee, and when called for by the necessity of the hive. The wax-producing bees obtain a somewhat higher temperature, usually by close clustering, though they sometimes hang in slender festoons and chains.

"Wax is not chemically a fat or glyceride, and those who have called it 'the fat of bees' have grossly erred; yet it is nearly allied to the fats in atomic constitution, and the physiological conditions favoring the formation of one are curiously similar to those aiding in the productoin of the other. We put our poultry up to fat in confinement, with part light; to secure bodily inactivity we keep warm and feed highly. Our bees, under nature's teaching, put themselves up to yield wax under conditions so parallel that the suitability of the fattening coop is vindicated.

"Chesire in his investigations says that on the inner side of the eight plates lining the lower side of the abdomen are about 140,000 glands, from which the wax is secreted as a white liquid, which hardens on exposure to the air.

"It is evident from the best authorities that the form and method of wax secretion were knowin as early as 1691, and possibly at even an earlier date. The extraordinary economy of the use of wax is shown by the fact that the hive of eight to ten gallons' capacity will yield but about two pounds of wax when melted. According to Dr. Donhoff the thickness of the sides of a cell in a new comb is only the 1-180th part of an inch. Cheshire states that he found some that measured only 1-400th part of an inch.

"Notwithstanding the fragile nature of the honeycomb, it is still sufficiently strong to carry the relatively immense load of sweets stored in its cells. The perfection of insect labor is shown, by the fact that human ingenuity has never been able to make artificial honeycomb. The tales concerning manufactured honeycomb are figments of the imagination. Consider that any machinery devised for manufacturing honeycomb would make all parts alike in similar sections. Examine carefully two or more one-pound boxes of honey at your grocer's, and you will note the difference in the finish of cappings and building the comb fast to the wooden casing, which will at once convince you of the genuineness of the article.

"Not only does the bee excel as an artisan, but also as a chemist. Its honey stomach is the most delicate chemical laboratory in the world. Here the nectar of the flowers is transformed from a highly diluted sweet, susceptible of speedy fermentation, into the most perfect food product known. This chemical change, inverting the sugar, according to the chemist's phrase, is undoubtedly accomplished in the laboratory of the bee during its short flight from the field to the hive. This chemical reaction is so delicate that no laboratory aside from that of the bee can successfully accomplish it.

"Consider the queen bee, the sole and undisputed monarch of her empire. Endowed with powers superhuman, she governs without exercising visible authority, rules without coercion.

"The queen bee is sole mother of the race. 'All life from the egg,' that great biological axiom, is exemplified in the hive. The queen mother passing rapidly from comb to comb, places a single egg in each selected cell, laying the inconceivable number of 3,000 to 4,000 in 24 hours. This labor represents in a single day the expenditure of physical substanc equal to two and one-half times the weight of her body. Consequently she does not even feed herself, being always accompanied by a devoted group of maids of honor, worker bees, whose office it is to bring in profusion the choicest predigested food to their ruler. Not the least of the wonderful powers of the queen is that of pre-determining the sex of the offspring which shall result from eggs—precisely alike under the microscope, but which in turn may eventuate in a worker, drone or queen, as their mother may elect."

IT PAYS TO GRADE UP THE DAIRY HERD

Blood Tells in the Profits of the Dairyman—By Otto F. Hunziker, Dairy Husbandman, Indiana Experiment Station.

The depressing influence of poor cows upon production and profits has often been pointed out; it remains for us to measure the force of pure dairy blood when persistently applied, in enlarging the profit-making capacity of the herd. It is a reasonable assumption that most men keep cows for profit, though it is a fact that many fail of their object, whether they know it or not. There may be several causes for bad results, namely, inferior animals, inadequate care, or a combination of both. Certainly a cow lacking dairy elements in her make-up can never, under the most favorable conditions, perform well at the pail; and even though she were liberally endowed with them at birth, improper rearing or insufficient care later in life would necessarily preclude satisfactory performance on her part. While it is doubtless true that many cows make poor records through no fault of their own, we are forced to conclude that such cases are somewhat exceptional, and that, after all, most poor records signify inherent inferiority.

In view of a decidedly skeptical attitude on the part of many milk producers toward infusion of pure dairy blood as a source of greater profits, tables Nos. 37 and 38 have been arranged. We desire to show what the blood of pure dairy breeds can do when given an opportunity, not only as it affects gross production, but also its cost. The herds already discussed have been classified on the basis of the presence or absence of persistent or systematic grading either through the use of pure bred dairy sires or the addition to the herd of high grade or pure bred females. Wherever there has been any doubt the herd has been given the benefit of it. In one or two cases, grading other than the purchase of improved cows has been of such short duration that the herd had to be placed in the ungraded lot. The object has been to illustrate the advantages of persistent grading.

There are seven graded and nine ungraded herds. In table No. 37 the average yield of butter fat for graded herds is 280 pounds per cow, while for ungraded it is 216 pounds. This shows a difference of 64 pounds in favor of grading. The question next arising is, was the production by the graded group more or less economically secured than by the ungraded? Reference to table No. 38 will show that, while it costs slightly more to feed the graded cows, they returned nearly twice as much profit as the others. After allowing for differences in cost of food there remains $15.63 per sow in favor of systematic grading. As a further point in this connection table No. 39 shows that the graded herds produced their butter fat at exactly three and one-half cents less per pound than the ungraded herds.

There is a trite saying that: "The bull is half the herd." It is not too much to affirm, however, that if breeding in one line is carefully followed, he may be the whole of it. Enough has been shown from the figures available, to give a glimpse of the wonderful possibilities that pure bred dairy sires offer the milk producer. While in the cases which have just passed under our observation there is a difference of 64 pounds, it simply indicates that, under favorable circumstances, the continued use of pure bred sires of the same breed can be made to increase the average production of butter fat at least 100 pounds per cow, which is equivalent to raising the earning power of each, $25 to $30 per year.

Even after the merits of pure bred sires have been fully explained and each step proved, some will hesitate to forsake the ways of their ancestors. The "scrub" beef or so called "dual-purpose" bulls are looked upon with too much favor by milk producers. They are a delusion and a snare, and their use cannot lead to profitable results. Grade bulls of an approved breed must not be used even though they "look right." To use them is to breed down rather than up. Dairymen are too much guided by the initial cost of a sire. A bull that is not intrinsically worth more than $25 is of doubtful value as a breeder. While the argument is commonly advanced that producers cannot afford high priced bulls, the truth is, the cheap ones are too expensive at any price.

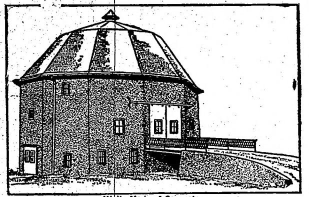
Keep Milk Away from Odors.—Each cow's milk should be taken from the barn separately and not be allowed to remain in the barn until the whole herd is milked. If milk is to be separated on the farm it should be run through the separator while warm. Cream should be cooled as soon as possible and warm cream should not be mixed with cream already cooled. Cover cans with a light clean cloth which will admit air but keep out dirt. Keep the separator clean by the use of plenty of water. Air all vessels after cleaning.

Feed Oil Meal Sparingly.—Oil meal contains 32 per cent. protein, consequently it is good for milch cows but should not be fed too liberally.

GOOD TWELVE-SIDED BARN OF CONCRETE

It Will Cost About $1,800 to Build—By R. Hagerty, Michigan.

This 12-sided barn, as shown in the illustration, was built of re-enforced concrete at a cost of about $1,800 by a Michigan correspondent of Popular Mechanics. About 150 loads of gravel and 300 barrels of cement were usesd in the construction of the barn. Each side is 16 feet long and 30 feet from the ground floor to the base of the roof. The walls were re-enforced with heavy wire fencing; this required 118 rods of the fencing. Old iron, such as bridge iron, was used for re-enforcing around the windows and doors.



Walls Made of Concrete.

The foundation was made 3½ feet wide at the bottom and tapering from both sides to 12 inches at the surface of the ground. This foundation was made from a mixture of one part cement to six parts of sand and stones tamped in when the mixture was placed in the molds. The walls were made from a mixture of one part cement and five parts sand and gravel. The lower one-third of the walls is 12 inches; the next one-third ten inches and the upper one-third eight inches thick.

The roof is self-supporting, the walls being specially built to withstand the outward pressure. The roof is covered with felt roofing and coated with cement. The forms used were made of two-by-ten-inch hemlock plank. The work of mixing concrete, hoisting and lifting the forms was done by a gasoline engine with a double drum hoist, one cable drawing the materials to the mixer and the others operating the crane. The crane was made on a center pole 64 feet high.

The barn is equipped with all modern conveniences for taking care of hay and grain and saving of labor in caring for stock.

BUTTER MAKER AND MANAGER

True Spirit of Cooperation Must Prevail—By J. J. Farrell, Minnesota.

I am asked to say a few words in relation to the creamery manager and the buttermaker.

Dairying is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, industries in America, when we consider all the products of the dairy, of which buttermaking is the greatest.

First, I will draw a comparison of the things that are rural, as the local or co-operative creamery, whichever the case may be, is located mostly in our rural districts, towns and villages, and the value of their annual output of butter varies from $10,000 to $60,000 and $75,000.

Such a business not only needs a manager, but ability, as well. We will first look into the affairs of our towns and villages whose annual disbursements vary from $1,000 to $30,000 for their maintenance, including public improvements and beautifying the surroundings.

We will look at the management of these towns and villages, which usually consist of a mayor or president, clerk or secretary, councilmen or trustees, however they may be designated, all of whom are elected by the people to serve the people to the best of their ability, and if this ability is lacking or their services are negligent, they are called to an accounting at their spring meeting and election. In many cases the unworthy are cast aside, and in some cases the worthy are also cast aside; but the community pays the penalty, whether good or bad.

The creamery, whether independent, co-operative or a central plant, as an organization, is much the same as a commonwealth in form. The local creameries' disbursements are small, while their net earnings are large and profitable to their patrons and community.

Any organization that handles from $10,000 to $40,000, and in a number of cases $75,000 to $100,000 of a butter product annually, should have a manager, whether he be a buttermaker, dairyman or merchant. He should be fully qualified for the position, and to that end he must have a keen insight into the business in all its branches. It is unnecessary for me to go into detail in this short time. It is enough to say, he should be educated in the science of butter making, and should have a broad knowledge of dairy farming in all its branches.

But whom do we find in charge of the management of these creameries, as a rule? Eighty-seven per cent. of them are entirely unfit to be called managers. Some of them are selected because they own a 10, 20 or 50-dollar share in a creamery; some, because they happen to have the greater number of friends in the organization: and some because, well, just because we have to have one. Neither of these types of managers are really necessary, as the creamery with a good buttermaker, honest, capable, and a good business head, with no undesirable manager to harass him, will, in most cases, be a winner.

I have said a few things regarding the manager, I want to tell you a few things about the buttermaker, as we also have a variety of them. If I were to stop making butter, and were to hire to a buttermaker, I would not necessarily look around for one having many years of experience, but for one well qualified; should he have the experience, so much the better.

I will state here some of the qualifications he should possess. He should have a liberal education, a thorough knowledge of dairying in all its details, including food products, and some knowledge of the science of breeding dairy cattle. This, together with the knowledge of up-to-date buttermaking and a well-balanced head, with broad and liberal views, and a smile that won't come off, even though he is in the midst of many and trying disputes with the patrons, is the kind of a man I would have no fear to leave in charge of my creamery. In short, he should be a man capable of filling many of the highest positions in the land.

It would be a blessing to a great many communities and creameries to have a buttermaker and manager in one, of this type. Should the work get too heavy for him, he could engage a helper who would be congenial to him. However, there are creameries that need two such men, one, whose time is entirely taken up with the butter making side, who is well equipped to meet the problems of scientific butter making, as these problems present themselves, the buttermaker manager making his report to the secretary, and he in turn, to the board of directors. The other should be selected as manager, as well equipped for his duties as his co-worker, the buttermaker.

Right here is where the true spirit of co-operation must reign supreme. Here is where you need two strong minds working together for the same end, which will lead to success. Here is where the dollar and a hundred petty little things must be allowed to run away with that true spirit that means co-operation—harmony and success. Here is where you need the strong man, the man who can look at ignorance with pity, who can lead his creamery patrons into the light of creamery secrets, who can teach and demonstrate what he teaches—in fact, he should be a student, and a master of his profession.

After all, it is only a question of education. The guardian genius of democracy is always the cultivated mind; it is the only dictator that freemen acknowledge, and the only security that freemen desire.

When the buttermaker and manager receive this education, we need not fear the result.

Used To.

"Can you support her in the style she's used to?"

"Living in, or reading about in trashy novels?"

Not His Role.

"You use too many cigarettes," said the manager.

"That's my affair," responded the actor, haughtily.

"Not much; I didn't hire you as a smoked ham."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Boston Touch.

Once upon a time De Wolf Hopper met a Boston person in that town whom he had not seen for a long period of duration.

"Hello: how are you? Where have you been?" said Hopper in his hearty way, giving the New York pronunciation the word "been."

"Please don't say 'bin,' but 'been.'"

"Sorry, but I can't," pleaded the big fellow. "I never had a bean in my mouth in my life, not even in Boston."

Plutocratic Greed.

Goodman Gonrong—Yes, I promised I'd divvy with ye, but that was when I had 20 cents. I've got 35 cents now. That cain't be divided in two ekal parts, an' I'm goin' to keep it all m'self. See?"

Saymold Storey—Yes, I see, blame ye! It's just as I've allus said; the rich is growin' richer an' the poor is growin' poorer!"

THE LATEST SCHEME.

The county-seat committee of Thief River Falls, having exhausted every effort to wrest the county-seat of Red Lake county from Red Lake Falls, has decided to have the law changed in order to give them another chance.

The present law relative to methods for changing county-seats has been in force ever since the organization of the state and apparently has given general satisfaction. Of course the defeated party to any contest is never as well satisfied with the rules of the game as is the victor. To the layman, however, it is apparent that the present law gives every opportunity for the people of the county to exercise a choice in establishing a county-seat, and there has never been the slightest doubt of its absolute justice.

The Thief River Falls boomers desire to take away from the board of county commissioners the duty and power of reviewing a petition for the change of county-seat, and purposes giving this authority to the secretary of state. The bill introduced last week by Senator Hanson also provides that a notary's certificate shall constitute evidence that any signature to such petition is legal and valid. There is no provision for the secretary of the state to get behind the returns, and he has only to perform the purely clerical duty of receiving the petition and calling the election.

The chief aim of democratic government is to bring power close to the people. Following this idea we would not have the representatives of the people of the state perform the duties that are purely local, as applied to a county or other subdivisions. In the matter of establishing a county-seat no one outside of the county is interested and the question should be settled by the people of the county without the slightest interference from the outside.

The facts of the case are: Thief River Falls has been ignominiously defeated at every point in the contest for the county-seat of Red Lake county. Under the present law there is not the slightest chance remaining. Their only hope now is to bamboozle the legislature to give them a freak law by which they may secure an opportunity to reopen the fight.

POSTAL BANKS.

The St. Peter Free Press is always looking for an argument, and doesn't care much from what standpoint it argufies. Last week it took the GAZETTE to task on the postal savings bank proposition, and we must admit that some of Bro. Miller's arguments are alluringly convincing. People like to read both sides of a mooted question, so we produce the Free Press article:

"Over $600,000 are on time deposit in Red Lake county, says the Red Lake Falls Gazette, and $250,000 alone in the two banks in Red Lake Falls. The banks of Red Lake county pay 5 per cent interest and from this fact the Gazette reasons that the average person is not likely to withdraw his money from the bank and redeposit it in postal savings banks, should they be established, at a lower rate, that is 2 per cent, except in times of financial stress, which, the Gazette thinks, would prove a serious embarrassment to the community as well as to the banks. The Gazette reasons from a wrong point of view. Should the postal savings banks be established most persons wishing to deposit in those banks would not wait first for times of financial stress but would do so at once. The chances are that the money thus deposited would be in general circulation long before another panic, and since the people have absolute confidence in the government the money would not be subject to a 'run' at the postal savings banks, nor at the banks in which the government deposits the money. This would be a benefit to the banks, to the depositors in the banks and to the public at large. It is the small depositors that would patronize the postal savings banks the most; the business men and manufacturers would, in the nature of things, stay with the banks as before, and the latter, as a rule, do not embarrass banks by a 'run.' Postal savings banks have been a success wherever they have been established and they would be a success in this country and satisfactory to the business men as well as the public generally should they ever be given a chance. The cause of panics is most always due to lack of confidence. Postal savings banks would restore confidence, without diminishing the circulation of money; in fact they would increase the circulation. With proper regulation of the deposits in banks there need be no fear of a stringency of money in any part of the country. Most of the money issued would be in circulation and with confidence deeply seated general panics would be a thing of the past."

AN ANDY JOHNSON TIME.

The situation in Washington appears to be similar to that of the days of President Andrew Johnson. A Washington special to the Pioneer Press, speaking of congress and the president, says:

"He has been mocked and laughed at on the floor of the senate; he has been rebuked by the house. He has been flatly informed that none of the recommendations he may make to congress will be heeded for the remainder of his administration. Notice has been served on him that in the future the senate will minutely investigate every man he nominates for office.

"It is asserted that there has been gross perversion on the part of the government officials in expending the funds appropriated by congress. Congressman Tawney says: 'The country will be surprised to learn how some of the money appropriated by congress has been expended.'

"It is further stated that congress at each end of the capital intends to carry on its war on the white house during the remaining weeks of this administration."

CANNON for the senate and Tawney for speaker, is the latest program. One by one the Roosevelt policies are falling.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON has issued a special proclamation for the Lincoln centenary. February 12 will be a great day with the American people this year.

THE only trouble with providing detectives and money to uncover more frauds is the fact that just at present the government has more of 'em uncovered than it knows what to do with.

WASHINGTON intends to "spread itself" on the inaugural ball. The residents have already raised $70,000 of the $100,000 it is proposed to spend on the function. As the money is from private subscription no one can object to the cost.

THE house is playing a poor game in voting to have the public examiner elective. There ought not to be any politics in this office, and the proper performance of its duties requires a highly equipped examiner. State conventions are not in the habit of picking the best men for technical positions.

THE bachelor tax bill has not appeared in the legislature as yet. Why not sell bachelors licenses? If they wore tags the unsuspecting damsel would be forewarned, which means to be forearmed. Then, there are three ways of escape for the bachelor; get married, move to North Dakota or be hanged.

IN view of the president's attacks on various and sundry individuals, including governors of states, senators and members of congress, the Commoner asks if it would not be well for him to send a message to congress reproducing his speech on the muckrake? He then dealt scornfully with those who threw mud at public officials.

BUSINESS men, as well as postmasters, may be interested in the announcement of the post office department that the department is now prepared to issue limited quantities of postage stamps in rolls of 500 or 1,000 for use in stamp vending and stamp affixing machines. Where there are many letters to be mailed with a roll of stamps and a wet sponge the stenographer might still keep her appetite for luncheon.

A SENTENCE by a Connecticut superior court judge—whatever meaning is given to the word "sentence"—will meet with cordial approval. "There is no more room in the street for a drunken chauffeur than there is for a drunken soldier armed with a rifle," is the sentence he uttered, and "three years in the state prison" is the sentence he pronounced. The chauffeur had run down a man with his automobile and killed him.

A BILL by Representative Bicknell seeks to correct alleged defects in the law imposing a registry tax upon mortgages. It is claimed that under the present law the borrower is compelled to pay the tax, and the amendment simply provides that when this is done the obligation becomes void. A number of states have attempted to tax mortgages in one way or another but in every instance the records show that the poor borrower is made to shoulder the additional burden.

THIS was overheard in a lobby of a big hotel in Cincinnati when a bus load of traveling salesmen came from the station. Every man of them, as he signed the register, paused to shake hands with the hotel clerk—a fatherly old fellow who had been there many years. "Ah," said one of them to the clerk, "it's a good thing you're still on deck, Uncle Dave; I don't think the house could run without you." "Couldn't it, though!" said Uncle Dave. "You fellows would come in here, and if there was a strange clerk would say, 'Where's Uncle Dave?' And the clerk would say: 'Why didn't you hear? He died a month ago.' And then you'd say 'Well I'll be darned! That's to bad. Say, when'll dinner be ready?' "

LIFE insurance statistics show that in the last twenty-five years the average duration of life has increased by two years. This is encouraging and due mainly to greater medical and surgical knowledge, improved sanitation, and general better conditions of life, says the Hallock Enterprise. If more people would stop burning the candle at both ends by fast living and injudicious habits the coming years would show an even greater increase. It is only too true, as the refrain of an old song says, that with many people, "It is not the miles we travel but the pace that kills." Certainly the pace of our modern American life is too rapid and it is to that fact we have so many nervous wrecks and sudden deaths.

S.S.S. CURES MALARIA

Malaria is due to impurities and poisons in the blood. Instead of being rich, strong and healthy, the circulation has become infected with germs of disease which destroy the rich, red corpuscles that furnish nourishment and strength to the body, and reduced this vital fluid to such a weak, watery condition that it is no longer able to keep the system in health, or ward off the countless diseases and disorders that assail it. The loss of these red corpuscles takes the color and glow of health from the cheek, and we see pale, sallow faces and washed out, chalky complexions among the first symptoms of Malaria. But Malaria is a general systemic disease, and as the blood becomes more heavily loaded with its germs we have more serious and complicated symptoms; the impure blood having its effect on all parts of the body. The appetite fails, digestion is weakened, chills and slight fever are frequent, and the sufferer loses energy and ambition because of a constant tired-out and "no account" feeling. The lack of necessary nourishment and healthful qualities in the blood causes boils and abscesses, skin affections, and in some cases sores and ulcers to break out, and sometimes the patient is prostrated with a spell of malarial fever which may leave his health permanently impaired. To cure Malaria both a blood purifier and tonic are necessary, in order to remove the cause and at the same time build up the system from its weakened and run-down condition. S. S. S. is the medicine best fitted for this work. It is the most perfect of all blood purifiers, and the purely vegetable ingredients of which it is composed make it the greatest and safest of all tonics. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and removes every trace of impurity or poison, and at the same time gives to the blood the health-sustaining qualities it needs. It cures Malaria thoroughly and permanently because it removes the germs and poisons which produce the disease, and while doing this tones up and strengthens every part of the system. When S. S. S. has cleansed the blood the symptoms pass away, the healthy color returns to the complexion, the old tired, depressed feeling is gone, and the entire health is renewed. Book with information about Malaria and any medical advice free.

During 1900 I was running a farm on the Mississippi river and became so impregnated with Malaria that for a year I was almost a physical wreck. I tried a number of medicines recommended as blood purifiers, chill cures, and Malaria eradicators, but nothing did me any good until I began to use S. S. S. The result was that after taking it for awhile I was as well and strong as I ever was. I have never had a chill since nor the slightest symptom of Malaria. I hope others will be benefited by my experience, and with that end in view I give this testimonial, knowing that S. S. S. is the best remedy for Malaria.

But Lumbermen's Convention Favors One-Cent Postage.

The Northwestern lumbermen's convention at Minneapolis went on record in favor of a reduction of first class postage to 1 cent per ounce; also as opposing the passage of the parcels post law in any shape, as it would be only the first step towards the transportation of merchandise by the government and would be disadvantageous to the interests of retail merchants. The following officers were elected: President, C. A. Finkbine, Des Moines; vice president, E. G. Flynn, Minneapolis.

Big Sale of Farm Lands.

One of the largest land deals ever made in Redwood county has been closed, W. P. Davidson of St. Paul disposing of his holdings in that county, consisting of 5,500 acres of land and an elevator, to the Burchard-Hulbert Investment company of St. Paul. The land was sold at $55 an acre. Mr. Davidson received a mortgage for $150,000, which is the largest ever recorded in Redwood county.

Workman Ground to Death.

Caught in the heavy chains of the shafting that was hoisting huge cakes of ice, his agonized cries drowned by the noise of the machinery, T. J. Owens of St. Paul was slowly ground to death in the hoisting machinery at the ice packing plant of Swift & Co., South St. Paul. Owens had been at work only a few minutes. He was guiding cakes of ice up the chain tramway into the plant.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is Hereby Given, That on the eleventh day of February 1909 at one o'clock p. m. at the Court House in the City of Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the ditch No. 34 of Red Lake county established by the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, State of Minnesota, by their order bearing date 6th day of January A. D. 1909, viz: For the work as one job, and also for one or more sections of 100 feet each and also for one or more of the construction jobs; each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet and from thence, successively up stream to the one including the source said sections being numbered from No. "O" to No. 216 inclusive, to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in manner specified in said Engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent, over and above the estimate cost of the construction in any case, as stated in said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond to be approved by the Auditor of said County, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract; and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file and may be seen at my office.

The approximate amount of work to be done in the construction of such ditch is as follows:

The excavation and removal of 33,908, cubic yards of earth the same to be placed along the north side of the ditch so as to form a turnpike or grade. All work will be neatly cleared up on completion according to the engineer's directions and be left in a neat and orderly condition ready for use, and all roads after grading shall be dressed with a road machine as required by the plans, from station "O" to station No. 216 inclusive. The estimate cost per yard is ten cents.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the Auditor of said County, for not less than ten per cent. of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated January 14th, 1909.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of an installment of sixteen dollars which became due and payable April 16th 1908, whereby under the terms of the mortgage, the whole principal sum and interest became and was declared due, towit, the sum of Eighty-one and 45-100 ($81.45) dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage bearing date the 16th day of April 1906 and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Red Lake county, State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of May, A. D., 1906 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Book 35 of Mortgages on page 90.

Which said mortgage was duly executed and delivered by Hans S. Quam and Christine Quam, his wife, Mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, Which said Mortgage together with the debt secured thereby was duly assigned by said Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, to E. L. Mattson by written assignment dated the 29th day of April, 1907 and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds on the twenty-ninth day of April, 1907, at 6 o'clock, P. M., in Book 32 of Mortgages, on Page 501; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, towit: Southeast quarter (SE¼) of Section Seven (7) in Township One Hundred fifty-two (152) North of Range Forty (40) West, in Red Lake County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County at the west front door of the courthouse in the City of Red Lake Falls in said county and state, on the 8th day of March A. D. 1909, at ten o'clock A. M. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of $81.45 and interest, and taxes, and a reasonable attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage, the same being here stated and claimed to be the sum of twenty-five dollars, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

WEAK MAN RECEIPT FREE

Any man who suffers with nervous debility, loss of natural of natural power, weak back, failing memory or deficient manhood, brought on by excesses, dissapation, unnatural drains or the follies of youth, may cure himself at home with a simple prescription that I will gladly send free, in a plain sealed envelope, to any man who will write for it A. Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

Within a year, we are told thru the press, we are to have a railroad up this way—not only one but two or three. After the first has made the venture, which would seem quite probable, we will have the Soo from Duluth, the Duluth South Shore from Fosston and old Jim will perhaps show up by the way of McIntosh, on the survey that he headed to Highlanding with six years ago, and which terminated at that time at the Clearwater river, near R. H. Green's place. This will be about the final outcome. If you have more money than you know what to do with, why come up our way and buy a piece of land. We are going to have a townsite on every other quarter, when we get right down to business. There is no better place to speculate in lands or townsite property than the Eleven Towns, as the game now stands.

SHAKE IN A BOTTLE.

Advice of Noted Authority, Also Gives a Simple Prescription.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manfacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at betime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity, when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them. 17-19

In sickness, if a certain nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also surely fail. It may be a stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the heart or kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the stomach nor to temporily stimulate the heart or kidneys. That old fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely teil. Try it once and see. Sold by al dealers.

INDIGESTION ENDS.

Misery From Your Disordered Stomach Goes in Five Minutes.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes belching, dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, nausea. Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), biliousness, heartburn, water brash, pain in stomach and intestines or other symptons.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50 cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance. 19-22

Pianos at a Discount of 20 to 40 Per Cent.

When Lyon & Healy of Chicago started in to rebuild their big establishment the entire piano trade of the United States wondered what Lyon & Healy could do with their vast collection of fine instruments, for these were no cheap factory pianos, but pianos of makes of the highest reputation.

What Lyon & Healy have done is to mark pianos, hundreds of them, at a discount of 20 to 40 per cent. The response upon the part of the public is marvelous.

If you know the names of good standard makes of pianos and the prices always paid, you will need no second invitation to write to Lyon & Healy, 10 Adams street, Chicago, for lists and terms. For you can secure a genuine $300 upright for $180, or other bargains in proportion.

Lyon & Healy give their own guarantee with every one of these pianos. Nothing like this opportunity has ever been given to music teachers, students and music lovers heretofore.

MESSINA AGAIN FIRE SWEPT

Survivors of Earthquake There Suffer Greatly.

Messina, Jan. 20.—Messina has been swept by fire again. For many hours soldiers and sailors worked heroically to keep the flames from destroying the last remnants of the town and eventually they succeeded in getting the fire under control. The extent of the damage cannot be estimated because doubtless much of great value was burned up in the ruins. It is supposed that smouldering embers in the wreckage were fanned into flame by the strong wind that has prevailed here for the past two or three days and apparently the fire secured a good foothold before efforts were made to extinguish it. The flames made fast progress and soon swept through the remains of the beautiful promenade along the harbor front. The small force of firemen was augmented by detachments of soldiers and sailors from the warships and pumps and lines of hose were brought ashore from the vessels.

The survivors of the earthquake have been rendered more helpless by the intensity of the cold. The hills all about are white with snow and the refugees are suffering greatly. Many of them are still living in tents and with not sufficient clothing to protect them. The constant cry is for lumber for the construction of huts and the government is doing everything possible, but the need is most urgent.

IN HARBOR OF HAVANA

New Battleship Maine Anchored Near Wreck of Old.

Havana, Jan. 26.—On the eleventh anniversary of the arrival of the old battleship Maine on her ill-fated mission to Cuban waters, the new Maine, with the still more modern Mississippi following in her wake, sailed into Havana harbor to be present at the inauguration of General Jose Miguel Gomez and the new Cuban government on Thursday next. This is the first visit of the namesake of the wrecked warship and her coming excited great interest, not only among Americans, but among all classes of the residents, who lined the harbor walls from La Punta battery opposite Morro Castle to Machine wharf, off which the two American battleships are moored to anchorage buoys within a few hundred yards of the tangled mass of steel and the old fighting top, the visible remains of the vessel destroyed Feb. 15, 1898.

The new Maine arrived at precisely the hour at which the old Maine steamed into the harbor in 1898. The old Maine saluted the Spanish flag over Morro castle. The new Maine, which is the flagship of the Third squadron of the Atlantic fleet commanded by Rear Admiral Arnold, saluted the Cuban pennant flying from the historic old fortress. The salute was returned by the Cabanas battery on a high hill overlooking the harbor. Calls were exchanged by Rear Admiral Arnold, Governor Magoon and the American minister, Edwin V. Morgan.

TAFT SAILS FOR ISTHMUS

Leaves Charleston on Cruiser North Carolina.

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 25.—Amid the booming of guns fired to mark the passing down the harbor of the cruiser North Carolina and her convoy, the Montana, President-Elect Taft started this morning on his visit to the Panama canal zone, announced more than a month ago.

Mr. Taft and the party of engineers who will inspect the work being done on the canal are on the North Carolina. The Montana is going along to watch over the safety of the vessel carrying the president-elect. As Mr. Taft said jocularly a few days ago two armored cruisers are required to carry a man of his bulk on a trip of such importance. Seriously speaking, however, the decision to have two cruisers to convey the president-elect is a precaution suggested by certain senators on the ground that there is no legal provision for a successor to the presidency in the event of a fatality overtaking a president-elect prior to his inauguration.

REGARDING A WAGE SCALE

Miners Appoint a Committee to Confer With Operators.

Indianapolis, Jan. 23.—The United Mine Workers appointed a special committee to confer with the anthracite operators regarding a wage scale. TIME TO ACT.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are smyptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of the limbs and ankles, or any part of the body don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor, will return.

Mrs. Gus Johnson, of 218 Ash St., Crookston, Minn., says: "Although I am averse to having my name published in the newspapers I cannot help but endorse Doan's Kidney Pills as a wonderful remedy for kidney trouble. Before I procured Doan's Kidney Pills my condition was serious. It is needless to go into details about my case, but I will state that Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of the trouble and brought me a complete cure after doctors had failed to help me. I am willing to show my appreciation by allowing this fact to be published for the benefit of other sufferers from kidney trouble."

Plenty more proof like this from Red Lake Falls people. Call at W. A. Schreiter's drug store and ask what the customers report.

Thos. Dougherity of Black River was in town today and was carrying his arm around in a sling. Mr. Dougherty fell from a load of hay and fractured his left arm.

Mrs. Mosher, who had spent the winter with her daughter, Mrs. G. A. Kankel, accompanied Mrs. Kankel to Fertile last week and will return to her home in California soon.

The ladies aid society of the Presbyterian church will give a missionary tea at the home of Mrs. J. C. Wilkinson Saturday afternoon Feburary 12, from three until five o'clock.

The Woodmen will give a whist social and lunch with trimmings after the next regular meeting of the lodge next Wednesday evening. All Woodmen are invited to attend the lodge meeting and the social.

Mrs. Joe Prudhomme, accompanied by her son, Master Benny, left Wednesday for Cloquet where they will spend a few weeks visiting at the home of Mrs. Prudhomme's daughter, Mrs. Theodore Keipes.

Wanted in this locality: Manufacturers, agents and canvassers for newly patented article. No competition. Sells on sight to everybody, everywhere. Address: Anchor Laceholder Co., Minneapolis, Minn. 19

T. Sewaldson, residing three miles northwest of Strip, caught a large wildcat last Monday in a trap which he had set for a wolf. The animal measured four feet and seven inches when stretched.—Thief River Press.

Chas. W. Latta was in town Tuesday evening, being enroute to Crookston where he made arrangements for the care of his children by relatives in that city. Mr. Latta returned from Crookston this morning and drove to Plummer.

At the regular meeting of the R. N. A. lodge to be held Friday night, a class of seven or eight new members will be initiated. After the ceremony of initiation, refreshments will be served and the remainder of the evening spent in social diversion.

The biggest dance of the season will be given at the Metropolitan opera house Friday evening, February 19. The Red Lake Falls concert orchestra has been secured to furnish music for the dance and those who attend are promised the best dance of the season.

Prof. Erick Ecklund, the band director, says that he was very agreeably surprised the first time he met with the band boys to find such excellent musical talent in Red Lake Falls. He expects in a few months to have a band here the equal of any amateur band in the state.

Peter and Hubert Linertz, who have been living in Maryland for several years, have sold their real estate there and will return to Red Lake county as soon as they dispose of their personal property. They expect to reach here some time in March,

Abraham Johnson of Bently, N. Dak., was here this week visiting with friends and looking after real estate interests in the vicinity. Mr. Johnson was at one time a teacher in the schools of Red Lake county. He, is now engaged in the real estate business and says that he has prospered in the new country.

William Sundsdahl, of McIntosh, came up Sunday and spent a few days visiting at the home of his brother, Ole, and some of his old neighbors. He said he never saw a country so well developed and prosperous in such a short time as this is, and thinks it has a great future in store for it.—Erie Eleven Towns.

The farmers living near the Huot postoffice in Louisville township are profitably employed this winter. They find a sale at good prices for all the rock they can haul from their land. The rock is to be used in the construction of the big Louisville dam. The farmers are not only well paid for their labor, but their land is being greatly improved. There is no doubt that work will be commenced on the dam in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Adler and family and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Adler and baby arrived in Red Lake Falls Monday and they expect to remain here permanently. The Adlers left Red Lake Falls four years ago and have since resided in Maryland. They found that land is cheap in Maryland but worth less than its cheap price. Good crops can be raised if enough is spent for fertilizing so that there is no profit for the man who tills the soil.

A reception will be held at the Metropolitan opera house tomorrow evening, Friday, Feb. 5, in honor of H. W. Anderson who is soon to leave Red Lake Falls. No formal invitations to the reception will be issued. All of Mr. Anderson's friends are invited to attend.

Hon. L. H. Johnson of Minneapolis, a member of the legislature and former speaker of the house of representatives, was in Red Lake Falls last Friday attending to business matters. Mr. Johnson is president of the Hennepin Bridge company, the company that landed the Terrebonne bridge contract.

Crookston Journal: Miss Schusser and Mrs. Paul Holzknecht who have been visiting at Bemedji passed thru Crookston last Friday evening enroute home from a visit to their sister, Mrs. P. W. Roark. While stepping from the train, Miss Schusser fell and sustained injuries that have kept her confined to her bed since that time.

The Turner art exhibit given at the court house last Thursday, Friday and Saturday was not well attended and was not a financial success. However, the exhibit was very much enjoyed by those who did attend, and it is unfortunate that there was not a good attendance for the exhibit was given by the public schools to raise money for a very good purpose.

The garnishee proceeding of Wilson, Steen & Co. vs. Mrs. Atwood which was set last week to come upon Tuesday, was postponed until Thursday when Attorney Boughton for the plaintiff and Grady for the defense came up from Red Lake Falls and the trial commenced before Justice Nelson. Most of the day was spent in taking evidence and the case was again adjourned until next Tuesday.—St. Hilaire Spectator.

The calico dance given under the auspices of the M. B. A. lodge Monday night was a complete success. The large attendance taxed the capacity of the hall. Several very artistic and tasty costumes were in evidence. The first prize for the most ludicrous costume went to Frank Brouillet, impersonating "Happy Hooligan"—and he was a sight and a fright. "Happy" got into several scrapes until the night watch gave him the protection of handcuffs. The second prize went to Albert Guerin whose costume was a marvel of intricate handiwork. Eddie Keiffenheim had a very elegant costume as did also George Guerin. Several well known faces were also in evidence above ludicrous costumes, the ladies having their share of dainty costumes. Altogether the affair was a social success and speaks well for the local M. B. A. lodge as entertainers.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

The Ladies Aid society is planning to give an entertainment on the evening of Washington's birthday. An interesting and instructive program is to be presented, consisting of songs, dialogues, pretty tableaux, etc. Music by the orchestra. Remember the date, February 22, and watch the Gazette for particulars.

Christian Endeavor Day will be observed by the young people's society next Sunday evening, Feb. 7, at half-past seven o'clock. This is the 28th anniversary of the organization of the Christian Endeavor movement and the day will be generally observed by the societies all over the land. The Presbyterian society here has prepared a special program for the occasion. There will be special music, the Minnesota state song will be sung, and there are to be short addresses and papers on timely topics, greetings from the officers of the church and letters from absent members. It will be a good program and the general public is cordially invited. There will be no preaching that evening, this service taking the place of it.

DOUBLE WEDDING.

Happy Event Celebrated at Lutheran Church Yesterday.

An interesting event occurred at the German Lutheran church at two o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was a double wedding and the young ladies who were parties to the happy event are both daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Claus Hendrick who reside in Gervais township.

The contracting parties were Miss Lizzie Hendrick and Mr. John Beleiske of North Dakota and Miss Ida Hendrick and Mr. Henry Weiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Weiss of Black River township. Rev. Rohde, pastor of the church, was the officiating clergyman. Mr. and Mrs. Weiss will reside on a farm in Black River township. Mr. and Mrs Beleiske will live in North Dakota. The young people have the congratulations and well wishes of a large number of friends.

THINGS WORTH DOING.

You Can Aid Postal Department in Giving Good Service.

When you mail a letter or a package see that it is substantially done up. The rapid handling of the mails sometimes destroys a poor envelope or covering of a package, and your mail is thus lost.

You should put your name and post office on the package, and if not delivered it will be returned to you but you will have to repay the postage (unless it is first-class).

When you move to another post office notify the postmaster from your former post office to forward your mail and notify the publishers of your papers that you have changed your post office.

Letters from the pension agency can be delivered only to the person to whom addressed or to some member of his or her family especially authorized to receive the mail.

If you have a friend visiting you have their mail sent in your care.

Use an ordinary size envelope and have on it your return card: if it is not delivered it will be returned to you, and not go to the "Dead Letter Office, as thousands of letters do.

If you receive a letter by mistake and it is not yours, don't open it, but return it promptly; and if you do open it, write on the envelope "opened by mistake," and sign your name.

EVERYTHING WAS FAVORABLE

SORRY HE DIDN'T MOVE TO WESTERN CANADA BEFORE.

Mr. Austin was a man who had never had any previous experience in farming, but Western Canada had allurements, and he profited. He got a low-rate certificate from a Canadian Government agent, and then moved. What he says is interesting:

"Ranfurly, Alberta, May 10-'08.

"J. N. Grieve, Esqr., Spokane, Washington.—Dear Sir: After a dozen or more years of unsuccessful effort in the mercantile business in Western Washington, in August, 1903, decided to come to Alberta with a gentleman who was shipping two cars live stock to Edmonton. I assisted this man with the stock over one hundred miles out in the Birch Lake Country, East of Edmonton. Indeed, how surprised, how favorably everything compared with my dream of what I wanted to see in a new country.

"Had never had any experience in farming, but I was immediately converted into a farmer. And from that moment I have prospered. Selecting a homestead near Birch Lake, I returned for wife and three small children and freighted out from Edmonton in March following year we shoveled a spot clear of snow and pitched our tent and commenced operations, at that time we had no neighbors. Four years have passed, the locality is well settled, two miles from railway station, with churches and schools, telephone and good road accommodations.

"We are enjoying the privileges granted to any rural district in Washington. The Birch Lake Country is no exception, this great transformation is rapidly going on in every district in Western Canada.

"I estimate that every quarter section in every direction is capable of producing a comfortable living for a family of ten forever. After paying for two horses and a cow, had just $10.00 to go on. Did my first ploughing in my life. I was very awkward in my work, but nature was glad and I was abundantly paid for my efforts. Our cattle has increased to about fifty head, which was very profitable on account of the abundance of forage. To farm was compelled to buy about four hundred dollars' worth of farm machinery on time, and the payments fell due last fall, and you may wonder how I expected to pay for them when we had such a bad year. 'Twas a little bad for Western Canada or for a Missourian. But is not 35 or 40 bushels oats a pretty good yield per acre in many States? Then the price of grain went out of sight, so when I had sold my crop I found I was able to make my payments nicely, besides we had lots of feed. No one has any business raising cattle without growing grain, or vice versa. As to the winters, did not feed my cattle, excepting the calves, a fork of hay until in March. Have found the winters much more pleasant than we did in Western Washington. This is strange and hard to explain, but 'tis true, nevertheless, at 40 degrees below zero we have more comfort than you would at 20 degrees above, so still and dry—with bright, sunny days. My wife says that the only regret she has is that we did not come here ten years ago, as we would now certainly have been in a position to retire from hard work. Most women soon become satisfied as neighbors begin to come round them. Have 95 acres in crop this year, besides two acres potatoes, which have always brought me a fair price. We find a ready market for everything we produce. To the Poor Man—Here is a chance to establish yourself. To the Rich Man—Here is a chance to buy land for $10.00 to $15.00 per acre which will produce more crops than a half dozen acres of your $50.00 to $75.00 per acre land. And if not very much mistaken, this year will prove an eye opener to those who are a little sceptical. The trouble with me is that I have so much to say so favorable to Alberta 'tis hard to be brief. Respectfully,

(Signed) "P. S. AUSTIN."

RHEUMATISM PRESCRIPTION

The increased use of "Toris" for rheumatism is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is an almost infallible cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. The following formula is effective: "To one-half pint of good whiskey add one ounce of Toris Compound and one ounce of Syrup Sarsaparilla Compound. Take in tablespoonful doses before each meal and before retiring."

Toris compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Chicago, but it as well as the other ingredients can be had from any good druggist.

A Difficult Position.

A young captain, who was drilling the awkward squad, commanded thus: "Now, my men, listen to me. When I say 'Halt!' put the foot that's on the ground beside the one that's in the air and remain motionless."

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE will cure any possible case of DISTEMPER, PINK EYE, and the like among horses of all ages, and prevents all others in the same stable from having the disease. Also cures chicken cholera, and dog distemper. Any good druggist can supply you, or send to mfrs. 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. Agents wanted. Free book. Spohn Medical Co., Spec. WOMEN I'VE PROPOSED TO The Fashionable Widow.

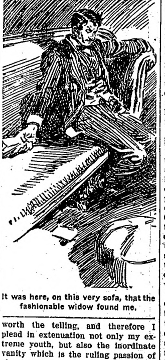
By JAMES L. FORD.

It is not until we reach the meridian of life and can look back in philosophic mood at the pleasures, follies and ambitions of youth that we realize the part played by vanity in those little comedies and dramas that we thought at the time were purely affairs of the heart. I never doubted for a moment that my engagement to the landlady's daughter was anything but a love affair, but now I know that it was conceived in vanity and carried on through sheer self-conceit of the very silliest sort. The fact that my engagement to this estimable young woman imperiled both her happiness and my own was nothing in comparison with the gratification that it caused me to think that I had cut out the accomplished and graceful Mr Radcliff, and that I was an object of genuine interest to every woman in the house.

Feeling all this as keenly as I did, I was amazed when Mr. Radcliff gave up the idea of moving to Brooklyn and continued to brave it out in his $13 room, though heaven knows what it must have cost him to see the landlady's daughter and myself seated side by side at every meal and to hear my voice instead of his uplifted in nightly song in the back parlor.

It may be that the tale that I am about to tell will seem too silly to be worth the telling, and therefore I plead in extenuation not only my extreme youth, but also the inordinate vanity which is the ruling passion of almost every young life.



It was here, on this very sofa, that the fashionable widow found me.

A few days after my little affair of vanity had culminated in my engagement the mother of my fiancee, feeling perhaps the reaction that follows close on the heels of a long period of strained anxiety, went away to pay a restful visit, leaving the house in the competent hands of her daughter, the place next to mine falling to a new boarder, the fashionable widow.

"I suppose you'll be flirting with her next," said the landlady's daughter in an arch whisper; and I swore that my days of flirting—dangerous wretch that I was!—were over for all time.

From the very first the new arrival made a favorable impression upon us all. Vouched for by Mr. Radcliff, who had introduced her into the house and had known her for years as a member of the New York aristocracy, it was not long before even the dullest of us acknowledged her as the highest authority at the table on all matters connected with society. Very soon I found myself taking a deep interest in her conversation, which was of a light and cheerful nature, punctuated with witty persiflage and relating chiefly to the engagements, weddings and scandals of high life.

Now, it must be remembered that at this time the "Four Hundred" had not been discovered by Mr. McAllister, nor had society news assumed anything like the proportions that it enjoys in the journalism of today. But already begun to add its pungent zest to boarding house conversations, and the doings of the "upper ten," as we naively termed those circles that are now called "smart" or "swagger," were be coming more and mare interesting every day.

I had never placed an exorbitant valuation on my social connection, which, such as it was, had been inherited rather than acquired. I knew a few fashionable women, and these favored me from time to time with the madness for society chatter had cards for receptions or musicales, but it was not until my courtship of the landlady's daughter that I fell into the habit of sticking these in the frame of my mirror, where every in the house could read them. The affairs to which I was asked were the large ones to which a woman invites every one on her list, and as these were even then quite fully reported in the newspapers they carried much greater weight in the eyes of my fellow boarders than invitations to those small dinners which are reported, and to which it is an honor to be bidden. But I soon learned that even the scant civilities that I received were sufficient to set me apart from the rest of the house as a much sought after man of fashion. And it gave a distinct filip to my vanity to find that the fashionable widow recognized this from the very first.

It may be that in the course of my life I have met women who know more about society than this one, but I am quite certain that none of these talked as much about it. And very fascinating indeed was this talk that not only kept the entire table agape, but also stirred up in my silly mind some of the least worthy desires that it has ever known. And the fashionable widow never failed to address this talk to me as the one person at table who was thoroughly accustomed to fashionable ways.

In looking back it seems to me that it was always Mr. Radcliff who acted as interlocutor, introducing the topics somewhat in this fashion: "I see by the evening paper that Mrs. Jack Addleton is going to Europe next week to be gone a year."

At this we would all prick up our ears, not because we knew Mrs. Addleton or had any expectation of knowing her, but because we felt that we would fall behind in the running if we did not keep tab on the doings of fashionable life, and as we sat with knife and fork in midair and the food untasted on our plates the fashionable widow would make answer, speaking as one with authority.

"Going to Europe, indeed? My dear Mr. Radcliff, I wonder that you, aof all men, should be deceived by such an absurd statement. Don't you know where Mrs. Jack is at this very moment? No? Well I'll tell you. She's in a retreat in Connecticut, not more than a thousand miles from a certain country club where Dicky Tweedlemere spends most of his time when he's sober. That's how Mrs. Addleton is spending her time in Europe."

All this would be said in a most knowing manner and from time to time she would glance at me as if to say that, of course, she and I knew all about it even if the rest of the boarders did not. But, after all, what could be expected of them? And then perhaps the conversation would turn on the approaching wedding of Mrs. Goldburg's daughter, which would give the fashionable widow a chance to display her knowledge of the most intimate details of the trousseau, the source of Mr. Goldburg's wealth and the precise sum that had been paid over to the well connected Englishman who had won her.

It is amazing to me, now that long contact with the world has rubbed off the sharp edges of youthful credulity, to think that I could have listened, open-mouthed, to conversation of that sort. I have already confessed that my story is a silly one, but even at this late day I blush to think that I preferred this empty, idiotic chatter to the simple little things that my sweetheart uttered now and then from her place at the head of the table and that all unconsciously I was allowing my infatuation for that excellent girl to cool off and my admiration for the talkative woman beside me to grow apace.

But, after all, as my affection for the landlady's daughter had been merely an affair of vanity so was this new interest of mine founded upon the same quality. As I can plainly see now, the fashionable widow took the single grain of social conceit that had already taken root in my soul and by carefully feeding it with insidious flattery soon reared it to fungus growth that might in time have poisoned every decent quality of heart or mind that I possessed. And while she was doing this I was neglecting that good little soul to whom my troth was plighted and she was finding solace in the quiet but persistent attentions of the man whom I still regarded as my defeated rival.

We four, now a friendly quartet, occupied the back parlor nearly every evening, and while the landlady's daughter and Mr. Radcliff played and sang the sentimental ballads of the day the fashionable widow and I chatted about the great brilliant world of fashion in which I firmly believed she had been a dominant attractive figure. And it was while sitting there beside her that the dream of becoming a man of fashion myself and treading the mazes of the social dance with her at my side grew and grew until it took almost complete possession of my soul.

But if I was unconscious of the disintegration of our little romance, there were others who were not; and at last the day came when I found myself seated alone in the back parlor on the same horse chair sofa where I had sat so many evenings listening to the strains of "Some Day" and "In the Gloaming" and to the far sweeter music of the voice that filed my ear with entrancing tales of fashionable life. It was here, on this very sofa, that the fashionable widow found me late that afternoon, my face pale and ghastly, and tightly clutched in my hand a letter, signed with the name of the landlady's daughter and telling me gently but firmly that she had known for some time that the heart which she had once believed to be hers had been given to another and that it would be better for us both—"best for you and best for me," she quoted from our favorite back parlor ballad—that we should part and go our separate ways. She had already started on her separate way, as the letter apprised me, in company with Mr. Radcliff, whom she had married that morning, and who had won her by his constant devotion. She admitted that as a man of fashion he was inferior to myself, and there was infinite consolation to me in this thought, but he had proved himself a true friend and an ardent lover, and she felt that her future was safe in his hands. In conclusion, she wished me every happiness, and begged for forgiveness if her words had given me any pain.

"Why, what can be the matter?" said the fashionable widow, dropping into her accustomed place beside me and looking at me with eyes of kindly concern.

The sight of this woman, the sound of her voice, the pressure of her hand, fanned my love, jealousy, vanity, rage or whatever it was that was troubling me into a fierce flame, and in the heart of that fiery furnace of affliction a sudden resolve was born. It was quite early on a Saturday afternoon, and I knew that by dinner time the boarding house would ring with the news and that when I took my accustomed place at the table it would be not as the dashing and attractive young gentleman who had been invited to two kettledrums and an "at home" within the month, but as an object of general contempt and ridicule; for, after all there is nothing funnier to the world than a jilted lover. Most of all, I dreaded the rather coarse humor with whom I had not taken the trouble to make myself popular. To escape this flood of ridicule—and vanity fears laughter more than death—I must do something that would make people sit up and take notice. There would be no laughter could I enter the dining room with the fashionable widow on my arm as my affianced bride, and I turned to her with a heart that was stirred by every emotion that a dramatic school teaches its pupils to express. Taking her hand in mine, I poured out these emotions in a flood that was like molten lava.

"My dear boy," she said, patting me kindly on the knuckles with her disengaged hand, "if I had not known that you were engaged I never would have dreamed of flirting with you. Don't you know that I've got one husband already, and between you and me that's quite enough. I don't know exactly where he is, but he's on earth! You may depend on that!"

I went upstairs and packed my trunk. I simply could not bear to face the dinner table that night. Long afterward I learned that the fashionable widow was a society reporter, brought to the house by the astute Radcliff, who had already discovered my weakness, and who truly loved and was loved by the landlady's daughter, even if she had been influenced for the movement by such forces as maternal authority, pique and a childlike belief in the fashionable friends who never sent me an invitation except when they could not help it, and the wealthy uncle who had not spoken to any of our branch of the family for ten years, and who eventually died unreconciled and left his money to foreign missions.

How One Dog Rescued Another.

An instance of a dog's devotion is reported by M. K. Gleason of Warren. Mr. Gleason and others noted a big shpeherd dog on the railroad bridge over the Allegheny barking frantically. The animal ran to them and then back to one of the center piers, where it stopped and looked down.

Finally the men secured a ladder and going out on the bridge clambered down and found a fox terrier dog that had fallen there. When the little dog was rescued the joy of the shepherd was unbounded, and it manifested its gratitude by jumping upon the men and licking their hands.

What Counts in a Story.

As I heard a famous raconteur telling a story I had heard in one form or another for many years I could not but recall the statement of some one to the effect that there are but five stories extant and that all we have are merely variations from the original five.

As Gen. Taylor, who is something of a story teller himself, puts it, "The story doesn't amount to anything. It's the edition that counts."

Women Struggle Hopelessly Along, Suffering Backache, Dizzy Spells, Languor, Etc.

Women have so much to go through in life that it's a pity there is so much suffering from backache and other common curable kidney ills. If you suffer so, profit by this woman's example: Mrs. Martin Douglass, 52 Cedar St., Kingston, N. Y., says: "I had a lame, aching back, dizzy spells, headaches, and a feeling of languor. Part of the time I could not attend to my work and irregularity of the kidney secretions was annoying. Doan's Kidney Pills brought me prompt relief."

HOME COUGH CURE.

Go to your druggist and get one-half ounce Concentrated pine compound, two ounces of glycerine, half a pint of good whiskey; mix it up, and use it in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours, shaking the bottle each time. Any druggist can supply ingredients.

The Concentrated pine is a pine product refined for medical use and comes only in half ounce bottles, each enclosed in a round case which is airtight and preserves the fluid in its full strength, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated." A prominent local druggist says he has filled this prescription hundreds of times and has seen it work wonders.

CUPS FOR GRAIN GROWERS.

Milwaukee Business Men Give Prizes for High-grade Grain.

Five silver cups have just been offered by the Milwaukee chamber of commerce for the best exhibits of wheat, corn, oats, barley and rye raised by members of the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment association, which consists of the former students of the courses in agriculture at the University of Wisconsin, some 2,000 in number. By offering these prizes the directors of the chamber of commerce desire to give encouragement and recognition to the efforts of these young farmers to grow high-grade seed grains. The members of the experiment association co-operate with their former teachers at Madison in developing pure-bred grain and are securing great results.

The Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment association will hold its eight annual meeting Feb. 11-12 at the college of agriculture, University of Wisconsin. A program of timely addresses is being arranged by the secretary, Prof. R. A. Moore, and will be announced in full shortly. Arrangements have already been made for an address by Prof. G. I. Christie, in charge of the extension work at Purdue university school of agriculture, Lafayette, Ind., and for one on home economics by Miss Emma Conley of Wausau. Eugene Funk of Illinois, the well known expert on corn breeding, will also give an address on corn improvement. Since this meeting at the time of the farmers' course other speakers will be secured.

JOY WORK

And the Other Kind.

Did you ever stand on a prominent corner at an early morning hour and watch the throngs of people on their way to work? Noting the number who were forcing themselves along because it meant their daily bread, and the others cheerfully and eagerly pursuing their way because of love of their work.

It is a fact that one's food has much to do with it. As an example:

If an engine has poor oil, or a boiler is fired with poor coal, a bad result is certain, isn't it?

Treating your stomach right is the keystone that sustains the arch of health's temple and you will find "Grape-Nuts" as a daily food is the most nourishing and beneficial you can use.

We have thousands of testimonials, real genuine little heart throbs, from people who simply tried Grape-Nuts out of curiosity—as a last resort—with the result that prompted the testimonial.

If you have never tried Grape-Nuts it's worth while to give it a fair impartial trial. Remember there are millions eating Grape-Nuts every day—they know, and we know if you will use Grape-Nuts every morning your work is more likely to be joy-work, because you can keep well, and with the brain well nourished work is a joy. Read the "Road to Wellville" in every package—"There's a Reason."

Professor Munyon has just issued a most beautiful, useful and complete Almanac; it contains not only all the scientific information concerning the moon's phases, in all the latitudes, but has illustrated articles on how to read character by phrenology, palmistry and birth month. It also tells all about card reading, birth stones and their meaning, and gives the interpretation of dreams. It teaches beauty culture, manicuring, gives weights and measures, and antidotes for poison. In fact, it is a Magazine Almanac, that not only gives valuable information, but will afford much amusement for every member of the family, especially for parties and evening entertainments. Farmers and people in the rural districts will find this Almanac almost invaluable.

It will be sent to anyone absolutely free on application to the MUNYON REMEDY COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA.

The Man Next Door Was Right.

"Sir," requested the young man, entering with a suit on his arm, "I've brought these clothes for you to press. The man next door says you are a bird at pressing suits."

"Well, the man next door is right," replied the suit presser; "only this isn't a tailor shop—it's a lawyer's office!"—Judge.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman.

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOHN G. MOLDAN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

Cuticura's Efficacy Clearly Proven.

"When about two and a half years old my daughter broke out on her hips and the upper parts of her legs with a very irritating and painful eruption. It began in October; the first I noticed was a little red surface and a constant desire on her part to scratch her limbs. She could not sleep and the eruptions got sore, and yellow water came out of them. I had two doctors treat her, but she grew worse under their treatment. Then I bought the Cuticura Remedies and only used them two weeks when she was entirely well. This was in February. She has never had another rough place on her skin, and she is now fourteen years old. Mrs. R. R. Whitaker, Winchester, Tenn., Sept. 22, 1908."

The Hatchet-Boy

By ALBERT W. TOLMAN

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub. Co.)

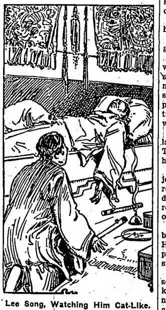
Lee Song, squatting at midnight in a back seat of the smoker, drowsily inhaled the warm fumes of his cigarette, as he blinked through the lamplit reek on the lines of sleeping men sprawled along the sides of the car. His face, round, unwrinkled, guileless, proclaimed him an ordinary inoffensive Chinaman.

Under Lee's feet lay his straw extension case. It contained a Testament and several Chinese tracts, but also the tools of his trade—a bulldog revolver, a long, narrow knife and a stout cord.

A poor workman quarrels with his tools—but Lee Song never quareled with his. The cord was new and unfrayed, the knife ground keen, and every chamber of the seven-shooter loaded. It was Lee's attention to details, joined with certain other admirable qualities, that had made him the foremost hatchet-boy of the Liu Kwen Tong.

Lee Song was an artist, either at premeditated assassination or impromptu murder. In his make-up was nothing spectacular, no boasting or bravado. Pistol-butt and knife-haft showed no notches—but he never failed to get his man.

Then the Tong sends Lee Song after you, you are as good as dead already, and may as well get measured for your coffin.



Lee Song, Watching Him Cat-Like.

On this special night the hatchet-boy was bound for a certain city to send a laundryman named Billy Wing to sleep beside his fathers. Why the Tong wanted Billy killed was immaterial to Lee. His business was simply to obey, to strike like lightning, like lightning to disappear.

The job promised to be a simple one.

Lee smoked dreamily. His soul was at peace, save when he thought of his only son, who had died a month before. Every time the little white casket rose before Lee's eyes a devil who stood beside him night and day ran a sharp dagger into his heart. So often had the devil done this that the spot was very sore.

All night he journeyed, sleeping and waking, and at early dawn came to the city where lived Billy Wing.

There were few Chinese in the place, and Lee easily found Billy's laundry. Entering, he made the opium smuggler's sign to the proprietor, who was wrapping up a shirt for a customer. Billy signaled back, his eyes glittering. After the customer went out, he asked, eagerly:

"When?"

"To-night at ten," answered Lee. Men who smoke opium should not incur the Tong's displeasure.

The hatchet-boy ran an experienced eye over the laundry, sizing it up for the kill and the get-away. Ah, yes, that back room! The job over, he could shed his false queue, shift his clothes, and slip out of town on a freight like a common American tramp.

As he started out of the door, a little Chinese boy slipped in. The devil stabbed Lee sharply in the sore spot, for the lad was about five, just the age his own son had been. The hatchet-man's heart warmed toward him, and he turned back. Billy was upbraiding the child for being late.

"Son of a pig!" he screamed, shrilly. "Where have you been so long?"

With a buffet he sent him reeling into a corner. The little fellow picked himself up without a whimper, and disappeared into the back room, rubbing his head. Lee's fingers drew up toward something in his sleeve. He wished it were ten o'clock at night, now.

"'Tis Jing, the son of my brother, who died with his wife of the fever last spring," explained Billy. "Would the boy had died with them. He is not worth the food he eats or the clothes he wears. I can save no money while he is with me."

Lee replied nothing. Billy was going that night where money would not be needed.

All that day the hatchet-boy lurked in the outskirts of the city. He thought much of little Jing, and of Billy's cruelty to him, and the spot over his heart was very sore. But he could not kill the laundryman, until he received final orders, at seven that night, from the Tong.

Promptly on the hour he was at the post office. The general delivery clerk handed him a letter containing a white sheet, entirely blank. Its upper right-hand corner showed a slight nail-mark. This was made by the right forefinger of the chief of the Tong. It signified that Billy should live.

Lee Song felt the devil's dagger again. He had planned that afternoon to adopt little Jing, after Billy had gone to his fathers. Sorely disappointed, he pondered, walking in the dusk. At last he came to a decision. He would kill Billy on his own account, and take the boy. True, it was somewhat irregular,—but the Tong's rules did not forbid the avenging of a private feud, and Song took Billy's abuse of Jing as a personal matter.

At quarter to ten he started for Billy's laundry. A crowd of young hoodlums on a corner hooted and hustled the mild Chinaman, and turned him back. Song bore it meekly. But they would not have hustled him, had they known what lay hid in the secret pocket up his broad sleeve.

It was half-past ten before he tapped on the laundry door. Billy opened it quickly.

"You are late," grunted he, resentfully. He did not enjoy being cheated of his smoke.

In a box in the back room Jing lay asleep, curled up like a kitten. Song did not even look at him. Out of his sleeve he shook two packets of opium.

"Try this, before you buy," said he; and Billy snatched it greedily.

Each produced a pipe, and they began to smoke.

For the first five minutes between whiffs, Billy talked of Canton; for the second five he spoke occasionally in monosyllables; the third five he smoked in silence; suddenly the pipe twitched from his fingers, and he tumbled back on the bunk. Surely, it was strong opium.

Lee Song, watching him cat-like, laid down his own pipe and stood up. The time had come for Billy to join his fathers.

There are pistol-jobs, and knife-jobs, and rope-jobs. This was to be a rope-job. From his sleeve Lee produced a cord. Skillfully slipping it round Billy's neck, he rolled him over on his face.

Crossing the rope-ends the hatchet-boy grasped one firmly in each hand. His arms stiffened. A strong, steady pull would do the business. But Billy snored peacefully on.

Lee Song's gorge rose. Disgust possessed him; not pity, for hatchet-boys know no pity. It was a job for a novice, a burglar, unworthy a finished artist.

"Bah!" he grunted. "It is too easy. I kill men, not pigs."

Contemptuously pulling out the cord he rolled Billy over again on his back. Then he stepped to the box where Jing lay curled, and shook him lightly.

"Come," he said.

The boy started up, looked at him a moment in sleepy wonder, then unhesitatingly stretched out his arms. The hatchet-man lifted him, and passed into the night.

Two hours later Lee Song sat in the corner of the smoking car, bound for the great city. In his arms lay Jing, fast asleep, one hand tightly clasping Song's right forefinger, that terrible finger which had sent so many Chinamen to join their fathers.

The hatchet-boy looked down on the little black head in the hollow of his arm. He pressed the limp, thin body against his breast, and felt the quick-beating heart and the gentle breathing. His room in Mott street would be brighter with this little fellow playing in it.

A wave of strange tenderness swept over Lee Song. Again the devil stabbed him, but his dagger was blunted. The sore place did not hurt so much. His lips were silent, but in his heart he said:

"It is good to have a little boy."

Proved an Alibi.

This happened at a certain boarding place—one of those where "a few refined gentlemen may share an elegant home."

The girl with the dun locks brought in the soup. When she came to Jenkins he noticed a long string of substance entirely foreign to the soup itself. It was a hair. In the dim light it looked as if it might have been from the dun head of the waitress.

Jenkins called her attention to this, remarking that the best culinary authorities are agreed that a strip of cranial capillary substance is not essential to the success of a plate of consomme or other liquid nourishment.

She didn't follow him fully, but when she saw him holding up the quarter of a yard or more of hair, accusingly, she spoke up in her own defense.

"That ain't mine!" she declared, in an aggrieved tone. "It couldn't be mine. Why, I ain't even brushed my hair since yestiddy!"

Lincoln's Ancestors.

Lincoln's ancestry has been traced to Samuel Lincoln, who lived at Norwich, England. Emigrating to America, he settled at Hingham, Mass., in 1638. Some of his descendants, who were Quakers, settled in Rockingham county, Virginia. The president's grandfather removed to Kentucky. Thomas Lincoln, the president's father, was a carpenter.

JUST SWUNG A HAT

AND TRAIN WOULD STOP AT FARMER'S SIGNAL.

In Early Days of the Rail This Was as Effective as the Red Light Now, But the Times Have Changed.

Among the first railroads ever laid in this country were the Hartford & New Haven and the Boston & Providence—both new parts of that great N. Y., N. H. & H. system which comes near to controlling the transportation business of all New England. The early railroad corporations conducted their affairs on a somewhat different basis from the present day corporations.

One old farmer on the line of the B. & P., just outside of Providence, was urged to give the struggling road permission to lay its tracks through his farm. Being a Yankee, it was natural for him to look to the main chance in every transaction, and aside from the great public benefit that the building of the road was supposed to be, he wanted to know what he was going to get out of it.

"Why, you'll want to ride to town on it, won't you?" it was suggested. "The trains will travel faster than a horse."

"Ah, but your station is two miles in the other direction. Don't do me any good," grumbled the farmer.

So they told him that when he wanted to go to town all he had to do was to go down to the railroad, stand beside the track, swing his hat when the train came along, and it would stop for him. And it did, too, for some years. Then the company began to make money—began to "feel its oats" as it were—and new and younger men got control. A new superintendent was put on that branch of the road, and riding over the line one day he saw the farmer stop a train in this manner and get aboard. Needless to say that was the last time the old man was so accommodated. He could swing his old hat till he was blue in the face thereafter and, as he said himself in after years, "She'd whiz by an' would not even hesertate!"

Speed was certainly not the first object of the early railroads. Freight was what the promoters of the "railroad kyars" were after. Stage coach drivers held the new-fangled trains in much contempt. In the beginning cars traveled little if any faster than the coaches. Supt. Davidson of the old N. H. & H. once told of driving with his father behind a team of horses, in 1840, when they had a race with a passenger train near Wallingford, Conn., where the railroad and turnpike are parallel for three or four miles, and for all that distance the carriage kept pace with the railroad train.

Sometimes an inch of snow on the rails would stop a train. Henry C. White, one of the first conductors on that road, related how he and the baggage master used to sit on the pilot of the locomotive, one on each side, and brush off the snow from the rails with a broom as the train slowly crawled on. Each had a pail of sand and now and then sprinkled a shovelful on the slippery rails. The driving wheels (engines only had one pair then), used to slip in a most irritating way, and a grade on a wet day was an experience to turn a man's head gray! On one occasion a train got stuck on the Galesville grade by one inch of snow, and the wood and water gave out before the locomotive could pull to the top. At length they got out the neighbors, yoked four pairs of oxen to the train, and drew it, passengers, baggage and all, into Meriden with flying colors!

Hero of Forest Fire Retired.

"Jim" Root, oldest engineer on the Northern Pacific railway system, has been laid off, but, although he has ceased to work, he will continue to draw his pay as if he was running an engine. He is now 73 years old.

Root won fame for his heroic deed in saving the passengers on his train from being roasted alive when they were caught at Hinckley, Wis., in a forest fire five years ago. He was running a train between Duluth and St. Paul. He ran his engine to Hinckley, which was found to be in ashes. Suddenly the wind fanned the forest fires and the train was surrounded by flames. Root stuck to his throttle while the fireman dipped water from the engine's tank and threw it on him and on the cab to keep them from burning.

The smoke was suffocating and the heat terrific, but the members of the crew stayed at their posts until the train reached Skunk creek, where all escaped to the water and were saved.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The government of Canada now gives to every actual settler 160 acres of wheat-growing land free and an additional 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. The 300,000 contented American settlers making their homes in Western Canada is the best evidence of the superiority of that country. They are becoming rich, growing from 25 to 50 bushels wheat to the acre; 60 to 110 bushels oats and 45 to 60 bushels barley, besides having splendid herds of cattle raised on the prairie grass. Dairying is an important industry.

The crop of 1908 still keeps Western Canada in the lead. The world will soon look to it as its food-producer.

CHEESE FACTORY VS. CREAMERY

A. W. Parkin of West Concord Replies to Article Published in The Gazette.

Contends that Cheese Factory is as Profitable for Farmer as Creamery.

The following article is from A. W. Parkin of West Concord, Minn., one of the prize winning cheese makers of southern Minnesota:

There has come to my notice recently an article written for your paper relative to advancing the creamery industry by scoring the cheese factory in the Red River valley. I take the liberty in behalf of the cheesefactory and its prosperous thrivingindustry to reply to the misconstruing article. The writer is under the impression that the party whosoever it may be who has written the article attempts to arouse friction and dissatisfaction among the cheese factory patrons. I am at sea to call it business—the foolish or very selfish motive the author of this article had in view. He states that he has been actively engaged in the cheese and creamery business for a number of years. It appears to the writer the figures he used are far from being correct. First we will take up the calf proposition. As a practical cheesemaker I will admit skimmed milk has its advantages over whey. The party substitutes oil meal in the skimmed milk for butter fat. All well and good.

Supposing we feed to the calf oil meal with whey as a substitute, it will require a small amount more than the skimmed milk to make a balanced ration for the young animal. The following is the composition of whey and skimmed milk: The reader can readily see the difference in the feeding value of the two products,

Water,	Fat	Casein and albumen,	sugar,	ash
		Skimmed Milk.
90.25	0.20	3.60	5.15	0.8
		Whey.

The reader will note the cheese has robbed the milk of its casein, the albumen is retained in the whey. We can add gluten meal, oil meal or cotton seed meal to the whey and we have the balanced ration for calves.

The creamery party may state our whey is sour and fermented when returned to the patron. To this I will say can be remedied by pasteurizing the whey, which the majority of the cheese factories today are doing. Pasteurizing the whey not only prevents the whey from souring but prevents the spread of contageous diseases among the stock. In comparing the prices of whey and skimmed milk our cheese factory destroyer states skimmed milk is worth from 25c to 35c per hundred lbs. Rather high. As a rule skimmed milk is figured worth about 20c per cwt. As a rule whey is figured worth about 10c per cwt., a difference of 10c. Our opponent places no value on whey, states the cheese factory patron gives his milk away. We have here above given the composition of skimmed milk and whey.

If skimmed milk is worth from 25 to 35c per cwt., whey is worth 15 to 25c per cwt. as a food product to stock on the farm. The composition of skimmed milk and whey being given will prove to the reader of this article that our creamery friend made a false statement in the valuation of whey.

The cheese factory patron can raise good calves on whey with the same substitutes as our creamery friend states he uses in the skimmed milk. We have the same constituents in whey that there are in skimmed milk only lacking in casien. We have this food product in the feed heretofore given.

We will now take up the financial end of the business. The cost of building and equiping a cheese factory is about half the cost of a creamery. Our creamery booster in comparing prices states as follows:

He supposes 100 lbs. milk delivered to a cheese factory is worth $1.40. To a creamery he takes 5 per cent milk as a standard at 28c per lb. butter fat which is $1.40. Then he makes the broad assertion that skimmed milk is worth 25 to 35c per 100 lbs. and whey of no value. When he takes 5 per cent test in milk as a comparison I wish to prove 5 per cent is extremely too high. The average test for Minnesota creameries for 1906 was 3.76 per cent, quite a difference from 5 percent, a difference of 35 per cwt. of milk.

January 4th, 1909.

Elie Theillon, Treas.

I am informed that a dairyman in the vicinity of Gentilly, Minnesota, hauled his cream to the nearest by creamery, getting the net returns for his butter fat from May 1st to Nov. 1st 1909, 21.3c per lb. The Gentilly cheese factory paid 30.5c per lb. butter fat. The above is the average price for seven months.

For instance we will take the amount of butter fat delivered at the Gentilly cheese factory:

39725 at 30½c per lb. butter fat	$12116.12
Difference	3641.46

$3641.46 is a nice sum to buy a little gluten meal, cotton seed meal, or oil meal to make up for the casein contents in the skimmed milk of which the whey is short.

Now for the hauling proposition. He states the creamery dairymen are not obliged to haul their product to the creamery every morning. Well, if he doesn't he should, as the butter maker is in a position to take much better care of the cream than the dairyman. The quality of butter made from cream 4 to 10 days old is not fit for human consumption. This argument of hauling appeals to laziness.

It is not a great deal more work for the dairyman to haul his milk a few rods or miles in the morning than turn a separator crank an hour or two each morning and evening, saying nothing in regard to the money invested in the separator.

The question is asked, which is best? Well, which is? As to the inconvenience he speaks of regarding pay day. That is what we are all looking for, Mr. creamery booster. You are about ten years behind the times in regard to pay day at the cheese factory. Three months is a thing of the past. At present and for the past eight years I have operated a cheese factory and cleaned my factory once and twice a week of its entire product, cheese being sold for cash with returns for some inside of ten days. We could pay, if necessary every week.

Can you creamery promoters beat that? We are ready to meet you at any cross road and figure if you are so inclined.

Take Your Choice.

Jim left in youth the dear old farm and wandered far away.
The years rolled by; the sheriff came to sell the farm one day.
Then up there drove a stranger grand,
who down the coin did plank.
You've guessed the rest. The man was
Jim. He owned a city bank.

John left one day; the dear old bank;
Was lost to view for years.
His dad, the banker, suffered much and got in deep arrears.
The sheriff came, but close behind, to save the bank from harm,
A stranger came. The man was John.
He owned a paying farm.

One Question Settled.

"Does Roosevelt hurt bizness?" inquired Uncle Goshall Hemlock, as he seated himself on a cracker barrel.

"Not as much as a passel of grocery loafers," responded the proprietor of the general store.

Then there was a general exodus.

VOL. [illegible] NO. 20

FRANCHISE QUESTION IS SETTLED

Five Year Franchise Will be Granted—Ordinance Will Pass Second Reading.

The members of the city council and the officers of thel Red Lake Falls Electric Light company have come to a definite understanding on the proposition for the renewal of the electric light franchise, the granting of the new franchise for a term of five years. No official action has been taken, but the officers of the company and the members of the council got fogether the first of the week and agreed upon the terms under which the franchise is to be granted. Both the company and the council conceded some points, and all are satisfied and everybody is happy. There is no doubt that the ordinance will pass its second reading at the next meeting of the city council and that any action taken at the last meeting inconsistent with the terms agreed upon this week will be reconsidered.

By the terms of the proposed ordinance the city is bound to take eight street arc lights and there is a provision for a sliding schedule of rates if more are taken. If eight or ten lights are taken the price will be $90 per light per year. For the next five the rate will be $55 per light. The terms of this ordinance are such that if the city continues to use nineteen lights as at present the rate will be about the same as it would if the city were bound to take the nineteen lights. The ordinance gives the city the right to reduce the number, the rate per light increasing as the number is reduced. This provision was suggested by the company and it was certainly a fair proposition.

There is little change in the rate for private lighting, except that patrons are to have the privilege of paying for light used instead of lamps used if desired. The maximum meter rate to be established in the granting of the franchise is 11 cents per killowatt.

QUIST BUYS PAPER.

Purchased Thief River Falls' Leading Paper Last Week.

Last week E. L. Quist, formerly register of deeds, purchased the Thief River Press of S. W. Bagley. Though inexperienced in newspaper work, Mr. Quist is a good writer and no doubt will get "on the job" all right and give the people of Thief River Falls a good paper.

The retiring editor, Mr. Bagley, expects to go west for his health and engage in a different line of work. Mr. Bagley has given the people of Thief River Falls an excellent paper. He is one of the best newspaper men and one of the best fellows in the state and THE GAZETTE regrets that he is to leave.

ALMOST FIFTEEN MILLION CATHOLICS

Big Increase in Catholic Population in United States—St. Paul Ranks High.

United States Has Catholic Population of 14,235,451. New York First.

There are 14,235,451 Roman Catholics in the United States according to the advance sheets of the 1909 Wiltzius Official Catholic Directory, published in Milwaukee. The statistics are furnished by the archbishops and the bishops of the United States after the taking of a census in all dioceses.

Adding to the 14,235,451 the number of Roman Catholics in the Philippines, Porto Rico and Hawaiian islands, brings the grand total of Catholics under the United States flag to 22,474,440, as compared with 12,053,000 Catholic subjects under the Brithish flag.

New York, 1,219,920; Chicago, 1,150,000; Boston, 850,000; Brooklyn, 700,000; New Orleans, 525,000; Philiadelphia, 525,000; Pittsburg, 425,000; St. Louis, 385,000; Hartford, 365,000; Newark, 365,000; Cleveland, 330,000; Springfield, 323,121; Detroit, 167,000; Scranton, 265,000; St. Paul; 260,000; Baltimore, 265,000; San Francisco, 250,000; Buffalo, 244,739; Milwaukee, 235,000, and Providence. 222,000.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON ON DAIRYING

The last number of the Minnesota Dairyman contains a very good article from the pen of Governor Johnson. The Dairyman is published at Northfield by Joel Heatwole, ex-congressman, and one of the best known newspaper men in the state. He is a tireless worker in whatever he undertakes and is rapidly bringing his dairy paper to the front, as his newspaper, The Northfield News, has been for many years. The article by the governor follows:

"More than ten years ago one of our well known editors conferred upon Minnesota the name of "the bread and butter state," and the appellation now seems more than ever descriptive of its agricultural and dairy greatness. However, with the gradual decline of our wheat-growing area and the rapid multiplication of creameries and cheese factories, it will soon be necessary to reverse the order if we desire to name first the industry yielding the most dollars and furnishing the most profit to the farmers of Minnesota.

"Like the stretch of a giant's arm, the dairy and creamery industry has reached the outermost confines of the commonwealth, until it has become the leading branch of productive activity in more than half of the counties, and the veil of the future cannot hide its continuously increasing importance.

"When farmers of Clark's Grove in Freeborn county, organized the first co-operative creamery in Minnesota in 1890, little did they think they were performing a greater service than supplying themselves with a market for the milk from their cows. They were nevertheless, establishing a precedent for the farmers of other localities, and it may be said that the year 1890 was the turning point in the history of Minnesota dairying. Prior thereto, dairying was practically unknown. There were kept on the farms only sufficient cows to supply the local trade with butter, and what little butter did reach the markets was of extremely poor quality and commanded a low price.

"With the advent of the modern creamery came an awakening on the part of our farmers to the benefits of dairying. The housewife was relieved of the drudgery of home churning and the excellent quality [illegible]

[illegible] dairy business of the state has been rapid. In 1907 there were 712 creameries in operation, manufacturing 87,044,817 pounds of butter. These creameries paid to their patrons $18,912,042.59 for butterfat. These statistics are sufficient to indicate the importance of this great industry. Contemplating these figures it is easy to understand why prosperity has followed the modern creamery into every community into which it has been introduced.

"At no period in the history of the state since 1890 has there been a cessation in the development of the dairy industry. And indications point to the continued growth of the business. The thousands of acres of undeveloped agricultural land in the northern part of the state are particularly adapted to dairying and stock-raising. Forage crops of all kinds grow in abundance, climatic conditions are excellent, and the supply of running water is inexhaustible. This section is destined to become a great dairying district.

"Not only are new districts being opened up to dairying and the home creamery, but the business is becoming more and more thoroughly entrenched in the older sections of our commonwealth. Our farmers are milking better cows and are taking better care of them. They are getting better results from year to year and are engaging in the business more extensively as they learn the possibilities of the business."

Council Proceedings.

Meeting called to order by President Borchers.

Roll called.

Aldermen were all present.

Minutes of two previous meetings read and approved.

On motion duly carried, the following bill was allowed:

George Cyr, for labor..............$1.00

The following resolution was offered by Alderman Crompe and seconded by Alderman Paul:

Be It Resolved, by and between the city council of the city of Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, and the Red Lake Falls Fire department of said city and state, that a schedule of rates for services for fire protection rendered to the said city by the said fire department for each and every fire in which the said fire department shall be called out to fight and extinguish on an alarm from the city fire bell, as follows:

For the time actually spent by each and every fireman attending such fire, the sum of $2.00 for the first hour and $1.00 per hour thereafter or fraction thereof for each member's time actually spent in fighting and extinguishing such fire within the city limits of the city of Red Lake Falls; provided however, that if the firemen shall not use water upon summoned by an alarm they shall only be entitled to $1.00 for answering said alarm. It is also agreed that the maximum pay for continuous service of twelve hours, shall not exceed the sum of $10.00, and this argument shall be in force and effect until revoked by said city council.

Aldermen voting unanimiously in favor of the resolution, the same was declared adopted by the president of the council.

Alderman Hennemuth offered the following resolution which was seconded by Alderman Crompe:

Whereas complaint has been made to the city council that the stoves and pipes in the opera house building are maintained in an unsafe condition, therefor,

Resolved, that the managers of same be and they are hereby notified to at once place the same in a condition approved by the fire warden and chief of fire department, and in default thereof, that steps be taken to condemn said building.

Upon roll call the following Aldermen voted aye: Crompe, Remick, Paul, Hennemuth and Borchers.

Nay: None.

Whereupon the resolution was declared adopted.

The city clerk was instructed to have a copy of this resolution duly served on the managers of said building.

LINCOLN CENTENARY A HOLIDAY

Governor Issues Proclamation Paying Tribute to Memory of Emancipator.

Tomorrow, Lincoln Centenary, Will be Celebrated in Schools of State.

Gov. Johnson has issued a proclamation respecting the observance of the centenary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. Feb. 12 is designated a public holiday, and will be duly celebrated in the schools of the state. In suggesting tribute to President Lincoln, Gov. Johnson says in part:

"Wherever the American flag floats, wherever an American heart is thrilled by the devotion and patriotism swelling from the crucible of a nation's woes, wherever the chords of human love and sympathy are touched by reverence for the meek and modest man of sorrows, there will come involuntarily and spontaneously a tribute of affection and honor to Abraham Lincoln, whose prophetic vision foresaw that 'this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.'

"The name of Lincoln is imperishable. He was not born great, as the heir of a great name or of an estate, yet he was born great in having a strong intellect and a noble heart.

"I can name no name of any age or country that in private and public life outshines that of Abraham Lincoln. And in the recital of the pages of history bearing upon the Civil War, in which Lincoln's fame was fashioned, Minnesota is given a conspicuous and honorable part. A few of our public men were his friends and confidants; we were first to heed his call for volunteers; thousands of her soldiers died on the altar of sacrifice; some of the crucial battle charges were led by her sons."

LINDQUIST WENT TO THIEF RIVER

Purpose of Visit Was to Talk Over the County Seat Situation.

C. A. Lindquist, chairman of the board of county commissioners, was in town last Friday in attendance at the meeting of the board. When asked how he enjoyed the slanderous things Editor Eastman is saying Mr. Lindquist laughed and said that if it were Mr. Bagley of the Press instead of Mr. Eastman who were saying the things he would consider it a very serious matter, and even now it may create wrong impressions in the minds of people who do not know Mr. Eastman.

"But," said Mr. Lindquist, "you may say that I did go to Thief River Falls and I went to talk about the county seat situation. I don't deny going; I had no objection to hearing their side of a proposition that concerns the whole county. A Thief River Falls attorney come to my place and asked me to go to Thief River Falls with him. He had with him a man to do my work while I was away. Would you say that I did the 'soliciting?' I went and heard what they had to say, but could not entertain their proposition."

Mr. Lindquist intimated that the proposition made to him then and subsequent efforts to influence him were of such a nature that it is not surprising that the men who would make such propositions do not hesitate to attack him personally.

In sickness, if a certain nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also surely fail. It may be a stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the heart or kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the stomach nor to temporily stimulate the heart or kidneys. That old fashioned method is all wrong. NOT MUCH MONEY.

People Are Not In a Hurry to Pay Their Taxes.

Treasurer Tandberg said this week that though all personal property taxes must be paid before the first of March to avoid the penalty, and though the tax levy aggregates many thousands of dollars, less than one thousand dollars has been paid. This does not mean that there is no money in the country, but that people are going to use their money until required to pay for the privilege of owning property, and it also indicates that there is going to be something doing in the treasurer's office the last of the month. To all taxes not paid by the first of the month a penalty of ten per cent. will attach.

HANDLING LAMPS SAFELY

The State Fire Marshal Gives Out Valuable Information.

The heating of the brass in the burner may warm the oil until it gives off a vapor in the lamp globe. If the wick is too small to fill the tube the flame will flash down to this vapor and the lamp will blow up.

The screen must be kept open so the flame can breathe. If the chimney is not clear down to the burner, the lamp smokes because the flame gets too much air. When a lamp wick is too high it smokes because there is too much fuel for the air.

The brass in the burner and the collar should be kept clean and bright so that the heat will pass off. Only dirty burners heat lamps so as to make them explode. When a burner can not be rubbed bright it should be thrown away because it is dangerous.

A lamp should not be set in the sun nor close to a fire, nor hung to the ceiling over a table on which a lamp is used.

When a lamp that has been burning needs to be filled, do not take off the burner near another light or a fire. The vapor in the bowl of the lamp may expand until it reaches a blaze and explodes. Flaming oil is then thrown over everyone who is near. Above all, remember that filling a lamp without first putting it out is very dangerous.

When two-thirds of the oil in a lamp has been used it should be filled again. Once each week the oil left in the lamp should be poured back into the can through a piece of cloth on a funnel to filter it clear. This is to remove dirt which has settled on the bottom.

The char should be removed from the wick every day. When a wick is half burned up a new one should be put in. A lamp cared for in this way will give bright, white light and will not blacken the burner nor explode. The burners for round wicks are safer than those which use flat ones.

A mean exchange says the following is the correct formula for dancing the barn dance which is said to be the latest craze among the trippers of the light fantastic toe. Put your arm gracefully around the girl, make a noise like a cow, and take three steps to the water trough. Then eat a small amount of bran, mixed with a couple of hops and a bale of hay, walk as nearly like a chicken as possible, turn a hand spring, kick like a balky horse and smile as if you had eaten a barrel of stock food, seat your partner and get another.

THE BIG BLUFF WAS CALLED

Members of Legislature See Injustice of Bill Pushed by Thief River.

Thief River Falls Has Another Move Coming—Are Backing Up Now.

They—the Thief River Falls warriors—had it all fixed down at St. Paul and their special county seat bill was going through all right, they thought,—until the bluff was called. You see, they had impressed some members of the legislature with the thought that there might be a band of untamed outlaws in Red Lake Falls, had told them stories of the alleged light fingered methods of Red Lake Falls people, and they thought they had the members of the legislature "fixed," but a whole lot of 'em became unfixed when they learned that if there was any swiping it was an act of kindness to those who had filed the petition, which had been rendered valueless by the withdrawal of signatures. Red Lake Falls does not deny having "fixed" the petition, but no one here wanted to steal it.

The members of the legislature who have been turning an attentive ear to the pleadings of the Thief Riverites do not show so much enthusiasm in the cause of the upriver people since the true conditions have been made clear to them. There is no doubt that Thief River Falls' pet bill will "pass away" because of neglect after the committee hearing with which it is to be honored the last of the week.

DITCH CONTENTIONS.

Farmers Did Not 'Get Together' on Proposed Ditch No. 32.

The county commissioners met at the auditor's office last Friday to consider the petition of A. O. Mayfield and others for the establishment of a county ditch—proposed county ditch No. 32. Many farmers interested in the proposed work appeared before the board and the session was a lively one. There were objections to the construction of a part of the proposed ditch and claims that benefits had been assessed where damages should have been awarded. It appeared that there were grounds for some of the claims and the board decided that a part of the proposed route of the ditch be abandoned and that the matter be resubmitted to the surveyor and the viewers for correction. The official proceedings of the board are published in this issue.

STATE TOPICS OF INTEREST

TIMBER TRACT IS "CLEANED UP."

Old Wright & Davis Contract Passes Into History.

Friday one of the greatest lumbering contracts in the history of Minnesota became history. The event marks the final passing of one of the state's most famous timber tracts, known as the old Wright & Davis contract, drawn up more than seventeen years ago, between Wright & Davis of Michigan and the Pine Tree Lumber company of Minnesota. This contract covered the right to cut the timber on something like 250 square miles of the finest pine land in the state, lying at the western end of St. Louis county and reaching into Itasca county.

Wednesday the head officials of the Pine Tree Lumber company visited Hibbing to close out all their interest in this famous tract of timber. J. P. Weyerhaeuser of St. Paul, president of the company, was here, accompanied by C. A. Weyerhaeuser P. Weyerhaeuser of Little Falls, secretary and treasurer; R. D. Musser of Little Falls, treasurer, and several lumbermen from Cloquet.

The Weyerhaeusers began logging this land in 1891. Hibbing was then not even a name, and the western end of the Mesaba range was unknown. There was not a white settler within miles. What is now the Great Northern right of way was built by the first logging road and was afterward sold to the Hill road. The whole country now, except for stumps, bare as a rock, was covered with great white and Norway pine.

From the vast forest preserve the Weyerhaeusers have cut nearly a billion feet of lumber, paying out millions of dollars in carrying on their operations.

Not a merchantable log remains standing in the neighborhood. The last of the historic forest, about two train loads, lies cut and stacked along the racks noth of Nashwauk, a little village to the west of Hibbing. When these few remnants are shipped out, one of the greatest lumbering tracts in the world will have ceased to exist.

The mineral rights were sold to the Great Northern railroad, and it is from them that most of the mines of the Western Mesaba have been developed. The Hull Rust, the biggest iron mine in the world, is on a part of this land. It has probably yielded more wealth than any similar piece of land in America.

NEW "SWEARING OFF" LEAGUE.

Unique Society Gets Under Headway at Rochester, Minn.

Rochester is headquarters for a unique society. It is known as the Mutual Rest League of America. The president is a well known traveling salesman.

Some weeks ago the salesman and a friend, became interested in a discussion of the liquor question so far as it affected their own personal interests, and decided to bet each other that they could quit the habit for six months. After they had made a deposit of $5 each they said why not take others into the agreement.

The result was that they organized the league and now the membership is increasing so rapidly that at the present time men from three states have one of these unique policies which read as follows: "Mr. Blank, having paid the sum of $5, hereby agrees to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors for six months from the date of the policy, when he may go before a notary and make oath to that effect and $5 will be paid to him the first of the following month. If he does not abstain he forfeits to the league the $5 paid in."

STATE WINS LUMBER SUIT.

Ackley Company Must Pay Permit Price for Cutting.

In an opinion handed down by Chief Justice Start of the supreme court the order of the lower court, giving judgment to the state in the suit against the Ackley Lumber company was affirmed. The amount involved was less than $4,000, but the chief point to be decided was whether or not lumber companies would have to pay the permit price for cutting pine. The Ackley Lumber company had cut pine in the northern part of the state at a certain rate, but refused to pay the full price for pack pine and "dead and down" timber, saying these were not worth the contract price.

The contention of the company that the contract was invalid, because not duly executed by the state, was not sustained.

STATE ROSE GROWERS.

The Minnesota State Rose society held its mid-winter meeting in St. Paul, Mrs. D. W. C. Ruff, presiding. There was an attendance of about sixty members, including both amateur and professional growers of roses and other flowers. While the society has always emphasized roses in its papers and exhibitions, it has by no means confined itself to them, and is catholic in its taste in flowers and plants.

The attendance was the largest in the history of the organization.

GRAIN INSPECTION FIGURES.

Annual Report of State Department Summarizes Last Crop Year.

F. W. Eva, chief grain inspector, submitted his annual report to the state railroad and warehouse commission. It cover the crop year ending Aug. 31. It shows a net decrease of 37,204 carloads inspected on arrival compared with the previous crop year. The comparison for each kind of grain is as follows:

	Crop of 1906.	Crop of 1907.
Corn	5,687	4,966
Oats	16,083	16,064
Rye	3,136	2,957
Barley	19,529	24,269
Flax	29,535	24,821
	223,873	186,669

Inspections "out of store" for the year amounted to 34,303 cars of wheat, 14,242 cars of coarse grain, and 3,321 of flax, and cargo shipments amounting to 42, 228,183 bushels of wheat, 7,992,621 of coarse grain, and 14,367,-629 of flax. Compared with the 1906 crop year, the total shows a decrease of 1,205 cars and 21,070,756 bushels in cargo shipments.

Receipts for the year were $260,-998.26 and disbursements, $266,174.98, and the surplus was reduced at the end of the year to $37, 374.81.

Interesting statistics as to condition of cars, reinspections and appeals and dockage are summarized in the report as follows:

Out of a total of 186,669 cars inspected "on arrival" during this crop year only 13,849 cars were found in apparent bad order. This amounts to 7 4 per cent of the total cars received. These bad order conditions may be classified as follows: Side doors with no seals, 6,342; side doors with broken seals, 551; open end and open side doors, 1,425; leaky grain doors, 1,237; leaky boxes, 729; doors with no fastenings, 2,096; doors with poor fastenings, 850; cars having no side doors, 615; and cars with leaky roof, 4.

Out of a total of 240,422 car loads of grain inspected "on arrival" and "out of store," 54,922 car loads were held for reinspection with the following results: There were 34,066 cases sustained! 13,886 cases with grades raised; 2,119 cases with grades lowered, and 4,851 cases with dockage changed.

Appeals to the grain inspection boards were made in 20 cases. In 22,728 of these cases the decisions of the inspection department through the chief deputy inspectors were confirmed and in 8,862 cases these decisions were changed.

Since the inspection by sample in the office has been inaugurated it has been much easier for grain firms to call reinspection and appeal, owing to the fact that thr is so little delay in securing samples for such cases. Owing to the possibility of market conditions being better, grain firms have repeatedly held over cars and ordered reinspection, thinking that they might be able to sell their grain after reinspection at a better price the succeeding day.

There was a total of 95,917 carloads of spring wheat inspected "on arrival," which were docked for impurities, as follows:

½	5,666
1	18,336
1½	17,152
2	17,607
3	10,396
3½ and over	16,874
	95,917

This makes an average dockage of 32.6 ounces per bushel as compared with 32.2 ounces on 134,298 carloads of spring wheat for the crop in 1906.

The result of the inspections during the past season show that out of 67,844 cars of northern spring wheat 72 per cent graded No. 2 northern or better, and that out of 26,573 cars of durum wheat 44 per cent graded No. 1 and 43 per cent No. 2 durum, or 87 per cent better than No. 3 durum.

ANTI-TRUST LAW UPHELD.

State Statute Agaist Combinations in Restraint of Trade Stands Test.

The anti-trust laws of the state are upheld in a decision by Judge Thomas S. Buckham, of the Fifth judicial district, sitting at Owatonna. The case is the creamery package case, begun by the state in the summer of 1907 against the Owatonna Manufacturing company, and the Creamery Package Manufacturing company of Chicago, both manufacturers of and dealers in creamery and dairy supplies.

The suit was brought on the ground that the concerns had entered into an agreement in restraint of trade, and the evidence showed that they had combined to control the prices of all dairy and creamery supplies in Minnesota. Every farmer selling milk and every creamery in the state was directly interested in the suit.

In the decision Judge Buckham finds for the state in all its contentions. The charter of the Owatonna concern is forfeited and both defendants are barred from doing business in the state. The defendants will probably appeal the case to the supreme court of the state.

STATE LIBRARY IN NEW WORK.

Reference Department Already Organized.

The state law library is securing material and putting it in shape with files and indexes to create a legislative reference department similar to the one in Wisconsin. Bills are pending in the legislature to establish a bureau for such work, but neither of them places it in the law library, and an effort will be made to amend them. A bill by Senator George H. Sullivan places the new department under the attorney general, while one by W. D. Washburn, Jr. already reported for passage by the house committee on general legislation places it under the state public library commission.

Objection is made to this bill on the ground that the library commission has no facilities for the work. It has no library but has supervision over the traveling libraries of the state.

John E. King, state librarian, made a statement giving reasons why the proposed bureau should be placed in the law library, as follows:

The state library already has most of the material needed for such a bureau. The state library has the laws, both present and past, of all the state and nearly all the English-speaking countries in the world, as well as the laws of many other countries in Europe in other languages.

The state library has the house and senate journals of the other states. It has the reports of the various departments in the other states. It has reports on special subjects of many kinds, right in the line of legislative reference investigation. It has a good collection of works on political economy and sociology. It has over 1,000 volumes of periodicals, legal and political, and a fine set of United States documents and reports.

It is receiving and has on file now current bills introduced in other states. The library is indexed so that material on any subject may be obtained at short notice. No other department in the state has such a fund of material or such facilities for undertaking such work as the state library. If such work is to be done by another department it would necessitate the duplication of most of the material in the state library at a great and unnecessary expense.

FAVORS THE PRESERVE.

Minnesota Official Approves Plan Recently Recommended at Toronto.

Calos Avery, executive agent of the state game and fish commion, is heartily in accrod with the proposition for an international game preserve on both sides of Rainy river, as advocated in the recent international convention in Toronto.

"Nothing would suit our commission better than to have Minnesota and Ontario join in such a plan," said Mr. Avery. "I suppose it would take the form of setting aside an area in both countries, in the Rainy river basin, as a breeding ground for moose, in which the killing of those animals should be prohibited. That could be done by the Minnesota legislature and the Ontario legislature.

"Congressman Volstead has a bill to turn over the unsurveyed government lands in northern St. Louis county to the state for a game preserve, he informs me that there is not much chance for it to pass at this session."

TO REPRESENT MINNESOTA.

Judge Smith Named as Aid for Big Inaugural Ball.

Judge George R. Smith of the Hennepin county probate court will be the official representative of Minnesota at the Taft inaugural ball in Washington, D. C., March 4.

Judge Smith received a communication from Gist Blair, chairman of the floor committee, announcing that each state and territory would be represented by one official aid at the ball and stating that Judge Smith had been appointed to represent Minnesota. The aids will form a committee of honor for the president and the vice president. Judge Smith will leave for the East on March 1 and will remain for the greater part of the month after attending the inaugural ceremonies.

Great Charger Near.

Mrs. Stubb—John, you overslept yourself this morning and had the nightmare. In fact, you alarmed the plumber who was working downstairs.

Mr. Stubb—The plumber? Ah, that accounts for my dream.

Mrs. Stubb—And what did you dream about?

Mr. Stubb—Why, I dreamed I was trying to get out of the way of a great charger.

When England Shook.

In the course of its long history England has known a few serious earthquake shocks. In the days of William Rufus one was felt throughout the country, and in 1274 an English earthquake destroyed Glastonbury among its other damage, while part of St. Paul's cathedral fell in as the result of an earthquake in the sixteenth century. Perhaps the most recent serious shock was that which inflicted much damage in the Eastern counties in 1884; a mansion house fund was opened for the sufferers.

MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE

REVIEW OF THE MOST IMPORTANT WORK OF THE STATE LEGISLATORS FOR THE WEEK.

St. Paul, Jan. 28.—An employers' liability bill, with a commission of three to settle personal injury disputes, was introduced in the house yesterday by Representative Wright. It requires employers to provide suitable machinery and then pay benefits for all accidents, regardless of the negligence of the employe. The liability is to be determined by a commission of two doctors and one lawyer. Any five corporations, with at least 1,000 employes, may form an association for the payment of damages for injuries. The state treasurer shall be the treasurer of the association, and a fund maintained to pay damages.

After a warm discussion the house took Spooner's 6 per cent gross earnings tax bill from the railroad committee and referred it to the tax committee.

"Air line" promoters and boomers of fictitious stock are given a blow in a bill by Representative Mork. According to the bill any one who knowingly publishes any false statements, intended to give a false value to any stock of this corporation is guilty of a felony. The maximum penalty is ten years in prison or $10,000 fine.

In the Senate.

A bill designed to prevent voters of one party voting the ticket of another at a primary elections was introduced by Senator Cooke. The bill provides that any successful candidate for nomination must receive at the primary election of his party 50 per cent of the votes cast for such party's candidate for governor at the last general election.

The motor vehicle bill drawn by the officers of the state automobile association was introduced in the senate yesterday. It provides a tax of $1 a horsepower on all but electric vehicles, which are taxed according to cost. A tag is to be issued each year by a state officer and the money used by the state highway commission. Chauffeurs are to be licensed and wear a badge certifying their right to operate a machine.

No rebates or inducements can be given by agents for fire insurance companies to insured, according to a bill by Senator Calhoun.

St. Paul, Jan. 29.—Public utilities of all kinds except street railways are placed under the supervision of the state railroad commission in a public utilities bill introduced in the house yesterday by the committee which went to Wisconsin to investigate the workings of the public utilities law in that state. The committee preceded the introduction of the bill by a report stating some of the advantages of the Wisconsin method. The term "public utility" is to embrace every corporation, company, individual or association, and every village or city operating or controlling any plant or equipment for the convenience of telephone messages or for the production, transmission or delivery of heat, light, water or power. The bill is lengthy and describes in detail rules for the government of these utilities. They must have uniform accounts, in a form prescribed by the commission. The fullest publicity is one of the big features. The bill does not give the commission as strong judicial power as some states do, but the right of appeal is preserved in all cases.

A commission of three, to be appointed by the state auditor, to devise plans for the development of the water powers of the state, under state ownership is provided for in a bill by Representative Christensen.

The hunting of pheasants, quail, gray squirrel, black squirrel or red squirrel is prohibited until 1913 in a bill by Representative Krause.

The house, in committee of the whole, took favorable action on the bill making the office of public examiner elective, after a lively argument.

Two bills were passed by the house. One was for a constitutional amendment providing for an educational qualification for superintendents of county schools, which will be voted on at the general election in 1910. The other is a measure authorizing the board of county commissioners to appropriate $500 for county exhibits at the state fair.

The state prison bill was a special order for yesterday, but at the request of the author action was postponed until next Wednesday.

In the Senate.

Gov. Johnson yesterday sent to the legislature a special message recommending the passage of an employers' liability bill which shall include the suggestions made by a conference of employers and representatives of labor. The message recommends the appointment of a commission of three to frame a law along these lines and to report to the next legislature. The senate got into a squabble over the disposition of the message and the matter finally went over until tomorrow.

Memorial exercises in memory of the late Senator Fitzpatrick were held in the senate during the morning session.

A tax of one-half of 1 per cent on a bank's daily average deposits is proposed in the bill of Senator McCail for the establishment of a depository guaranty fund. The money shall be paid into the state treasury.

Any state high school, graded school or consolidated school may receive state aid for instruction in agricultural subjects, according to a bill by Senator Putnam. Schools are to get two-thirds of the amount used for instruction in agriculture and domestic science. Only ten schools are to be thus aided the first year.

Automobile owners will be held responsible for all damages to person or property by the machine if the bill by Senator Fosseen becomes a law.

Bequests to charitable and benevolent associations are exempted from the provisions of the inheritance tax law in a bill introduced by Senator Vail.

St. Paul, Jan. 30.—The Nolan bill making the office of state public examiner elective by the people was passed in the house yesterday by a vote of 78 to 27. An attempt to have the bill referred to the committee on banks and banking was defeated by a vote of 34 to 74. The bill was amended to make the examiner's term of office four years. The bill as amended was then passed.

Employers' liability legislation again came up in the house yesterday. Representative Stuart introduced a resolution asking for a committee of five to draft a bill "that will provide proper compensation to employes who suffer personal injuries and for a sure and speedy adjustment and payment." The resolution states that an effort is being made by ambulance chasers and others who prey upon injured employes to delay legislation on this subject. The resolution was passed.

All passenger cars on railroads must be equipped with electricity, according to a bill introduced by Representative Bendixen. No other light is permitted.

State lands which are offered for sale and do not bring the appraised price may be leased for agricultural purposes by the state auditor, under a bill introduced by Representative Putnam.

Cities of 10,000 or less may acquire by purchase or condemnation water works or light plants, already in existence, if a bill introduced by Representative King becomes a law.

A bill to accept the gift of a bust of Henry M. Rice, made by Matilda Rice Auerbach, was introduced by Representative Stone.

The house at its next session will fight out the question of adjourning early or holding a full ninety-day session. Representative Sangstad yesterday offered a resolution fixing March 31 as the date for adjournment and March 10 as the last day for introducing bills. Notice of debate was given and the resolution went over until Monday.

The house adjourned until 8 p. m. Monday.

In the Senate.

Two bills were introduced in the senate yesterday increasing the amount of state aid to high schools and other schools of the state. Similar provisions are contained in the two bills. The proposition is to increase the state aid to $2,000.

Senator Nelson introduced a bill for a proposal for a constitutional amendment relating to reforestation. He would have the people authorize a tax of three-tenths of a mill on the taxable property of the state for the purchase of land at a cost not to exceed $5 an acre, on which trees are to be raised for lumber.

Senator Anderson has a bill providing for a general salary boost for all employes of the dairy and food commission.

Senator Hanson would have the legislature change the method of moving the county seat of a county. Under the change a petiton is required to be filed with the secretary of state and the election is called by proclamation of the governor.

The tuberculin test for cattle got a jolt yesterday when a report of a special committee of the legislature was read. The report stated that the sanitary live stock board refused its assistance in the experiment the committee desired to make, so they did the best they could with a dairy herd in one county. The committee put with a lot of cattle condemned by the tuberculin test some which were said to be free from tuberculosis, and after slaughter all the cattle were found to be affected alike. The committee left with the legislature further investigation into what some members characterized as graft of the veterinarians.

The senate adjourned until 11 a. m. Tuesday.

St. Paul, Feb. 2.—Representative Kneeland last night introduced a bill providing for a constitutional convention. Should the people vote for such a convention, the next legislature is under obligations to pass legislation for the calling of the convention, the manner of selecting delegates, the time for its opening and other details.

The bunch of bills handed in included one by Representative Opsahl appropriating $100,000 to buy dynamite to be given to the settlers on the cut-over timber lands in the northern part of the state, to be used by them in blasting stumps off their farms.

Representative Brady introduced a bill repealing the anti-pass law passed by the 1907 legislature.

Representative Selb presented a bill requiring banks to publish annually a statement of all deposits which have remained unclaimed for seven years.

A bill by Representative Bendixen proposes a constitutional amendment allowing the state to buy a site and erect terminal elevators.

Another anti-cigarette bill made its appearance in the house last night.

Representative Spooner proposed a bill accepting from the United States the Indian school at Morris.

Treasurers of independent school districts are required to publish in some newspaper an itemized account of their receipts and expenses in a bill presented by Representative Opsahl.

St. Paul, Feb. 3.—Velvet chaff wheat is to be investigated with the object of restoring it to the same rank as blue stem wheat, so that it can receive the same grade. Representative Holmberg yesterday secured the passage of a resolution authorizing the speaker to appoint a committee of five to investigate the alleged unfair discrimination against this variety of wheat.

A bill requiring judges of the supreme, district and municipal courts to report to the legislature any errors or incongruities in the laws of the state was the most radical among the bills introduced in the house yesterday.

Representative Wallace introduced a bill appropriating $500,000 for a site and building for the library and museum of the state historical society.

Other bills were one by Representative Swendsen for the appointment of a dairy inspector in cities of 10,-000 or less; one by the same author requiring an annual inspection of the books of officers of cities of the fourth class, the examination to be made by the public examiner when requested and paid for by the country; a bill by Representative Rines providing for the separate assessment of surface rights, rights to minerals and coal and oil rights when there is separate ownership, and a bill by Representative Opsahl which provides that petitions for the change of county seats shall be sent to the secretary of state instead of the county board.

A measure shortening the open season for prairie chickens, quail, snipe, plover and woodcock was enacted by the house yesterday. It defers the opening of the hunting season from Sept. 1 to Sept. 15.

A bill prohibiting the publication of obscene and offensive medical advertising was passed by the house.

In the Senate.

The senate session was short and uneventful. There were seventeen new bills offered. One by Senator Nelson forbids the marriage of divorced persons within a year. The present law limits the time to six months.

Senator Dunn offered an amendment to the state constitution to authorize the exemption of lands from taxation when devoted to forestry purposes. He also proposed an appropriation of $55,000 to build an industrial school building for the state hospital for crippled children at Lake Phalen, St. Paul.

Senator Johnson introduced a bill providing for the transfer of women patients from the Anoka to the Hastings asylum, and segregating the sexes hereafter in these institutions, keeping all the men at Anoka.

Senator Cooke's bill fixes the number of directors in independent school districts at five. Senator Work asks an appropriation of $1,500 for buying additional land for Minneota Park. Senator Glotzbach proposes to forbid hunting or shooting from motor boats or launches.

The committee on insane hospitals brought in a bill authorizing the board of control to accept money offered for the maintenance of patients.

Senator Pauly offered a bill requiring vegetables, except green ones, to be sold by the pound.

Senator Nelson presented a bill requiring road supervisors to have weeds and brush cut for the width of a rod on either side of the roadway.

SENDS BULLET THROUGH HEAD.

John Gilmore Speed, Author and Editor, Is Suicide.

Mendham, N. J., Feb. 4.—John Gilmore Speed, author and journalist, shot himself yesterday while in his bed room at the Phoenix house here. He lived about an hour and a half.

He left a confession of his act. He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Dudley Grey of Morristown. Mr. Speed was a grandnephew of Keats, the poet.

TOWN BADLY FIRESWEPT.

Wishek, N. D., Feb. 4.—Fire about 2 a. m. yesterday in Herr Bros. & Co.'s department store, before it was subdued, caused a total loss of $60,-000, covered by about $35,000 insurance. The fire was under such headway that the flames could not be extinguisher until they had burned the department store, R. J. Bailey's meat market, the postoffice and M. E. Pratt's residence.

CALLER SITS ON SLEEPING BABY.

Five Months Old Child Crushed to Death by Careless Woman.

Indianapolis, Feb. 4.—Leona, the five-month-old child of Fred Boaz, was killed when Mrs. Fred Shure, a guest of the child's parents, sat down on the child, which was sleeping on a couch, partly covered with a quilt.

The baby died from hemorrhage soon after Mrs. Shure found "that there must be something under me."

STATE TOPICS OF INTEREST

TIMBER TRACT IS "CLEANED UP."

Old Wright & Davis Contract Passes Into History.

Friday one of the greatest lumbering contracts in the history of Minnesota became history. The event marks the final passing of one of the state's most famous timber tracts, known as the old Wright & Davis contract, drawn up more than seventeen years ago, between Wright & Davis of Michigan and the Pine Tree Lumber company of Minnesota. This contract covered the right to cut the timber on something like 250 square miles of the finest pine land in the state, lying at the western end of St. Louis county and reaching into Itasca county.

Wednesday the head officials of the Pine Tree Lumber company visited Hibbing to close out all their interest in this famous tract of timber. J. P. Weyerhaeuser of St. Paul, president of the company, was here, accompanied by C. A. Weyerhaeuser P. Weyerhaeuser of Little Falls, secretary and treasurer; R. D. Musser of Little Falls, treasurer, and several lumbermen from Cloquet.

The Weyerhaeusers began logging this land in 1891. Hibbing was then not even a name, and the western end of the Mesaba range was unknown. There was not a white settler within miles. What is now the Great Northern right of way was built by the first logging road and was afterward sold to the Hill road. The whole country now, except for stumps, bare as a rock, was covered with great white and Norway pine.

From the vast forest preserve the Weyerhaeusers have cut nearly a billion feet of lumber, paying out millions of dollars in carrying on their operations.

Not a merchantable log remains standing in the neighborhood. The last of the historic forest, about two train loads, lies cut and stacked along the racks noth of Nashwauk, a little village to the west of Hibbing. When these few remnants are shipped out, one of the greatest lumbering tracts in the world will have ceased to exist.

The mineral rights were sold to the Great Northern railroad, and it is from them that most of the mines of the Western Mesaba have been developed. The Hull Rust, the biggest iron mine in the world, is on a part of this land. It has probably yielded more wealth than any similar piece of land in America.

NEW "SWEARING OFF" LEAGUE.

Unique Society Gets Under Headway at Rochester, Minn.

Rochester is headquarters for a unique society. It is known as the Mutual Rest League of America. The president is a well known traveling salesman.

Some weeks ago the salesman and a friend became interested in a discussion of the liquor question so far as it affected their own personal interests, and decided to bet each other that they could quit the habit for six months. After they had made a deposit of $5 each they said why not take others into the agreement.

The result was that they organized the league and now the membership is increasing so rapidly that at the present time men from three states have one of these unique policies which read as follows: "Mr. Blank, having paid the sum of $5, hereby agrees to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors for six months from the date of the policy, when he may go before a notary and make oath to that effect and $5 will be paid to him the first of the following month. If he does not abstain he forfeits to the league the $5 paid in."

STATE WINS LUMBER SUIT.

Ackley Company Must Pay Permit Price for Cutting.

In an opinion handed down by Chief Justice Start of the supreme court the order of the lower court, giving judgment to the state in the suit against the Ackley Lumber company was affirmed. The amount involved was less than $4,000, but the chief point to be decided was whether or not lumber companies would have to pay the permit price for cutting pine. The Ackley Lumber company had cut pine in the northern part of the state at a certain rate, but refused to pay the full price for pack pine and "dead and down" timber, saying these were not worth the contract price.

The contention of the company that the contract was invalid, because not duly executed by the state, was not sustained.

STATE ROSE GROWERS.

The Minnesota State Rose society held its mid-winter meeting in St. Paul, Mrs. D. W. C. Ruff, presiding. There was an attendance of about sixty members, including both amateur and professional growers of roses and other flowers. While the society has always emphasized roses in its papers and exhibitions, it has by no means confined itself to them, and is catholic in its taste in flowers and plants.

The attendance was the largest in the history of the organization.

GRAIN INSPECTION FIGURES.

Annual Report of State Department Summarizes Last Crop Year.

F. W. Eva, chief grain inspector, submitted his annual report to the state railroad and warehouse commission. It cover the crop year ending Aug. 31. It shows a net decrease of 37,204 carloads inspected on arrival compared with the previous crop year. The comparison for each kind of grain is as follows:

	Crop of 1906.	Crop of 1907.
Oats	16,683	16,064
Rye	3,136	2,957
Barley	19,529	24,269
Flax	29,535	24,821
	223,873	186,669

Inspections "out of store" for the year amounted to 34,303 cars of wheat, 14,242 cars of coarse grain, and 3,321 of flax, and cargo shipments amounting to 42, 228,183 bushels of wheat, 7,992,621 of coarse grain, and 14,367,629 of flax. Compared with the 1906 crop year, the total shows a decrease of 1,275 cars and 21,070,756 bushels in cargo shipments.

Receipts for the year were $269,998.26, and disbursements, $266,174.98, and the surplus was reduced at the end of the year to $37, 374.81.

Interesting statistics as to condition of cars, reinspections and appeals and dockage are summarized in the report as follows:

Out of a total of 186,669 cars inspected "on arrival" during this crop year only 13,849 cars were found in apparent bad order. This amounts to 7.4 per cent of the total cars received. These bad order conditions may be classified as follows: Side doors with no seals, 6,342; side doors with broken seals, 551; open end and open side doors, 1,425; leaky grain doors, 1,237; leaky boxes, 729; doors with no fastenings, 2,096; doors with poor fastenings, 850; cars having no side doors, 615; and cars with leaky roof, 4.

Out of a total of 240,422 car loads of grain inspected "on arrival" and "out of store," 54,922 car loads were held for reinspection with the following results: There were 34,066 cases sustained! 13,886 cases with grades raised; 2,119 cases with grades lowered, and 4,851 cases with dockage changed.

Appeals to the grain inspection boards were made in 31,420 cases. In 22,728 of these cases the decisions of the inspection department through the chief deputy inspectors were confirmed and in 8,862 cases these decisions were changed.

Since the inspection by sample in the office has been inaugurated it has been much easier for grain firms to call reinspection and appeal, owing to the fact that thr is so little delay in securing samples for such cases. Owing to the possibility of market conditions being better, grain firms have repeatedly held over cars and ordered reinspection, thinking that they might be able to sell their grain after reinspection at a better price the succeeding day.

There was a total of 95,917 carloads of spring wheat inspected "on arrival," which were docked for impurities, as follows:

Pounds docked per bushel.	Number cars spring wheat.
0	571
½	5,666
1	18,336
1½	17,152
2	17,607
2½	9,315
3	10,396
	95,917

This makes an average dockage of 32.6 ounces per bushel as compared with 32.2 ounces on 134,298 carloads of spring wheat for the crop in 1906.

The result of the inspections during the past season show that out of 67,844 cars of northern spring wheat 72 per cent graded No. 2 northern or better, and that out of 26,573 cars of durum wheat 44 per cent graded No. 1 and 43 per cent No. 2 durum, or 87 per cent better than No. 3 durum.

ANTI-TRUST LAW UPHELD.

State Statute Agaist Combinations in Restraint of Trade Stands Test.

The anti-trust laws of the state are upheld in a decision by Judge Thomas S. Buckham, of the Fifth judicial district, sitting at Owatonna. The case is the creamery package case, begun by the state in the summer of 1907 against the Owatonna Manufacturing company, and the Creamery Package Manufacturing company of Chicago, both manufacturers of and dealers in creamery and dairy supplies.

The suit was brought on the ground that the concerns had entered into an agreement in restraint of trade, and the evidence showed that they had combined to control the prices of all dairy and creamery supplies in Minnesota. Every farmer selling milk and every creamery in the state was directly interested in the suit.

In the decision Judge Buckham finds for the state in all its contentions. The charter of the Owatonna concern is forfeited and both defendants are barred from doing business in the state. The defendants will probably appeal the case to the supreme court of the state.

STATE LIBRARY IN NEW WORK.

Reference Department Already Organized.

The state law library is securing material and putting it in shape with files and indexes to create a legislative reference department similar to the one in Wisconsin. Bills are pending in the legislature to establish a bureau for such work, but neither of them places it in the law library, and an effort will be made to amend them. A bill by Senator George H. Sullivan places the new department under the attorney general, while one by W. D. Washburn, Jr. already reported for passage by the house committee on general legislation places it under the state public library commission.

Objection is made to this bill on the ground that the library commission has no facilities for the work. It has no library but has supervision over the traveling libraries of the state.

John E. King, state librarian, made a statement giving reasons why the proposed bureau should be placed in the law library, as follows:

The state library already has most of the material needed for such a bureau. The state library has the laws, both present and past, of all the state and nearly all the English-speaking countries in the world, as well as the laws of many other countries in Europe in other languages.

The state library has the house and senate journals of the other states. It has the reports of the various departments in the other states. It has reports on special subjects of many kinds, right in the line of legislative reference investigation. It has a good collection of works on political economy and sociology. It has over 1,000 volumes of periodicals, legal and political, and a fine set of United States documents and reports.

It is receiving and has on file now current bills introduced in other states. The library is indexed so that material on any subject may be obtained at short notice. No other department in the state has such a fund of material or such facilities for undertaking such work as the state library. If such work is to be done by another department it would necessitate the duplication of most of the material in the state library at a great and unnecessary expense.

FAVORS THE PRESERVE.

Minnesota Official Approves Plan Recently Recommended at Toronto.

Calcs Avery, executive agent of the state game and fish commion, is heartily in accrod with the proposition for an international game preserve on both sides of Rainy river, as advocated in the recent international convention in Toronto.

"Nothing would suit our commission better than to have Minnesota, and Ontario join in such a plan," said Mr. Avery. "I suppose it would take the form of setting aside an area in both countries, in the Rainy river basin, as a breeding ground for moose, in which the killing of those animals should be prohibited. That could be done by the Minnesota legislature and the Ontario legislature.

"Congressman Volstead has a bill to turn over the unsurveyed government lands in northern St. Louis county to the state for a game preserve, he informs me that there is not much chance for it to pass at this session."

TO REPRESENT MINNESOTA.

Judge Smith Named as Aid for Big Inaugural Ball.

Judge George R. Smith of the Hennepin county probate court will be the official representative of Minnesota at the Taft inaugural ball in Washington, D. C., March 4.

Judge Smith received a communication from Gist Blair, chairman of the floor committee, announcing that each state and territory would be represented by one official aid at the ball and stating that Judge Smith had been appointed to represent Minnesota. The aids will form a committee of honor for the president and the vice president. Judge Smith will leave for the East on March 1 and will remain for the greater part of the month after attending the inaugural ceremonies.

MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE

REVIEW OF THE MOST IMPORTANT WORK OF THE STATE LEGISLATORS FOR THE WEEK.

St. Paul, Jan. 28. — An employers' liability bill, with a commission of three to settle personal injury disputes, was introduced in the house yesterday by Representative Wright. It requires employers to provide suitable machinery and then pay benefits for all accidents, regardless of the negligence of the employe. The liability is to be determined by a commission of two doctors and one lawyer. Any five corporations, with at least 1,000 employes, may form an association for the payment of damages for injuries. The state treasurer shall be the treasurer of the association, and a fund maintained to pay damages.

After a warm discussion the house took Spooner's 6 per cent gross earnings tax bill from the railroad committee and referred it to the tax committee.

"Air line" promoters and boomers of fictitious stock are given a blow in a bill by Representative Mork. According to the bill any one who knowingly publishes any false statements, intended to give a false value to any stock of this corporation is guilty of a felony. The maximum penalty is ten years in prison or $10,000 fine.

In the Senate.

A bill designed to prevent voters of one party voting the ticket of another at a primary elections was introduced by Senator Cooke. The bill provides that any successful candidate for nomination must receive at the primary election of his party 50 per cent of the votes cast for such party's candidate for governor at the last general election.

The motor vehicle bill drawn by the officers of the state automobile association was introduced in the senate yesterday. It provides a tax of $1 a horsepower on all but electric vehicles, which are taxed according to cost. A tag is to be issued each year by a state officer and the money used by the state highway commission. Chauffeurs are to be licensed and wear a badge certifying their right to operate a machine.

No rebates or inducements can be given by agents for fire insurance companies to insured, according to a bill by Senator Calhoun.

St. Paul, Jan. 29.—Public utilities of all kinds except street railways are placed under the supervision of the state railroad commission in a public utilities bill introduced in the house yesterday by the committee which went to Wisconsin to investigate the workings of the public utilities law in that state. The committee preceded the introduction of the bill by a report stating some of the advantages of the Wisconsin method. The term "public utility" is to embrace every corporation, company, individual or association, and every village or city operating or controlling any plant or equipment for the convenience of telephone messages or for the production, transmission or delivery of heat, light, water or power. The bill is lengthy and describes in detail rules for the government of these utilities. They must have uniform accounts, in a form prescribed by the commission. The fullest publicity is one of the big features. The bill does not give the commission as strong judicial power as some states do, but the right of appeal is preserved in all cases.

A commission of three, to be appointed by the state auditor, to devise plans for the development of the water powers of the state, under state ownership is provided for in a bill by Representative Christensen.

The hunting of pheasants, quail, gray squirrel, black squirrel or red squirrel is prohibited until 1913 in a bill by Representative Krause.

The house, in committee of the whole, took favorable action on the bill making the office of public examiner elective, after a lively argument.

Two bills were passed by the house. One was for a constitutional amendment providing for an educational qualification for superintendents of county schools, which will be voted on at the general election in 1910. The other is a measure authorizing the board of county commissioners to appropriate $500 for county exhibits at the state fair.

The state prison bill was a special order for yesterday, but at the request of the author action was postponed until next Wednesday.

In the Senate.

Gov. Johnson yesterday sent to the legislature a special message recommending the passage of an employers' liability bill which shall include the suggestions made by a conference of employers and representatives of labor. The message recommends the appointment of a commission of three to frame a law along these lines and to report to the next legislature. The senate got into a squabble over the disposition of the message and the matter finally went over until tomorrow.

Memorial exercises in memory of the late Senator Fitzpatrick were held in the senate during the morning session.

A tax of one-half of 1 per cent on a bank's daily average deposits is proposed in the bill of Senator McCail for the establishment of a depository guaranty fund. The money shall be paid into the state treasury.

Any state high school, graded school or consolidated school may receive state aid for instruction in agricultural subjects, according to a bill by Senator Putnam. Schools are to get two-thirds of the amount used for instruction in agriculture and domestic science. Only ten schools are to be thus aided the first year.

Automobile owners will be held responsible for all damages to person or property by the machine if the bill by Senator Fosseen becomes a law.

Bequests to charitable and benevolent associations are exempted from the provisions of the inheritance tax law in a bill introduced by Senator Vail.

St. Paul, Jan. 30.—The Nolan bill making the office of state public examiner elective by the people was passed in the house yesterday by a vote of 78 to 27. An attempt to have the bill referred to the committee on banks and banking was defeated by a vote of 34 to 74. The bill was amended to make the examiner's term of office four years. The bill as amended was then passed.

Employers' liability legislation again came up in the house yesterday. Representative Stuart introduced a resolution asking for a committee of five to draft a bill "that will provide proper compensation to employes who suffer personal injuries and for a sure and speedy adjustment and payment." The resolution states that an effort is being made by ambulance chasers and others who prey upon injured employes to delay legislation on this subject. The resolution was passed.

All passenger cars on railroads must be equipped with electricity, according to a bill introduced by Representative Bendixen. No other light is permitted.

State lands which are offered for sale and do not bring the appraised price may be leased for agricultural purposes by the state auditor, under a bill introduced by Representative Putnam.

Cities of 10,000 or less may acquire by purchase or condemnation water works or light plants, already in existence, if a bill introduced by Representative King becomes a law.

A bill to accept the gift of a bust of Henry M. Rice, made by Matilda Rice Auerbach, was introduced by Representative Stone.

The house at its next session will fight out the question of adjourning early or holding a full ninety-day session. Representative Sangstad yesterday offered a resolution fixing March 31 as the date for adjournment and March 10 as the last day for introducing bills. Notice of debate was given and the resolution went over until Monday.

The house adjourned until 8 p. m. Monday.

In the Senate.

Two bills were introduced in the senate yesterday increasing the amount of state aid to high schools and other schools of the state. Similar provisions are contained in the two bills. The proposition is to increase the state aid to $2,000.

Senator Nelson introduced a bill for a proposal for a constitutional amendment relating to reforestation. He would have the people authorize a tax of three-tenths of a mill on the taxable property of the state for the purchase of land at a cost not to exceed $5 an acre, on which trees are to be raised for lumber.

Senator Anderson has a bill providing for a general salary boost for all employes of the dairy and food commission.

Senator Hanson would have the legislature change the method of moving the county seat of a county. Under the change a petiton is required to be filed with the secretary of state and the election is called by proclamation of the governor.

The tuberculin test for cattle got a jolt yesterday when a report of a special committee of the legislature was read. The report stated that the sanitary live stock board refused its assistance in the experiment the committee desired to make, so they did the best they could with a dairy herd in one county. The committee put with a lot of cattle condemned by the tuberculin test some which were said to be free from tuberculosis, and after slaughter all the cattle were found to be affected alike. The committee left with the legislature further investigation into what some members characterized as graft of the veterinarians.

The senate adjourned until 11 a. m. Tuesday.

St. Paul, Feb. 2.—Representative Eneeland last night introduced a bill providing for a constitutional convention. Should the people vote for such a convention the next legislature is under obligations to pass legislation for the calling of the convention, the manner of selecting delegates, the time for its opening and other details.

The bunch of bills handed in included one by Representative Opsahl appropriating $100,000 to buy dynamite to be given to the settlers on the cut-over timber lands in the northern part of the state, to be used by them in blasting stumps off their farms.

Representative Brady introduced a bill repealing the anti-pass law passed by the 1907 legislature.

Representative Selb presented a bill requiring banks to publish annually a statement of all deposits which have remained unclaimed for seven years.

Another anti-cigarette bill made its appearance in the house last night.

Representative Spooner proposed a bill accepting from the United States the Indian school at Morris.

Treasurers of independent school districts are required to publish in some newspaper an itemized account of their receipts and expenses in a bill presented by Representative Opsahl.

St. Paul, Feb. 3.—Velvet chaff wheat is to be investigated with the object of restoring it to the same rank as bluestem wheat, so that it can receive the same grade. Representative Holmberg yesterday secured the passage of a resolution authorizing the speaker to appoint a committee of five to investigate the alleged unfair discrimination against this variety of wheat.

A bill requiring judges of the supreme, district and municipal courts to report to the legislature any errors or incongruities in the laws of the state was the most radical among the bills introduced in the house yesterday.

Representative Wallace introduced a bill appropriating $500,000 for a site and building for the library and museum of the state historical society.

Other bills were one by Representative Swendsen for the appointment of a dairy inspector in cities of 10,000 or less; one by the same author requiring an annual inspection of the books of officers of cities of the fourth class, the examination to be made by the public examiner when requested and paid for by the country; a bill by Representative Rines providing for the separate assessment of surface rights, rights to minerals and coal and oil rights when there is separate ownership, and a bill by Representative Opsahl which provides that petitions for the change of county seats shall be sent to the secretary of state instead of the county board.

A measure shortening the open season for prairie chickens, quail, snipe, plover and woodcock was enacted by the house yesterday. It defers the opening of the hunting season from Sept. 1 to Sept. 15.

A bill prohibiting the publication of obscene and offensive medical advertising was passed by the house.

In the Senate.

The senate session was short and uneventful. There were seventeen new bills offered. One by Senator Nelson forbids the marriage of divorced persons within a year. The present law limits the time to six months.

Senator Dunn offered an amendment to the state constitution to authorize the exemption of lands from taxation when devoted to forestry purposes. He also proposed an appropriation of $55,000 to build an industrial school building for the state hospital for crippled children at Lake Phalen, St. Paul.

Senator Johnson introduced a bill providing for the transfer of women patients from the Anoka to the Hastings asylum, and segregating the sexes hereafter in these institutions, keeping all the men at Anoka.

Senator Cooke's bill fixes the number of directors in independent school districts at five. Senator Works asks an appropriation of $1,000 for buying additional land for Minnesota Park. Senator Glotzbach proposes to forbid hunting or shooting from motor boats or launches.

The committee on insane hospitals brought in a bill authorizing the board of control to accept money offered for the maintenance of patients.

Senator Pauly offered a bill requiring vegetables, except green ones, to be sold by the pound.

Senator Nelson presented a bill requiring road supervisors to have weeds and brush cut for the width of a rod on either side of the roadway.

SENDS BULLET THROUGH HEAD.

John Gilmore Speed, Author and Editor, Is Suicide.

Mendham, N. J., Feb. 4. — John Gilmore Speed, author and journalist, shot himself yesterday while in his bed room at the Phoenix house here. He lived about an hour and a half.

TOWN BADLY FIRESWEPT.

Wishek, N. D., Feb. 4. — Fire about 2 a. m. yesterday in Herr Bros. & Co.'s department store, before it was subdued, caused a total loss of $60,000, covered by about $35,000 insurance. The fire was under such headway that the flames could not be extinguisher until they had burned the department store, R. J. Bailey's meat market, the postoffice and M. E. Pratt's residence.

CALLER SITS ON SLEEPING BABY.

Five Months Old Child Crushed to Death by Careless Woman.

Indianapolis, Feb. 4. — Leona, the five-month-old child of Fred Bo[illegible], was killed when Mrs. Fred Shure, a guest of the child's parents, sat down on the child, which was sleeping on a couch, partly covered with a quilt.

The baby died from hemorrhage soon after Mrs. Shure found "that there must be something under me."

A Woman's Threat.

"Well, if that ain't the limit," mused the postman, as he came down the steps of a private residence.

"What's the trouble?" queried the passing citizen, who had overheard the postman's noisy thought.

"Why," explained the man in gray, "the woman in that house says if I don't come along earlier she'll get her letters from some other carrier."

[illegible]

Good Reason.

"Have you heard that Jim has quit smoking?"

"No."

"Yes; you see he is a little near-sighted, and the other day he emptied his pipe in a powder barrel."

Short and Sweet.

Mamma—Come, Violet, you must say your prayers.

Violet—I've said 'em, mamma.

Mamma—What did you say?

Violet—I said "Amen."

Exceptional.

The June bride frowned.

"These tomatoes," she said, "are just twice as dear as those across the street. Why is it?"

"Ah, ma'am, these"—and the grocer smiled—"these are hand-picked."

She blushed.

"Of course," she said, hastily; "I might have known. Give me a bushel, please."

There's a fall in store for the man who is above his work.

The Canny Scot.

Sandy, the porter of a large school, had a small dog of which he was very fond, and was teased about the animal he would say:

"I wouldn't take twenty shillings for ma wee doggy."

Some of the older boys decided to test Sandy's assertion, and making up twenty led up to the familiar statement, when one of them said:

"Now, Sandy, I'd like that dog myself, and here's twenty shillings if you'll sell him."

He counted out twenty shillings on the table near Sandy. Without a smile the man drew a sixpence from his pocket, and said, as he took up the twenty shillings:

"Weel, I didna say I wouldn't take nineteen shillings and saxpence for him."

"It is never to late to learn," quoted the moralizer.

"True," rejoined the demoralizer, "but we usually learn that it's too late."

Something.

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—I don't see that anything is being done in this advanced day for women.

Mr. Crimsonbeak—You don't? Well, just let me tell you that a single manufacturing company produced and sold over 75,000 electric flat-irons last year.

It isn't safe to judge by appearances. The man who acts ferocious abroad may be as meek as a lamb at home.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Writes of Four Ways to Win a Woman

Cupid's Tools Are Strength, Flattery, Generosity and Apparent Sincerity.

BY NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH.

This is a vindication of Herman Lee Meader, architect and author of "Cupid the Surgeon, a Treatise on Heart Operations." Mr. Meader's book published by the Henry Altemus Company of Philadelphia, treats with surprising discernment and subtlety of various ways of winning various women, and has been also extensively reviewed. Now one of these reviews did not please Mr. Meader, who thereupon took his trenchant pen in hand and wrote to me as follows:

HERMAN LEE MEADER

"I am a little piqued over an article in which what are taken as my views on women are attributed to some 'recluse or one who has found little favor among women.' My studio-apartment is on Fifth avenue, just off Twenty-third street, so I am scarcely a hermit, and being now the accepted suitor of one I believe to be the most beautiful women in New York I am not quite willing to be thought a discard."

After which I saw Mr. Meader, who is a tall young man with a distinctly cosmopolitan atmosphere. He is an architect by profession and a transplanted Southerner by birth, having been born in New Orleans. But, as he expressed it last night, he has been rolling up and down Broadway so long that he can't understand how any one could regard him as a recluse.

Here is some of the philosophy—by no means moss grown—he gathered while he was rolling. But before you read it, and perhaps profit by it, for it contains specific advice for the pursuit and capture of what he terms "the only thing in the world worth winning—a woman," remember that Mr. Meader confessed to me that he is only a frank cynic, and that while he can't say of himself that his "only books were woman's looks," for he is a Harvard man, still these looks have not been such as are cast at a sour old recluse. "Before a physician prescribes," he writes as Cupid the Surgeon, "he must first diagnose, for patients suffering from tonsilitis and eczema do not, at least to the minds of innocent laymen, receive the same pills as he who is afflicted with hangnails, nor will salve that is efficacious for inflamed eyelids stimulate a torpid liver."

Four Kinds of Women.

With this preliminary he proceeds to the following diagnosis:

"Considered broadly, there are four groups into which most women may be classified—the conceited, the sentimental, the mercenary and the blase. These are distinctive types and none but a bungling knave could mistake them. Once having the species isolated the administration of a specific that will destroy the resistance of either variety is merely the application of a simple rule that must be accepted as the basic formula of this heart-breaking treatise—to appease babies and women give them what they think they want.

"Intuitively you pass the baby a rattle or a nipple, so if you can likewise discern a woman's wants you will need no prompter to say you shall give flattery to a conceited woman, promises of eternal fidelity to the sentimental one, precious gifts to the mercenary, and sensational thrills to her who is tormented with ennui."

Some Quick to Change.

"Not only do some women possess a blend of several or all of these characters, but in others the four moods are but poses for as many hours of the evening. Such a specimen is at least consistent for the moment, and you have but to gratify her varying whims as they are manifest. First give her subtle compliments, hugs next, then rubies, and lastly an automobile smashup."

Then Mr. Meader names the principal weapons necessary to the subjugation of woman, or, as he expresses it, the four big carvers from the instrument case—strength, flattery, generosity and apparent sincerity.

Strength the author defines as "that appeal to the animal instincts that, no matter how dormant, is ever present in even the most aesthetic beings.

"It is not necessary to be an athlete, lift great weights and sprint to the click of a stop watch. Take vigorous exercise regularly, eat your fill of nourishing food, sleep at least eight hours every night with an open window in the room, and take a cold shower immediately on rising.

"This routine will give you the vigor to pose as a giant in the creative mind of a woman. Supplement it with an erect carriage, an athletic swing to your walk and a discreet amount of bluster about your prowess, and she will soon have a gladiator on a pedestal.

Cupid's Other Tools.

"Flattery is that refinement of polite speech that enables a beautiful woman to realize her charms and an ugly one to imagine hers.

"Upon the particular woman you are treating must depend the way you administer the drug. Some can swallow big, strong doses from a tablespoon, while others demand capsules and coated pills, but you might as well expect blessings from a Chinese idol without first having lit joss sticks on the altar as anticipate much favor from a woman before whom you have never burned the incense of blandishment—and your rewards, as with all crops, will be in precise ratio to the amount of planting you do.

"Generosity is that quality of bigness in height and breadth that distinguishes a god from a pygmy."

"Women," proceeds Mr. Meader, "by the environment of centuries, are small and narrow. They admire bigness.

"The man who never parleys over cab fares, who never scans the prices on a wine list or an a la carte menu, and who hibernates when he's broke, carries an infallible amulet against all feminine criticism."

As to "Apparent Sincerity."

"Apparent sincerity," says Mr. Meader, taking up his last "carver," "is chiefly co-attribute with flattery, but its presence must be felt with every incision a man makes and every stitch he takes. Unlike the other weapons, this might better be spurious than genuine, for an honest man will come to bridges he cannot cross, and speeches that if uttered would choke him, and there must not be a moment's hesitation or the subterfuge will be detected."

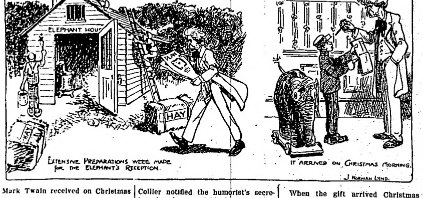
Mr. Meader has many other interesting hints in special chapters devoted to "Dieting the Conceited," "Amputating the Mercenary" and "Trepanning the Blase." And remember, he is not a recluse. I have seen and talked with him and so testify.

Authors and Publishers.

No reputable firm will publish a dubious book for pay. It puts the honor of its name too high. But there are lots of predatory publishers, both in England and America, who prey upon the vanity of these scribblers. Not only do they publish, but they fix over manuscripts, and this fixing, if the pay is high enough, includes a generous editing and rewriting.

Publishers, both here and abroad, take long shots in the matter of new authors. They speculate upon the taste of the public, and so a number of these young writers get a legitimate chance. But this has proved such bad business, in England at least, aside from the personal distastefulness of it to the high-minded publishers, that a move is now on foot among a number of the leading London book producers to curtail their output greatly. Instead of sending out a flood of indifferent books, hoping that something will attract, they will issue only a few, and to the selection of these few they will bring all their sanity of taste and wisdom of experience.—Cleveland Leader.

MARK TWAIN'S ELEPHANT



ELEPHANT HOUSE
HAY
EXTENSIVE PREPARATIONS WERE MADE FOR THE ELEPHANT'S RECEPTION.
ARE YOU SURE THIS IS MY ELEPHANT? — YOU HAVEN'T GOT THEM MIXED
IT ARRIVED ON CHRISTMAS MORNING.
J NORMAN LYND.

Mark Twain received on Christmas day, among other presents, an elephant. The gift was from his friend, Robert J. Collier of New York, and came as a complete surprise. Mr. Collier notified the humorist's secretary in advance of his intention, and also sent a large quantity of hay from South Norwalk, by freight, to feed it. Great preparations were made for the elephant's reception.

When the gift arrived Christmas morning it developed that the whole thing was a practical joke on Mr. Clemens. The elephant was a toy affair, about as large as a good-sized calf.

Care of Snowshoes.

Snowshoes need very little care; you don't have to wipe them dry with a chamois for instance—the prescribed treatment for skates. When taking them off merely tap them against the wall or a tree to shake free the clinging snow and stand them up on their heels outside. Never attempt to dry them before a fire. When they are put away for the summer select a dry place where there will be no danger of mice.

Destroying the Effect.

"It sort of takes away from the effect to sit in a box," said the woman. "Last night at the Thalia theater, on the Bowery, here was a well on the side of the stage and a girl jumped into it. I suppose it was all right from the front, but from where we sat we could see her stoop down just enough for the side of the well to cover her head from the audience and then walk off whistling. Supposed to be dead, you know. At least she ought to have been, falling into a well."

Getting a Sight of the Master.

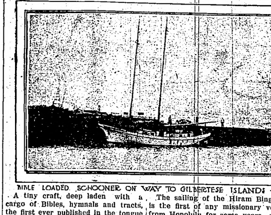
C. S. Calverley, at the Oxford commemoration, was showing a lady round. Arrived at Balliol, she said she would give anything to see the master. "All right," said her cicerone, "you shall." And he deftly sent a pebble through the master's open window. The master promptly appeared at the open window. "There he is," said Calverley, politely "capping" the head; "and you can say you've seen him with all his frills on."

DISPLACES CHINA'S LEADING PUBLIC MAN

LIANG TUN YEN

The appointment of Liang-Tun-Yen to succeed Yuan-Shi-Kai as president of the board of foreign affairs is received at Shanghai with great favor. Liang-Tun-Yen was a former American student. He is careful, able and honest. No change in China's policy is anticipated. Yuan-Shi-Kai was not persona grata to the prince regent, who could not forget the coup d'etat of 1898, when Yuan-Shi-Kai betrayed the regent's brother, the late emperor.

SHIPLOAD OF BIBLES FOR SOUTH SEA HEATHEN



BIBLE LOADED SCHOONER ON WAY TO GILBERTESE ISLANDS

A tiny craft, deep laden with a cargo of Bibles, hymnals and tracts, the first ever published in the tongue of the natives of the Gilbertese islands, cleared from Honolulu recently for the South seas. This was the missionary schooner Hiram Bingham of five tons burden named after the pioneer American missionary who labored among the Gilbertese kanakas Hiram Bingham II.

The crew of the schooner consists of six persons—Capt. Walkup and his son, as skipper and mate; Miss Eleanor Walkup, the skipper's daughter, on the ship's list as cook, and three Hawaiian sailors. So little cabin room has the crew that the plum duff is served on a big packing case filled with Bibles, and the sailors sleep when off watch on the cases of hymn books.

The sailing of the Hiram Bingham is the first of any missionary vessel from Honolulu for some years—since the Morning Star was withdrawn by the Hawaiian Evangelical association and sent to Seattle to be sold as a fishing tender for the northern halibut fleet. Honolulu has been the headquarters for American South Sea evangelistic work for half a century, and many of the sons and daughters of those who came here from Boston to evangelize the Hawaiian islands have in their turn taken up missions throughout Micronesia. The history of Honolulu is so bound up with the history of the American missionaries in the South seas that the sailing today of the Hiram Bingham, probably the last missionary vessel that will ever clear from this port, was celebrated by many as a great event.

CROWN PRINCESS MARIE OF ROUMANIA

Willing to Take a Chance.

The other evening a particularly woebegone and souseful looking person stopped James J. Buckley on East Sixth street, New York.

"Gimme a dime for a bed, won't you, mister?" asked the stranger in that half whisper they always use.

Buckley looked at him for a minute thoughtfully. "Well," said he seriously, "bring the bed around and let me see it. If I think it's worth the price I'll give you a dime for it, of course."

Hole in New French Coins.

The French chamber is to be asked shortly to sanction the minting of some new nickel coins to the value of £3,000,000. There will be two new pieces of 5 and 10 centimes, and these will have a hole in the center, after the manner of the Belgian nickel coins. The names of the new coins and their weights are still under consideration. The hole in the center will effectually prevent any confusion with existing silver coins.

IN TRAINING AS A DIPLOMATI

There seems to be an excessive proportion of pinheads in the diplomatic corps, not among the headliners, be it said, but in the ranks of the umpteenth secretaries and the second assistant naval attaches, and all that sort of thing, says a Washington correspondent. Just the other day, when the sixtieth anniversary of the clutching of the scepter by Emperor Franz Joseph was celebrated by a mass at St. Patrick's church most of these light-witted, large-headed people turned out.

One of them was standing around on one leg, looking as wise as a cream puff and as ornamental as a clothes prop, when a young man from the Star, who, being temporarily detailed from the neurotic atmosphere of the police court to this aggregation of gold-laced celebrities, was not as familiar with their old-world names as he might have been, stepped up to him.

"Will you kindly tell me how to spell the name of your ambassador?" he said, as polite as a basket of chips. "I am not certain I have it right."

Did the animated pinhead tell him? Was he polite? Did he act like a member of the human race? No! Never!! He did not!!! He looked the reporter over from head to foot with one of those "she swept him with her scornful lamps" glances and then he deliberately turned away and spoke over his shoulder.

"Rully," said he, or words to that effect, "'tis a wonder these newspapers over here don't employ persons who can spell."

I am reliably informed that the only thing that saved the aforesaid pinhead from having his aristocratic nose bent into the form of a figure eight was the fact that the incident occurred in church.

Want No Fun on Sunday.

Women in Washington are beginning to regret the introduction of the Sunday entertainment, for the round of social activity in the capital now counts seven days in the week. It is said that Mrs. Taft as soon as she enters the White House will frown upon the practice. The innovation began with the diplomatic set, and was encouraged by Mrs. Perry Belmont and Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt and other New York women who spend part of each season in Washington. Then Mrs. John R. McLean conceived the idea of Sunday breakfasts at Friendship, her place, ten miles from the city, and society suddenly found it had practically resigned its Sunday to social duties as exacting as those on other days of the week. Clergymen preached against the tendency from the pulpit, but the entertainments were kept up. Now, however, several prominent women have taken the situation in hand and promise to restore Sunday to its old quiet and restful inactivity.

Derelicts at Washington.

No city on earth offers so few openings for men who must work for a living as does Washington, from the fact that outside of government jobs there are few places to fill, says Lilian M. Cheshire. There is nothing in the line of manufactories and other openings found in other large cities. But these unfortunates can live here a long time on nothing a year, and this from the fact that friends in the departments help them along until they realize that it is to be a perpetual thing every pay-day; room rent is cheap, and three-cent lunch rooms are spread all over Washington. Friends from home occasionally visit the city and "touches" of a substantial nature are made, and many of them get remittances from home which they learn to plank down for actual expenses, relying on chance acquaintances which they meet in hotel lobbies to furnish all the necessary liquid refreshments.

Origin of the Club Sandwich.

Alan Johnstone is said to have originated the famous club sandwich, and the story runs that on going to the club one night between midnight and daybreak he found the cafe closed, the cooks gone, and being nearly famished, he invaded the larder, toasted himself some thick slices of bread, sliced them through, buttered them while hot and laid thereon everything he found in the refrigerator, cold chicken, ham and lettuce, with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

The result was such an epicurean discovery as is not often made, but the story was too good to keep; he confided the recipe to his cronies and it straightway became one of the popular dishes of the club menu, and so the father of the club sandwich, so deservedly popular, is the present British minister to Copenhagen.—Washington Herald.

Remarkable Signature.

In the Christmas number of the Strand Magazine appeared what is without doubt the most extraordinary signature ever devised by a writer. It is one which may be seen on hundreds of government papers at Washington, where the man who uses it was for some years expert computer of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey and astronomer of the Carnegie Institution. His name is Herman S. Davis, and the signature is made with two swift strokes of the pen. It is not a mere monogram of initials, either (though it has that appearance at first), but contains the full name, H. S. Davis, and also the year, month and day of his birth. It can also be read exactly the same viewed upside down.

Eligible Bachelor Prince.

Most important upon the list of eligible bachelors in Washington is the august Prince Vincent zu Windisch-Graetz, attache, who arrived late last season. He is exceedingly charming of manner and mien, but it is safe to predict that he will not feel at liberty to allow his affections to become enlisted in America, however great the temptation.

His Occupation.

"What's your occupation, bub?" asked a Washington visitor at the capital of a bright boy whom he met in the corridor [illegible] be page in the White House. "I'm running for congress," [illegible] replied.

PE-RU-NA TONIC FOR COUGHS, COLDS, CATARRH.

JOSEPH HALL CHASE

Peruna Drug Co., Columbus, Ohio.
Gentlemen: I have used Peruna and find that it cannot be equaled as a tonic, as well as a cure for coughs, colds and catarrh.
You are authorized to use my photo with testimonial in any publication.
Joseph H. Chase,
804 Tenth St., Washington, D. C.

Cold and La Grippe

Mr. C. Happy, Hardin, Ray Co., Mo., writes: "I can safely recommend Peruna as a remedy that will cure all catarrhal troubles.

"It was of great benefit to me, as it cured me of catarrh of the throat, and I took a very bad cold and had la grippe last February. It settled in my throat and lungs. I took three bottles of Peruna and it cured me.

"I highly recommend it to all who are sick, and I am glad to add my endorsement to that of others."

Pe-ru-na for Colds

Mr. L. Clifford Figg, Jr., 2929 East Marshall St., Richmond, Va., writes that when he gets a cold he takes Peruna, and it soon drives it out of his system. For several years he was not entirely well, but Peruna completely cured him.

People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna tablets.

A Borneo Parasite.

A famous rarity in the vegetable world of Borneo is the rafkesia, the buah pakman of Malays. The plant is one of the most degraded of parasites and so completely does it submerge itself in the tissues of its host that the only part which ever shows itself to the external world is the enormous flower. The diameter of the flower measures about two feet; the odor is repulsive, and there is not one feature of beauty to recommend it to man. It appears, however, to hold an important place in the pharmacopoeia of the natives, who perhaps imagine that the plant to which nature has given so uninviting an exterior must possess some hidden virtue in the way of compensation. Various species of rafflesia are known in Borneo, and oddly enough their hosts are invariably species of vine (cissus).

One Way to Appear Young.

A wise young woman gives as her reason for having learned the vertical writing: "This form of writing has been used for but a few years in some schools. When I have occasion to write to anybody they are very apt to conclude from my handwriting that I have been out of school but a few years, and accordingly I will be considered a real young woman.

"This does not count for so much at present, for I am only twenty-three years, but it may count a great deal in getting me a start in the friendship of a man later. I will not of course lie about my age, but I will get a more favorable start."

Light From Flash of Powder.

Judge D. W. Bond of the Middlesex superior criminal court, in charging a jury recently, in speaking of the question as to whether the witness had sufficient light to identify the defendant by, referred to an old case in England at a time when old fashioned black gunpowder that made considerable light when discharged was used. A woman who happened to be passing saw the shot in question fired and identified the man who fired it by the light of the flash. The prisoner afterward verified her testimony by his confession.

His Deficiency.

A certain Chicago merchant died, leaving to his only son the conduct of an extensive business, and great doubt was expressed in some quarters whether the young man possessed the ability to carry out the father's policies.

"Well," said one kindly disposed friend, "for my part I think Harry is very bright and capable. I'm sure he will succeed."

"Perhaps you're right," said another friend. "Henry is undoubtedly a clever fellow; but take it from me, old man, he hasn't got the bead to fill his father's shoes."

Writes of Four Ways to Win a Woman

BY NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH.

This is a vindication of Herman Lee Meader, architect and author of "Cupid the Surgeon, a Treatise on Heart Operations." Mr. Meader's book published by the Henry Altemus Company of Philadelphia, treats with surprising discernment and subtlety of various ways of winning various women, and has been also extensively reviewed. Now one of these reviews did not please Mr. Meader, who thereupon took his trenchant pen in hand and wrote to me as follows:

"I am a little piqued over an article in which what are taken as my views on women are attributed to some 'recluse or one who has found little favor among women.' My studio-apartment is on Fifth avenue, just off Twenty-third street, so I am scarcely a hermit, and being now the accepted suitor of one I believe to be the most beautiful women in New York I am not quite willing to be thought a discard."

After which I saw Mr. Meader, who is a tall young man with a distinctly cosmopolitan atmosphere. He is an architect by profession and a transplanted Southerner by birth, having been born in New Orleans. But, as he expressed it last night, he has been rolling up and down Broadway so long that he can't understand how any one could regard him as a recluse.

Here is some of the philosophy—by no means moss grown—he gathered while he was rolling. But before you read it, and perhaps profit by it, for it contains specific advice for the pursuit and capture of what he terms "the only thing in the world worth winning—a woman," remember that Mr. Meader confessed to me that he is only a frank cynic, and that while he can't say of himself that his "only books were woman's looks," for he is a Harvard man, still these looks have not been such as are cast at a sour old recluse. "Before a physician prescribes," he writes as Cupid the Surgeon, "he must first diagnose, for patients suffering from tonsilitis and eczema do not, at least to the minds of innocent laymen, receive the same pills as he who is afflicted with hangnails nor will salve that is efficacious for inflamed eyelids stimulate a torpid liver."

Four Kinds of Women.

With this preliminary he proceeds to the following diagnosis:

"Considered broadly, there are four groups into which most women may be classified—the conceited, the sentimental, the mercenary and the blase. These are distinctive types and none but a bungling knave could mistake them. Once having the species isolated the administration of a specific that will destroy the resistance of either variety is merely the application of a simple rule that must be accepted as the basic formula of this heart-breaking treatise—to appease babies and women give them what they think they want.

"Intuitively you pass the baby a rattle or a nipple, so if you can likewise discern a woman's wants you will need no prompter to say you shall give flattery to a conceited woman, promises of eternal fidelity to the sentimental one, precious gifts to the mercenary, and sensational thrills to her who is tormented with ennui."

Some Quick to Change.

"Not only do some women possess a blend of several or all of these characters, but in others the four moods are but poses for as many hours of the evening. Such a specimen is at least consistent for the moment, and you have but to gratify her varying whims as they are manifest. First give her subtle compliments, hugs next, then rubies, and lastly an automobile smashup."

Then Mr. Meader names the principal weapons necessary to the subjugation of woman, or, as he expresses it, the four big carvers from the instrument case—strength, flattery, generosity and apparent sincerity.

Strength the author defines as "that appeal to the animal instincts that, no matter how dormant, is ever present in even the most aesthetic beings.

"It is not necessary to be an athlete, lift great weights and sprint to the click of a stop watch. Take vigorous exercise regularly, eat your fill of nourishing food, sleep at least eight hours every night with an open window in the room, and take a cold shower immediately on rising.

"This routine will give you the vigor to pose as a giant in the creative mind of a woman. Supplement it with an erect carriage, an athletic swing to your walk and a discreet amount of bluster about your prowess, and she will soon have a gladiator on a pedestal.

Cupid's Other Tools.

"Flattery is that refinement of polite speech that enables a beautiful woman to realize her charms and an ugly one to imagine hers.

"Upon the particular woman you are treating must depend the way you administer the drug. Some can swallow big, strong doses from a tablespoon, while others demand capsules and coated pills, but you might as well expect blessings from a Chinese idol without first having lit joss sticks on the altar as anticipate much favor from a woman before whom you have never burned the incense of blandishment—and your rewards, as with all crops, will be in precise ratio to the amount of planting you do.

"Generosity is that quality of bigness in height and breadth that distinguishes a god from a pygmy."

"Women," proceeds Mr. Meader, "by the environment of centuries, are small and narrow. They admire bigness.

"The man who never parleys over cab fares, who never scans the prices on a wine list or an a la carte menu, and who hibernates when he's broke, carries an infallible amulet against all feminine criticism."

As to "Apparent Sincerity."

"Apparent sincerity," says Mr. Meader, taking up his last "carver," "is chiefly co-attribute with flattery, but its presence must be felt with every incision a man makes and every stitch he takes. Unlike the other weapons, this might better be spurious than genuine, for an honest man will come to bridges he cannot cross, and speeches that if uttered would choke him, and there must not be a moment's hesitation or the subterfuge will be detected."

Mr. Meader has many other interesting hints in special chapters devoted to "Dieting the Conceited," "Amputating the Mercenary" and "Trepanning the Blase." And remember, he is not a recluse. I have seen and talked with him and so testify.

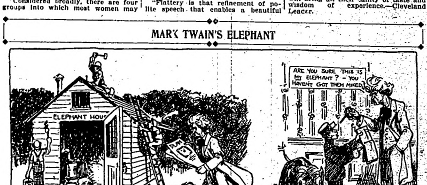
Authors and Publishers.

No reputable firm will publish a dubious book for pay. It puts the honor of its name too high. But there are lots of predatory publishers, both in England and America, who prey upon the vanity of these scribblers. Not only do they publish, but they fix over manuscripts, and this fixing, if the pay is high enough, includes a generous editing and rewriting.

Publishers, both here and abroad, take long shots in the matter of new authors. They speculate upon the taste of the public, and so a number of these young writers get a legitimate chance. But this has proved such bad business, in England at least, aside from the personal distastefulness of it to the high-minded publishers, that a move is now on foot among a number of the leading London book producers to curtail their output greatly. Instead of sending out a flood of indifferent books, hoping that something will attract, they will issue only a few, and to the selection of these few they will bring all their sanity of taste and wisdom of experience.—Cleveland Leader.

MARK TWAIN'S ELEPHANT



ELEPHANT HOUS
HAY
ARE YOU SURE THIS IS MY ELEPHANT? - YOU HAVEN'T GOT THEM MIXED?

EXTENSIVE PREPARATIONS WERE MADE FOR THE ELEPHANT'S RECEPTION.

IT ARRIVED ON CHRISTMAS MORNING.

J. NORMAN LYND.

Mark Twain received on Christmas day, among other presents, an elephant. The gift was from his friend, Robert J. Collier of New York, and came as a complete surprise. Mr. Collier notified the humorist's secretary in advance of his intention, and also sent a large quantity of hay from South Norwalk, by freight, to feed it. Great preparations were made for the elephant's reception.

When the gift arrived Christmas morning it developed that the whole thing was a practical joke on Mr. Clemens. The elephant was a toy affair, about as large as a good-sized calf.

Destroying the Effect.

"It sort of takes away from the effect to sit in a box," said the woman. "Last night at the Thalia theater, on the Bowery, here was a well on the side of the stage and a girl jumped into it. I suppose it was all right from the front, but from where we sat we could see her stoop down just enough for the side of the well to cover her head from the audience and then walk off whistling. LIANG TUN YEN

The appointment of Liang-Tun-Yen to succeed Yuan-Shi-Kai as president of the board of foreign affairs is received at Shanghai with great favor. Liang-Tun-Yen was a former American student. He is careful, able and honest. No change in China's policy is anticipated. Yuan-Shi-Kai was not persona grata to the prince regent, who could not forget the coup d'etat of 1898, when Yuan-Shi-Kai betrayed the regent's brother, the late emperor.

SHIPLOAD OF BIBLES FOR SOUTH SEA HEATHEN

A tiny craft, deep laden with a cargo of Bibles, hymnals and tracts, the first ever published in the tongue of the natives of the Gilbertese islands, cleared from Honolulu recently for the South seas. This was the missionary schooner Hiram Bingham of five tons burden named after the pioneer American missionary who labored among the Gilbertese kanakas Hiram Bingham II.

The crew of the schooner consists of six persons—Capt. Walkup and his son, as skipper and mate; Miss Eleanor Walkup, the skipper's daughter, on the ship's list as cook, and three Hawaiian sailors. So little cabin room has the crew that the plum duff is served on a big packing case filled with Bibles, and the sailors sleep when off watch on the cases of hymn books.

The sailing of the Hiram Bingham is the first of any missionary vessel from Honolulu for some years—since the Morning Star was withdrawn by the Hawaiian Evangelical association and sent to Seattle to be sold as a fishing tender for the northern halibut fleet. Honolulu has been the headquarters for American South Sea evangelistic work for half a century, and many of the sons and daughters of those who came here from Boston to evangelize the Hawaiian islands have in their turn taken up missions throughout Micronesia. The history of Honolulu is so bound up with the history of the American missionaries in the South seas that the sailing today of the Hiram Bingham, probably the last missionary vessel that will ever clear from this port, was celebrated by many as a great event.

CROWN PRINCESS MARIE OF ROUMANIA

IN TRAINING AS A DIPLOMAT!

There seems to be an excessive proportion of pinheads in the diplomatic corps, not among the headliners, be it said, but in the ranks of the umpteenth secretaries and the second assistant naval attaches, and all that sort of thing, says a Washington correspondent. Just the other day, when the sixtieth anniversary of the clutching of the scepter by Emperor Franz Joseph was celebrated by a mass at St. Patrick's church, most of these light-witted, large-headed people turned out.

One of them was standing around on one leg, looking as wise as a cream puff and as ornamental as a clothes prop, when a young man from the Star, who, being temporarily detailed from the neurotic atmosphere of the police court to this aggregation of gold-laced celebrities, was not as familiar with their old-world names as he might have been, stepped up to him.

"Will you kindly tell me how to spell the name of your ambassador?" he said, as polite as a basket of chips. "I am not certain I have it right."

Did the animated pinhead tell him? Was he polite? Did he act like a member of the human race? No! Never!! He did not!!! He looked the reporter over from head to foot with one of those "she swept him with her scornful lamps" glances and then he deliberately turned away and spoke over his shoulder.

"Rully," said he, or words to that effect, "'tis a wonder these newspapers over here don't employ persons who can spell."

I am reliably informed that the only thing that saved the aforesaid pinhead from having his aristocratic nose bent into the form of a figure eight was the fact that the incident occurred in church.

Want No Fun on Sunday.

Women in Washington are beginning to regret the introduction of the Sunday entertainment, for the round of social activity in the capital now counts seven days in the week. It is said that Mrs. Taft as soon as she enters the White House will frown upon the practice. The innovation began with the diplomatic set, and was encouraged by Mrs. Perry Belmont and Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt and other New York women who spend part of each season in Washington. Then Mrs. John R. McLean conceived the idea of Sunday breakfasts at Friendship, her place, ten miles from the city, and society suddenly found it had practically resigned its Sunday to social duties as exacting as those on other days of the week. Clergymen preached against the tendency from the pulpit, but the entertainments were kept up. Now, however, several prominent women have taken the situation in hand and promise to restore Sunday to its old quiet and restful inactivity.

Derelicts at Washington.

No city on earth offers so few openings for men who must work for a living as does Washington, from the fact that outside of government jobs there are few places to fill, says Lilian M. Cheshire. There is nothing in the line of manufactories and other openings found in other large cities. But these unfortunates can live here a long time on nothing a year, and this from the fact that friends in the departments help them along until they realize that it is to be a perpetual thing every payday; room rent is cheap, and three-cent lunch rooms are spread all over Washington. Friends from home occasionally visit the city and "touches" of a substantial nature are made, and many of them get remittances from home which they learn to plank down for actual expenses, relying on chance acquaintances which they meet in hotel lobbies to furnish all the necessary liquid refreshments.

Origin of the Club Sandwich.

Alan Johnstone is said to have originated the famous club sandwich, and the story runs that on going to the club one night between midnight and daybreak he found the cafe closed, the cooks gone, and being nearly famished, he invaded the larder, toasted himself some thick slices of bread, sliced them through, buttered them while hot and laid thereon everything he found in the refrigerator, cold chicken, ham and lettuce, with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

The result was such an epicurean discovery as is not often made, but the story was too good to keep; he confided the recipe to his cronies and it straightway became one of the popular dishes of the club menu, and so the father of the club sandwich, so deservedly popular, is the present British minister to Copenhagen.—Washington Herald.

Remarkable Signature.

In the Christmas number of the Strand Magazine appeared what is without doubt the most extraordinary signature ever devised by a writer. It is one which may be seen on hundreds of government papers at Washington, where the man who uses it was for some years expert computer of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey and astronomer of the Carnegie Institution. His name is Herman S. Davis, and the signature is made with two swift strokes of the pen. It is not a mere monogram of initials, either (though it has that appearance at first), but contains the full name, H. S. Davis, and also the year, month and day of his birth. It can also be read exactly the same viewed upside down.

Eligible Bachelor Prince.

Most important upon the list of eligible bachelors in Washington is the august Prince Vincent zu Windisch-Graetz, attache, who arrived late last season. Mr. C. Happy, [illegible] Co., Mo., writes: "I can safely recommend Peruna as a remedy that will cure all catarrhal troubles.

Pe-ru-na for Colds.

Mr. L. Clifford Figg, Jr., 2929 East Marshall St., Richmond, Va., writes that when he gets a cold he takes Peruna, and it soon drives it out of his system. For several years he was not entirely well, but Peruna completely cured him.

People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna tablets.

A Borneo Parasite.

A famous rarity in the vegetable world of Borneo is the rafflesia, the buah pakman of Malaya. The plant is one of the most degraded of parasites and so completely does it submerge itself in the tissues of its host that the only part which ever shows itself to the external world is the enormous flower. The diameter of the flower measures about two feet, the odor is repulsive, and there is not one feature of beauty to recommend it to man. It appears, however, to hold an important place in the pharmacopoeia of the natives, who perhaps imagine that the plant to which nature has given so uninviting an exterior must possess some hidden virtue in the way of compensation. Various species of rafflesia are known in Borneo, and oddly enough their hosts are invariably species of vine (cissus).

One Way to Appear Young.

A wise young woman gives as her reason for having learned the vertical writing: "This form of writing has been used for but a few years in some schools. When I have occasion to write to anybody they are very apt to conclude from my handwriting that I have been out of school but a few years, and accordingly I will be considered a real young woman.

"This does not count for so much at present, for I am only twenty-three years, but it may count a great deal in getting me a start in the friendship of a man later. I will not of course lie about my age, but I will get a more favorable start."

Light From Flash of Powder.

PLAYING POLITICS.

Two legislative bodies are a necessary safeguard against hasty action, but knowledge that the action of one house must be reviewed by another often leads to gross carelessness. The lower branch of the Minnesota legislature did an ill-considered thing when it passed the Nolan bill, making the state public examiner elective, and no doubt many voted for it, who would not be willing to take responsibility for such a measure if it becomes a law, says the Minneapolis Journal. They did so in the firm belief that the senate would kill the bill. Probably it will do so, but the house has gone on record as favoring a backward step in public supervision of banks and public officials. To make this department the football of politics is a most dangerous thing. It is a public office, and may be more or less tinged with politics as now, but the present three year term is designed to make the examiner independent to a great degree. The fact that the department is somewhat tainted with politics can be no excuse for immersing it wholly in the muck.

In this and in one other respect the house has betrayed a disposition to play politics in a small way, which more careful deliberation would no doubt reform. The cavalier reception given to Governor Johnson's special message cannot give the legislature any luster, or dim the merits of the proposed agreement between capital and labor on the question of compensation for injuries. If the house can frame an act that will satisfy both sides and effectuate justice, it will perform a great work, but the members who have taken this sudden leap have little appreciation of the problem and its complex character. It does not seem possible that an employers' liability act can be made acceptable to both sides without constant co-operation, as proposed in the memorial. Without such co-operation, the legislators may find themselves between two fires and getting nothing but knocks, instead of the partisan glory for which they hope.

OF COURSE the average congressman doesn't care to be shadowed nor overshadowed.

JUST because President Taft will get $100,000 a year, he isn't likely to be twice as strenuous as Teddy.

THE republican legislature killed the county option bill, and refused to allow a post mortem of the remains.

DAN O'NIELL has had hard political luck ever since he ceased to be a democrat. He is now engaged in the "fourth battle," and still the stars spell defeat. Poor Dan!

SENATORS Hopkins and Stephenson still lack a few votes in their respective legislatures. There would be no tears shed by the good citizens of the nation if either or both ultimately failed of re-election.

"If smallpox or yellow fever was causing a thousand deaths a year you'd be holding special sessions of the [illegible] to devise means to be rid [illegible]. And yet I tell [illegible] tuberculosis is no longer [illegible] unquestion- [illegible] that must [illegible]

CONGRESS is tied up over the proposition of furnishing an auto for President Taft. The president-elect's timidity as a horseman renders the matter of a proper locomotive device for him a thing that congress should not go about lightly. But why not make our president walk, like plain, every day people?

THE republican steering committee seems tired already of the self-imposed task of "going after" Governor Johnson. The steerers have found that the governor is pretty strong with the people, and that the easiest way of killing off the republican party is to continue the peanut policy advocated by the cheap partisans.

MINNESOTA lost one of its empire-builders in the death of Thomas Lowry. As president of the Soo railroad and the street railway company of St. Paul and Minneapolis he commanded a high position in the business and financial affairs of the state. He was an able and enthusiastic man, and has contributed as much as any other man to the growth and development of Minnesota.

THE state cannot collect interest on delinquent personal property taxes, according to a decision handed down by the supreme court of Minnesota, last Friday. The syllabus in the case which was a suit brought against the New England Furniture Co., Minneapolis, is as follows: "In the absence of statute so providing, delinquent personal property taxes do not bear interest, either from the date of delinquency or from the date of an order for judgment made in proceedings to enforce payment thereof."

SOMEBODY in a Minnesota town wrote a letter to a Minneapolis paper objecting to a local clergyman because he "yelled" so much. After considering the matter the Minneapolis paper reached the conclusion that if the minister "yelled" in proportion to his salary he "wouldn't make as much noise as a mouse in a bag of feathers." The minister receives $350 a year and his parsonage. From this distance it doesn't seem as though a man on that salary ought to make very much of a racket, but perhaps he is elated because he has six or eight children and a nice dog.

THE ingenuity of man has well nigh conquered the earth, the sea and the air, says the Fairmont Sentinal. The 1,600 passengers on the ill fated steamship Republic were recently saved from a watery grave by wireless telegraphy. The unseen and mysterious force which men have harnessed but can not explain, quickly pierced the fog, the darkness and the gloom of seventy miles of space across the restless sea and told the startling news of the collision and that the Republic was rapidly sinking. Assistance was hurried to the scene of the disaster with the greatest speed and the passengers were all saved.

THE Saturday Evening Post has this to say in an extended article upon U. S. Senators, of Minnesota's senior member in the upper house:

Very few of our statesmen have pushed the clouds away so often and so successfully as Knute Nelson. If you think he does not know the exact value of being a Scandinavian in Minnesota, please forget it, for he does. Also, if you think he is not a politician from the ends of his stubby toes to the top of his square head, please forget that, for he is. Moreover, do not entertain any doubts about his ability, his integrity, his resourcefulness, his rank as a senator and his strength at home.

JUDSON HARMON, who was last week inaugurated governor of Ohio, in his inaugural address said: "We must make the state government more broadly useful. Why stand by and let the general government assume to regulate state corporations because they engage in interstate commerce? Citizens engage in that commerce, too, and congress has the same right concerning their personal affairs as with those of state corporations, no more and no less. If congress gets general jurisdiction over us, if we engage in commerce outside the state, we may as well turn over the capitol to a federal commission and go home."

AN exchange truly says: "In these days when so many people go wrong it might be well enough to remember how many there are who go right. The newspapers blazon all the bad breaks of humanity but they do not pretend to keep track of all who behave themselves and are faithful to every trust. The story of scandal is seldom true to average life else it would not be a story. The scandals we read in newspapers are not the usual thing else they would not be scandal and would not be published. Individual integrity is everywhere. The great majority of men and women want to do right, want to live right, want to be square and honest and honorable. The exception to the rule makes the story."

THE state fair management seems to have concluded the present the psychological moment to throw a sop to the country editors, and notice has been given that this year the space it will use in the country papers will be doubled, says the Northfield News. Possibly the approaching investigation may have something to do with its change of heart, or the need of support for the $300,000 appropriation it asks for may account for its promise to be decent. That, however, is scarcely likely to change the general view that what is needed now isn't so much a few inches more space in country newspapers, but such a reconstruction of state fair management that it will no longer be conducted in the interest of the close corporation which has captured it.

TAFT'S CABINET.

A Washington correspondent gives the following guess as to President-elect Taft's selection of cabinet members:

Secretary of State—Philander G. Knox, of Pennsylvania.
Secretary of Navy—George Von L. Meyer, of Massachusetts.
Postmaster-General—Frank H. Hitchcock, of Massachusetts.
Secretary of Treasury—Myron T. Herrick, of Ohio.
Secretary of Interior—Richard A. Ballinger, of Washington.
Attorney-General—George W. Wickersham, of New York.
Secretary of Commerce and Labor—Charles P. Nagel, of Missouri.
Secretary of Agriculture—Frank A. Lowden, of Illinois.
Secretary of War—John J. McCook, of New York.

Scott's Emulsion

First—Because, if any member of the family has a hard cold, it will cure it.

Second—Because, if the children are delicate and sickly, it will make them strong and well.

Third—Because, if the father or mother is losing flesh and becoming thin and emaciated, it will build them up and give them flesh and strength.

Fourth—Because it is the standard remedy in all throat and lung affections.

No household should be without it.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Princeton Union: Some men are so crooked that the only thing they handle straight is whiskey.

The members of the Minnesota legislature should bear in mind that the people of the state will size up the winter's work by the importance of the bills passed and not by the number introduced.

Exchange: "America will be lonesome when President Roosevelt is gone," says a Clevelander. There was a man who carved upon the tomb of his contentious wife: "I'm lonely now—but powerful peaceful."

PROCEEDINGS

Commissioners' Proceedings of Red Lake County, Minn.

Red Lake Falls, Minnesota,
February 5th, 1909.

On the call of the County Auditor pursuant to the provisions of chapter 230, of the laws of 1905 and acts amendatory thereof, the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, met in special session at the office of the County Auditor at one o'clock P. M. for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition of A. C. Mayfield and others for the establishment and construction of County Ditch No. 32 in said County and the engineer's and viewers' report thereon.

Commissioners present: Lindquist, Aubol, Shaw, Demann and Pigeon.

Commissioners absent: None.

The said petition was read and the arguments of all persons interested were heard.

Motion made by Shaw seconded by Demann that this Board go into executive session to consider this matter. Motion carried.

Motion made by Demann seconded by Shaw that the main ditch from station 211 to station 265 inclusive (same being the west mile of main ditch) be abondoned; that branch No. 2 of said ditch be corrected to extend from the south west corner of section 21 Township 153 Range 41, north on the section line between section 20 and 21 Township 153 Range 41 to the north west corner of lot 9 section 21 thence east to the Red Lake River; and that the County Auditor notify the surveyor and the viewers of said ditch No. 32 that the matter be resubmitted to them for correction as by law required. Motion carried.

Motion made by Aubol, seconded by Pigeon the Board adjourned sine die.

C. A. LINDQUIST,
Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners,

John B. O'Brien,
County Auditor and ex-officio clerk of Board. (Seal)

Pointed Paragraphs.

Call a spade a spade, and you may get it in the neck.

Some men have no excuse for being sober when the lid is off.

Why doesn't some enterprising attorney write a book of unwritten laws?

Certain men jump at conclusions, but others speak out between the acts.

Be good and you will be happy—as happy as you can be under the circumstances.

Any woman can pass an old admirer without looking back—if she is blind.

A woman wouldn't mind being poor so much if all her acquaintances were just a little poorer.

It makes a women awfully tired to see a man make a fool of himself over any other woman.

If a woman had any other excuse than "because" for falling in love with a man she probably wouldn't do it.

There is no earthly hope for a young man who sits around and waits for an engraved invitation to kiss a pretty girl.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Anyhow, a stage hero is about as real as the other kind.

The milk of human kindness seems to yield a heap of buttermilk.

A girl would know how to manage men if there weren't any in existence.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage executed by M. O. Sortedahl and Hilda Sortedahl, his wife, mortgagors, to Dr. C. Hveem, mortgagee, dated July 23rd, 1905, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Red Lake County, Minnesota, on August 1st, 1905, at 3:30 o'clock P. M., in Book 13 of Mortgages, on page 107 thereof; that on April 28th, 1908, said Dr. C. Hveem died in Goodhue County, Minnesota, testate leaving a last will and testament wherein and whereby B. J. Borlaug and P. L. Berg were named as executors thereof, and on June 15th, 1908, they were duly appointed as such by the Probate Court of said Goodhue County, thereafter qualified and entered upon their duties as such, and ever since have been and still are the duly appointed, qualified and acting executors of the last will and testament of said Dr. C. Hveem, deceased; that the amount claimed to be due, and hereby declared to be due, on said mortgage, at this date, is eleven hundred fifty-four dollars and ninety-six cents ($1, 154.96), that the premises described in and covered by said moatgage are, the north half of the southeast quarter (N½ of SE¼) of section eight (8) and the north half of the southwest quarter (N½ of SW¼) of section nine (9) in township one hundred fifty-one (151) north of range forty-two (42) west of the Fifth Principal Meridian in Minnesota, excepting that part thereof heretofore sold to the Minnesota Loan and Trust Company, a corporation, situated in said Red Lake County, Minnesota; that by the virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided said mortgage will be forclosed by a sale of said premises, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, Minnesota; at the front door of the Court house in the City of Red Lake Falls in said county and state, on March 3rd, 1909, at 2 o'clock P. M., to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, and taxes if any on said premises, together with the costs of such sale and twenty-five dollars attorneys' fees stipulated in said mortgage.

Dated January 11th, 1909.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.
Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

S.S.S. FOR BAD BLOOD

The most important part of the human system is the blood. Every muscle, nerve, tissue, bone and sinew is dependent on this vital fluid for nourishment and strength necessary to maintain them in health and enable each to perform the different duties nature requires. Even the heart, the very "engine" of life, receives its vigor and motive power from the blood. Since so much is dependent on this vital fluid it can very readily be seen how necessary it is to have it pure and uncontaminated if we would enjoy the blessing of good health. Bad blood is responsible for most of the ailments of mankind; when from any cause it becomes infected with impurities, humors or poisons, disease in some form is sure to follow. Muddy, sallow complexions, eruptions, pimples, etc., show that the blood is infected with unhealthy humors which have changed it from a pure, fresh stream to a sour, acrid fluid, which forces out its impurities through the pores and glands of the skin. A very common evidence of bad blood is sores or ulcers, which break out on the flesh, often from a very insignificant bruise or even scatch or abrasion. If the blood was pure and healthy the place would heal at once, but being loaded with impurities, which are discharged into the wound, irritation and inflammation are set up and the sore continues. Bad blood is also responsible for Anaemia, Boils, Malaria, etc.; the weak, polluted circulation cannot furnish the nourishment and strength required to sustain the body, and a general run-down condition of health results. S. S. S. is nature's blood purifier and tonic; made entirely of healing, cleansing roots and herbs. It goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of impurity, humor or poison that may be there, restores lost vitality, and steadily tones up the entire system. It adds to the blood the healthful properties it is in need of, and in every way assists in the cure of disease. S. S. S. neutralizes any excess of acid in the blood, making it fresh and pure, and permanently cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, and all other skin diseases and eruptions. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Malaria, and all other diseases or disorders arising from bad blood. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired free to all who write.

Your S. S. S., in my opinion, is as good a medicine as can be had; it simply cannot be improved upon as a remedy to purify and enrich the blood and to invigorate and tone up the system. This spring my blood was bad and I was run down in health, and having seen your medicine highly advertised I commenced its use. Today my blood is in fine condition and my general health is of the best. Am filling position as fireman for a large concern here, and if I was not in good physical condition it would be impossible for me to fill the place. Your S. S. S. has been of great service to me and I do not hesitate to give it the credit it deserves.

PLAYING POLITICS.

Two legislative bodies are a necessary safeguard against hasty action, but knowledge that the action of one house must be reviewed by another often leads to gross carelessness. The lower branch of the Minnesota legislature did an ill considered thing when it passed the Nolan bill, making the state public examiner elective, and no doubt many voted for it, who would not be willing to take responsibility for such a measure if it becomes a law, says the Minneapolis Journal. They did so in the firm belief that the senate would kill the bill. Probably it will do so, but the house has gone on record as favoring a backward step in public supervision of banks and public officials. To make this department the football of politics is a most dangerous thing. It is a public office, and may be more or less tinged with politics as now, but the present three year term is designed to make the examiner independent to a great degree. The fact that the department is somewhat tainted with politics can be no excuse for immersing it wholly in the muck.

In this and in one other respect the house has betrayed a disposition to play politics in a small way, which more careful deliberation would no doubt reform. The cavalier reception given to Governor Johnson's special message cannot give the legislature any luster, or dim the merits of the proposed agreement between capital and labor on the question of compensation for injuries. If the house can frame an act that will satisfy both sides and effectuate justice, it will perform a great work, but the members who have taken this sudden leap have little appreciation of the problem and its complex character. It does not seem possible that an employers' liability act can be made acceptable to both sides without constant co-operation, as proposed in the memorial. Without such co-operation, the legislators may find themselves between two fires and getting nothing but knocks, instead of the partisan glory for which they hope.

JUST because President Taft will get $100,000 a year, he isn't likely to be twice as strenuous as Teddy.

THE republican legislature killed the county option bill, and refused to allow a post mortem of the remains.

DAN O'NIELL has had hard political luck ever since he ceased to be a democrat. He is now engaged in the "fourth battle," and still the stars spell defeat. Poor Dan!

SENATORS Hopkins and Stephenson still lack a few votes in their respective legislatures. There would be no tears shed by the good citizens of the nation if either or both ultimately failed of re-election.

"IF smallpox or yellow fever was causing a thousand deaths a year you'd be holding special sessions of the legislature to devise means to be rid of the scourge. And yet I tell you that tuberculosis is no longer a burden to be borne unquestioningly, no longer a cross that must be unprotestingly borne. It is an epidemic that must be met and conquered." This strong statement of the case was made by Bishop Codman of the Episcopal diocese of Maine on an appropriation for $100,000 for the next two years for the Hebron sanitarium.

CONGRESS is tied up over the proposition of furnishing an auto for President Taft. The president-elect's timidity as a horseman renders the matter of a proper locomotive device for him a thing that congress should not go about lightly. But why not make our president walk, like plain, every day people?

THE republican steering committee seems tired already of the self-imposed task of "going after" Governor Johnson. The steerers have found that the governor is pretty strong with the people, and that the easiest way of killing off the republican party is to continue the peanut policy advocated by the cheap partisans.

MINNESOTA lost one of its empire-builders in the death of Thomas Lowry. As president of the Soo railroad and the street railway company of St. Paul and Minneapolis he commanded a high position in the business and financial affairs of the state. He was an able and enthusiastic man, and has contributed as much as any other man to the growth and development of Minnesota.

THE state cannot collect interest on delinquent personal property taxes, according to a decision handed down by the supreme court of Minnesota, last Friday. The syllabus in the case which was a suit brought against the New England Furniture Co., Minneapolis, is as follows: "In the absence of statute so providing, delinquent personal property taxes do not bear interest, either from the date of delinquency or from the date of an order for judgment made in proceedings to enforce payment thereof."

SOMEBODY in a Minnesota town wrote a letter to a Minneapolis paper objecting to a local clergyman because he "yelled" so much. After considering the matter the Minneapolis paper reached the conclusion that if the minister "yelled" in proportion to his salary he "wouldn't make as much noise as a mouse in a bag of feathers." The minister receives $350 a year and his parsonage. From this distance it doesn't seem as though a man on that salary ought to make very much of a racket, but perhaps he is elated because he has six or eight children and a nice dog.

THE ingenuity of man has well nigh conquered the earth, the sea and the air, says the Fairmont Sentinal. The 1,600 passengers on the ill fated steamship Republic were recently saved from a watery grave by wireless telegraphy. The unseen and mysterious force which men have harnessed but can not explain, quickly pierced the fog, the darkness and the gloom of seventy miles of space across the restless sea and told the startling news of the collision and that the Republic was rapidly sinking. Assistance was hurried to the scene of the disaster with the greatest speed and the passengers were all saved.

THE Saturday Evening Post has this to say in an extended article upon U. S. Senators, of Minnesota's senior member in the upper house:

Very few of our statesmen have pushed the clouds away so often and so successfully as Knute Nelson. If you think he does not know the exact value of being a Scandinavian in Minnesota, please forget it, for he does. Also, if you think he is not a politician from the ends of his stubby toes to the top of his square head, please forget that, for he is. Moreover, do not entertain any doubts about his ability, his integrity, his resourcefulness, his rank as a senator and his strength at home.

JUDSON HARMON, who was last week inaugurated governor of Ohio, in his inaugural address said: "We must make the state government more broadly useful. Why stand by and let the general government assume to regulate state corporations because they engage in interstate commerce? Citizens engage in that commerce, too, and congress has the same right concerning their personal affairs as with those of state corporations, no more and no less. If congress gets general jurisdiction over us, if we engage in commerce outside the state, we may as well turn over the capitol to a federal commission and go home."

AN exchange truly says: "In these days when so many people go wrong it might be well enough to remember how many there are who go right. The newspapers blazon all the bad breaks of humanity but they do not pretend to keep track of all who behave themselves and are faithful to every trust. The story of scandal is seldom true to average life else it would not be a story. The scandals we read in newspapers are not the usual thing else they would not be scandal and would not be published. Individual integrity is everywhere. The great majority of men and women want to do right, want to live right, want to be square and honest and honorable. The exception to the rule makes the story."

THE state fair management seems to have concluded the present the psychological moment to throw a sop to the country editors, and notice has been given that this year the space it will use in the country papers will be doubled, says the Northfield News. Possibly the approaching investigation may have something to do with its change of heart, or the need of support for the $300,000 appropriation it asks for may account for its promise to be decent. That, however, is scarcely likely to change the general view that what is needed now isn't so much a few inches more space in country newspapers, but such a reconstruction of state fair management that it will no longer be conducted in the interest of the close corporation which has captured it.

TAFT'S CABINET.

A Washington correspondent gives the following guess as to President-elect Taft's selection of cabinet members:

Secretary of State—Philander G. Knox, of Pennsylvania.

Secretary of Navy—George Von L. Meyer, of Massachusetts.

Postmaster-General—Frank H. Hitchcock, of Massachusetts.

Secretary of Treasury—Myron T. Herrick, of Ohio.

Secretary of Interior—Richard A. Ballinger, of Washington.

Attorney-General—George W. Wickersham, of New York.

Secretary of Commerce and Labor—Charles P. Nagel, of Missouri.

Secretary of Agriculture—Frank A. Lowden, of Illinois.

Secretary of War—John J. McCook, of New York.

Scott's Emulsion

First—Because, if any member of the family has a hard cold, it will cure it.

Second—Because, if the children are delicate and sickly, it will make them strong and well.

Third—Because, if the father or mother is losing flesh and becoming thin and emaciated, it will build them up and give them flesh and strength.

Fourth—Because it is the standard remedy in all throat and lung affections.

No household should be without it.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Princeton Union: Some men are so crooked that the only thing they handle straight is whiskey.

The members of the Minnesota legislature should bear in mind that the people of the state will size up the winter's work by the importance of the bills passed and not by the number introduced.

PROCEEDINGS

Commissioners' Proceedings of Red Lake County, Minn.

Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, February 5th, 1909.

On the call of the County Auditor pursuant to the provisions of chapter 230, of the laws of 1905 and acts amendatory thereof, the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, met in special session at the office of the County Auditor at one o'clock P. M. for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition of A. C. Mayfield and others for the establishment and construction of County Ditch No 32 in said County and the engineer's and viewers' report thereon.

Commissioners present: Lindquist, Aubol, Shaw, Demann and Pigeon.

Commissioners absent: None.

The said petition was read and the arguments of all persons interested were heard.

Motion made by Shaw seconded by Demann that this Board go into executive session to consider this matter. Motion carried.

Motion made by Demann seconded by Shaw that the main ditch from station 211 to station 265 inclusive (same being the west mile of main ditch) be abondoned; that branch No. 2 of said ditch be corrected to extend from the south west corner of section 21 Township 153 Range 41, north on the section line between section 20 and 21 Township 153 Range 41 to the north west corner of lot 9 section 21 thence east to the Red Lake River; and that the County Auditor notify the surveyor and the viewers of said ditch No. 32 that the matter be resubmitted to them for correction as by law required. Motion carried.

Motion made by Aubol, seconded by Pigeon the Board adjourned sine die.

C. A. LINDQUIST,
Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners.

John B. O'Brien,
County Auditor and ex-officio clerk of Board. (Seal)

Pointed Paragraphs.

Call a spade a spade, and you may get it in the neck.

Some men have no excuse for being sober when the lid is off.

Why doesn't some enterprising attorney write a book of unwritten laws?

Certain men jump at conclusions, but others speak out between the acts.

Be good and you will be happy—as happy as you can be under the circumstances.

Any woman can pass an old admirer without looking back—if she is blind.

A woman wouldn't mind being poor so much if all her acquaintances were just a little poorer.

It makes a women awfully tired to see a man make a fool of himself over any other woman.

If a woman had any other excuse than "because" for falling in love with a man she probably wouldn't do it.

There is no earthly hope for a young man who sits around and waits for an engraved invitation to kiss a pretty girl.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments. The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

"ALL DEALERS"

S.S.S. FOR BAD BLOOD

The most important part of the human system is the blood. Every muscle, nerve, tissue, bone and sinew is dependent on this vital fluid for nourishment and strength necessary to maintain them in health and enable each to perform the different duties nature requires. Even the heart, the very "engine" of life, receives its vigor and motive power from the blood. Since so much is dependent on this vital fluid it can very readily be seen how necessary it is to have it pure and uncontaminated if we would enjoy the blessing of good health. Bad blood is responsible for most of the ailments of mankind; when from any cause it becomes infected with impurities, humors or poisons, disease in some form is sure to follow. Muddy, sallow complexions, eruptions, pimples, etc., show that the blood is infected with unhealthy humors which have changed it from a pure, fresh stream to a sour, acrid fluid, which forces out its impurities through the pores and glands of the skin. A very common evidence of bad blood is sores or ulcers, which break out on the flesh, often from a very insignificant bruise or even scatch or abrasion. If the blood was pure and healthy the place would heal at once, but being loaded with impurities, which are discharged into the wound, irritation and inflammation are set up and the sore continues. Bad blood is also responsible for Anaemia, Boils, Malaria, etc.; the weak, polluted circulation cannot furnish the nourishment and strength required to sustain the body, and a general run-down condition of health results. S. S. S. is nature's blood purifier and tonic; made entirely of healing, cleansing roots and herbs. It goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of impurity, humor or poison that may be there restores lost vitality, and steadily tones up the entire system. It adds to the blood the healthful properties it is in need of, and in every way assists in the cure of disease. S. S. S. neutralizes any excess of acid in the blood, making it fresh and pure, and permanently cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, and all other skin diseases and eruptions. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Malaria, and all other diseases or disorders arising from bad blood. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired free to all who write.

Your S. S. S., in my opinion, is as good a medicine as can be had; it simply cannot be improved upon as a remedy to purify and enrich the blood and to invigorate and tone up the system. This spring my blood was bad and I was run down in health, and having seen your medicine highly advertised I commenced its use. Today my blood is in fine condition and my general health is of the best. Am filling position as fireman for a large concern here, and if I was not in good physical condition it would be impossible for me to fill the place. Your S. S. S. has been of great service to me and I do not hesitate to give it the credit it deserves.

Not Coughing Today?

Yet you may cough tomorrow! Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Then when the hard cold or cough first appears you have a doctor's medicine at hand. Your doctor's approval of its use will certainly set all doubt at rest. Do as he says. He knows. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle, and take in spoonful doses after meals and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsparilla, three ounces. A local druggist is the authority that these simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from our home druggist.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive Kidneys, overcoming Backache, Bladder weakness and Urinary trouble of all kinds, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons.

INDIGESTION ENDS.

Misery From Your Disordered Stomach Goes in Five Minutes.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes belching, dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, nausea. Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), biliousness, heartburn, water brash, pain in stomach and intestines or other symptons.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It diagests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50 cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance. 19-22

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is, in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation."

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

Don't Wait for the Fatal Stages of Kidney Illness. Profit by Red Lake Falls People's Experiences.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are smyptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of the limbs and ankles, or any part of the body don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor, will return.

Mrs. Gus Johnson, of 218 Ash St., Crookston, Minn., says: "Although I am averse to having my name published in the newspapers I cannot help but endorse Doan's Kidney Pills as a wonderful remedy for kidney trouble. Before I procured Doan's Kidney Pills my condition was serious. It is needless to go into details about my case, but I will state that Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of the trouble and brought me a complete cure after doctors had failed to help me. I am willing to show my appreciation by allowing this fact to be published for the benefit of other sufferers from kidney trouble."

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle, and take in spoonful doses after meals and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsparilla, three ounces. A local druggist is the authority that these simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from our home druggist.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive Kidneys, overcoming Backache, Bladder weakness and Urinary trouble of all kinds, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons.

INDIGESTION ENDS.

Misery From Your Disordered Stomach Goes in Five Minutes.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes belching, dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, nausea. Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), biliousness, heartburn, water brash, pain in stomach and intestines or other symptons.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It diagests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50 cent case of Pape's Diapepsia from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance. 19-22

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is, in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation."

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

In all probability we will have in full operation within the next three months a corrugated-steel culvert factory. The raw material will be shipped here from steel plants in Ohio and other eastern points and here transformed into the sizes and forms wanted.

The work of putting up the new wires for the local telephone exchange will be completed this week and in a few days the service will be over the new line. All of the old wire will be taken down and it will take some time to complete this job. When the service is over the new system, so the manager says, it will be far better than at present, and there will be no "crossed wires."

W. F. Schumacher was in the city on Tuesday and reports that he has traded his farm in the town of Bray for property near Lanesboro, Iowa. Mr. Schumacher and family will leave for their future home in a couple of weeks. We regret to see as good and prosperous a man as Mr. Schumacher leave our county but he assures us that his successor is a still better man.

TIME TO ACT.

Don't Wait for the Fatal Stages of Kidney Illness. Profit by Red Lake Falls People's Experiences.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are smyptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of the limbs and ankles, or any part of the body don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor, will return.

Mrs. Gus Johnson, of 218 Ash St., Crookston, Minn., says: "Although I am averse to having my name published in the newspapers I cannot help but endorse Doan's Kidney Pills as a wonderful remedy for kidney trouble. Before I procured Doan's Kidney Pills my condition was serious. It is needless to go into details about my case, but I will state that Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of the trouble and brought me a complete cure after doctors had failed to help me. I am willing to show my appreciation by allowing this fact to be published for the benefit of other sufferers from kidney trouble."

The Soo railroad company is having abuttments built under their bridge across the Clearwater river here to protect the piling from the ice and logs that will be coming down in the spring. The work is being done in a most substantial manner and will be quite an improvement.

August Lillo was a visitor in town on Tuesday from Deer Park. While on his way to town he saw a big wolf close by the road out in Equality and when he arrived at J. W. Lynch's place he stopped, borrowed a rifle and went back. On his return he found the wolf nearly in the same place and he brought the carcass to town with him as a result of one good shot. When returning home in the evening he saw another wolf in the same vicinity but had no chance to hunt. The wolves seem to be getting both numerous and bold in this vicinity this year.

EXTRAORDINARY INCREASE IN FARM LANDS.

"SOUTHERN ALBERTA IS A MIGHTY GOOD COUNTRY."

No stronger or better evidence can be given of the merits of a country than that which comes from the testimony of the settler who has determined to succeed. This is why we reproduce the following letter, which speaks for itself. These people were induced to go to Western Canada through the solicitation of a Canadian Government agent, who secured for them the low railway rates.

"Carmangay, Alta., Canada, 12-15-'08.

"Mr. C. J. Broughton, Canadian Government Agency, 135 Adams Street, Chicago: We had audacity enough to tackle the proposition of buying four sections of land in Southern Alberta, thirty miles east of Clairsholm and heading up on the Little Bow, and our two boys each got a homestead adjoining. We fenced three sections and the two homesteads, and built a house, barn, corrals and granary, and have since enlarged some of these buildings. We have broken 200 acres of land, which has been sowed to oats and wheat. During the severe winter of two years ago the winter wheat killed out somewhat, and our crop yielded only ten bushels to the acre, but the spring wheat went 24 bushels to the acre. In this country we must be prepared for storms and cold, at times 20 to 30 below zero, yet on the whole the winters are mild; and while there are exceptional crops, it is fair to say that the average farmer can depend on having a yield in average years of from 20 to 25 bushels to the acre for spring wheat; and winter wheat in our immediate neighborhood yields from 25 to 30 bushels to the acre on the average.

We have now quite a bunch of horses, over 50 in all, about 350 sheep, after having sold 140 for mutton this fall. We have 20 head of pure bred registered Shropshire, which are worth $20 each. The average price received for mutton sheep was $5.00 and a little over. Pork brings 5 and 6 cents a pound. We have about 30 head of cattle on our ranch now, and last winter they picked their entire living from our pasture, running to the straw stacks for shelter at night.

"The increase of land values has been extraordinary. Our land four years ago cost us a little less than $6.00 an acre. We have sold one section for $15.00, but we would not sell any more for less than $25.00 per acre, as we expect the railroad within four miles of our ranch within the next 18 months. Southern Alberta of Western Canada is a mighty good country for any man or woman who loves outdoor life, and who wants to get good returns for their labor and investment.

"We have been pleased with our treatment from the Canadian Government, and can heartily commend Southern Alberta as a splendid country in which to locate.

"Yours very truly,
(Signed)

A Star Turn.

The boy stood on the poop of a schooner beside the captain on a stormy night. Wishing to consult his chart, the captain said to the boy:

"Here, take the wheel. I'll be back in a few minutes. Steer by that star, and you will be all right."

The boy began to steer the vessel, and soon got her out of her course. The star appeared at the stern instead of ahead, and, with a feeling of pride, he shouted down to the captain:

"Come up and find me another star. I've passed that one!"

The Cow That Pays Her Way

By PROF. G. W. RANDLETT, N. D. A. C.

Our first article gave an idea of the correct form of the dairy cow. The purpose of this lesson will be to point out the method of determining which cows are profitable and which are not.

There is perhaps no class of farm animals in which the different members vary so much in individual merit. Indeed the variation is so great that many lack the property of merit entirely, and are kept at an actual loss, while others may yield the owner a much larger profit than he knows. The last U. S. census report gives the average yield of all the dairy cows of this country as $27.50 each, an amount scarcely sufficient to pay for their feed. There are undoubtedly many cows on North Dakota farms whose annual butter yield does not exceed 140 pounds. Suppose a cow produces an average of sixteen pounds (about eight quarts) of milk a day for eight months out of the year. There are many that do no better. In the 240 days she will yield 3,840 pounds of milk. Now if the milk contains 3 per cent of butter fat there will be 115.2 pounds of fat. Since butter is composed of about 85 per cent of fat and 15 per cent of water, salt and other solids there can be made from this amount 135 pounds of butter. If butter brings an average price of 22 cents per pound the cow will yield a gross income of $29.70, just about the actual cost of her feed. The calf, the skim milk and the manure are usually considered sufficient to pay for labor, housing, interest and risk.

COLANTHA FOURTH'S JOHANNA, CHAMPION DAIRY COW.

It would be difficult to say without entering into exact computations whether the owner of such a cow realizes a gain of a few cents or sustains a loss. At best the animal is little more than a nonentity. She has no place in the world, and the sooner she and her kind are out of it the better. Another animal, however, might yield the same amount of milk or even less, and still be profitable. Suppose the milk of the second cow tested 5½ per cent instead of 3 per cent, then on the basis of the same amount of milk she would return $55.66 instead of $29.70, and, as it costs no more to feed her than the first cow, it is evident that the owner would realize a good gain, yet he might never know it. Should he receive an offer of $30 for the first cow and $35 for the second might make the serious mistake of accepting the latter offer or the much more serious mistake of refusing the first offer.

Primrose Tricksey 7236, whose picture was given in the first lesson, has a record of 7,277 pounds of milk for one year. This milk tested 5.66 per cent, giving 528.08 pounds of butter fat. On the basis that butter contains 85 per cent of fat, this would make 617.74 pounds of butter worth 22 cents per pound $135.90.

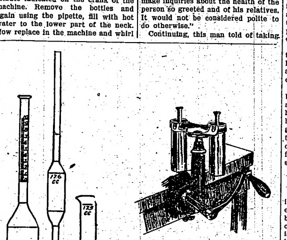
Colantha 4's, Johanna, a great Holstein-Friesian, owned by W. J. Gillett of Rosendale, Wis., is the undisputed champion butter cow of the world. Her best year's record is 998.26 pounds of butter fat, of 1,174.4 pounds of butter amounting, at 22 cents, to $258.37. Compare this with the $29.70 of the scrub cow. Mr. Gillett, however, is a specialist whose problem is to produce world beaters. This the rank and file of North Dakota farmers cannot do, but there is a problem for them, and that is to increase the average yield of the herd. This can be done only by securing and retaining the best individuals and sending all twenty-nine-dollar-a-year cows promptly to the butcher's block.

No farmer can afford to keep these "star boarders," as they have been so aptly called. They eat good feed and occupy good stable room that should be utilized by animals that have the ability to return profits. No cow should be allowed to hold a place in the dairy herd that will not produce say 220 pounds of butter fat each year. To do this she must give twenty pounds of 4 per cent milk a day for nine months, or 275 days each year. Two hundred and twenty pounds of fat, according to the methods of computation given, will make 256 pounds of butter worth $56.76. This will leave a net profit of about $25.

It will be noted that the amount of butter produced depends quite as much upon the quality of milk as upon the quantity. The latter is easily determined, but the former not so readily. Right here is where the rural school may help to solve the problem. There is but one practical way to determine quality in milk, and that is by the use of the Babcock milk tester. The apparatus necessary consists in a two or four-bottle tester, milk bottles to correspond, one pipette, one acid measure and a small quantity of sulphuric acid of commercial grade. Chemically pure acid is too strong, and will burn the fat while too weak acid will not give results. The entire cost of this outfit will not exceed $5 or $6, and if properly and intelligently used will result in greater benefit, both educationally and financially to the district than much high-priced dust covered apparatus often found in schools.

On the day that the milk tests are to be made, let different pupils bring milk from the cows which they desire to test. These samples must be taken from the entire milk of the cow at one milking after being thoroughly stirred. Stir again before filling the bottle for the tester.

Draw the milk up into the pipette till it is above the 17.6cc mark; quickly place the ball of the thumb over the pipette and allow the milk to run down to the mark. Place the lower end of the pipette in the mouth of the bottle and allow the milk to run out. Blow out the last drop. Now fill the acid measure to the line marked 17.5 cc and pour this into the bottle. Take the bottle in the hand and stir by describing a small circle on the table as you would with a pen. The contents will at first turn brown and finally black. Next place the bottle in the tester and whirl for five minutes, giving the number of revolutions per minute indicated on the crank of the machine. Remove the bottles and again using the pipette, fill with hot water to the lower part of the neck. Now replace in the machine and whirl for one minute. Again remove and add hot water till the contents comes well up into the graduated portion, say to the line marked 8. Now place in the machine for a final whirling of one minute. Remove and read. Reckon from the very lowest portion of fat to the very highest.



APPARENTLY USED IN TESTING MILK TO ASCERTAIN PER CENT OF CREAM.

The farmer's son may have milked the old brindle cow on many a cold winter morning and sultry summer evening, may have enjoyed more than once a cup of her milk at meal time or been delighted with a portion of its cream on a dish of home-grown strawberries, yet he has never known the real amount of such value till now. As he stands with the tester in his hand he has before him the very life secret of the animal. He has forced her to make a clean breast of the whole matter, and can now easily determine whether she shall retain her place in the pasture and farm yard or give way to another more competent.

THE LAZY CLUB.

Plan of English Workmen to Discourage the Habit of Being Tardy.

One of the best assets of a manufacturing plant is the interest of employes, and when this develops into friendly rivalry its value is many times increased. Frequently workmen will adopt methods spontaneously that are of great assistance to the firm.

In the engineering shops of a certain English firm the workmen a year or two ago originated what they called the Lazy club. It was entirely their own idea, which for obvious reasons has received neither recognition nor financial support from the management, but has been a most excellent means of reducing the number of late comers.

Whenever a workman is more than five minutes after time he finds the gate locked, and he is not allowed to enter until the half hour is up. This half hour is deducted from his wages, but in addition he has also to pay to the treasurer of the Lazy club 5 cents for coming late.

If he is late more than once or so during a week everybody is aware of the fact, and the second or third time he makes his appearance after starting time he is greeted with a terrific combination of noises produced on any available material by his fellow workmen.

At certain periods the accumulated funds of the Lazy club are divided, not among those who have produced them, it should be noted, but among the entire staff equally. Thus the late workman is made to pay the early comers for his laziness. The last distribution was just prior to a "beanfest," and funds accumulated during twelve months were distributed amounting to over seven shillings a head.

COLOMBIAN ETIQUETTE.

Demands That Persons Shake Hands and Ask Many Questions.

It was the third or fourth day out from Santa Marta, Colombia, and early in the morning, when one of the South American passengers came on deck. Another South American arose from his deck chair, extended his hand, and as the men shook hands inquired after the health of the newcomer, his wife and his children.

As they had parted company only about eight hours before in the smoking room, this seemed like unnecessary courtesy. The observer noticed that this happened in the case of all the Colombians on board, so he asked one man about it.

"It is a custom of the country," said he. "On the occasion of meeting a person for the first time each day it is etiquette to shake hands and to make inquiries about the health of the person so greeted and of his relatives. It would not be considered polite to do otherwise."

Continuing, this man told of taking a walk one day in Bogota with a merchant of the place. They were bent on business and were to cover a distance that might be made rather easily in ten minutes. Because of the necessary stops to make the customary inquiries and to shake hands with friends of the merchant the trip took nearly an hour.

KEEPING PROPERTIES OF JAM.

Difference in Sugar Used—Formeldehyde as a Normal Constituent.

Every housewife who makes jam knows that the keeping powers of the several batches made vary. Some samples will go mouldy in a short time, while others will keep in good condition almost indefinitely. The differences observed may be due to some jams being more concentrated than others, as of course it is only a concentrate solution of sugar which is antiseptic.

It seems certain also that cane sugar is a much more satisfactory preservative than glucose, and the argument of jam makers that glucose is necessary in order to keep the jam [illegible] long boiling, and nowadays jams, we are told, must be made as cheaply as possible.

It would be a somewhat curious fact if it proved that after all jam owed its keeping powers not entirely to sugar but in part to what may be regarded as an artificial preservative—namely, formaldehyde. It has been agreed that formaldehyde is an objectionable preservative for foods on account of its toughening effect upon foods in general and upon protein in particular. And yet it would appear that formaldehyde is readily formed in small quantities by merely boiling solutions of cane sugar, the amount produced depending possibly on the [illegible] intentional or even normal constituent. Its presence indeed may be essential to the keeping powers of the jam. The subject deserves further investigation, since analysis may be put off their guard and the means of instituting proceedings for fraud where no fraud exists. Moreover, there is no evidence that the health of the jam-eating public suffers at all in spite of the small quantities of formaldehyde present in this favorite and nutritious article of diet.

Somebody in a Minnesota town wrote a letter to a Minneapolis paper objecting to a local clergyman because he "yelled" so much. After considering the matter the Minneapolis paper reached the conclusion that if the minister "yelled" in proportion to his salary he "wouldn't make as much noise as a mouse in a bag of feathers." The minister receives $350 a year and his parsonage. From this distance it doesn't seem as though a man on that salary ought to make [illegible]

WOMAN'S REALM

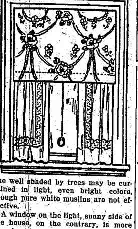
LIGHT FOR WINDOW

MEANS MUCH AS A MATTER OF COMFORT.

Draperies Easy to Make or Mar the Beauty of a Room—Dainty Arrangement Shown in the Sketch.

Window arrangements may make or mar the beauty of a room. They should, therefore, be planned with the utmost care. Not only should the shape, size and location of the windows be taken into consideration, but every detail of the room as well.

The light that comes in through the window is one of the important items. A window having a cold north light or one well shaded by trees may be curtained in light, even bright colors, though pure white muslins are not effective.



A window on the light, sunny side of the house, on the contrary, is more pleasing done in quieter tones, with the net or muslin sash draperies just off white.

The sun shining through a plain white curtain reflects a harsh, glaring light that is most trying to the eyes, besides being inartistic and unbeautiful. The most pleasing light in a room is one that is cheerful and sunny and yet subdued and restful. This very desirable quality of light is gained by the choice of color in the curtains.

In a sunny room a white curtain may be used with good effect, provided it is combined with a figured or flowered chintz or similar material, for this breaks up the all-white glare.

The materials for curtains vary in color and texture as in price. There are all grades, from the pretty flowered muslin for the dainty bedroom to the gorgeous and beautiful satin brocades for the drawing room.

Madras is a favorite material for all curtains, and is used to a great extent in summer cottages. Rajah and pongee silks are particularly good for the living and dining rooms, with sash draperies of net. Linen is also seen in these rooms, and some very unusual effects have been gained by using simple, inexpensive crash with stenciled or embroidered borders. Impossible as it may seem, these same borders have been worked out on cheesecloth. The effect is wonderfully individual.

The cretonnes are a bewildering display of gay flowers and lovely colors. There are many beautiful designs, some of them showing the quaint old colonial patterns, such as our grandmothers used.

Flowered muslin also makes very pretty curtains, especially for a bedroom or bathroom. A certain summer cottage, delightfully cool and picturesque, has tiny sash curtains on the kitchen window of pink poppy muslin, through which one catches a glimpse of a diminutive kitchen garden.

The color scheme is all important. The curtains must harmonize with the room, both in line and color, to be effective. One rule that is invariable in all rooms is that if there is a figured paper on the walls then the hangings should be plain, for if both are figured the effect is confusing.

A fancy curtain material, on the other hand, is best with plain walls, for if both are plain the result is flat and uninteresting.

A very dainty arrangement for a bedroom window, shown in the illustration, is a shade of flowered chintz and a sash curtain of plain white muslin, with an insertion of lace.

When traveling do not fail to put a cup in your bag. Many a person has suffered from using the drinking cup which is public property on the train. Folding paper cups may be had for a small sum. They can be thrown away at the journey's end. They have the strong point in their favor of not taking up much space.

USE FOR OLD TABLECLOTHS.

When Worn, They Are Made Into Covers for Card Tables.

One housekeeper has found a somewhat novel use for her old tablecloths that are too worn for use; she cuts them into covers for her card tables.

As the family is an inveterate lover of games of all sorts there are a number of the green-covered card tables in the house. These soon get so dusty as to soil light dresses. To prevent this they are covered each time before playing with squares made from the old tablecloths.

The cloth is cut into squares two or three inches larger than the table, are hemmed neatly all around and tapes are fastened at each corner to tie the cover around the legs of the table.

If one has no old tablecloth that can be converted to such a use, cheap and attractive covers can be made from heavy linen, with a narrow scallop embroidered around the edge and a monogram in one corner that rests on the table. If desired, the corners can be cut at right angles to make the cloth fit more easily and prevent it from slipping up.

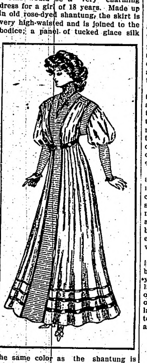
Fruit and the Complexion.

The appearance of the complexion is greatly influenced by the food we eat. As a general thing it is more beneficial to take fruit with the meal or just before it than it is after. Fruit is an essential part of the diet, but it is not a complete diet in itself. It aids various forms of secretion which prove most beneficial to the digestion. It has a nutritious bulk which prevents one from overloading the stomach with heavier and less easily digested foods. When fruit is eaten as a first course for breakfast one is not so likely to overeat when the pancakes with syrup and eggs appear. A healthy breakfast consists of fruit as a first course and crisp toast and a nutritious cereal. Oats lead the cereals in food value. Preparations made from this grain are really the best and cheapest in the end, although a lighter cereal, such as corn or wheat, is often more desirable in hot weather.

DRESS FOR A YOUNG GIRL.

Most Appropriate Made Up in Old Rose-Dyed Shantung.

This would be a very charming dress for a girl of 18 years. Made up in old rose-dyed shantung, the skirt is very high-waisted and is joined to the bodice; a panel of tucked glace silk the same color as the shantung is taken from the shoulders, and continued down to the hem of skirt; the arm-hole trimming and cuffs are also of tucked silk; velvet to match edges the tucked silk, forms a waistband, and trims the foot of skirt. The yoke is of piece lace.



Materials required: Nine yards shantung 34 inches wide, five yards glace silk, 3½ yards velvet.

LATEST THING IN RUGS.

Really Rag Carpets, Though They Are Not So Called.

Great-grandmother's rag carpets are traveling under an assumed name. As you all know, they are now Martha Washington puritan rugs, but they have taken on a softer, smoother texture since their revival.

They still are made on an old hand loom, but of new rags—not really rags, after all, but of new sateen carefully cut into even widths, and the thinnest among them of colored or white tape. The shades of material used in these rugs are varied according to the general effect desired, and what cannot be accomplished in the cotton material is gained by the careful selection of colors in the cotton chain. These lighter-weight rugs made of tape are so pliable as to be useful for table covers in studies, nurseries or even in a general sitting room where there are many children and things are designed [illegible] (those with a white chain are more serviceable, because they are more successfully laundered, which, in this case, is a polite way of describing the washing process, for in these particular rugs it may best be accomplished by laying them on a smooth surface and scrubbing them with a household scrub brush or else by putting them into a washing machine.

Substitute for Chest.

If you have an old trunk past usefulness for traveling, clean thoroughly and get tarred paper such as is used for roofing and cut pieces to fit sides and bottom. Cut also several extra pieces to fit bottom. Afterward tack your sides and bottom pieces with very small tacks, putting the extra pieces to one side. After your clothing has been thoroughly beaten and aired put in the pieces between each layer, leaving one sheet at the top. Now make a cover of some pretty cretonne by cutting a piece the size of the top [illegible]

AWFUL GRAVEL ATTACKS

Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills After Years of Suffering.

F. A. Rippy, Depot Ave., Gallatin, Tenn., says: "Fifteen years ago kidney disease attacked me. The pain in my back was so agonizing I finally had to give up work. Then came terrible attacks of gravel with acute pain and passages of blood. In all I passed 25 stones, some as large as a bean. Nine years of this ran me down to a state of continual weakness, and I thought I never would be better until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The improvement was rapid, and since using four boxes I am cured and have never had any return of the trouble."

Siberian Bread That Inebriates.

Since you don't live in Siberia you need not be afraid, says M. Narrion, a Russian, to get drunk through eating ordinary bread. In far Eastern Siberia, in that region which lies between the sea and the river called Msurri, the humidity of the climate as well as the soil is remarkable.

In certain districts the humidity is so intense that there grows upon ears of corn a kind of fungus matter made up of micro-fungi. As a result of this sporadic excrescence the bread made from the corn in question gives all the results of an overdose of alcohol. In very humid climates the phenomenon is likewise known, though to nothing like the extent of Eastern Siberia, where whole districts are affected by this strange kind of "alcoholized bread."

A Question.

Little Edna, who was taught to be strictly honest in the smallest details, on seeing a family of gypsy "movers," ragged and unkempt, housed in one canvas-covered wagon and drawn by the leanest horses, remarked:

"If I were as poor as they I'd borrow a gun, go out into the woods and shoot myself—but who'd bring the gun back?"

FINE RECIPE FOR COLDS

This simple mixture is to be used in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful four times a day. The bottle should be well shaken each time.

Any druggist can supply the ingredients and it can be mixed at home.

The Concentrated pine is a pine product refined for medical use. It comes only in half ounce bottles, each enclosed in a round case, which is airtight and retains all the original strength in the fluid, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated" in order to get the genuine article.

TO REFOREST MAINE

A plan for the reforestation of the State of Maine has been submitted to the governor by B. C. Jordon of Alfred. Mr. Jordon offers to give the state $1,000 on condition that once in eighteen years five prizes shall be awarded for the five best lots of young forest growth.

These lots are to consist of not less than ten acres, accurately surveyed and plotted, the majority of the trees to be not less than ten nor more than thirty feet high, and not less than ten nor more than thirty years old when the prizes are awarded. The varieties of trees to be grown are specified and cover a long list from white pine to elm.

Mr. Jordon believes that the incentive afforded by such prizes would do much to bring about better forestry conditions. Maine has many thousands of acres of waste land, now almost worthless, but naturally well adapted to timber growth, and which by a small expense for care and forest cultivation could be made easily worth in fifty years $100 an acre.

In this way the state, instead of being of the poorest in the Union might be made one of the richest. Fifty years is a large part of one person's life, but a very small part of the life of a state. Mr. Jordon himself set out from ten to fifteen thousand trees last summer, and states that he hopes to set out many thousands every year as long as he lives.

DIDN'T KNOW

Coffee Was the Cause.

Many daily habits, particularly of eating and drinking, are formed by following our elders.

In this way ill health is often fastened upon children. A Ga. lady says:

"I had been allowed to drink coffee ever since I could remember, but even as a child I had a weak stomach, which frequently refused to retain food.

"The taste of coffee was in my mouth all the time and was, as I found out later, the cause of the stomach rebelling against food.

"I now see that it was only from following the example of my elders that I formed and continued the miserable habit of drinking coffee. My digestion remained poor, nerves unstrung, frequent headache, and yet I did not suspect the true cause.

"Another trouble was a bad, muddy complexion for which I spent time and money for creams, massaging, etc., without any results.

"After I was married I was asked to try Postum, and would you believe it, I, an old coffee toper, took to Postum from the very first. We made it right—according to directions on the pkg., and it had a most delicate flavor, and I at once quit coffee, with the happiest results.

"I now have a perfectly clear, smooth skin, fine digestion and haven't had a headache in over two years."

"There's a Reason."

Eczema Made Hands and Feet Swell, Peel and Get Raw—Arms Affected, Too—Gave Up All Hope of Cure.

Quickly Cured by Cuticura.

"I suffered from eczema on my hands, arms and feet for about twelve years, my hands and feet would swell, sweat and itch, then would become callous and get very dry, then peel off and get raw. I tried most every kind of salve and ointment without success. I tried several doctors, but at last gave up thinking there was a cure for eczema. A friend of mine insisted on my trying the Cuticura Remedies, but I did not give them a trial until I got so bad that I had to do something. I secured a set and by the time they were used I could see a vast improvement and my hands and feet were healed up in no time. I have had no trouble since. Charles T. CURE

THE LITTLE TIN BOX

By JAMES FRANCIS DWYER

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub. Co.)

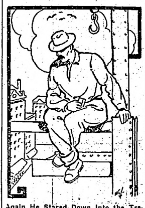
Morgan, foreman of the Hudson-Gerard Construction Company, swinging on a narrow plank 400 feet above the sidewalk, whistled a lively tune as he glanced around at the unclothed ribs of the giant sky-scraper he was throwing heavenwards. Far below, human ants looked up through the clear air at the gaunt skeleton, their white, upturned faces, round and featureless, reminding the foreman of full-blown flowers on bulky stalks.

The watchers attracted Morgan. Sitting down on the plank, with legs dangling in space, he stared into the stone-walled canyon up and down which the human current flowed unceasing. The peculiar, weird expectancy which seemed to chain the little groups watching the aerial workers interested him. He had never looked at the crowds before, but some absurd analytical kink had just manifested itself in his mind, and he gratified it. He tried to understand the fascination which held men motionless hour after hour until their aching necks rebelled at the torture. Unconsciously, a hate of the crowd welled up within the foreman. He felt that they were waiting for something to happen.

The foreman started to reason quietly to himself. "There's no fascination in seeing men work," he murmured, "so it's the fascination of seeing men in danger. Increase the danger, and you increase the spine-tickles that keep those loafers peeping upwards. Where does it end? I honestly believe that a percentage of those dough-faced galoots stand for hours on the chance of seeing one of us do a toboggan slide through the ether. That's all they're waiting for, hang 'em."

In some peculiar manner the expressed conclusion pulled into his conscious mind the image of Johnson, who was known on the job as "Gerard's Pet." Morgan sat wondering a moment, then laughed queerly. From the pocket of his jacket he took a small tin box about two inches square and sniffed at its contents.

"If Johnson has been chewing this stuff long I guess he'll give those sun-gapers a sensation one of these days,"



Again He Stared Down Into the Tremendous Abyss.

he muttered. "Old Gerard's Pet, eh? Nerves on the blink! Carries his little box of nerve dope around with him! The foxy Johnson! What does he want up in the clouds?"

Again he stared down into the tremendous abyss as if he expected an answer to his question to drift up with the faint, ghastly sounds of the heavy traffic. He noticed that the little groups were increasing, and he looked for a reason. There was nothing unusual happening, but the mesh of iron and steel seemed to attract pedestrians.

Presently Morgan laughed uneasily. "Hang 'em," he cried, "I believe they're watching me. They are, sure. I'm in it! 'Gerard's Pet' watching me on top and the crowd watching me below!"

He shook his fist at the spectators, stood up on the plank and climbed cautiously along it.

"Watching me," he muttered, "the buzzards! They're hungry for a tragedy. If they watch Johnson—Johnson minus his little tin box—they might get a run. At any rate I'm going to watch him now. He must have lost that at lunch time, and if he's been chewing it regular I guess the loss of it will begin to upset his grit before the day is out."

Crawling carefully along the narrow bridge, he climbed into the cobweb of steel beams and looked back at the crowd from a position of comparative safety.

"The dough-faced loafers," he murmured, "it's funny I never thought till to-day what kept 'em watching and watching."

Wondering how he overlooked this powerful incentive to the morbid mind, he stepped cautiously along the brink of shadowy abysses that lay between the tremendous girders, and as he walked he muttered continually:

"'Gerard's Pet,' eh? Put up to watch me, and has to chew a morsel of opium to keep his nerve up. Guess he's craving a pick-me-up now."

At the southern end of the gigantic frame, which towered, black and ugly, over the surrounding buildings, he stopped and peered around. Johnson was standing up in a great triangle of steel, directing half a dozen men who were climbing along the iron threads where the wind, after lulling them with occasional moments of calm, attacked them with fierce, strong gusts in their moments of unpreparedness.

Morgan stepped out on the triangle and stood near "The Pet," but Johnson gave no indication that he was aware of his presence. The foreman's animus was ill-conceled and the other was a hyper-sensitive person. The hammers clanged ceaselessly and the skeleton thrilled under the blows.

Johnson was a slight, nervous man, with shifty eyes. Morgan's contemptuous silence irritated him. Johnson moistened his lips and stammered violently as he moved the men along. "The Pet's" left hand strayed upwards but when it had reached his pocket it was suddenly jerked back to his side. Three times the hand tried to forage in the pocket, and three times it was jerked away. Johnson's mind was certain that the tin box was lost, but Johnson's nerves, tautened by the presence of the silent foreman, urged the twitching fingers to continue the search.

Presently Morgan laughed and Johnson looked at him inquiringly.

"I was just thinking of those infernal watchers down there on the sidewalk," explained the foreman. "I never knew till to-day what keeps 'em there."

"And what does keep them there?" asked Johnson.

"Why, they're waiting to see one of us flop," replied the discoverer, "just hanging 'round thinking one of us will lose his nerve and take a header."

Johnson wrinkled his face into a sickly smile and again moistened his dry lips. Morgan had timed his visit well.

"I don't think that is the reason," he stammered, "they're interested in the work."

The foreman laughed contemptuously. "I know 'em," he cried, "I've been studying them to-day."

Again the foraging hand crept upward, and again it was jerked swiftly back. Its owner made an attempt to change the subject.

"Farley sent down a note about that iron," he spluttered, "he wants you—"

"Look," interrupted Morgan, "just look how they're lining up down there. What for, I would like to know? There's nothing particular doing—what are they staring at?"

Johnson didn't look. He stared out across the bay.

"Not there," snapped the foreman. "Right beneath you, man. Down under your feet. They're cursed ghouls."

"The Pet" moved back a few inches from the extreme apex of the triangle. He turned his face to Morgan and the gray eyes of the student of crowds noted his livid cheeks.

"Move along," muttered Johnson, "I'm going in."

Morgan didn't move. "Crowd unnerve you?" he sneered.

"No," snapped "the Pet."

"What's up, then?"

"Nothing."

"I thought your nerves were going back on you," grinned the foreman.

Johnson's left hand was foraging blindly in his jacket pocket.

"You think too much," he stammered. "Move a little."

"Just oblige me by going 'round the other way," murmured Morgan. "I've got my eye on a batch of hungry buzzards down there and I don't want to lose sight of them."

Johnsen turned towards the apex and moved a few paces cautiously.

"I knew a man," remarked the foreman, critically eyeing the other, "whose nerves went on the blink at this game. He took to drugs."

"Yes," muttered Johnson, half turning to look at the speaker.

"Yes," repeated Morgan, "he took to opium, or some stuff like it, and the crowd got a sensation one day. He forgot his box or lost it or something—"

"The Pet" wheeled swiftly. "You hound," he snarled. "You—you took it."

The foreman grinned. "Don't upset yourself," he murmured, "Your nerves are rocky, sure."

"Give it up," shrieked Johnson. "Give it up!"

Morgan took the little tin box from his pocket and tossed it towards the other. They were but a few feet apart but at that moment a sudden gust of wind whirled up and the box was swept to the left of the narrow bridge. Johnson tried to keep his arm at his side, but the effort was beyond him. It leapt out after the bit of tin, which flashed in the sunlight, and losing his balance, he sprawled forward along the girder. Morgan tried to backstep quickly, but Johnson's right arm swung like a band of iron around his ankles and, locked together, they followed the little tin box.

Disappointed in a "Good Thing."

About the worst "stung" individual in Louisville in many a day was a purchaser at a sale of unclaimed freight held recently, says the Louisville Times. A package was put up by the auctioneer that looked to him like it contained a pair of fine field glasses, and to make the deception more complete, contrary to all usages at such sales, he had gotten a "hunch" on the contents by feeling the package, which made him doubly sure that he was on the "right lay." At these sales everybody is suspicious of the others, and when one bidder shows an interest in a package put up "sight unseen," all the others will push the bidding. This identical package brought $9.60, and was knocked down to the one who had shown such eagerness to become the owner. He could not wait until he got outside the salesroom before opening the package, which turned out to his intense disgust and chagrin to be only two small bottles of a soft drink tied together.

After covering everything he could think of as appropriate to say from religion to law, he closed his prayer with the supplication, "And, finally, may we all be gathered in that happy land where there are no courts, no lawyers and no judges."

Ask Her This Question

"Do you know of any woman who ever received any benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

If any woman who is suffering with any ailment peculiar to her sex will ask her neighbors this question, she will be surprised at the result. There is hardly a community in this country where women cannot be found who have been restored to health by this famous old remedy, made exclusively from a simple formula of roots and herbs.

During the past 30 years we have published thousands of letters from these grateful women who have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and never in all that time have we published a testimonial without the writer's special permission. Never have we knowingly published a testimonial that was not truthful and genuine. Here is one just received a few days ago. If anyone doubts that this is a true and honest statement of a woman's experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound write and ask her.

Houston, Texas.—"When I first began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a total wreck. I had been sick for three years with female troubles, chronic dyspepsia, and a liver trouble. I had tried several doctor's medicines, but nothing did me any good.

"For three years I lived on medicines and thought I would never get well, when I read an advertisment of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and was advised to try it.

"My husband got me one bottle of the Compound, and it did me so much good I continued its use. I am now a well woman and enjoy the best of health.

"I advise all women suffering from such troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. They won't regret it, for it will surely cure you."—Mrs. Bessie L. Hicks, 819 Cleveland St., Houston.

Any woman who is sick and suffering is foolish surely not to give such a medicine as this a trial. Why should it not do her as much good as it did Mrs. Hicks.

CURE

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub. Co.)

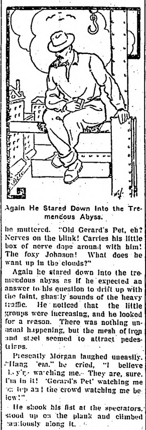
Morgan, foreman of the Hudson-Gerard Construction Company, swinging on a narrow plank 400 feet above the sidewalk, whistled a lively tune as he glanced around at the unclothed ribs of the giant sky-scraper he was throwing heavenwards. Far below, human ants looked up through the clear air at the gaunt skeleton, their white, upturned faces, round and featureless, reminding the foreman of full-blown flowers on bulky stalks.

The watchers attracted Morgan. Sitting down on the plank, with legs dangling in space, he stared into the stone-walled canyon up and down which the human current flowed unceasing. The peculiar, weird expectancy which seemed to chain the little groups watching the aerial workers interested him. He had never looked at the crowds before, but some absurd analytical kink had just manifested itself in his mind, and he gratified it. He tried to understand the fascination which held men motionless hour after hour until their aching necks rebelled at the torture. Unconsciously, a hate of the crowd welled up within the foreman. He felt that they were waiting for something to happen.

The foreman started to reason quietly to himself. "There's no fascination in seeing men work," he murmured, "so it's the fascination of seeing men in danger. Increase the danger, and you increase the spine-tickles that keep those loafers peeping upwards. Where does it end? I honestly believe that a percentage of those dough-faced galoots stand for hours on the chance of seeing one of us do a toboggan slide through the ether. That's all they're waiting for, bang 'em."

In some peculiar manner the expressed conclusion pulled into his conscious mind the image of Johnson, who was known on the job as "Gerard's Pet." Morgan sat wondering a moment, then laughed queerly. From the pocket of his jacket he took a small tin box about two inches square and sniffed at its contents.

"If Johnson has been chewing this stuff long I guess he'll give those sun-gapers a sensation one of these days,"



Again He Stared Down Into the Tremendous Abyss.

he muttered. "Old Gerard's Pet, eh? Nerves on the blink! Carries his little box of nerve dope around with him! The foxy Johnson! What does he want up in the clouds?"

Again he stared down into the tremendous abyss as if he expected an answer to his question to drift up with the faint, ghastly sounds of the heavy traffic. He noticed that the little groups were increasing, and he looked for a reason. There was nothing unusual happening, but the mesh of iron and steel seemed to attract pedestrians.

Presently Morgan laughed uneasily. "Hang 'em," he cried, "I believe they're watching me. They are, sure. I'm in it! 'Gerard's Pet' watching me on top and the crowd watching me below!"

He shook his fist at the spectators, stood up on the plank and climbed cautiously along it.

"Watching me," he muttered, "the buzzards! They're hungry for a tragedy. If they watch Johnson—Johnson minus his little, tin box—they might get a run. At any rate I'm going to watch him now. He must have lost that at lunch time, and if he's been chewing it regular I guess the loss of it will begin to upset his nerve before the day is out."

Crawling carefully along the narrow bridge, he climbed into the cobweb of steel beams and looked back at the crowd from a position of comparative safety.

"The dough-faced loafers," he murmured. "It's funny I never thought till to-day what kept 'em watching and watching."

Wondering how he overlooked this powerful incentive to the morbid mind, he stepped cautiously along the brink of shadowy abysses that lay between the tremendous girders, and as he walked he muttered continually:

"'Gerard's Pet', eh? Put up to watch me, and has to chew a morsel of opium to keep his nerve up. Guess he's craving a pick-me-up now."

At the southern end of the gigantic frame, which towered, black and ugly, over the surrounding buildings, he stopped and peered around. Johnson was standing upon a great triangle of steel, directing half a dozen men who were climbing along the iron threads where the wind, after lulling them with occasional moments of calm, attacked them with fierce, strong gusts in their moments of unpreparedness.

Morgan stepped out on the triangle and stood near "The Pet," but Johnson gave no indication that he was aware of his presence. The foreman's animus was ill-conceled and the other was a hyper-sensitive person. The hammers clanged ceaselessly and the skeleton thrilled under the blows.

Johnson was a slight, nervous man, with shifty eyes. Morgan's contemptuous silence irritated him. Johnson moistened his lips and stammered violently as he moved the men along. "The Pet's" left hand strayed upwards but when it had reached his pocket it was suddenly jerked back to his side. Three times the hand tried to forage in the pocket, and three times it was jerked away. Johnson's mind was certain that the tin box was lost, but Johnson's nerves, tautened by the presence of the silent foreman, urged the twitching fingers to continue the search.

Presently Morgan laughed and Johnson looked at him inquiringly.

"I was just thinking of those infernal watchers down there on the sidewalk," explained the foreman. "I never knew till to-day what keeps 'em there."

"And what does keep them there?" asked Johnson.

"Why, they're waiting to see one of us flop," replied the discoverer, "just hanging 'round thinking one of us will lose his nerve and take a header."

Johnson wrinkled his face into a sickly smile and again moistened his dry lips. Morgan had timed his visit well.

"I don't think that is the reason," he stammered, "they're interested in the work."

The foreman laughed contemptuously. "I know 'em," he cried, "I've been studying them to-day."

Again the foraging hand crept upward, and again it was jerked swiftly back. Its owner made an attempt to change the subject.

"Farley sent down a note about that iron," he spluttered, "he wants you—"

"Look," interrupted Morgan, "just look how they're lining up down there. What for, I would like to know? There's nothing particular doing—what are they staring at?"

Johnson didn't look. He stared out across the bay.

"Not there," snapped the foreman. "Right beneath you, man. Down under your feet. They're cursed ghouls."

"The Pet" moved back a few inches from the extreme apex of the triangle. He turned his face to Morgan and the gray eyes of the student of crowds noted his livid cheeks.

"Move along," muttered Johnson, "I'm going in."

Morgan didn't move. "Crowd unnerve you?" he sneered.

"No," snapped "the Pet."

"What's up, then?"

"Nothing."

"I thought your nerves were going back on you," grinned the foreman.

Johnson's left hand was foraging blindly in his jacket pocket.

"You think too much," he stammered. "Move a little."

"Just oblige me by going 'round the other way," murmured Morgan. "I've got my eye on a batch of hungry buzzards down there and I don't want to lose sight of them."

Johnson turned towards the apex and moved a few paces cautiously.

"I knew a man," remarked the foreman, critically eyeing the other, "whose nerves went on the blink at this game. He took to drugs."

"Yes," muttered Johnson, half turning to look at the speaker.

"Yes," repeated Morgan, "he took to opium, or some stuff like it, and the crowd got a sensation one day. He forgot his box or lost it or something—"

"The Pet" wheeled swiftly. "You hound," he snarled. "You—you took it."

"Give it up," shrieked Johnson. "Give it up!"

Morgan took the little tin box from his pocket and tossed it towards the other. They were but a few feet apart but at that moment a sudden gust of wind whirled up and the box was swept to the left of the narrow bridge. Johnson tried to keep his arm at his side, but the effort was beyond him. It leapt out after the bit of tin, which flashed in the sunlight, and losing his balance, he sprawled forward along the girder. Morgan tried to backstep quickly, but Johnson's right arm swung like a band of iron around his ankles and, locked together, they followed the little tin box.

Venice Too Wet for Her.

An Anthony woman who recently returned from a trip to Europe says wet weather hasn't bothered this country at all in comparison with what she saw abroad. She says that they ran into a town named Venice where the water covered every street and you couldn't get anywhere except in boats. She added "You bet we only stayed one day in that slosh."

What a lot of trouble some children seem to have keeping their parents in the way they should go.

Disappointed in a "Good Thing."

About the worst "stung" individual in Louisville in many a day was a purchaser at a sale of unclaimed freight held recently, says the Louisville Times. A package was put up by the auctioneer that looked to him like it contained a pair of fine field glasses, and to make the deception more complete, contrary to all usages at such sales, he had gotten a "hunch" on the contents by feeling the package, which made him doubly sure that he was on the "right lay." At these sales everybody is suspicious of the others, and when one bidder shows an interest in a package put up "sight unseen," all the others will push the bidding. This identical package brought $9.60, and was knocked down to the one who had shown such eagerness to become the owner. He could not wait until he got outside the salesroom before opening the package, which turned out to his intense disgust and chagrin to be only two small bottles of a soft drink tied together.

The Limit.

Manager—Sir, your performance of Hamlet is the very worst ever presented behind the footlights. If there had been any money in the house I should have been bound in honor to return it at the doors. Would Bar the Judiciary.

Young ministers sometimes say some very irreverent things when first they get in harness, but seldom are so broadly condemnatory as the young clergyman who was called upon to act as chaplain at the opening of a recent term of court down in Maine.

After covering everything he could think of as appropriate to say from religion to law, he closed his prayer with the supplication, "And, finally, may we all be gathered in that happy land where there are no courts, no lawyers and no judges."

Then they changed chaplains.

Ask Her This Question

"Do you know of any woman who ever received any benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

If any woman who is suffering with any ailment peculiar to her sex will ask her neighbors this question, she will be surprised at the result. There is hardly a community in this country where women cannot be found who have been restored to health by this famous old remedy, made exclusively from a simple formula of roots and herbs.

During the past 30 years we have published thousands of letters from these grateful women who have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and never in all that time have we published a testimonial without the writer's special permission. Never have we knowingly published a testimonial that was not truthful and genuine. Here is one just received a few days ago. If anyone doubts that this is a true and honest statement of a woman's experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound write and ask her.

Houston, Texas.—"When I first began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a total wreck. I had been sick for three years with female troubles, chronic dyspepsia, and a liver trouble. I had tried several doctor's medicines, but nothing did me any good.

"For three years I lived on medicines and thought I would never get well, when I read an advertisment of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and was advised to try it.

"My husband got me one bottle of the Compound, and it did me so much good I continued its use. I am now a well woman and enjoy the best of health.

"I advise all women suffering from such troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. They won't regret it, for it will surely cure you."—Mrs. Bessie L. Hicks, 819 Cleveland St., Houston.

Any woman who is sick and suffering is foolish surely not to give such a medicine as this a trial. Why should it not do her as much good as it did Mrs. Hicks.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Corbeil and R. Borrow of Poplar River were in town Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Mr. Borrow is a comparatively new resident of the county, having come here about a year ago from Wisconsin. Mr. Borrow is very enthusiastic over the promise of future prosperity for the Red Lake county farmer. He says that a number of his former neighbors in Wisconsin are going to become residents of Red Lake county.

H. W. Anderson left Red Lake Falls last night. He went to St. Paul and will spend some time at the home of his parents in that city. Though Andy has done nothing to merit the distinction conferred upon him by the act, he was showered with rice when he boarded the train. THE GAZETTE will tell its readers of an inducement that may bring Mr. Anderson back to Red Lake Falls. It was told in strict confidence, but it is a newspaper man's business to tell things, especially confidences, so here goes. Andy says that he'll come back if we get that normal school. Mr. Anderson has not made a definite decision as to what will be his future work. He may go on a trip to the coast before again engaging in business. Mr. Anderson was one of Red Lake Falls' best business men and one of Red Lake Falls' best men. He has many friends here who will wish him all the good things in life that he deserves.

Carl Krueger left Tuesday night for International Falls. From there he will go on an excursion into the timber country and if he finds desirable land will file on a claim. No, Carl is not looking for one of Adam Bede's quarters. Bede, you know, used to be in the land business and when busines was a little slow he offered to "throw in" a school ma'am with every quarter section of land sold.

At Little Falls the county attorney wanted his salary raised from $1,200 to $1,500 per year. The board of county commissioners refused the raise, but the judge of the district court, M. D. Taylor, promptly ordered the attorney's salary raised to $1,600, or $100 more than had been asked for. Some of the taxpayers are objecting vigorously and think the judge should have no part in the raising of salaries which he has no part in paying.

It was a jolly crowd of young people in attendance at the reception and dance given for H. W. Anderson at the Metropolitan opera house last Friday evening and from the manner in which the evening was enjoyed it might seem that Mr. Anderson's friends were expressing delight at his leave taking were it not that the affair was gotten up to give Mr. Anderson another reason for remembering with pleasure his stay in Red Lake Falls. It was a most enjoyable affair. Fine music was furnished by the Red Lake Falls orchestra and the people present just comfortably filled the large room when going through the maneuvers of the quadrille or the contortions of the barn dance. A fine supper was served at the Sanford cafe.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brock of Winnipeg are guests at the home of Mrs. Brock's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Demarais. Mr. and Mrs. Brock have spent the past fifteen months in the Pacific states and southwestern Canada and they are glad to get back to the central west again. The days of the "lucky strike" in the west, says Mr. Brock, are over—there are no bananza opportunities except for the capitalists who hold lands at fictitious prices and succeed in loading up rainbow chasers. For the laborer or the business man of moderate means the west is a poor place to go to. Business in every line is overdone, but in spite of that fact living expenses and rents are high. No doubt the man who acquired holdings in the country many years ago, and has held on, can see the so-called advantages. Mr. and Mrs. Brock resided for seven months in the Yakima Valley, Washington. As may be know, the the valley would be an arid region were it not for irrigation projects. It is a disagreeable place to live because the air is always filled with dust and it is extremely hot in the summer time. The country had a great boom a few years ago be cause of the success in cultivating hops and in consequence land prices increased from $100 to as high as $2000 per acre. These prices are all out of proportion to the value now, but deluded western fever stricken people continue to invest. Excellent crops of hops and alfalfa can be grown, but since the drop in the price of hops from 36 cents to 7 cents per pound that crop is no longer profitable and the land prices are so high that alfalfa raising is not profitable. It is a good fruit country, but for the same reasons the fruit grower can realize no profit. Many former Red Lake county people live in the Yakima Valley and the village of North Yakima and it may be that not all of them will agree with Mr. Brock in his recital of the disadvantages of the country.

YDSTIE-JOHNSON.

Well Known Young Couple Married Last Week.

Miss Petra A. Ydstie of Gervais township and Mr. Abraham Johnson of Bentley, N. Dak., were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs. Andrew Ydstie, in Gervais township, Thursday, Feb. 4. It was a quiet home wedding, only relatives being present. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Bergbit Ydstie, and Otto F. Anderson was best man. Rev. O. Kolstoe was the officiating clergyman.

The groom was formerly a teacher in the schools of Red Lake county and has real estate holdings here. He is now engaged in the real estate business in North Dakota. The bride is well known to many Red Lake county people and has many friends who will wish her much joy in her home. The bride goes to her husband with a dower of her own acquisition, having "proved up" on a valuable homestead in North Dakota.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson left Friday for their new home at Bentley, N. Dak.

NORMAL SCHOOL COMMITTEE HERE

School Will Probably be Located at Cass Lake or Bemidji.

The members of the legislative committee sent out to visit the various cities that are bidding for the proposed sixth normal school arrived in Red Lake Falls at 10 o'clock Monday morning. The Great Northern train was held here for half an hour and the members of the party were given a sleigh ride to the various sites on the Red Lake river anyone of which Red Lake Falls people believe would be just right for the location of the new normal school.

Following are the members of the committee appointed by the legislature to visit the sites offered by the various cities: Senators S. D. Works, George French, W. A. Hinton, J. C. Hardy; Representatives S. E. Gartside, C. E. Jorgenson, J. F. Burnquist, C. D. Sawyer and Henry Rines. Other members of the party though not members of the committee were Senators D. S. Hall and Geo. Carpenter, Representatives John Goodspeed, L. D. Cook, Chas. Sawyer and Alex Campbell and Miss Durkee and Miss Sexton, stenographers.

The band was at the depot when the train came in to assist the committee in receiving the distinguished guests. The ladies in the party were so pleased with the reception that they promised to do some lobbying for Red Lake Falls. The only town to get out its band, and such a nice band, too, is worth considering, they said. Now, if Mary McFadden, the brilliant paragrapher of the News Tribune, had been with the party "as advertised" she no doubt would join forces with the other ladies and we would win.

The members of the committee did not have much to say. They are seeing things, not talking. Red Lake Falls scarcely expects to get the normal school, but we had something worth showing and the members of the party said they enjoyed Red Lake Falls' hospitality very much. It is practically conceded that the location of the school rests between Cass Lake and Bemidji with Cass Lake leading in the race.

From here the party went to Thief River Falls where the afternoon was spent. They returned to Crookston Monday evening and went to Warren Tuesday morning.

The legislative committee visited all of the cities that have asked for the school and the report of the committee will have much weight with the legislature in determining where the school shall be located.

IN FOR NINETY DAYS

Radney Resident Will Have Opportunity to Reflect and Repent Bad Behavior.

John Borek, of Radney, says the Sunbeam, was arrested on the complaint of John Radnecki on Saturday last for breaking the peace and was brought before W. G. Hunt, justice of the peace, for examination on Monday morning. The Boreks are a Polish family that moved here from Chicago last spring and the story told by the oldest boy, a lad 12 years of age, of a brute of a husband and father, would make ones blood turn cold. The woman has been sick for some time and when taken in charge by the authorities last week was in such a weakened condition that her recovery is doubtful. She has been sick for some time without proper food and if the children wanted to go to the neighbors to get a little milk for her they were told by their father that if they went he would kill them. One of his special acts, as shown by the evidence, was to point a loaded shot gun at his wife and threaten to shoot her until she fainted from fright. The family are now being cared for by the town of Deer Park and the man is safe in jail.

Since the foregoing account of Borek's miss-deeds was put into type, the man has been brought to this city and will be the guest of Sheriff Nelson for ninety days.

THE TYPHOID FEVER SCOURGE

Four People Have Died in Louisville Township Within the Week.

Pierre Audette Family Sorely Afflicted—Red Lake River Water Contaminated.

Many people in territory tributary to Red Lake Falls are afflicted with typhoid fever and within a week four people have died of the disease in Louisville township. It is believed that the water in the Red Lake river has become contaminated. People using the water are running a great risk.

It is indeed a sad affliction that has come to the home of Pierre Audette of Louisville township. Three of the members of Mr. Audette's family, his wife and two sons, have died. At one o'clock last Saturday morning a son, aged twenty-two years, died, and at one o'clock in the afternoon another son, aged nineteen, died. Monday afternoon Mrs. Audette passed away. Mr. and Mrs. Audette and family had long been residents of Louisville township and have numerous friends who sympathize deeply with the husband and father and surviving children in the great affliction that has come to them.

The seventeen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boutin, who was critically ill for several days, passed away early yesterday morning.

There are several cases of typhoid fever in this vicinity, but none of the patients are so critically ill as were those in the Audette and Boutin families and it is hoped and believed that the spread of the disease can be checked.

CO. BOARD MEETING

Routine Business Transacted by County Commissioners in Session Yesterday.

The county commissioners were in session yesterday. Little business of importance was transacted.

The petition of Andrew Trovaten, who asked that his property be set off from school Dist. No. 29 and annexed to Dist. No. 42 was granted, as was also that of L. A. Kopp, who asked that his land be set off from Dist. No. 208 and annexed to Dist. No. 79. The petition of Isaac E. Wilson was rejected. The petition of A. E. Anderson, asking for a new school district, was considered and a day of hearing set.

The board voted to allow O. T. Tandberg, county treasurer, $200 for clerk hire.

It was voted to allow the city of Red Lake Falls the use of the county jail until the city jail can be repaired.

Auctioneer's licenses were issued to Chas. W. Latta of Plummer, Jos. Belair, Red Lake Falls, C. M. Evenson of Thief River Falls and H. K. Homme of Griebrok.

The official proceedings will be published in the next issue of The Gazette.

BRAVE MEN ARE THEY.

But Lost Their Nerve and Have Taken to the Tall Timber.

At the medicine show at the opera house Monday night a prize was offered for the prettiest baby. A number of infants were exhibited on the stage, each one the prettiest baby its parents and grand parents and aunts and uncles had ever seen. Two of Red Lake Falls' bachelors, Helmuth Zaiser and H. Paulson, brave men, consented to act as judges. Be it said, that all may know how brave was the act of these men, that no other Red Lake Falls man could be induced to act. The prize was awarded and then—Zaiser and Paulson went into hiding. No one saw them until last evening. When the train pulled in at the Great Northern station they rushed into the depot, bought tickets and boarded the train. Each of them looked as though he had gone through a terrible experience. After the excitement has subsided they will return. Their bachelor friends who were so proud of them for the bravery displayed Monday night are disappointed that they should lose their nerve now, but under all circumstances it is not surprising that they should imagine that they are being "pursued."

AFTER TUBERCULOSIS.

Northern Part of State Will Fight Great White Plague.

During the last two months a wave of public sentiment has been passing over St. Louis county in the wake of the State's Anti-tuberculosis Exhibit. The needlessness of the 173 deaths from tuberculosis (a larger proportion than in the state at large) last year credited to that county, has been brought home to the people in scores of stirring addresses and convincing editorials in the Duluth papers.

During the two month's educational campaign under the direction of the State Board of Health, aided by the Minnesota association for the prevention and relief of tuberculosis, which reached all parts of St. Louis county except the extreme western section, and also adjacent parts of Lake and Carlton counties. Seventeen thousand persons visited the exhibits and attended the lectures held in connection with them, and many thousands of educational leaflets were distributed. Committees on the prevention of tuberculosis were organized in each city. The Duluth committee has already raised about $1,000—enough to insure the employment of at least one nurse to visit in the homes of poor consumptives. Contributions toward a summer camp have been promised.

But the principal definite accomplishment has been the arousing of an overwhelming public sentiment in favor of a county hospital for the advanced cases. The state sanitarium at Walker will receive only early and hopeful cases. This will leave the bronic and advanced cases which are greatly in the majority and many of whom are homeless and destitute and the source of great danger, without provision. St. Louis county is going to see that this lamentable state of affairs does not continue as far as the care of its own 1,000 consumptives is concerned.

COWS WILL HAVE CONTEST, TOO

Red Lake Falls Creamery Association Will Give $50 in Cash Prizes.

Valuable Prizes Offered for Best Producers of Butter Fat.

As a stimulous to encourage the handling of the dairy properly and profitably, the Red Lake Falls creamery association will give prizes for cows producing the largest amount of butterfat in a given time. Three prizes are offered, a first prize of $25, second prize $15, third prize $10.

The contest will start about March 1, and will extend over a period of three months. Any farmer entering the contest will be permitted to submit the milk from only one cow. During the time that the contest is to run the milk will be frequently weighed and tested by P. L. Malvin, buttermaker at the local creamery, and these weights and tests will determine who are the prize winners in the contest.

All farmers can make this contest profitable, though not all can be prize winners. The better feeding and care of the cows during that time will mean increased profits and all should enter into the spirit of the game.

WOULD CAUSE MIX-UPS

Editor of Eleven Towns Says Thief River Falls' Bill is Bad.

The county seat war in this county is on again, but this time it is being fought out before the legislature in St. Paul. If such a bill as Thief River Falls is trying to get thru would pass, there would be more county seat mix ups in the state than anything else, but don't think such a bill will ever pass.—Erie Eleven Towns.

CYR-GUILLMETTE.

Well Known Young People Married Monday Morning.

Miss Ella Cyr, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cyr, and Mr. Ernest Guillmette were married Monday, February 15. The wedding occurred at St. Joseph's church at 10 o'clock, Rev. Fr. Pichery officiating. Miss Algina Guillmette, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and George Cyr, brother of the bride, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Guillmette will live in this city and have gone to housekeeping in the Normandin residence on Champagne avenue where they will be at home to their friends. The young people have many friends who join in offering congratulations and best wishes.

REVOLUTIONARY SPIRIT

Red Lake Falls Ladies Have Rebelled Against the Man Rule.

Emulating their forefathers, and grandmothers, of the historical Boston tea party, certain of Red Lake Falls' fairest matrons and maids have rebelled against the order of things locally. They have resolved and declared and wherefored a declaration of independence and are conspiring to overthrow certain local customs if the policy of taxation without representation is continued. Certain parties, for men only, have been so numerous that the spirit of discontent, the same spirit that moved our forefathers in Boston, is manifesting itself. There was another party on last night and the importunities of the ladies to have their rights recognized were scoffed at. In their mortification the ladies became defiant, the aforesaid spirit became aroused and a tea party of as much significance locally as the Boston tea party was historically was indulged in. The Sanford Cafe, the whole thing, from basement to roof, fore and aft, was chartered, and a l men excluded, and the poor men were compelled to have their banquet at the "gym" room.

It is said that the ladies entered into a horrible conspiracy. To give publicity to the movements of conspirators against goverment is one of the best ways to handle those people and the same ought to apply to conspirators against local customs. But it is hard to get the information. All the ladies would say was: "It was an unqualified success. Men are not necessary." The Sherlock Holmes editor was put on the case; but all that he was able to find was the menu and program of toasts and this is in cipher and the key to it has been thrown in the well or concealed in some equally inaccessable place. However, the menu and program of toasts will be published with the hope that the key may some time be found and the plans of the conspirators frustrated.

BRING SICK MAN HERE.

Roseau Would Avoid Care of Unfortunate Young Man.

Rennel Nelson, a young man twenty-three years old and employed on the section at Roseau, was last week taken to the Roseau hospital by one of the county commissioners and is there being cared for. The young man is a victim of consumptiom and it is believed that he cannot recover. The Roseau Region says that the young man was formerly employed here and that if he can be made strong enough will be brought to this city. This would indicate that the Roseau authorities believe the young man to be technically a resident of this place and that local authorities can be required to make provision for this care. COUNTY SEAT FIGHT AT ST. PAUL

Members of Legislative Committee See Holes in the Thief River Bill.

A Substitute Bill Has Been Introduced and Hearing Has Been Postponed.

The last issue of the Thief River Falls News contained a glowing account of the progress of the county seat bill in the legislature. No doubt the story was told to encourage the people at home who provide for the entertainment of the large number of Thief Riverites who are sojourning at St. Paul.

The bill did not progress very far. At the committee meeting two weeks ago Attorney Miller spoke in favor of the bill, but when Senator Putnam of the committee, seeking information, questioned Mr. Miller, and Attorney Boughton found some wood chucks in the bill the situation became embarrassing and Mr. Miller was so chagrined that he backed out of the room. Mr. Duffy thinks this is about the time he smiled that sickly smile. He says he does not deny smiling, but that he did not feel at all indisposed.

In reply to allegations that Red Lake Falls people stole Thief River Falls' petition, Attorney Boughton showed that Red Lake Falls had no reason to desire that the petition should disappear. The petition was not worth as much as good white paper. For two years while the petition was in the auditor's office a man who sympathized strongly with Red Lake Falls occupied the office, yet the piece of paper was perfectly safe. Perhaps the janitor threw the petition out with the rest of the waste paper. It was worth just as much.

Mr. O'Neill said that Thief River Falls had grown from a city of 3,000 people to 5000 people in two years—though no sensible man can see why that, if a fact, ought to have any weight in determining the action on a bill that if enacted into law is to be a part of the laws of the whole state. When by official records it was show that in the last election Thief River Falls cast 702 votes and in the election previous more than 800, Mr. O'Neill quit talking—and the people of Thief River Falls have been keeping Mr. O'Neill down at St. Paul most of the winter.

The Thief River Falls people were so discouraged over the lack of progress of their bill that at the committee meeting last Friday they proposed a substitute bill. Red Lake Falls asked that the hearing be postponed and the request was granted.

Used Lot of Space.

Mr. Quist, the new editor of the Press, "seen his duty and he done it" first shot. The last issue of his paper contained a column and a half article on the county seat situation.

ASK FOR COUNTY DITCH.

Farmers of Silverton and Smiley Want Land Drained.

A petition was filed with the county auditor yesterday asking for the establishment of a county ditch in the towns of Silverton and Smiley. The petition was signed by a large number of the farmers of those towns. The ditch if established and constructed will be seven miles long.

Gas Engines Make Farm Life More Endurable

The hired man and the farmer's son have turned the grindstone, corn sheller, feed cutter, cream separator, and jerked the pump handle and buck saw, while the farmer's wife and daughter have flopped the old churn, and turned the washing machine for years, always wishing for some easier way, while the farmer has wasted half his feed by feeding it unground, or paid the miller a heavy toll for grinding it, always wishing for some cheaper and easier way.

The advent of the invention and general manufacture of the small gasoline engine has changed things on the farm. The small portable gasoline engine is a hired man always ready, and capable of doing any work that a pully can be attached to. Just let us cite you a few uses that you can put an engine to:

The first thing in the morning is the cream separtor (unless you have a milking machine, and they are getting quite common) pour in your milk, start your engine and go wash for breakfast, after separating, attach the engine to the pump and have fresh water for the stock, next comes the washing machine or the churn, then a little later you will want to shell some corn or grind some feed; if the latter, fill the hopper start the engine and go do the chores. Perhaps you have a pile of wood that needs sawing and oh, how we hate the buck saw; one man with a small engine and saw, will saw more pole wood or rails than five men with buck saws. When it comes seeding time belt the engine to the fanning mill; your seed will soon be cleaned; this may be done at night if time is scarce; all you need to do is to keep the hopper supplied and take the bags of the elevator. When it comes to haying time how the boys hate to turn the grindstone to sharpen the sickle; here is where the engine will keep the boys on the farm. A gasoline engine and a clutch make a fine rig for drawing up hay in the barn, taking the place of a team and driver. The man on the load operating everything, a load may be lifted, held at a point, or let back on the load, all at the will of the operator.

How often on the farm a rack or machine needs repairing, but no suitable wood is at hand, and if we wished to rip a plank or a board the old rip saw is dull, and we take the work to the shop, paying good money for having it done, besides being out half a day for the trip.

The reason why farmers do not get along better is because they waste so much time doing work the old way or hiring it done. Did you ever stop to consider why the factories use planers, cut off and rip saws and sanders. Why don't the men do the work by hand? Because of the expense; men cannot compete with machines for fast accurate work; it is the same with your work, Mr. Farmer.

You have two very serious problems confronting you right now; one is the high price and scaricity of good hired men, and the other is, how to keep the boy on the farm.

If you were the hired man you would rather work for the farmer that had a gasoline engine, and how thankful you would have been if your father had had a gasoline engine when you were a boy. Our boys are progressive; keep the farm machinery up-to-date if you wish to keep your boys with you.

The gasoline today is made from 1 to several hundred horse power, but the farmer's size I think is from two to ten, while six is the happy medium; this size is none too large to be easily portable. It has power enough to do its work easily and with less gasoline than one of a smaller size that is overworked.

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN EPITOME

Important Events at Home and on Foreign Shores Briefly Told.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

The importation of opium into the United States, except for medicinal purposes, is prohibited by a house bill passed by the senate. The bill will become a law when signed by the president.

A report received from Mare Island by the naval medical department shows that the death of three enlisted men and the dangerous illness of ten others are due to the use of wood alcohol in milk punches.

All widows of veterans of the Civil war, the war with Mexico and the Indian wars will be entitled to receive pensions at the rate of $12 per month if a bill just passed by the senate is favorably acted on by the house.

President Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to attend a farewell meeting of the congregation of Grace Reformed church in Washington on the evening of Feb. 15. The president has attended this church ever since he has been in Washington.

PERSONAL.

Dr. John Mitchell, a former president of the New York State Homeopathic society, died at Newburg of heart disease.

Michael Arthur Bass, first Baron Burton, died in London following an operation for an internal complaint. He was born in 1837.

Henry M. Gillmore, grand dictator of the grand lodge of Illinois, Knights of Honor, died at his home in Delevan, aged sixty years.

The death is announced at Boston of Charles H. Atkinson, said to have been the oldest negro minstrel in the United States, aged seventy-two years.

Alex H. Smith, journal clerk of the Michigan house of representatives and former deputy state labor commissioner, dropped dead from heart disease in the capitol.

Mrs. Mary McCoy, aged eighty-six years, said to be the oldest woman postmaster in the United Staates, has resigned her position at Sheakleyville, Pa., which she filled for forty years.

Joseph Marshal Graham, vice president of the Erie railroad and one of the best known engineers in the country, died suddenly at his home in New York. Mr. Graham was fifty-five years old.

E. H. Harriman was elected a member of the board of directors of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway and the Michigan Central railway. In each case he succeeded Samuel Barger, resigned.

ACCIDENTAL HAPPENINGS.

Carrying down three men, two of whom were negroes, the schooner Ramsey sank in Lake Pontchartarin, near Little Woods, La.

The Union Depot hotel, located near the union station at Sault Ste. Marie, burned. The fire threatened the surrounding district. All guests escaped without serious injury. The loss was $10,000.

George Lezinsky, a New York powder inventor, was terribly injured at La Salle, Ill., while making a test in a cement works quarry. Lezinsky lost both eyes and the left arm. His condition is critical. Six other men were hurt by the explosion.

Newton M. Baker, aged fifty, of Wapakoneta, was instantly killed, and George H. Woelley, aged fifty-five, of Sidney, probably fatally injured at Lima, Ohio, when a Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton train struck a wagon in which they were riding.

Three trainmen were killed and another fatally injured when two stock trains on the Milwaukee railroad collided head-on at Powersville, Mo. Four cars of prize live stock, destined for Chicago, left the track and rolled down a steep embankment, most of the cattle being killed.

With the gas radiator turned on full, Frederick Vahey, forty years old, and his wife Marie were found dead from asphyxiation in their apartments in Jersey City. There was no note nor message left by either of the couple to indicate that their death was other than accidental.

Leona, the five months old child of Fred Boaz of Indianapolis, was killed when Mrs. Fred Shure, a guest of the child's parents, sat down on the child, which was sleeping on a couch, partly covered with a quilt. The baby died from hemorrhage soon after Mrs. Shure found "that there must be something under me."

One man was killed, another hurt and three women narrowly escaped injury in Chicago when an automobile driven by Mrs. Joel Eisendrath crashed into a delivery wagon. The police arrested Mrs. Eisendrath, who was released on $5,000 bonds.

Fire and a strong wind destroyed several boarding houses at Ardmore, Okla. T. V. Littlejohn was cremated and his wife probably fatally burned. Both resided in McKinney, Tex. The couple were just married and were on their honeymoon tour. Many persons narrowly escaped death.

The town of Milton, thirty miles east of Pensacola, Fla., was practically wiped off the map by a fire, the entire business section and several residences being destroyed. The total loss is estimated at between $150,000 and [illegible]

MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE

REVIEW OF THE MOST IMPORTANT WORK OF THE STATE LEGISLATORS FOR THE WEEK.

St. Paul, Feb. 5.—Without a word of debate, the house yesterday killed the county option bill. Friends of the measure and many of its opponents protested in vigorous words against the motion which cut off debate before it had ever started. The minority report favoring the adoption of the bill was voted down, 74 to 44. The matter came up when the chairman of the temperance committee reported the Ware county option bill for indefinite postponement. Five members presented a minority report, recommending the bill to pass. A motion to adopt the majority report was made and a motion to adopt the minority report was offered as a substitute. The previous question was ordered, which shut off debate, and the bill was then carefully laid to rest.

The house passed Johnson's county agricultural school bill after amending it so that no school can be established before submitting it to the voters of the county. As the bill stands it permits any county to establish a farm school, if a majority of the voters say so. No county can spend more than $15,000 for the purpose.

The house passed Senator Elwell's resolution permitting the university to apply for a share of Carnegie's pension fund for teachers.

The redrafted prison bill was read in the house yesterday. It cuts the appropriation from $3,000,000 to $2,500,000 and provides for raising this by a tax levy instead of certificates of indebtedness, to be paid out of the revolving fund of the prison.

In the Senate.

Two bills for agricultural schools were introduced in the senate yesterday. One, from the committee on agriculture, provides for eight schools. A bill by Senator Stephens divides the state into nine agricultural school districts, nearly identical with congressional districts. There is to be an experiment station at each school. The bill carries an appropriation of $25,000 for each of six schools.

The senate yesterday held a memorial service for the late John L. Gibbs of Owatonna, who died Nov. 28. He was a member of both houses at various times and officiated as presiding officer in each. He was elected lieutenant governor in 1896.

The bill of Senator Works establishing a new department of public lands was sent to the judiciary committee yesterday after a spirited defense by the author. He wanted the bill discussed by the committee of the whole.

The senate passed bills permitting the board of control to pay for plans of buildings before appropriation; will of testator revoked by change in marriage relation; providing for the incorporation of villages from territory of villages already incorporated.

Bills were introduced as follows: Relating to recording of marriage certificates; making it a gross misdemeanor to have burglars' tools in possession; to punish making or use of false statements to obtain credit; giving railroad conductors power to arrest persons; to prevent the catching of hares or rabbits by ferrets; re-enacting laws of state oil inspector with added duties and more salary.

St. Paul, Feb. 6. — The house and senate both passed bills yesterday creating a department for incurables in connection with the school for the feeble minded at Faribault.

The house passed seven other bills, one requiring licenses to be filed by railroad ticket agents with the secretary of state. Other bills passed were preventing persons feloniously concerned in the death of another from succeeding to any part of the estate; making affidavits or duly acknowledged certificates as to the marriage or non-marriage of grantors in conveyances, evidence of the facts therein recited; increasing number of crimes in which party may plead guilty and be sentenced without trial; relating to the venue of actions brought to recover for labor; relating to redemption from tax sales, and providing for the cancellation of certificates of assignment of certain cases; relating to the uniform stage of water in lakes.

Among the bills introduced were the following: To prevent the sale by auction or use of disabled horses; to protect birds and their nests and eggs; creating a state board of naturopathic examiners; requiring road overseers to cut weeds along ditches; requiring operators of Babcock tests to be licensed; compelling property owners to submit to assessors statement of insurance on property; amending limitations upon which state lands may be sold; appropriating $100,000 for a hospital at the soldiers' home; prescribing sanitary conditions where food is made and sold; regulating motor vehicles; permitting banks to deposit securities instead of giving bonds when receiving county deposits; prohibiting common law marriages; requiring public service corporations to pay employes twice a month; prohibiting agents from selling books to teachers at summer schools; increasing appropriation for greater university campus.

In the Senate.

Creation of a separate state banking department is provided in a bill introduced by Senator Thorpe. It provides for a state bank examiner, to be a practical banker of five years' experience, appointed by the governor for three years, at a salary of $5,000. He will have entire charge of the enforcement of the banking laws of the state.

Two bills aimed at the primary election law were offered. One by Senator Calhoun repeals the law entirely, while Senator Cooke wants to repeal it except for the Twin Cities and Duluth.

Senator Cushman offered a bill requiring telephone companies to exchange service, making them common carriers and subject to the control of the railroad and warehouse commission.

Senator Swanson renewed his attack on the state live stock sanitary board with two propositions. One was a resolution requiring the board to furnish a full statement of pending claims and restraining it from incurring further obligations. The other was a bill regulating the condemnation of animals. It prohibits the condemnation of animals under the tuberculin test or horses under the maline test, without examination by three vetinarians. The value of animals killed is to be fixed by a board of three appraisers.

Other bills introduced were: Authorizing state to purchase toll bridge at Dalles of St. Croix; relating to forestry reserve fund; accepting gift to Itasca State Park; providing for seven judges in Second judicial district.

Two bills were passed, one relating to the receipt for storing of grain and the other admitting incurable cripples to school for feeble minded.

Both houses adjourned until Monday morning.

St. Paul, Feb. 9. — Radical changes in the organization of the State Agricultural society are proposed in a bill by Representative Rosenwald. Under this measure the society is to be composed of three representatives from each county agricultural society. In the event that any county society neglects to elect delegates, the president, secretary and treasurer shall act as delegates. The management of the society and the state fair is to be vested in a board of nine managers, one selected from each of the congressional districts.

Two bills regulating the salaries and fees of sheriffs were offered in the house yesterday. The salaries run from $800 to $1,300.

Representative Allen offered a bill creating a state department of banking.

In order that members of co-operative life and casualty organizations may be sure of benefits promised, Representative Kneeland offered a bill requiring such organizations to provide a reserve fund.

Measures of interest to school teachers appeared in the house, one providing for a teachers' retirement fund and the other providing for an employment bureau for teachers.

The house, in committee of the whole, acted favorably on the bill for a third judge in the Fifteenth district, already passed by the senate.

The house passed the following bills: Legalizing certain proceedings in laying out roads; limiting the time within which real estate mortgages may be foreclosed; legalizing conveyances of real estate made by husband to wife.

Increase of commutation for work on roads from $1.50 to $2 a day is made in a bill presented in the senate by Senator Hanson. Under the present law taxpayers are permitted to work out a portion of their taxes by work on the roads under the direction of an overseer. For each day of work they are permitted a $1.50 rebate on their taxes.

A monument costing $25,000 to commemorate the signing of the treaty of Travers des Sioux is provided in a bill handed in by Senator Johnson.

Renovated butter must be labeled and the makers of such a product must have a license under a bill presented by Senator White.

Another bill for a superintendent of banks was presented by Senator Nelson. It provides that the new officer shall be appointed by a board consisting of the governor, auditor, treasurer, attorney general and secretary of state.

Senator Smith offered a bill under which a litigant in a district court having only one judge may secure a judge of another district by filing an affidavit of prejudice.

Protection of the beaver at all times and of mink and muskrats from April 15 to Nov. 15 is provided in a bill by Senator Poehler. Destruction of the houses of the muskrats is prohibited.

Primary elections are to be held on the fourth Tuesday in June, instead of in September, under a bill by Senator Canestorp.

Members of the legislature, under a bill offered by Senator Johnson, will be excused for attendance at court during the legislative session.

Other bills introduced were: Relating to licenses of auctioneers; requiring abstracters of titles to give bonds; death caused by railroad to be prima facie evidence of negligence by road; providing for settlement of estates of absentees; prohibiting others than attorneys from giving legal advice.

St. Paul, Feb. 10.—A schedule of damages to be awarded employes for the loss of legs, arms, sight and hearing, based on a yearly wage of $500, with a proportional increase for additional income, is the basis of the employers' liability bill introduced by Senator Peterson. Such a bill was recommended by the governor, the state bar association and organized labor. Several other bills of a similar nature will be introduced soon.

Prisoners may be paid 25 cents a day for their labor in the penitentiary or at the St. Cloud reformatory. The amount is optional with the state board of control. The bill by Senator Stephens was passed yesterday in the senate. The money is to be paid monthly to the families of the inmates or kept until their release.

Other bills passed were: Constitutional amendment proposing hail insurance; relating to the election of school trustees in country districts; empowering cities of 10,000 population to secure municipal water and light plants; relating to the powers of court commissioners; amending law relating to vital statistics, and giving members of state board of health mileage.

Senator McGowan introduced a bill requiring telephone companies to connect with other lines.

Senator Robinson presented a bill appropriating $10,000 for a statue of Alexander Wilkin, late colonel of the Ninth Minnesota volunteers.

Other bills introduced were: Appropriating $65,000 for homeopathic medical hospital; authorizing cutting of trees when detrimental to roads; accepting Cooper island, in Cass lake; relating to appointment of guardians for dependent and delinquent children; relating to contingent fees of county attorneys; relating to amount of land which may be held by a corporation.

Senator Swanson's resolution directing the live stock sanitary board to spend no more money for tubercular cattle and requiring a statement of the present claims was passed by the senate.

In the House.

An anti-pass bill was finally sent out of the house railroad committee yesterday, and the Nimocks bill will be reported for passage with an amendment which will permit railway employes to retain their passes even if they hold non-salaried offices under the state or local governments.

Representative Sawyer introduced a bill authorizing cities of 50,000 to purchase lighting and heating plants and to acquire them by condemnation if they so desire.

The state oil inspection bureau is abolished in a bill offered by Representative Rosenwald. The work is placed under the dairy and food department.

To publish derogatory statements about banks, make any false statement which would affect the solvency of any such institution, is made a misdemeanor in a bill offered by Representative Washburn.

A general revision of the law establishing the live stock and sanitary board is provided in a bill by Representative Johnson.

Investment companies which sell endowment policies without any insurance feature are to be placed under state control according to a bill by Representative Rodenberg.

Representative Ferguson offered a bill making the term of office of sheriffs four years.

The house passed the bill for a third judge in the Fifteenth district. Other bills passed were: Authorizing county boards to apportion outstanding claims when towns are divided; legalizing certain proceedings in laying out roads; asking congress to aid in improving Minnesota and Red rivers.

Fire at Cresco, Iowa.

Cresco, Iowa, Feb. 11. — Fire last night destroyed F. C. Woellstein's double store. The loss was $2,000 on the building and $5,000 on the stock, nearly covered by insurance.

SWIFT'S DAUGHTER DIVORCED.

Incompatibility of Temper Real Reason for Separation.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Mrs. Ruth May Swift Eversz, who was left a fortune of $5,000,000 by her father, the late Gustavus Swift, was granted a divorce from her husband, Ernest H. Eversz, by Judge Gibbons yesterday. The charge against Mr. Eversz was desertion, although incompatibility of temper is given by Mrs. Eversz as the real cause.

HURLED AGAINST POLE.

Farmer Hurt in Runaway Is Not Expected to Live.

St. Hilaire, Minn., Feb. 11. — Ole Loeberg, a prominent farmer of Rocksbury township, was thrown from his sleigh last evening at midnight when his team ran away, and he struck a telephone pole. He is still alive, but the chances are that he will not recover, as his head is bady injured. He had spent the evening in local saloons.

BATTLESHIPS IN CRASH.

London, Feb. 11.—According to dispatches received by a news agency here from Gibraltar, reports are current that a collision had occurred between the Georgia and another battleship of the United States Atlantic fleet, which sailed from that port on Saturday morning on its homeward voyage. Nothing is known officially at that place of such an occurrence and little credence is given to the report.

VENTILATING THE STABLE BY THE KING SYSTEM

It Gets Fresh Air to the Stock Without Draft and Keeps Them Healthy.

From an examination of the different illustrations it will be seen that the principle of the King system of ventilation is to take in cold air from near the ground on the outside, deliver it inside near the ceiling, take up foul air from near the floor and deliver it near the top of the building.

The inlets must be so arranged that the warm air will not pass out instead of cold, fresh air coming in. It is for this reason that the inlet flue should begin near the ground on the outside and end near the ceiling inside. All that is necessary is to have the outer end of the flue several feet lower than the inner end. (Study carefully the different illustrations.) There should be a number of inlets of small size, in order that the fresh air may be evenly distributed throughout the stable. Whenever possible, the inlets should be on all sides of the stable.

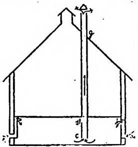

Figure 1.

A convenient size for an inlet is 4x12 inches. This permits the flue to be built between 2x4-inch studs, as shown by "a" in Figure 1. From eight to ten inlets should furnish air enough for 20 cows. The flues should be lined with strong building paper and this covered with matched lumber. In putting the flues in an old barn the paper may be tacked back against the outside wall, then the studding, and the matched lumber nailed to the studding. The ouside opening to the flues should be covered with woven wire netting.

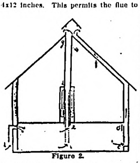

Figure 2.

The outlet should be large (about two feet square); and as a rule one is sufficient for twenty to twenty-five cows. This allows a large volume of air to ascend, and creates a good draft. The opening of the flue should be near the floor. (Note its position in the different illustrations.) In cold weather this opening is kept closed, but is opened when the barn is warm, or at any time when the temperature becomes too high. For this reason a slide should be placed in the opening where it can be manipulated. It is important that the outlet flue should be tight, and it is better to build it of wood than of metal. This flue should always be straight if it is possible to make it so.

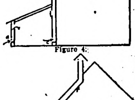

Figure 5.

Figure 1 shows the two methods of constructing the inlets. At "a" the flue is built between the studding of the [illegible] is entirely inside the [illegible] when the wall is thin. The outlet flue in this cut is the most satisfactory method of construction. If there are not more than 25 cows in the stable one flue at one end is enough, but if there are more than this two will be necessary.

In Figure 2 two methods of building outlet flues are shown. The one at "c" takes up less room, but is not quite as satisfactory as the one in the center of the barn. Notice the method of regulating the distance of the flues from the floor as shown at "e." This is an inner sleeve counterbalanced by weights or pulleys, and can be shoved out of the way whenever the weather is warm or whenever it is necessary.

Figure 3 shows how to build an inlet flue in the case of a basement bar and also how to construct an outlet flue. In the case of an outlet flue it can be put at the end of the barn, where it will be out of the way of the hay fork and will look better.

Figures 4 and 5 show how to ventilate a lean-to stable.

In Figure 6 two methods of building outlets in a one-story cow shed are shown. The straight outlet as shown at "g" is better than the other. The slides in these outlets, which can be opened when the weather is warm, are shown near the ceiling at "d." Notice also that the inlets at "a" and "b" may be made of glazed curved sewer tile.

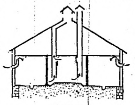

Figure 6.

In Figure 7 a good method of ventilation by means of a window is shown. Too many of the windows in barns are small. By using a full sash, hinging the window at the bottom and allowing the top to open outward, air can be admitted without making a draft on the cows. When these windows are open an inch or two, except when the weather is very cold, the air can be kept reasonably fresh. Some of our readers may find that they can adopt this system of securing fresh air when they cannot install the regular King system.

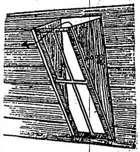

Figure 7.

From the foregoing we think our readers can install this system in new barns without the least difficulty, and in a great many cases in their old barns.

FAT PIGS IN WINTER

It is not a general rule that farmers keep their stock too fat in winter. Most of them keep their stock too poor. However, many farmers with an abundance of corn feed all their hogs, young and old alike, in the same pen. As a consequence the growing pigs become too fat for their own good and not infrequently some of them die from no other cause than being too fat.

The pig to do its best and become a large and well finished hog should be kept constantly growing and in good round flesh. It should be given fairly rich nitrogenous and mineral foods for the building of blood, flesh and bones. It may become fat enough to be comfortable in winter, but surplus fat is an actual detriment to it. No animal, hog or otherwise, can be in perfect health and carry a heavy surplus of fat. The finished hog is made extremely fat for a definite purpose—the market demand—its life to end when the full measure of fat is placed upon it. Not so with the pig. It is to live and grow for some time to come, and its health and vitality must not be impaired while it is growing.

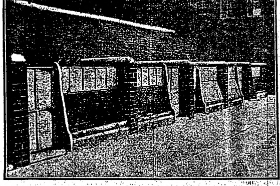
Hogs make the greatest net profits when grown and fattened on pasture or forage crops. Instead of forcing young pigs on corn this winter, it would be better to feed them a mixed ration to keep them in good growing order and save the extra corn to feed them in connection with green forage next summer. Corn will go twice as far fed to hogs in summer on pasture than fed by itself in winter in a dry lot. Pigs fed on corn through the winter and finished for the late winter or early spring market will scarcely pay for their feed at the present prices of corn and hogs. The same pigs kept and fattened on forage and corn next summer will produce a profit.

AN ENGLISH PIGGERY THAT IS KEPT CLEAN

Arrangement of Pigsties and Feeding Troughs Reduces Bad Conditions to a Minimum.

A Corner of the Piggeries.

A picture which we give of the piggeries at Minley, England, will show that the owner does not fall in with the proverbial saying that connects pigs with dirt. As a matter of fact, the animal has suffered from having had a bad name. A pig always does best when it is kept with a due regard to cleanliness, warmth, light and fresh air. It will be seen that the provision for these necessaries has been carefully thought out as far as regards this herd. Some critics might perhaps object that the buildings and yards are almost too well done. Cleanliness is attained in some places by the erection only of temporary sheds for the animals, and these are periodically burnt to the ground—a most effectual method of clearing out the germs of disease. At Minley has been followed a very different practice and the result has justified the means taken to achieve it. The pigsties themselves are well built and of a spaciousness that leaves nothing to be desired in regard to the allowance of fresh air. The same characteristics may be observed in the yards, which have been designed with passages that render the work of feeding and inspection extremely easy. This system has been carried out even as regards the feeding troughs, which have been planned with the object of making the work of feeding as easy as possible and of insuring that the food receives the smallest possible amount of contamination.



Feeding Troughs.

WHITEWASH WITH THE SPRAY PUMP

By W. H. Underwood.

It is generally understood that many of the most disastrous diseases that come to our herds of live stock are caused by germs of one kind or another that may remain dormant for years in litter about the stables. Such are hog and calf cholera, lump jaw, navel ill, infectious abortion, tuberculosis, etc. There are also parasites that infest the barns which cause barn itch, scab, mange and kindred diseases. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that the barns be made clean and kept as clean as possible.

In cleaning the stables go over the boards and walls with a stiff brush or broom to remove the cobwebs, dirt and litter that is attached to them. I have seen stables where the ceilings were so festooned with cobwebs that the boards above were almost hidden from view. Such accumulations are filled with millions of germs, many of which are disease promoters.

Having cleaned the boards and walls as suggested, then give them a thorough dressing of some dependable sheep dip, and then one of lime and salt.

A spray pump is an ideal implement with which to apply the lime and salt mixture, but a cheap brush or an old broom will answer the purpose very well. Lime and salt are cheap, so do not be too stingy with them. I would suggest slacking at least a half bushel of fresh lime, with hot water, in a barrel and afterward add sufficient water to the mixture so that it will spread evenly and easily. The addition of a half gallon of salt will make the whitewash stick to the boards and stone walls. It is an advantage to apply the lime and salt mixture while it is still hot, especially during cold weather.

It is very necessary that the barns and outbuildings be given this cleansing before the live stock go into winter quarters. It will add to the appearance of the buildings and also be of very great assistance in maintaining the health of the live stock.

THE LAW ON BUTTER RENOVATION

The United States department of agriculture has published the following amended regulation relative to renovated butter:

Regulation 15.—Whenever any manufacturer's package of renovated butter is empty it shall be the duty of the person who removes the contents thereof to destroy utterly the tax paid stamp on such empty package. Any person having in his possession empty renovated butter packages the tax paid stamps on which have not been destroyed will be liable to a heavy penalty.

Original packages of renovated butter for export only may be covered with cloth, jute, or burlap, provided that there be stenciled on the covering of the package in black letters on a white background, the words, "Renovated Butter" in one or two lines, in full-faced Gothic letters not less than one inch square. The words "For Export Only" must appear in one line one inch below the words "Renovated Butter," in full-faced Gothic letters not less than three-eighths of an inch square. These markings are to be the only markings on one side or surface of the package.

Where possible, inspection will be made before the outer covering is put on the package. If, however, inspection be necessary after the outer coverings have been placed on the packages, the exporter or his agent will be required to remove the outer covering from any or all packages designated by the inspector.

Nothing in this regulation shall be deemed to change or dispense with the requirement of Regulation 25 hereof in any way.

A Good Ration.—One good ration—in fact, an ideal one—is: Corn, eight parts; bran, two parts; meat scrap, one part; clover or alfalfa meal, one part; middlings of some kind, five parts.

Not So Hard.—The production of good, clean milk is not the complicated business it has often been regarded. It simply requires intelligence and care.

Feed Roots.—Roots have a most healthful effect on the digestion and assist in the assimilation of the grain foods. Dairy cows relish them.

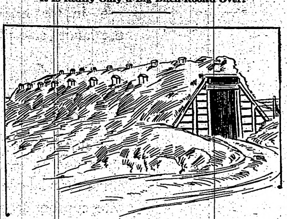
A COLORADO POTATO DUGOUT

It Is Really Only a Big Ditch Roofed Over.



Our illustration shows a form of storage used in Colorado for storing potatoes or roots. It is a dugout scraped out like a large ditch and then finished up like a cellar and roofed over. Ventilators are put in to give air. The picture shows the outer construction well. These dugouts are made large enough so that a team can be driven through them, and wagons are unloaded into bins arranged at each side of the driveway. The doors at each end are closed during cold weather. In the dry climate of Colorado, says the Rural New Yorker, these dugouts are very serviceable. If need be they can be warmed in the coldest weather. Few of our eastern people realize how potato growing has been developed in northern Colorado.

FORAGE PLANTS AS SOIL IMPROVERS

By J. E. Northrup, Minnesota.

Millet grown on new land for hay is a soil improver; it helps to disintegrate the soil, shades the land and makes plant food available. Grown on old land for seed it exhausts the soil, consequently puts little back and from this standpoint is a soil robber. The leguminous crops, peas, beans and the clovers are held in high esteem not only as forage, on account of high protein content, but also for the nourishment in shape of nitrogen they furnish soil, which has been exhausted in the growing of grain crops. These valuable agents, however, will make the land sick and return diminishing crops if grown on the same ground year after year, and thus prove soil robbers.

All forage crops are, therefore, good or bad, according as they are used in the proper rotation. At the Minnesota state experiment station, where corn was grown continuously on one plot for ten years, it gave an average of 20.8 bushels per acre for the first five years and 11.1 bushels to the acre for the second five years. While on a plot alongside, where corn was planted but once in five years in a system of rotation, the average yield for the two years it was planted was 48.2 bushels.

The manner in which forage crops are harvested is also a large factor in considering their value from a profit and loss standpoint. It is becoming more and more the custom in the northwest to turn sheep, cattle and swine into the fields to harvest the crop. This saves labor, and at the same time fertilizes the fields. It is plain, therefore, that, in the consideration of forage plants as soil improvers, allowances must be made for the particular field where the crop is to be grown.

In many sections of the northwest field corn is becoming a standard crop, regardless of early or late frosts, because of the large quantity and superior quality of forage it yields. In addition to its soil renovating and fertility-restoring properties, both as a substitute for summer fallow and for the forage it produces, it has been demonstrated again and again that the best yields and qualities of small grains come from fields where corn was grown the previous year. The North Dakota experiment station gives a most convincing record on its trial grounds, where, during a very dry summer, wheat on corn land made 25 bushels per acre, where the crop from land which had been sown continuously to wheat for 17 years made less that three bushels to the acre.

Dry land farming has demonstrated that a crop of corn grown on semi-arid lands prepares it for a succeeding crop fully as well as summer fallows, which had been employed every alternate year to conserve moisture sufficient to produce a full crop once in two years. The enterprising farmer sows rape or clover in the corn and pastures the fields with sheep or cattle until they are in condition for the block. This saves the expense of harvesting the corn with men and machinery, also the time employed in feeding the same from cribs.

The clovers are fully equal to corn as soil improvers, but take second place as forage. The best results are obtained in short rotations with small grains. The introduction of the clovers on the prairie soils of the northwest has restored fertility and increased the value of farming lands to a surprising extent. Clover, as we all know, takes the nitrogen from the great ocean of air above the fields and draws the potash and phosphoric acid from the subsoil, where it lies below the reach of other crops. These vast storehouses of fertility are unlocked by the leaves and roots of the clover plants, and incidentally converted into available plant food for the surface-feeding stubble growths of the farms. The penetrative roots of the clover plant mellow the earth and open compact subsoils to such an extent that surface moisture will escape as readily as would be the case through tiles.

Field peas are becoming a standard forage crop in many sections of the north. Oats and peas grown as a mixed crop yield an excellent substitute for clover hay. These also make splendid pasture for sheep, swine and young stock. The millets are extensively grown on our western prairies in rotation with small grains, especially where clover does not succeed.

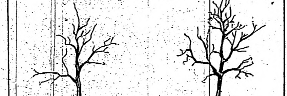
Sorghum, which is a child of the south, is now largely taking a permanent place as a forage crop in the north. The plant produces an abundant yield of sweet, nutritious forage, or pasture, as the case may be, which in quality is much superior to the large southern varieties of fodder corn. The seed is usually sown in drills, with a space between the rows for cultivation. One bushel of seed per acre is required to make a small, leafy stalk, which, when properly cured, is relished by all of the domestic animals, and is consumed with little or no waste. When sorghum is pastured by sheep or swine it may be classed with the soil improvers.

Dwarf Essex rape has become a standard and almost indispensable forage crop in various sections of the northwest. Many tons of seed are annually sown with the small grains which make a splendid afterfeed on the stubble field.

Root crops are not grown as extensively as they should be on account of the cost of harvest and storage, but they may be grown as a forage crop.

Pasture grasses are not usually classed with forage crops, but they are really the most dependable members of the family.

Building Good Roads in the Country



An open ditch close to the roadway is a menace to the safety of loaded wagons that may have to turn out to allow each other to pass. In case of a runaway the final smashup is frequently brought about in the ditch. The plan shown above provides for an underdrain at a depth of two feet on either side of the roadway and the open ditches further out. Trees or shrubs may be planted in the space between drain and ditch.

But the correspondent doesn't mean what he says. There are chairs in the senate and house. And benches. "On the floor" is just a formal parliamentary way of saying that a member was in the chamber.

But there is a man who actually sat on the floor during a session of the house, and he is the one and only one that ever did it. History relateth not another case. He was recumbent in fact as well as expression. His trousers, the rear end of 'em, caressed the carpet. He held his knees in his hands.

J. Sloat Fasset of New York is the man, and the sitting incident occurred when Chairman Perkins of the select committee appointed to punish President Roosevelt brought in the committee's recommendation. Tension in the house was at high pitch, both on the Republican and Democratic sides of the chamber. Scarcely had Mr. Perkins taken the floor (that's another fine parliamentary colloquialism), than all the seats in his immediate neighborhood were occupied. Mr. Fassett started for that section of the house in order to hearken to Mr. Perkins' dulcet tones without missing a word. He couldn't find a regular sitting down place so he sank, tailor-fashion, to the floor. There he squatted, foolish-looking, but comfortable, during all of the proceedings.

WORTHY OF THE WHITE HOUSE.

Mrs. Taft Can Be Relied on to Grace Executive Mansion.

The wives of presidents-elect might be supposed to be all in a flutter of excitement before the pending duties and social obligations at the White House. Mrs. Taft is serenely oblivious of the honors. In no respect has she altered her daily routine. She is a busy woman, full of energy and occupied in a hundred good works.

A very sensible woman and "uncou useful aboot the hoose," as the Scots would say. Her writing desk is littered with correspondence demanding her attention. Her working rooms show signs of being the habitat of a woman much occupied with things really worth while. The dainty decorative superfluities dear to woman's eye and heart find no place of honor. The instinct of self-decoration seems also to be somewhat lacking. Neatly dressed with utter simplicity Mrs. Taft is a woman whose tastes lie in other decorations than frills and furbelows.

Tall and of youthful figure, abundant energy and almost unfeminine common sense, Mrs. Taft is a woman whose personality makes itself felt among any group of people.

Her hair, slightly tinged with gray, is coiled up in the simplest manner. Her brow is unlined, her eyes frank and clear. The nose is long and thin, the mouth thin-lipped and the chin, somewhat receding, nevertheless shows determination and character.

In Cleveland's Reign.

As a bachelor president, Grover Cleveland spent but one Christmas at the White House, and this Christmas amounted to but little. However, before the next Yuletide, the beautiful Frances Folsom had become the wife of the president and mistress of the White House, and then Christmas became really Christmas. During both of Mr. Cleveland's administrations Santa Claus never failed to do his full duty, and especially after the baby came. The president was not much of a make-merry man, but the fair young wife scattered the sweetest of Christmas cheer to all.

The death in 1892 of Mrs. Caroline Harrison, wife of President Benjamin Harrison, cast a shadow over the president for the remainder of his term, and the happy Christmases he had known came to him no more.

Under the direction of William McKinley, Christmas at the White House during four years of his administration was all that could be wished for.

Thirty Thousand Earthquakes.

The latest recipient of a royal medal of the Royal society is Prof. John Milne, geologist and mining engineer in the service of the Japanese government for 20 years, and has traveled through Russia, Siberia, Mongolia, China, Kuriles, Korea, Manila, Borneo, Australasia and the United States. No man has rendered finer service in the furtherance of seismological science, and he is now engaged on a seismic survey of the world. At Shide Hill house, Newport, Isle of Wight, which rests on a solid bed of chalk, Prof. Milne has erected an instrument of his own devising, which makes automatic records by day and night of every serious earthquake anywhere in the world, and he has declared that there are about 30,000 every year, of which 100 are noteworthy.

MANUAL TRAINING.

High schools can do a great deal in training boys and girls in agriculture, carpentry, blacksmithing and other every-day affairs of country life. Prof. A. M. Dunton, principal of the McIntosh schools, has been doing this work for a number of years, and reports a degree of success beyond his expectations. It would be cheaper, and, we believe, just as practicable, for the state to provide manual training teachers rather than establish agricultural schools. The Pioneer Press gives the Dunton project a high commendation, as follows:

"The country life improvement problem has been taken up by Prof. A. M. Dunton, high school principal at McIntosh, in Polk county, in a way that commends itself to every rural community. He has established in the school elementary instruction in carpentry and iron work; he supervises some studies in the country schools; he conducts farmers' club sessions in the school houses, and he has enrolled from the country districts half the number of pupils in the high school. This man must have his heart in his work and in the welfare of his district, and McIntosh is favored in having him among its citizens. Such zeal as he has shown has the contagion of a spirited march, for it tends to stir all within range of its influence to keep time with the pace. When state aid is given schools at the head of which are men of Prof. Dunton's type it is quite sure to get full value. The legislative committee that was told of the work at McIntosh would like to pass bills to create a large number of such educators, but it rests with the school districts to insist upon getting efficient heads for their schools. All the legislators may do is to stamp approval on proposed reforms and innovations and to appropriate the money with which in whole or in part to carry out these measures."

IMPORTANCE OF GOOD ROADS.

George M. Palmer of Mankato, an old resident and a man of prominence and sound judgment, in discussing the road subject, says:

"The farmers of this vicinity have just reason to congratulate themselves on the advancement made in the matter of good roads during the last two or three years. The work of the Commercial club has aroused great interest, and very material progress has been made each year showing a substantial advance over that of the previous year. The work of the King drag is recognized as of the utmost importance. Roads are rapidly being graded up and drained so that they can be kept in very much better shape than ever before and at very small cost. A most encouraging feature is that the farmers are taking a still further step and are covering them with gravel this winter, the very best thing that can be done where crushed rock cannot be obtained, and the latter is too expensive to entertain at present."

Speaking of good roads from the standpoint of profit to the farmers, he quotes as follows:

"The agricultural department at Washington has compiled data from every civilized country showing that the bad condition of our public highways increases the cost of hauling American products to market more than 327 million dollars each year, as compared with the cost on highways like those maintained in France, Germany, England and other countries. This means more than five million dollars loss in time and expense every year to the farmers of a state like Kansas or Minnesota; but the financial loss sustained because of bad roads is not the most important consideration. Good roads add to the comfort, convenience and pleasure of living, especially in the country. The value of land in a community is increased more by permanent improvement of roads than the cost of such roads. Farm products may be hauled to market in good and bad weather. Good roads cost money; so do barns, houses, carriages, farm machinery and everything that goes to make up the comforts of life. It is not important how much the improvement will cost. If the added value of the improvement is largely in excess of its cost, then the expenditure is justified and desirable."

He then comments:

"This is a thoro businesslike view to take of the whole good roads matter. When a farmer can add $10 an acre to the value of his land by having the road past his farm thoroly graveled he is making money rapidly out of the work he puts onto the roads. There is no question but what the farms on the Eagle Lake road are easily worth $10 an acre more on account of the first class road leading to them, and this same condition will obtain on every main traveled road leading out from this city. That the farmers are beginning to realize this is shown by the action of the men on the Eagle Lake poor farm and Mapleton roads. Heretofore men have not been willing to devote time to road work without pay, but it is an actual fact that men will receive much more than ordinary wages in the increased value of their farms.

"Roads can be graveled in first-class shape at from $100 to $800 per mile, depending upon the distance the gravel has to be hauled. It will pay the farmers living along any of the main traveled roads to combine and gravel [illegible] even if they do [illegible] first class shape and when once graveled it can be maintained at very slight expense for many years to come. An occasional load of gravel to fill up the small depressions will keep it in fine condition effecting a great saving in road work each season."

SWAMP lands in Minnesota to the extent of 1,000,000 acres were redeemed for agriculture through drainage the past two years by the drainage commission, according to the report of George A. Ralph, state drainage engineer. To accomplish this, seventeen ditches reaching nearly two hundred miles were constructed, the cost amounting to $221,260.90. The expense was shared between the state and the counties, the state paying $152,732.49, and the counties $142,725.24. The commission spent $340,884.21 for the piennial beriod.

ILLINOIS leads the states of the Union in the grand total of the number of divorces granted in the past twenty years, according to the compiled statistic on marriages and divorces just issued by the census bureau. The record for that state during the period of 1887-1906 was 2,209. Delaware had the least number, 887. The divorce rate throughout the country based on total population was almost three times as great in 1905 as it was in 1870. One of the interesting facts brought out in the statistic is that during the periods of financial depression the number of divorces decreases, as does the number of marriages, which seems to indicate that families stick together in hard times.

THAT King Edward of England is reported as wearing a smile of such unusual breadth and amiability as to excite remarks among those who see him, says A. J. Russell of the Minneapolis Journal. His good spirits are explained in a Paris dispatch as due to the fact that the monarch of a world-wide empire is at last out of debt! It seems that when Edward was Prince of Wales, and Queen Victoria was living in retirement, he had to act as representative of the crown on many occasions, receive foreign monarchs, and live in a style suitable to a soverign, on an income of £80,000, or $400,000 a year. Of course, no gentleman could do this. Then the children kept coming, and they put up the price of living on him, and he had to have an automobile, and the taxes were high, and whenever they put up a new cathedral anywhere there was a sound of tearing as Edward separated himself from a piece of bank paper. In one respect the king has been fortunate, for there has been no danger, or at the most a remote one, of losing his job. Finally, some fat boys took hold of the matter and let the king in on some little deals that put him well to the good, and everybody is pleased.

But the commemoration, except as a historic event, will accomplish little unless it developes patriotism and stirs people, especially young men, to emulate the traits which made the men famous, whose memory is so gratefully cherished.

Winona Republican-Herald: A better and less costly plan of obtaining the agricultural instruction aimed at would be to have it taught as a study in the high schools and state normal schools by the addition of special departments in these schools, under competent instructors. Half the money that will be required to maintain seperate county agricultural schools, put into the high schools, would achieve far better results and would prevent the multiplicity of public educational institutions to become a burden upon the people. If some of the fads were thrown out of the state high schools and a course in agriculture substituted, these schools would serve a better purpose and could be made to answer all the needs of the proposed separate schools of agriculture.

In sickness, if a certain nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also surely fail. It may be a stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the heart or kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the stomach nor to temporily stimulate the heart or kidneys. That old fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once and see. Sold by all dealers.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's painful periods with women, same cause.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

S.S.S. FOR BAD BLOOD

The most important part of the human system is the blood. Every muscle, nerve, tissue, bone and sinew is dependent on this vital fluid for nourishment and strength necessary to maintain them in health and enable each to perform the different duties nature requires. Even the heart, the very "engine" of life, receives its vigor and motive power from the blood. Since so much is dependent on this vital fluid it can very readily be seen how necessary it is to have it pure and uncontaminated if we would enjoy the blessing of good health. Bad blood is responsible for most of the ailments of mankind; when from any cause it becomes infected with impurities, humors or poisons, disease in some form is sure to follow. Muddy, sallow complexions, eruptions, pimples, etc., show that the blood is infected with unhealthy humors which have changed it from a pure, fresh stream to a sour, acrid fluid, which forces out its impurities through the pores and glands of the skin. A very common evidence of bad blood is sores or ulcers, which break out on the flesh, often from a very insignificant bruise or even scatch or abrasion. If the blood was pure and healthy the place would heal at once, but being loaded with impurities, which are discharged into the wound, irritation and inflammation are set up and the sore continues. Bad blood is also responsible for Anaemia, Boils, Malaria, etc.; the weak, polluted circulation cannot furnish the nourishment and strength required to sustain the body, and a general run-down condition of health results. S. S. S. is nature's blood purifier and tonic; made entirely of healing, cleansing roots and herbs. It goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of impurity, humor or poison that may be there, restores lost vitality, and steadily tones up the entire system. It adds to the blood the healthful properties it is in need of, and in every way assists in the cure of disease. S. S. S. neutralizes any excess of acid in the blood, making it fresh and pure, and permanently cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, and all other skin diseases and eruptions. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Malaria, and all other diseases or disorders arising from bad blood. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired free to all who write.

Your S. S. S., in my opinion, is as good a medicine as can be had; it simply cannot be improved upon as a remedy to purify and enrich the blood and to invigorate and tone up the system. This spring my blood was bad and I was run down in health, and having seen your medicine highly advertised I commenced its use. Today my blood is in fine condition and my general health is of the best. Am filling position as fireman for a large concern here, and if I was not in good physical condition it would be impossible for me to fill the place. Your S. S. S. has been of great service to me and I do not hesitate to give it the credit it deserves.

SUNKIST ORANGES For Health

California Navel Oranges
Sweet—Luscious—Seedless

The California Fruit Growers' Exchange, a body of 5,000 farmers, spend 365 days every year planning how to give you better oranges.

25,000 men work in the groves to make the trees produce better oranges.

The choicest fruit from 5,000 groves are labeled "Sunkist."

Ask Your Dealer for "Sunkist"

This luscious, tree-ripened fruit comes direct to you by fast freight—in prime condition.

Everyone is eating oranges because they are healthful. Everyone should ask for "Sunkist" because they are the best.

Look for the label on the box. Your dealer has a fresh supply today.

When you buy lemons, ask for California "Sunkist" lemons—they are thin skinned, juicy and mostly seedless. This is the season for Lemon desserts. Try Lemon Floating Island—Lemon Sherbet—Lemon Pie or Lemon Custard today. Each is a delicious dish.

PLUMMER

From the Pioneer

Sam Lovaas was in to Plummer on Friday and hauled out a new 350 pound bell for the schoolhouse in district 33. The bell has been raised and is giving the best of satisfaction.

L. I. Bergh and John Larson returned on Thursday from Badger, in Roseau county, where they had been looking over a ditching dredge for which they are making negotiations.

Chas. W. Latta spent Sunday last with his children at the home of their grandparents in Crookston. The little ones will make their home there, for the present at least.

The board of directors of the Clearwater creamery had a meeting on Wednesday, the 10th inst, for the purpose of examining some stone masonry and other work done preparatory to starting up the creamery for the coming year. They found the work all done in a satisfactory manner and same was duly accepted.

Receipt Easily Prepared at a Small Cost and Many Swear by it.

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsparilla, three ounces. A local druggist is the authority that these simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from our home druggist.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive Kidneys, overcoming Backache, Bladder weakness and Urinary trouble of all kinds, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons, 20-22

INDIGESTION ENDS.

Misery From Your Disordered Stomach Goes in Five Minutes.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes belching, dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, nausea. Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), biliousness, heartburn, water brash, pain in stomach and intestines or other symptons.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50 cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance. 19-22

THIEF RIVER FALLS

From the News and Press.

A new depot at the Soo is certainly a necessity. Of course, a "Union Depot" would be a great convenience to the immense amount of trade that there is here.

Miss Mary Caldwell left on Wednesday evening for Minneapolis where she will enter a school of stenography, Miss Caldwell is sure to make a first class stenographer.

John Rawson went to Crookston on Thursday of last week and entered the St. Vincent hospital where he underwent a serious operation. Dr. Hieber accompanied Mr. Rawson to Crookston and performed the operation. The latest reports are that John is doing very well and that it will be but a short time before he will be about again.

The Carat.

The tiny standard of weight, although not one person in a million ever makes practical use of it, possesses great prestige because of its connection with diamonds and other precious stones. Because of its purity and wholesome qualities, golden grain belt beer goes into the homes almost exclusively. A glass of golden grain belt beer at mealtime and before retiring builds up overworked nerve tissues and insures renewed health to body and brain. ONE WEAK SPOT.

Most Red Lake Falls People Have a Weak Part and Too Often It's The Back.

Everyone has a week spot.
Too often it's a bad back.
Twinges follow every sudden twist.
Dull aching keeps up, day and night.
Tells you the kidneys need help—
For backache is really kidney-ache.
A kidney cure is what you need.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys,
Cure backache and urinary ills.

Red Lake Falls people recommend the remedy.

Dennis Lemeirux, living across the river, Red Lake Falls, Minn., says: "I was troubled from weak kidneys for two or three years. The secretions were very unnatural in appearance and I often felt a soreness in the small of my back which was followed by a dull pain which would last for weeks at a time. I decided to try some kidney remedy and went to Schreiter's drug store and procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. I took them as direct ed and the pain disappeared in a short time. My kidneys now act perfectly natural and I have had no return of the complaint since. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit of relieving me and I think they arean excellent remedy for kidney trouble."

All Got the Editor Beat.

An exchange says that "one third of the fools in the county think they can beat a lawyer in expounding the law. One half think they can beat the doctor in healing the sick. Two-thirds of them think they can put the minister in a hole in preaching the gospel, and all of them think they can beat the editor in running a newspaper."

Not the Highest Average.

Wheelock's Weekly: Recently James J. Hill surprised an audience of Minnesota farmers by the statement than the average yield of this great wheat growing state is but thirteen bushels to the acre, while the average for the entire United States is less than fourteen bushels to the acre. Over against this we find an average yield in England of thirty-two bushels to the acre, thirty-eight in Denmark, thirty-four in Netherlands and twenty-seven in Germany. When we consider that the cost of production in this country is a great deal more than it is in any of the countries we have named, it becomes clear that wheat growing in the United States has been an expensive business, and that a great improvement is essential. In no one of the countries we have enumerated are the soil and climatic conditions more favorable for wheat than in the greater part of our own land, and it is therefore clear that our pitiable average of less than fourteen bushels to the acre is the result of careless and indifferent tillage.

Fake Seed Agents in the Country.

Hallock News: We are informed by good authority that agents are traveling through the county, taking orders for seed corn, clover and timothy seed and other grain. These agents claim that the seed they sell is raised in the state, but upon investigation it has been found that the seed is of very inferior grade and raised in Iowa and Illinois, most of it in Illinois. The price on their seed is higher than what you can get it from your local merchants here. We understand that these agents have already placed several orders in this county. It would be well for the farmers to investigate before making many purchases from these agents, especially when it comes to buying clover and timothy seed. The merchants here who handle foregn seed, such as clover, timothy and corn, guarantee the seed, which outside parties will not do. And when it comes to prices, our local merchants can sell you clover seed A No. 1; and a dollar per bushel cheaper. You can not afford to lose money and time by getting an inferior quality of seed, whatever kind it may be. Better take time to investigate matters before signing agreements.

If you would have a safe yet certain Cough Remedy in the home, try Dr. Shoop's—at least once. It is thoroughly unlike any other Cough preparation. Its taste will be entirely new to you—unless it is already your favorite Cough Remedy. No opium or chloroform, or any other stupifying ingredients are used. The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing, mountainous shrub, give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its wonderful curative properties. It is truly a most certain and trustworthy prescription. Sold by all dealers.

Dividing the Labor.

"So, Sam. I hear you've taken a partner for life?"

"Yes, sah; married yesterday, sah."

"I hope you believe in an equal division of labor, and will not expect your partner to do all the work Sam?"

"No. sah! No, indeed, sah! I does believe we bof should do our share, sah. Wife's gwing to do d' washin' and I gwine t' act as treasurer, sah!"—Yonkers Stateman.

Croup positively stopped in 20 minutes, with Dr. Shoop's Croup Remedy. One test alone will surely prove this truth. No vomiting, no distress. A safe and pleasing syrup—50c. Sold by all dealers.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

NOT AFFECTED BY DEPRESSION

One Big Industry That Makes Its Business Grow and Expand During Year of Business Depression.

When a manufacturing establishment reaches out in a year of depression and increases and expands its business, while others in the same line diminish their outputs or stand still, it is because there must be some unusually good reason for it. In this instance a splendid reputation and a more-than-ordinary meritorious product were responsible for the showing made.

The Mayer Boot & Shoe Company, Milwaukee, the largest shoe establishment in the Northwest, has just closed its fiscal year, and reports an increase in sales over the corresponding period of last year. This exceptional showing speaks volumes for the genuine merit of Mayer shoes, and is directly attributed to their high standard, and because of the fact that Mayer shoes have become universally and popularly known as "shoes of quality."

The leading brands are "Honorbilt" fine shoes for men. "Leading Lady" fine shoes for women. "Yerma" Cushion shoes for both men and women (these are exceptionally fine shoes for people troubled with tender feet); the popular "Martha Washington" Comfort shoes, which have the largest sale of any shoes of this kind in the world, and the "Special Merit" School shoes (a strong and sturdy line of seamless school shoes that wear like iron)

Frocks and Personality.

The Englishwoman does not diffuse enough personality into her clothes. If she is tall and gaunt she chooses severe tailor-made costumes and looks like a clothes press. If she is small she tilts on her enormous curled coiffure a monster hat and sews a gigantic Elizabethan frill into the neck of her blouse.

CHILD HAD SIXTY BOILS,

Troubles Cured by Cuticura.

"When my little Vivian was about six months old her head broke out in boils. She had about sixty in all and I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which cured her entirely. Some time later a humor broke out behind her ears and spread up on to her head until it was nearly half covered. The humor looked like a scald, very red with a sticky, clear fluid coming from it. This occurred every spring. I always used Cuticura Soap and Ointment which never failed to heal it up. The last time it broke out it became so bad that I was discouraged. But I continued the use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent until she was well and has never been troubled in the last two years. Mrs. M. A. Sufficiently Marred.

"You want to get damages, I suppose," said the lawyer to whom Mrs. Donovan's husband escorted her on the day after she and Mrs. Leahy had indulged in a little difference of opinion.

"Damages!" echoed Mrs. Donovan, shrilly. "Haven't I got damages enough already, man? What I'm after is satisfaction."

BILINGUAL IN GESTURES.

American Who Can's Speak Spanish Without the Help of His Arms.

There is a man who from a very early age has lived in countries where Spanish is the almost universal tongue. From force of this training he speaks Spanish perfectly.

He has not the slightest trace of an English accent, and persons who do not know that he is of American parentage are willing to believe he is a Spaniard, merely from hearing him talk. He is so perfectly bilingual that it shows even in his gestures.

When talking with English speaking persons he sits quietly and does his conversing with his mouth alone. Only in case of making a point most emphatically does he use a gesture.

But the moment he drops into Spanish his every word is accompanied by a movement of the hands or arms. It is interesting to watch the change from the English to the Spanish side of him, because it comes so suddenly. He really can't speak Spanish without gesturing.

NO MEDICINE

But a Change of Food Gave Relief.

Many persons are learning that drugs are not the thing to rebuild worn out nerves, but proper food is required.

There is a certain element in the cereals, wheat, barley, etc., which is grown there by nature for food to brain and nerve tissue. This is the phosphate of potash, of which Grape-Nuts food contains a large proportion.

In making this food all the food elements in the two cereals, wheat and barley, are retained. That is why so many heretofore nervous and run down people find in Grape-Nuts a true nerve and brain food.

"I can say that Grape-Nuts food has done much for me as a nerve renewer," writes a Wis. bride.

"A few years ago, before my marriage, I was a bookkeeper in a large firm. I became so nervous toward the end of each week that it seemed I must give up my position, which I could not afford to do.

"Mother purchased some Grape-Nuts and we found it not only delicious but I noticed from day to day that I was improving until I finally realized I was not nervous any more.

"I have recommended it to friends as a brain and nerve food, never having found its equal. I owe much to Grape-Nuts as it saved me from a nervous collapse, and enabled me to retain my position."

THE WIDOW

Says Anybody Can Get Married, but Divorce Is a Distinction.

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

"I've just read a dreadful thing!" exclaimed the widow, lifting her skirts daintily as she strolled beside the bachelor up Riverside drive.

"Did you know there were FORTY-SIX ways of getting married in New York city?"

"No?" The bachelor looked really frightened. "And only ONE way out of it!" he added, with a sigh.

"Yes." The widow shook her head sadly. "And the record time in which it can be done is a minute and a half!"

"And the record time in which it can be undone is a year and a half!"

"Or a lifetime and a half!" added the widow, bitterly. "And yet, when a man and a woman get married they always appear to think they have done something unusually noble and clever and—"

"Well," broke in the bachelor soothingly, "it is noble of the man, and—clever of the woman, isn't it?"

"What!" The widow took her muff down from her chin and stared at the bachelor suspiciously.

"I mean noble of the woman and—and—"

"Stupid of both of them," finished the widow abruptly. "Anybody can get married," she went on sarcastically, "but you've got to prove that you're suitably qualified and perfectly proper and pay alimony before you can get a divorce."

"Wheeew! exclaimed the bachelor. "Do you mean to imply that the path to matrimony is the broad and dangerous way and the path to divorce 's the straight and narrow—"

"Oh, not exactly," interrupted the widow. "But when you apply for a marriage license the only important question they ask is whether or not you are twenty-one, and you don't even have to prove that; but when you apply for a divorce decree, just look at the questions they ask!" and the widow shuddered.

"Yes," agreed the bachelor. "They want to know what time you come home nights and how you spend your money and whom you take to luncheon—"

"And what your maid thinks of you, and how you get along with your cook—"

The Widow stared suspiciously.

"And whether you take your whisky straight or with soda, and if you wear each other's collars—"

"And what brand of powder you use, and how many times you've flirted—"

"And how you pay your tailor, and how many times you've been in jail, and—oh, well, of course, they do!" finished the bachelor with sudden conviction. "Divorce is a boon—a privilege—and they want to find out whether or not you deserve it."

"And marriage is a punishment," rejoined the widow, "and anybody who is foolish enough to go into it deserves it! But it does seem funny," she added, with a gurgle, "that the only people who, we can be sure, are absolutely respectable are those who have secured a divorce."

"What?" The bachelor turned and stared at her.

"Well," she explained, plaintively, "THEY'VE PROVED their respectability. They've had their pasts dragged out and inspected and stamped with legal approval; but any old burglar or shoplifter or street peddler or beggar can get married. A man doesn't have to prove that he's able to support a wife in order to get one, but he has to prove that he's able to pay her alimony in order to get rid of one."

"Anybody can get married."

"That's so!" cried the bachelor. "Divorce is a sure sign of ready money. You can marry and live together on $6 a week, but it takes a big lawyer's fee and a solid income to live apart. Matrimony is cheap beside alimony."

"And that," declared the widow, "is why divorce is getting to be a mark of social distinction and matrimony is going out of fashion. It's—it's almost bad form—like the fur hats at $1.98, and the gilt handbags and the sheath gowns on Fourteenth street, isn't it?"

"It does seem to have lost caste," admitted the bachelor.

"And yet," sighed the widow, "the clergymen all over the country are making it easier and cheaper and crying for more stringent divorce laws."

"Maybe they're in with the trusts," suggested the bachelor, "and want to confine all the little luxuries like divorce and alimony to the Four Hundred and the millionaires."

"Not at all," retorted the widow. "They have a better reason than that for wanting to lure us into matrimony and keep us there 'for all eternity!'"

"What?"

"They believe in eternal punishment!" announced the widow, calmly.

"And they know we deserve it," groaned the bachelor, "and they want us to get it right here on earth!"

"But we won't, will we?" demanded the widow, glancing up definitely with a one-cornered smile under her tip-tilted hat.

"Not if I know—not unless you say so," agreed the bachelor, cheerfully.

JERUSALEM SWINDLERS

A Scheme to Play on Gullible Americans Unearthed.

In the very heart of the holy city of Jersalem the post office department, with the assistance of the United States consul, has located a band of swindlers bearing the euphonious names of H. Lindenberg, M. Perlmutter, Joshua Zeilinghold, S. Platrer and Mrs. H. Lorberbaum, who are seeking to obtain money under false pretences from gullible people in the United States.

It is the practice of these rogues to send out letters in large numbers to people in this country signed by one or another of the band beseeching in the most doleful terms financial assistance, alleging that the writer is a poor craftsman who can scarcely raise the money to keep the roof over the head of his family or feed them. Accompanying the letters are usually some small worthless article, in some instances an album of flowers purporting to have been plucked from the Holy Mount of Zion, as a testimony of gratitude for the remittance expected.

After awhile, if the person to whom the letter and article are sent does not remit, he or she, as the case may be, is dunned by postcard, but still in the same obsequious and beseeching terms.

The consul says the whole outfit are swindlers; that it costs them a great deal of money to ply their business, and that none of them is poor or in anything like the condition represented in the letters. Accordingly, the postmaster general has issued a fraud order against all the parties above named at Jersalem Palestine, Syria.

Fraud orders have also been issued Against Ernest Dello, Copenhagen, Denmark, an alleged agent of the Danish Colonial Lottery, and M. A. Sigel, alias M. B. Seigel, 94 Rivington street and 135 Eldridge street, New York, City, who are said to be acting as agents in the sale of foreign lottery tickets. Seigel was arrested and arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields Oct. 31, and the hearing continued until Nov. 9, when he was released on $3,000 bail, according to the papers in the case.

STENOGRAPHER ALL IN

Soon Obsolete, It Is Said, Because of This New Invention.

A new invention has made stenographers unnecessary. Typists will still be needed, but they may be any kind of a looking old maid, for their employer will never see again.

The telegrapone is responsibel for the passing of the fair young woman of the curves and curlyclues. The telegrahone is the invention of Vlademar Poulson, the "Danish Edison." It is a combination of telephone and phonograph, but an immense improvement on the latter.

I dropped into the office of the company down in Broadway the other day and had a look at the machine. The office machine looks like a Victor phonograph, with a big steel disc instead of the shellac disc of the talking machine. [illegible]

[illegible] his desk, ready for his signature. He never sees the nimble fingers that pounded it off on a typewriter.

This is not a dream of the future It is here now. Machines are being put on the market. The company is going to rent offices in several big office buildings in the city. It will be equipped with a number of telegraphones. If you are a tenant of the building and do not wish to employ a stenographer of your own simply furnish this central office with a lot of your letter heads. When you want a letter written you telephone it to the central office. The telegraphone records it on the steel disc. Then one of the typists in the office pounds the letters off at her convenience and it is sent up to your office.

PHASE OF MODERN FASHION DEVELOPED IN LONDON

MARRIAGE IN SCOTLAND

Civil Ceremony of the Simpliest Form Growing in Popularity.

Civil marriages are greatly on the increase in Scotland, and their arrangement provides a lucrative business for a certain class of solicitors in Glasgow and other large towns.

All the newspapers, particularly those circulating in the country districts, contain many advertisements, of which the following is an example:

Marriages privately completed, 10s. Particulars sent free; experienced law agents; convenient to all stations.

That is to say, for the modest sum of 10 shillings these men are prepared to secure the tying of the nuptial knot for any couple according to the law of Scotland. The extent of this business is shown by the figures for last year, when 1,368 couples in Glasgow were married before the sheriff—an increase of 121 over 1907 and an increase of 304 over 1906.

The ceremony is of the simplest form. The couple go before the registrar of marriages and declare that they accept each other as man and wife. On reaching the sheriff they are simply asked if they are the persons whose names are given. On two witnesses, however, devolves the real part of the ceremony, which is to swear that one of the parties has lived in Scotland for twenty-one days previous to marriage and that they have accepted each other as man and wife of their own free will and while in their sound and sober senses.

Generally speaking, sheriffs look upon these marriages with disfavor, some even treating them contemptuously. One sheriff has been known to marry a dozen couples in succession. The late Sheriff-Principal Guthrie, a most religious man, always gave such couples the parting advice to go and get decently married by a minister.

During the last year representatives of every trade and profession presented themselves before the sheriff at Glasgow, these including doctors, lawyers music hall managers, teachers, students and commercial travelers.

Rainy Day in Dixie.

Last Sunday was cold and rainy, making it one of the most disagreeable days that we have had here this winter. Being barelegged and having a hole in the bottom of our shoe rendered us unable to get out, and we could do nothing but sit by the fire, bake our shins and whistle "Dixie" with all the variations.—Georgia Nugget.

CAR SICKNESS.

How It Differs From Seasickness—Traveling With Eyes Closed.

Car sickness is a very disagreeable affection, something akin to seasickness and yet differing from it in several particulars.

In seasickness it is rare to find the very old or the very young affected. If children are seasick, they are very quickly over it, and running about at play as usual, but a baby will sometimes suffer from car sickness in its baby carriage and the very old are not immune.

The symptoms of the two disorders are very much alike. They consist of pallor, quick pulse, clammy skin, giddiness, nausea and vomiting. Women are more subject to car sickness than men, and this is equally true of seasickness, and one strange feature of car sickness that has been noted by physicians is that it is frequently handed down through the women of a family from generation to generation.

If an individual is immune all through childhood and early life but develops car sickness as an adult the fault will probably be found to rest with the eyes, and the way to avoid it is to travel with the eyes closed, or better still, to start with properly fitted glasses. It is easy to understand why this should be so. When the eyes need glasses the whole nervous equilibrium of the body suffers, even under the best conditions, and when to this struggle is added the vibration of the cars and the temptation to watch passing scenery through the windows the struggle turns into active revolt of the whole system against imposition.

The proof that car sickness and seasickness are not quite the same thing is found in the fact that a person may be a good sailor and yet suffer dreadfully with car sickness, and vice versa, while its occurrence in babies would go to show that the sense of impressions, that is to say, the impressions gained by the ear, the eye or the nose, are not at the root of this disorder, because in very tiny babies the sense impressions are undeveloped, or at the best very feebly developed.

As a further proof of this car sickness often comes on during sleep, and when this occurs the eyes of course are not the cause in that particular case.

The symptoms of car sickness may be of a most appalling violence, the state of collapse being so extreme that death is often feared. It is comforting to know that this fear is unfounded and that although people may be dreadfully ill they rarely if ever succumb.

GERMAN WOMEN WORK.

So Do the Girls, Who Have No Time for Americans' Frivolous Sports.

One of the things in which the German woman differs from her English sister is that every German girl when she reaches the age of seventeen or eighteen is sent away from home to some family a long way off, who send one of their own daughters in exchange. According to the Gentlewoman, this exchange lasts for about three years.

The girl is treated as one of the family, is styled fraulein, but in every other respect is a mere servant. She has to do all the work of the house, scrubbing, washing, cooking, mending—in fact everything that a domestic servant is required to perform.

This does not leave her with much leisure for play, and the outdoor sports of an English girl are quite unknown in Germany. A German lady on being told that English girls played tennis and hockey expressed her contempt for such foolery and asked who did the housework. On being informed that no English girl or matron would dream of turning to and doing the cooking, etc., she gasped out: "O Lord! What a lazy lot of hussies!"

Every German woman has all the work of her home on her shoulders, and by this is not meant the lower class woman. No German lady thinks of having more than one servant, who gets about 5 pounds a year and does the rough work, her mistress doing all the cooking and mending.

It is a sight to see the lady in a German town going to market. She knows what to buy and what to pay, and every Wedneday and Saturday you may see her trotting off to market with her servant behind her, carrying a huge basket and examining the comestibles with a critical air.

About the only ray of sunshine she has, apart from the Kaffeeklatsch, is the visit on Sunday to a kaffeegarten (Anglice, tea garden), where with her lord and master, surrounded by their olive branches, she sits under the shade of a leafy tree and drink coffee and munch cakes or sour milk to their hearts' delight.

Sworn Off.

Upon the stars my eyes I fix, at this, the threshold of the year; I've cut out all the foolish tricks that used to mar my bright career. I've sold my big steam yacht—the one in which I loafed on many seas; and I shall find some other fun than dancing through the ocean breeze. My racing stables I have sold, my cellars of imported wine, my treasured plate of heavy gold—the simple life for me and mine! I fired the butler yesterday, the footmen also gets his pay and goes to hunt another place. A trifling sum in ready cash will well supply my humble needs; for meals, some beans and corned beef hash, my couch a burrow in the woods.

Evolution of the Overcoat.

It is surprising to what an extent the motoring pastime has influenced the shape of the present day topcoat worn by the man in the street. If the ordinary individual appeared muffled up in a heavy double-breasted button overcoat with storm collar worn in conjunction with a light one-piece tweed cap some five years ago he would have been dubbed a crank or a weakly individual from the tropics.

It is a long honeymoon that doesn't get eclipsed.

THEY KNEW HOW TO WORK

BUT DON'T NEED TO WORK NOW SO HARD.

The experience of the Bisser Bros. in Western Canada is similar to that reported to every agent of the Canadian Government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere:

"Wheatwyn, Sask., Nov. 6th, 1908.

"To the Commissioner of Immigration, Winnipeg, Manitoba.—Dear Sir: I, in company with my brother and other relations, arrived in this country in the spring of 1893. At the time we got off the train at Wolseley, Sask., we had only a few dollars, not enough to start farming on our own account, so we were compelled to work out for a considerable time in order to make sufficient money to enable us to establish ourselves. When we thought we had enough money to start with, I and my brother took up one quarter-section (160 acres) land each in the Loon Creek district. In 1900 we moved on our homesteads with one team of horses and one walking plow. While I was engaged with the work in the field, my brother built a shack and barn of logs, which we have hauled during the time we were not able to work in the field. We were certainly working very hard, but I am glad to say that we made our fortune in this country. To-day we do not need to work so hard as we used to, as we have three men hired steady for whom we pay $30.00 to $10.00 a month, besides board and lodging during the summer time! I am also glad to tell you that to-day we are owners of a section and three-quarters of the best land, with first class buildings thereon, besides having all the necessary machinery. We always do our own threshing, for we have a 22 horse-power threshing outfit.

"Our success in farming in this country also enabled us to get rid of a number of horses of less value, and instead we bought 10 pure-bred mares, representing a value in the neighborhood of $5,000.

"Regarding raising grain, which is the main factor in our district, I am proud to say that we have always had good success. We have raised wheat as high as 35 bushels to the acre; and this year, although we suffered from lack of sufficient rain, our wheat went 27 bushels to the acre, and we had 900 acres in crop. We have broken this year about 100 acres new land, and by next year we will have about 1,110 acres in crop. For one carload of wheat which we have shipped a few weeks ago we got a price of 97 cents per bushel, and it graded as No. 2 Northern, although we have a quantity of wheat which will surely go as No. 1 Northern. During the six years we have been farming for ourselves we have never had one frost around here, so that we always had a good crop.

"I, for myself, feel compelled to say that our Great West is the land where a person who is willing to work and trun his hands to anything, can make a fortune, and a comfortable living. Our country is a thoroughly free country, and we have a good Government; and, as long as we have good crops, and a good Government, we are satisfied, and I think that is all we want.

"Yours very truly,

"LORENS BISSER,
"P. O. Wheatwyn, Sask."

FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

As further inducement to settlement of the wheat-raising lands of Western Canada, the Canadian Government has increased the area that may be taken by a homesteader to 320 acres—160 free and 160 to be purchased at $3.00 per acre. These lands are in the grain-raising area, where mixed farming is also carried on with unqualified success. A railway will shortly be built to Hudson Bay, bringing the world's markets a thousand miles nearer these wheat-fields, where schools and churches are convenient, climate excellent, railways close to all settlements, and local markets good.

"It would take time to assimilate the revelations that a visit to the great empire lying to the North of us unfolded at every turn."—Correspondence of a National Editor, who visited Western Canada in August, 1908.

When a Jag Is Not a Joke.

So absurdly lacking in a certain phase of humor is the Parisian that he sees nothing laughable or joyous in rolling about gutters or hiccoughing midnight songs or embroiling himself with his fellows while under the influence of strong drink.

That engaging product of social America who comes into the club hollow cheeked and livid, remarking, "Gee, but I was full last night," has few counterparts here. To have been helplessly or even conspicuously drunk in a public place—a thing which a Frenchman would be prone to hide rather than exploit. A strange and immoral raeé! Nothing has struck me more forcibly than this general sobriety—a dull, gray word, by the way, whereby to describe a characteristic of the blithest people living.

Prof. Munyon has generously placed his Cold Cure with druggists throughout the United States and has authorized them to sell it for the small sum of 25 cts. a bottle. He says these pellets contain no opium, morphine, cocaine or other harmful drugs, and he guarantees that they will relieve the head, throat and lungs almost immediately. He gives this guarantee with each bottle of his medicine: "If you buy my Cold Cure and it does not give perfect satisfaction, I will refund your money." Prof. Munyon has just issued a Magazine-Almanac, which will be sent free to any person who addresses The Munyon Company, Philadelphia.

Hunter's Life Saved by His Dogs.

Four days and nights alone in the desert without food or water, his leg shattered by the accidental discharge of his shotgun, was the terrible experience of Conaro Undace, a Spanish sheep herder, near Hagerman. He was found by a searching party, lying face downward and unconscious.

Conaro was hunting a coyote when the accident occurred. His life was saved by his two dogs, who lay close to their master and prevented him freezing to death. The dogs never left him until they heard the cries of the searchers, and then they led members of the party to the unfortunate man.

Death of the Oldest Nun.

The oldest nun in the world has just died at the Cistercian convent of Sarnen, near Lucerne. She was known as Mother Andrew, and was born on Dec. 14, 1812. She made her profession on June 10, 1837, and from that time had charge of the vestiary of the convent until 1897—about sixty years. She was able to read without spectacles almost to the end, and had never been under the doctor's care until her last illness. She never quitted the convent from the time of her profession, and passed her religious life under six different prioresses general of the order.

No Mistake.

"The constable seems wonderfully certain about the details of my case," said a defendant with a sneer; "but how is it, he doesn't call his fellow officer to corroborate what he says?"

"But I saw two last night," indignantly asserted the defendant.

"Exactly," the policeman rejoined, smiling broadly; "that's just the charge against you."

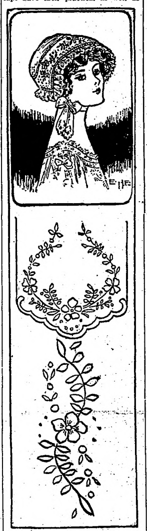
NIGHT CAPS AGAIN

REVIVAL OF OLD AND QUAINT FASHION.

Becoming Headgear Made of All Sorts of Materials, Though the Lingerie Affairs Are Perhaps the Prettiest.

There is a revival of the charmingly quaint fashion of wearing caps at night. It is a pretty caprice, for caps are wonderfully becoming. They are made of different materials, sometimes cretonne, or silk. The lingerie affairs are simply adorable. These caps have their practical as well as picturesque value, for they are a protection to the head at night when the cold winds sweep in at the open windows, for in this day of fresh night air the sleeping rooms are extremely cold.



Dainty Hand-Made Night Cap, with Designs for Bonnet and Strings.

The models for the night caps are as various as the materials. Those of flowered cretonne are made on the lines of a baby's bonnet, with ribbons of pink or blue for strings, and perhaps a rosette on either side.

The lingerie caps are made of sheerest mull or lawn, with exquisitely dainty hand embroideries, fine laces and gay ribbons. As they are too thin to be warm, they often have an interlining of silk or flannel, or a padded sachet, which scents the hair delightfully.

An excellent idea for the sleepless woman is the slumber hood, the lining of which scented with mint or some other favorite herb, or with pine or balsam fir, which has been ground into a fine powder.

It is a pretty little fancy to have one cap for each nightgown, and to have them made of the same materials and trimmed with the same laces and ribbons. Fair woman is a dainty picture in her beribboned, low-necked empire gown with a bewitching little frilly cap, and boudoir slipers of satin to match.

The style of cap to be chosen depends mostly on the manner of wearing the hair at night. For those who wear the long, smooth braids—and this is really the best way—the little cap fitted over the head is most comfortable. Then the mob cap is for the woman who brushes her hair into a soft, loose coil and tumbles it into the cap.

The Dutch night caps are chic affairs. These are plain in front, shirred in back and finished with a two-inch frill coiled into a rosette over either ear.

The nightcap in the sketch is a very dainty one of sheer mull. It is made entirely by hand. The lace frill is put on with entre-deux, and the embroidery is done with fine French cotton. The design for the ends of the strings and the front of the cap is given with the sketch, and may be he traced on the material by means of carbon paper. The price asked for these airy trifles in the shops is simply enormous, so that it is most desirable for a woman to make her own.

REASONS WHY FERNS FAIL.

One Is That Owners Sometimes Expect Too Much of Them.

One reason for the frequent lack of success in growing ferns indoors is that too much is expected of them. People forget that ferns make their growth in summer and rest in winter; they think they should flourish the year round.

The best way to treat ferns is to keep them in a warm shaded window and give only enough water during the dormant months to prevent the soil from drying out.

Care must be taken that ferns are not allowed to dry out entirely, as they never quite recover from it; this is particularly the case with maidenhair varieties.

An occasional spraying is good for the tougher ferns, but a syringe should never be used on maiden-hair, as it turns the foliage brown.

If the fronds of ferns begin to curl and turn brown, it is usually a sign of too much heat. Most varieties do best in a moderately cool room, though they should not be chilled or subject to sudden changes of temperature.

Toward spring and the close of the dormant period a little weak fertilizer should be given every few weeks.

As ferns in their native haunts seek moisture they thrive best in a room where the air is not too dry. A can of water should be stood on stove or radiator, and the water renewed frequently.

Sheer Ruffling Has Many Friends.

Some women have a fancy for plain sheer ruffling, and they like it better than lace or embroidery for trimming underwear.

For such there are dainty frillings, which come in all widths, some of which are hemstitched, while all are supplied with a drawing string by which to gather them.

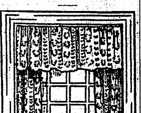
These are easily applied to the edge of hems, as there are no raw edges to be disposed of.

The trimming is quaint, and reminds one of grandmother's linens piled with tiny stitches and redolent of lavender.

Cleaning Gold Braid.

Gold braid and other gilt trimmings may be freshened by sifting over them a mixture of powdered bluing and bread crumbs. After sifting it over the braid take a piece of old flannel and rub gently yet firmly. Then brush out all the crumbs and rub with a piece of velvet—a bit of any old, colored velvet will do. This method will also clean gold lace.—Exchange.

WINDOW DRAPERY.



A most attractive living-room drapery is a gay little printed silk in delicate pinks and blues and greens on a cream-colored ground.

There is only a slight expense in making one's own curtains, and the result is a harmony of color and a beauty of line.

MAKES SMART LAUNDRY BAG.

Cretonne, Flowered Chintz or Denim Can Be Used to Advantage.

An attractive-looking laundry bag that is showy enough for a gift or a prize, yet is easily made, may be cut from a yard and a half of cretonne, flowered chintz or denim.

The full width of the material is used, the ends doubled over and the three edges sewed tight on the machine, all but enough space for turning. When turned the rest of the seam is blind-stitched together.

Three inches from the top a ribbon is stitched through the two sides of the bag, being sewed on each edge to form a casing for a narrow stick, shorter than the width of the material. This gives the necessary fullness to the bag and leaves a small frill at the top.

A lengthwise slit is now cut on the right side of the bag, slightly below the ribbon casing and as long as is desired for an opening. This slit is bound with narrow ribbon the same color as the casing.

Hooks or ribbon loops are added at the upper, back corners of the bag to suspend it on the inner door of a closet.

Such laundry bags can be easily washed by removing the stick. Charming ones are made from the rose-covered cretonne bound in pink or green wash satin ribbon or colored linen braid. One smart looking bag that was also distinctly serviceable was made from brown denim, with a casing and binding of brown satin ribbon. The monogram of the owner was worked on the front below the end of the opening.

Larger bags can be easily made by increasing the amount of material. One woman has hers long enough to cover the upper half of her closet door.

Netting Wash Cloths.

Wash cloths of mosquito netting sound impracticable, but for genuine satisfaction in the using they are hard to excel. They are made of five or six thicknesses, turned in and stitched with a long machine stitch two inches from the edges, then diagonally from corner to corner.

ONE KIDNEY GONE

But Cured After Doctors Said There Was No Hope.

Sylvanus O. Verrill, Milford, Me., says: "Five years ago a bad injury paralyzed me and affected my kidneys. My back hurt me terribly, and the urine was badly disordered. Doctors said my right kidney was practically dead. They said I could never walk again. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. One box made me stronger and freer from pain. I kept on using them and in three months was able to get out on crutches, and the kidneys were acting better. I improved rapidly, discarded the crutches and to the wonder of my friends was soon completely cured."

THE WONDERBERRY.

Mr. Luther Burbank, the plant Wizard of California, has originated a wonderful new plant which grows anywhere, in any soil or climate, and bears great quantities of luscious berries all the season. Plants are grown from seed, and it takes only three months to get them in bearing, and they may be grown and fruited all summer in the garden, or in pots during the winter. It is unquestionably the greatest Fruit Novelty ever known, and Mr. Burbank has made Mr. John Lewis Childs, of Floral Park, N. Y., the introducer. He says that Mr. Childs is one of the largest, best-known, fairest and most reliable Seedsman in America. Mr. Childs is advertising seed of the Wonderberry all over the world, and offering great inducements to Agents for taking orders for it. This berry is so fine and valuable, and so easily grown anywhere, that everybody should get it at once.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Mother's Advice.

During a certain battle the colonel of an Irish regiment noticed that one of the men was extremely devoted to him and followed him everywhere. At length he remarked:

"Well, my man, you have stuck by me well today."

"Yes, sorr," replied Pat. "Shure it was my mother said to me, says she, 'Just stick to the colonel, Patrick, me bhoy, and you'll be all roight. Them colonels never get hurted.'"

WONDERBERRY PLANT.
THREE MONTHS FROM SEED.

THE WONDERBERRY

Luther Burbank's Greatest Creation. A Luscious Berry Ripening in Three Months from Seed. Seed 20 Cts. Per Pkt., 3 Pkts. for 50 Cts., Postpaid

Fruit blue-black like an enormous rich blueberry in looks and taste. Unsurpassed for eating raw, cooked, canned or preserved in any form. The greatest garden fruit ever introduced and equally valuable in hot, dry, cold or wet climates. Easiest plant in the world to grow, succeeding anywhere and yielding great masses of rich fruit all summer and fall—and all winter in pots—(As a pot plant it is both ornamental and useful). The greatest boon to the family garden ever known. Everybody can and will grow it.

Luther Burbank, of California, the world famous hybridizer, originated this new fruit and turned it over to me to introduce. He says of it: "This absolutely new berry plant is of great interest and value as it bears the most delicious, wholesome and healthful berries in utmost profusion and always comes true from seed."

I AM THE SOLE INTRODUCER AND GENUINE SEED CAN BE HAD NOWHERE ELSE.

FOR 20 CTS. (Silver or Stamps) I will send 1 pkt. Wonderberry seed, (3 pkts. for 50 cts.) and my GREAT CATALOGUE which tells all about it and my BIG CASH PRIZES to agents. AGENTS WANTED.

MY GREAT CATALOGUE of Flowers and Vegetable Seed, Bulbs, Plants and Rare and New Fruits FREE to all who apply. 140 pages, 500 illustrations and colored plates. I have been in business 34 years and have half a million customers all over the country. Complete satisfaction guaranteed to everyone. Do not fail to see the many great Novelties I am offering this year of which the WONDERBERRY is the greatest ever known.

Address JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N. Y.

P. S.—This offer will not appear again. Write for Wonderberry seed, and Catalogue at once. Do not neglect or delay. You can be the first to grow it in your town and make big money selling both berries and seed. I raised 550 quarts from a few plants.

Herbert Rue of Leaf River called at this office yesterday to pay his subscription. He had just been to the Wadena creamery and settled up with the proprietor for what cream he had marketed during the month of January. He received a check for $153.33 for that month. Mr. Rue says he is now milking 11 fresh cows and 13 strippers. In the summer months his cream checks run up as high as $45 a week. This shows what Wadena farmers are doing in the dairy business.—Wadena Pioneer Journal.

Harry Healy and C. E. Peterson being about to leave Red Lake Falls, their friends decided that there ought to be some "doings" in their honor. Accordingly last night tables were arranged about the gymnasium room in the Boughton building and a bunch of jolly fellows enjoyed themselves at cards. At 11 o'clock an elaborate supper was served by Chef Arnold of the Sanford cafe, and toasts were given, good stories told and general regret expressed at the leave taking of the guests of honor.

A dance and reception will be given at the Metropolitan opera house tomorrow, Friday night. It will be the last dance before lent and it is expected that it will be the biggest dance of the season. The Red Lake Falls Concert orchestra will play and all who attend are assured an enjoyable time. Since the announcement of the dance last week, two of Red Lake Falls' young men have made arrangements to leave town and their friends thought this an excellent opportunity to give them a farewell greeting, so the dance will be in the nature of a reception in honor of Messrs Healy and Peterson. All of their friends are invited to attend.

Attorney Thos. Germo has taken to skiing as a pastime, but he has an improvement upon the manner in which the sport is enjoyed by the hardy Norsemen. Germo goes up hill as well as down and he does not use any skis. He uses a horse for motive power. He has not become accustomed to the game yet and he gets his bumps, but he is game and hangs on. Though not so comfortable as the old manner of skiing, it has its advantages, for you don't have to walk back after taking a slide—if you can hold the horse.

C. E. Peterson, foreman and official jollier of THE GAZETTE, has resigned and will leave soon for Binford, N. Dak., to take charge of the Binford Times. Mr. Peterson is an excellent printer and has made himself almost indispensible to this shop. It will be hard to find a man to fill his shoes and hold down his case and it was with regret that the information of his decision to leave was received. "Pete" has a "raft" of friends in town who, with THE GAZETTE, will wish him the success that all believe will be his. Mr. Peterson says that he does not like to leave Red Lake Falls and THE GAZETTE, but that he has an opportunity that he feels he must accept.

Harry Healy is to leave Red Lake Falls. He was tendered and has accepted an excellent position with The Blanding company of Detroit, Minn. The company conducts a large department store and Harry will have charge of the furniture and music departments. Mr. Healy is an "all around man," socially popular, an excellent musician and band man, a base ball player that makes glad the heart and noisy the talk of the base ball fan and a good fellow and because of his interest in all of the activities of the city everybody will have occasion to "miss him when he's gone." Mr. Healy will leave Saturday and will begin his work the first of the week. He is a capable man and no one doubts that he will make good in the new place.

Saving the Feelings.

Notice of Expiration of Time of Redemption of Absolute Property.

Office of County Auditor
County of Red Lake, } Notice of Expiration
State of Minnesota, } of Redemption.
To James I. Wyer et al.

You are hereby notified that the following pieces or parcels of land, situated in the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit:

Lots 3, 4, 5, of Block seven (7) in Mill Reserve Addition to the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and state are now assessed to your name.

That on the 3rd day of May, A. D. 1899, at a sale of land pursuant to the real estate tax judgment duly given and made in and by the District Court in and for said County of Red Lake on the 21st day of March A. D. 1899, in proceedings to enforce the payment of taxes delinquent upon real estate for the year A. D. 1897, for said County of Red Lake, the above described pieces or parcels of land were duly offered for sale, and no one bidding upon said offer an amount equal to that for which said pieces or parcels were subject to be sold, to-wit: the sum of Two Dollars and seventy-six cents, the same was duly bid in for the State of Minnesota for said sum.

That thereafter, and on the 9th day of November A. D. 1905, the said pieces or parcels of land not then having been redeemed from said sale, and having then become the absolute property of the State of Minnesota, were sold and conveyed at public sale by the County Auditor of said County pursuant to the order and direction of the State Auditor of the State of Minnesota, and in accordance with the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, for the sum of Eighteen Dollars, and no cents duly paid to the County Treasurer of said County.

That the certificate of sale for said pieces or parcels of land executed and delivered by said County Auditor upon said sale last above mentioned has been presented to me at my office by the holder thereof for the purpose of having notice of expiration of time for redemption from said tax sale of said property given and served; and that the amount required to redeem said pieces or parcels of land from said tax sale, at the date of this notice, exclusive of the costs to accrue upon said notice, is the sum of Eighteen Dollars and fifty-eight cents.

That the time for redemption of said piece or parcel of land from said tax sale will expire sixty (60) days after the service of this notice and the filing of proof of such service in my office.

Witness my hand and seal of office this 17th day of February, A. D. 1909.

TO ORGANIZE SOCIAL CLUB

Business and Professional Men of the City Will Organize Club.

Club Will be Fine Booster's Organization for Red Lake Falls.

An enthusiastic meeting of the business men, professional men and young men of the town was held at the "gym" room in the Boughton building last night and it was decided that a club be organized, the club to merge with the commercial club or to be in a measure auxiliary to that organization.

Everyone present believed that the club is a "long felt want" and the movement has met with the hearty support of the business men of the city. Club rooms will be fitted up. There will be a billiard room, reading room, etc. Nearly every city the size of Red Lake Falls has such an organization and there should be a club here. That was the unanimous sentiment of last night's meeting.

This is an excellent get to together propositon for the men of the town and the men of the town should get together on the proposition. The club is needed for just this get together purpose and may be utilized very advantageously to entertain the stranger who is your guest and to give him a favorable impression of the city.

Last night's meeting was an enthusiastic one, about fifty men being present. S. M. Sivertson was chosen chairman of the meeting and Sam E. Hunt, secretary. A committee on organization was appointed and will report at a meeting to be held next Wednesday evening at the same place, and those who could not attend last night's meeting are urged to come to the meeting next Wednesday night.

Farmers Organize.

There was a large and enthusiatic crowd in attendance at the telephone meeting at Kratka last Monday, says the Erie Eleven Towns. The Tri-State company was represented by Joseph DuChamp, who wanted the farmers to subscribe enough to build their line as far as Highlanding, but all present were in favor of a Farmers' Telephone company extending from Thief River Falls to Grygla, and voted to incorporate the Red Lake-Eastern Marshall Farmers' Telephone company, and commence building the line at once, which will be about 50 miles long to be built this year, and will connect the towns of Grygla, Esplee, Reiner, Erie, Highlanding, Kuebnel, Kratka and Anton with the Tri-State exchange in Thief River Falls. Officers and directors were elected, and the work will be pushed as fast as possible in order to get the poles on the ground while the sleighing lasts, so as to be ready to string wire as soon as the weather will permit this spring. Every thing passed off very harmonious, as the farmers feel that while they have no ill-will towards the Tri-State, that if they had to subsertbe liberally in order to get their line in that they might as well build and operate a farmers' line, and thereby have connection with all towns east of Thief River Falls. The farmers should now proceed to subscribe liberally and do all they can to get it started, as it will be a great benefit to the country.

SERVICE IS IMPROVED

People Living Near Wylie Will Have Advantage of Delivery of Mail.

Some time ago a petition was circulated and signed by people who desired a change in the mail service to Wylie. The petition asked for the establishment of a new rural route, but not enough signatures were obtained for the petition to secure the establishment of the route, but Congressman Steenerson has been advised by the post office department that the star route, Wylie to Red Lake Falls, will be so changed that a large number of farmers will be served with mail delivery if they will put up mail boxes.

The department has ordered a change in the route of the star route carrier so that he will cover the road running three miles east from Wylie, thence four miles south, on one trip. The people living along this road may secure the delivery of their mail by putting up mail boxes. The change in the route will be made March 1.

AND STILL THERE IS NOTHING DOING

Legislative Committee is Trying to Let Thief River Falls Down Easy.

Prospsed Legislation is Referred to Sub-Committees of Two Houses.

The Thief River Falls delegates at St. Paul, members of the "third house," are making a desperate effort to keep their proposed county seat legislation from dying the death that is natural in such cases when the wood chuck in the bill is discovered. They were reinforced this week by a large number of the boys from home who came fired with fresh enthusiasm and it was a formidable array of the up-river town's brainiest men that crowded into the committee room at the capital Tuesday, the time set for the hearing on the proposed bill.

Believing there was no hope of prolonging the life of the original bill, they proposed another bill, amendments, etc. If there is to be any legislation affecting the law respecting the removal of county seats Red Lake Falls would like to know what it is to be. To make sure that everything is to be all right the Red Lake Falls people decided to propose a bill or two and they did so.

The situation has become somewhat complicated and the committee decided to get rid of the accumulated junk, so the proposed legislation is to be referred to sub-committees of the senate and house and it is to be the task of the members of these sub-committees to find something worth recommending to the legislature.

It is hard for the legislative committee to get rid of such a persistent bunch of lobbyists as the Thief Riverites, but it is evident that the members of the legislature would be satisfied if the people of Red Lake county could settle their neighborhood differences at home. The action taken at Tuesday's meeting indicates that they are trying to let the Thief Riverites down so easy that they wont feel the bump.

Look at the label on your paper. What does it say?

Building the Mill.

Items like the following appear at regular intervals in the Crookston papers:

"J. J. Padden, of Red Lake Falls, stopped off in Crookston for breakfast this morning returning from a business trip to the twin cities. He says that the mill which was destroyed by fire last Thanksgiving day will be rebuilt and there is no question but that it will have a big business from the very start."

Now everybody believed that the mill will be rebuilt, but the officers of the company have persistently stated that they cannot say what will be done. Now it is up to Mr. Padden to say that that Crookston reporter is either exercising his power of imagination unduly, or that he is a "good guesser" or that he don't know what he is talking about.

CHANGE IN SCHEDULE

New Time Card on Great Northern First of the Month.

A new schedule of passenger service goes into effect on the Great Northern the first of the month. At the Great Northern station it was stated that there was to be a change, but it was not known definitely what the change is to be. However, the opinion was expressed that the trains would run about as "predicted" in an article published in THE GAZETTE several weeks ago. If so, there will be two crews on the line and the run will be lengthened. The run will be from Warroad to Fargo and each crew will make a run one way each day. The trains will run on about the same schedule as before the change after the completion of the Warroad extension. The northbound train will arrive at 10:30 a. m. and the southbound at 5:15 p. m. As the schedule now is there is excellent mail and passenger service to Duluth and the twin cities, but after the change there will be good connection with trains going west.

A BIG LARGE MIDDLE

The Center of Population Has Been Doing Some Lively Shifting in Location.

When the special normal school committee of the legislature, visiting the various towns bidding for the location of the proposed sixth normal school, reached Bemidji on the tour of inspection, it was found that that city was the center of population for northwestern Minnesota. The fact was proven absolutely by figures that were authentic. The next day when the legislators reached Cass Lake they found that the center of population had changed its location to that city during the night. Doubting they were confronted by the fact that it was located there. There were figures that could not be disputed. Then the members of the legislature went to Thief River Falls—and they took the center of population with them, or it got there ahead of time. Schoolmaster Hay proved its location there so conclusively that there was no denying the fact—and the legislators became wild-eyed with wonder. They then went to Warren and no doubt the center of population had shifted to that city, but the Warrenites got wise and said nothing about its change.

Mrs. Israel LaFramboise.

Mrs. Israel LaFramboise died at the hospital at Fergus Falls last Saturday, Feb. 20. The remains were brought to this city Monday and funeral services were held from St. Joseph's Catholic church at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, Rev. Fr. Pichery officiating.

MAN IS KILLED IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

The Accident Occurred at Plummer at Six O'clock Last Night.

The Victim, Gunsten Jorgenson, is Survived by a Family of Eight Children.

A phone message from Plummer this morning tells of a fatal accident that occurred at that place last night at about six o'clock.

Details of the accident have not been learned. Gunsten Jorgenson, residing east of Grit, drove to Plummer yesterday afternoon and while he was there, the report says, his team ran away and he was instantly killed.

Mr. Jorgenson was about fifty years old and is survived by a family of eight children.

Helen Brandrud Dead.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Miss Helen Brandrud, who has been ill with typhoid fever at the residence of K. O. Gigstad since the first of the year, died Tuesday evening, January 16th, at 5:45. Miss Brandrud came back from Grand Forks on New Year's day too ill to go to her home in Wyandotte.

Helen Brandrud was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lars Brandrud of Wyandotte, and was twenty-five years of age. Nearly all of her life has been spent in Red Lake county. She was a young lady of excellent character and leaves a large circle of admiring friends who mourn her untimely death.

The funeral took place at the Clearwater Norwegian Lutheran church in Wyandotte yesterday (Friday) at 1 p. m., Rev. Palm officiating.

Thief River Bank Sold.

The First National bank of Thief River has been sold. W. W. Prichard has sold a controlling interest in the institution to H. C. and Alfred Aamoth of Mahnomen. Mr. Prichard and family will remove to Tacoma, Wash.

"The Governor" is Prosperous.

Thief River News: A. Paquin, better known in the town of Lambert as "the governor," was in Thief River Falls last week attending to business matters. Mr. Paquin is a man of push and energy and is making a great success of farming in Red Lake county. To the News Mr. Paquin stated that he commenced farming in the town of Lambert fifteen years ago without hardly a dollar capital. For a few years he had rather a hard struggle but now things are going along nicely and it was no effort at all to add a few thousand dollars each year to his wealth. He has a farm of 560 acres all under cultivation and a few years ago he built a creamery upon his farm and manufactures his own butter which he ships to the New York market. He not only does this, but last summer he paid to his neighbors $15,000 for cream that they had delivered at his farm.

At present "the governor" says that he is milking thirty-five cows upon his farm and he employes quite a small army of help. This spring he will commence the erection of another large barn and will continue to increase his herd of cattle. He likes farming and is getting rich at it as fast as anyone could desire.

BOIL THE RIVER WATER

Physicians Say There is Great Risk in Using the River Water.

A local physician who has been treating many of the cases of typhoid fever said yesterday that all of his patients except one had been using Red Lake river water and the origin of this one patient's illness could be easily traced to another source. Though this does not absolutely prove the case without a test of the water, it is pretty certain evidence that the river water contains typhoid bacteria. In fact it is reported that a test of the water made at Grand Forks demonstrated that it contained "typhoid."

A preventative is better than a cure, and if the water must be used the best preventative is to boil the water.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Ed. L. Healy Went Over the Dam and Had to Do Some Expert Swimming.

Few Men Could Have Performed the Stunt and Live to Tell of It.

Ed L. Healy had a very sensational experience last Thursday afternoon. He went out upon the crest of his dam over the Red Lake river to break away some ice and while engaged at his task slipped and fell and was carried over the dam.

In an instant he was in the open river below the dam and had a hard fight with the current to get out. He wore heavy clothing which tended to weigh him down. Mr. Healy no doubt owes his escape from drowning to the fact that he is an excellent swimmer and that he "kept his head." He flattened himself out in the water and swam to the edge of the ice. He then carefully broke the thin ice away until he found ice strong enough to sustain his weight. If he had lost his head and tried to get out upon the thin ice, or if he had tried to tread water instead of keeping his body in swimming position there is no doubt that he would have been carried under the ice by the strong current.

Mr. Healy got out upon the ice and then he discovered that the water was cold. He had not thought about that until then. Mr. Healy says that it is not his ambition to go over Niagara falls in a barrel. He has suffered no ill effects from his cold plunge.

SMUT IN WHEAT

"Smut is one of the drawbacks to the growth of wheat in the Northwest. The farmer ought to object to the growth of smut for every reason, especially as he is in a position to object with the best hope of success. He can prevent the appearance of smut in the crop which he has for sale.

"Then the exense for grading down the quality of the wheat cannot exist. The chief reason, however, why he should prevent the growth of smut, is to remove the element of gambling with nature as to this feature of his farm work. Sometimes a man may sow smut seed and reap a crop which the elevator man may accept, but what was the loss in yield? This loss in yield is the greatest element. I have known crops of wheat upon the same soil, from the same quality of seed, which was seeded upon the same day, to give a variation in yield, according as the treatment for preventive was successful, partially successful, or a failure. Often a crop which has been found to have but a few actually smuted heads in it has been found to possess much shrunken and light wheat, and to give a much reduced yield and low grade. Smut was in the straw but did not reach the heads before the maturity of the grain.

"Exchanging seed wheat is a pernicious farm practice. One pays a fancy price and gets an unknown bargain. Grow your own seed wheat, grade it up and keep it clean. One should breed seed wheat as one breeds animals. Improve your stock. It will not run out.

"In this connection it should be noticed that the elevator agent purchases wheat from all patrons, sometimes a smutty sample, sometimes a clean one. For milling reasons he tries to keep them in separate bins, but has to elevate all samples through the same shoot, spout or leg, hence all samples become more or less infected. In some localities I have noticed that the farmers are in the habit of storing their seed grain in the elevator. Many purchase their seed wheat from the elevator companies. It should be kept in mind that this is a sure means of getting more or less smut in the crop. A very small amount of broken smut balls will be sufficient to paint all of your grain with smut spores.

"The fact that the elevator man may be willing to accept the sample of wheat and call it No. 1 hard, is not sufficient evidence that it has not enough smut spores in it to make your crop go Rejected next year.

"The remedy of the evil equals prevention. Stinking smut of wheat can be entirely prevented by a treatment of the seed grain before sowing, so as to kill the smut spores (seeds of the smut plant). This can be done without injury to the germinating quality of the seed grain."

NEWS OF WEEK SUMMARIZED

WASHINGTON.

The house committee on alcoholic liquor traffic voted down the Bennett bill providing for a commission to collect information regarding the liquor traffic in this county and to recommend to congress any needful legislation.

Perfect efficiency in military action is President Roosevelt's idea in the reorganization of the navy department. Under his call for that purpose a commission of eight men of wide experience in naval matters met to consider needs of the navy.

The president sent to congress a message transmitting the report of the country life commission. After the document had been read in the senate Mr. Heyburn moved that it be printed and lie on the table, and this order was accordingly made.

In conference on the report on the legislative bill the senate amendments creating the office of undersecretary of state at a salary of $10,000 a year and creating the office of fourth assistant secretary of state at a salary of $4,500 were both accepted by the conferees.

Ambassador John A. Leischman, the American diplomatic representative at Constantinople, has been selected by the slatemakers as the first appointee to the post of undersecretary of state, just created by congress to relieve Secretary Knox from a portion of the burdens of his office-to-be. He has been in the diplomatic service since 1897.

To prevent the loss of life by catastrophes at sea, such as so nearly befell when the transatlantic liner Republic went down recently, the president sent a message to congress urging the passage of a bill similar to that introduced by Representative Burke of Pennsylvania requiring the equipment of ocean-going vessels with wireless telegraph apparatus.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT.

Col. J. K. Barnes, United States attorney for the Western district of Arkansas, is dead at Fort Smith, Ark. Col. Barnes was one of the best known men in the Southwest.

Samuel Roebuck, the wealthy octogenarian screen manufacturer whose supposed eccentricities had caused him to be the center of more or less attention during the last two months, died of pneumonia at his home in Brooklyn.

Oscar Erbsloeb, the German aeronaut who won the international balloon race at St. Louis in 1907, has just completed a remarkable balloon trip across the Alps aboard the "Berlin." The conditions under which the voyage was made were of unusual severity.

President Roosevelt has added to his African hunting outfit a .30-caliber Mannlicher rifle, which shoots a soft-nosed bullet, intended to give a greater shock to the animal it hits. It was a present from an admirer and has been tested by Gen. Crozier, chief of ordnance of the army.

Maj. Gen. Duvall has been relieved from duty in Washington as assistant chief of staff and will go to Manila to assume command of the army in the Philippines as the relief of Brig. Gen. Bliss, who will then come to Washington as assistant chief of staff. The change in command at Manila will take effect about May 1.

ACCIDENTAL HAPPENINGS.

John Green, aged five, fell off a tramway in the yards of the J. W. Wells company at Menominee, Mich., and was instantly killed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wallace died at McGregor, Tex., from burns received from the explosion of a can of oil which had been thrown into a blazing grate by a two-year-old child.

Fire at Cresco, Iowa, destroyed F. C. Woellstein's double store. The loss was $2,000 on the building and $5,000 on the stock, nearly covered by insurance.

Through the capsizing of their boat in the Gulf of Naples, below Fort Myers, Fla., three men were drowned and two others reached shore after staying in the water on the wreckage all night.

Fireman Herman Rhoda of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road fell from the gangway of his engine at Mason City, Iowa., and was run over and killed. He had been married but two months.

Joseph Ratajczak was electrocuted while riding on the platform of a Broadway car in New York. An electric light wire fell over the trolley wire and stopped the car. Ratajczak grabbed a loose end of the wire and was killed instantly.

Fire at Buffalo destroyed the entire south end of the block facing on Michigan, Scott and West Market streets. The Buffalo produce exchange and about twenty commission firms were burned out, involving a loss of about $225,000.

While skating on a pond at Woods Hole, Mass., Charles Gottliebson, a wireless operator of the revenue cutter Acushnet, broke through the ice and both he and Seaman Oscar Rong[illegible] were drowned.

One dollar to the mother of every baby born in Iowa—a bill to that effect has been introduced in the legislature as a substitute for the [illegible] on babies measure. The bill [illegible] that the mother of the [illegible] shall be paid $1 [illegible] urer upon receipt of [illegible] birth.

MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE

REVIEW OF THE MOST IMPORTANT WORK OF THE STATE LEGISLATORS FOR THE WEEK.

St. Paul, Feb. 10.—A schedule of damages to be awarded employes for the loss of legs, arms, sight and hearing, based on a yearly wage of $500, with a proportional increase for additional income, is the basis of the employers' liability bill introduced by Senator Peterson. Such a bill was recommended by the governor, the state bar association and organized labor. Several other bills of a similar nature will be introduced soon.

Prisoners may be paid 25 cents a day for their labor in the penitentiary or at the St. Cloud reformatory. The amount is optional with the state board of control. The bill by Senator Stephens was passed yesterday in the senate. The money is to be paid monthly to the families of the inmates or kept until their release.

Other bills passed were: Constitutional amendment proposing bail insurance; relating to the election of school trustees in country districts; empowering cities of 10,000 population to secure municipal water and light plants; relating to the powers of court commissioners; amending law relating to vital statistics, and giving members of state board of health mileage.

Other bills introduced were: Appropriating $65,000 for homeopathic medical hospital; authorizing cutting of trees when detrimental to roads; accepting Cooper island, in Cass lake; relating to appointment of guardians for dependent and delinquent children; relating to contingent fees of county attorneys; relating to amount of land which may be held by a corporation.

Senator Swanson's resolution directing the live stock sanitary board to spend no more money for tubercular cattle and requiring a statement of the present claims was passed by the senate.

In the House.

An anti-pass bill was finally sent out of the house railroad committee yesterday, and the Nimocks bill will be reported for passage with an amendment which will permit railway employes to retain their passes even if they hold non-salaried offices under the state or local governments.

To publish derogatory statements about banks, make any false statement which would affect the solvency of any such institution, is made a misdemeanor in a bill offered by Representative Washburn.

A general revision of the law establishing the live stock and sanitary board is provided in a bill by Representative Johnson.

Investment companies which sell endowment policies without any insurance feature are to be placed under state control according to a bill by Representative Rodenberg.

Representative Ferguson offered a bill making the term of office of sheriffs four years.

The house passed the bill for a third judge in the Fifteenth district. Other bills passed were: Authorizing county boards to apportion outstanding claims when towns are divided; legalizing certain proceedings in laying out roads; asking congress to aid in improving Minnesota and Red rivers.

* * *

St. Paul, Feb. 11.—The house yesterday in committee of the whole voted in favor of the Spooner bill which authorizes the board of control to use the prison revolving fund in the manufacture of harvester machinery and legalizes the fund, its legal status at present being somewhat uncertain. The fund at present amounts to $1,300,000, and under the Spooner bill all of this may be used for either the twine or the machine plant. Several city members fought vigorously for an amendment which would restrict the manufacture of farm machinery, but after a spirited debate they lost out.

Morality which can pass muster in a crowd is required of saloonkeepers in a bill offered by Representative Nolan. It provides for a strict examination of applicants for saloon licenses.

A bill increasing the gross earnings tax on telephone companies from 3 per cent to 4 per cent was proposed by Representative Johnson. Another telephone bill by Representative Rustad gives telephone companies the right to obtain by condemnation the use of poles of other companies.

A bill by Representative Gates prohibits pooling by fire insurance companies in an agreement for uniform rates.

Attorneys are granted power to act as notaries public without securing a certificate from the governor's office as at present, according to a bill by Representative Rines.

Other bills were: Appropriating $1,500 for medals for defenders in the Cass lake Indian outbreak; providing a monument for John Jones in commemoration of services during the Indian outbreak of 1862; permitting organization of associations to pay damages to injured employes; requiring locomotive engineers to have three years' experience.

A joint resolution urging congress to revise the tariff was passed.

In the Senate.

Elementary agriculture will be taught by mail if a bill by Senator Hackney becomes a law. It carries an appropriation of $50,000 to provide funds and instructors. In connection with the home department of the state farm school there will be a monthly magazine or bulletin to dispense information concerning results at the experiment station and the best way of raising the crops natural to Minnesota. There are no fees provided for any portion of the correspondence course.

Three deputy state auditors, one each for lands, mines and forests of the state, are provided in a bill by Senator Canfield. These three, with clerks, are to take the place of the forestry board, the forestry commissioner and the board of immigration.

Employers of 1,500 or more men may form an insurance company to protect the employes, according to a bill by Senator McGowan. The insurance is not compulsory.

Other bills were: Appropriating $2,000 for maintenance of St. Croix Park; making compensation of overseers of roads not more than $4 a day; making public examiner audit state fair accounts.

Senator Farrington and C. A. Johnson will go to Washington with two members of the house if the lower body concurs in a joint resolution passed by the senate yesterday. The committee is to lobby at the national capital for a large appropriation for the improvement of the Minnesota river and the Red River of the North.

Bills were passed as follows: Making 100 bushels of flax exempt from attachment; providing for the district court to take the place of trustees of fire department relief associations in certain cases; to permit the use of seines in taking certain fish; authorizing county commissioners to erect markers on soldiers' graves.

* * *

St. Paul, Feb. 12.—The house yesterday passed the bill appropriating $2,250,000 for the completion of the new state prison at Stillwater. The bill provides for an annual tax levy of $225,000 for each of the next ten years. In order that the board of control may complete the building at once it is authorized to issue certificates of indebtedness. There was no debate on the bill.

The house also passed the bill authorizing the board of control to use the revolving fund, which now amount to $1,300,000, in the manufacture of farm machinery.

If the senate concurs the legislature will end its session this year on April 6, two weeks earlier than usual. The house yesterday passed a concurrent resolution fixing the day of adjournment.

The house passed the senate resolution for a committee of two from each body to go to Washington to urge an appropriation for the improvement of the Minnesota river and the Red River of the North.

Forty bills were introduced in the house yesterday. Representative Wright offered a bill making it a felony to take an automobile from a garage without the consent of the owner.

A bill requiring railroad companies to have the sanction of the railroad commissioners before they issue any stock or bonds was introduced by Representative Johnson.

Other bills introduced were: To license peddlers; amending the laws relating to the taxation of grain in elevators; regulating the manufacture and sale of process butter; proposing a constitutional amendment for an educational qualification for judges of probate; enabling counties to establish sanatoria for tubercular patients; providing for reservation of water rights in state lands; appropriating $500,000 for enlargement of capitol grounds; providing a deputy state health officer in each county; to prevent discrimination in the sale of milk and its products; to prohibit the manufacture and sale of adulterated drugs.

In the Senate.

The first real fight in the senate over the passage of a bill occurred yesterday. Senator Peterson succeeded in carrying through his amended bill relating to electric headlights, despite repeated efforts to further amend the bill. The bill provides that locomotives which run on main lines at night shall have headlights of 1,500 candle power.

Senator Nelson introduced a bill creating a new land department. The bill provides for a state land commissioner, whose salary shall be $5,000, and who is to be elected by the people and to serve for four years. He will have an assistant with a salary of $3,000. The bill also provides for a bureau of state lands to act as an advisory board to the commissioner and to consist of the state officers.

Senator Elwell offered a bill proposing a permanent tax levy for the university of one-third of 1 mill on the dollar.

Senator Peterson, who introduced an employers' liability bill on Tuesday, yesterday introduced a substitute bill, which contains all the features of his original measure, but which raises the scale of payments contained in his first bill.

Other bills introduced were: Abolishing taxes against state lands; appropriating $5,000 for a boat house for the naval militia; providing for labeling of tuberculin tested products.

Bills passed were: Authorizing $400,000 bonds for St. Louis county court house; authorizing villages to acquire water, light and heating plants; to provide payment for printing constitutional amendments; authorizing cities to prohibit street meetings.

Both houses adjourned until Monday afternoon, after passing resolutions in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of Lincoln's birth.

* * *

St. Paul, Feb. 16.—The house yesterday passed the bill declaring that the state is and has been the owner of all minerals in the beds of meandered streams or on the shores of lakes. The same bill is pending before the senate. This will mean that the title to a large amount of ore will be cleared up and that the state will recover property estimated to be of large value.

So that bona fide clubs of the large cities may not have to take out a saloon license the tri-county delegation presented the "club" bill yesterday. The bill is designed to get around the recent decision of the supreme court that clubs where liquor is sold are to be treated as saloons, and at the same time attempts to avoid permitting all sort of "booze clubs" to come within the exception.

All sorts of trading stamp enterprises are hard hit by a bill introduced by Representative Lennon. The bill makes it unlawful for any corporation to give promises of stamps or any sort of printed promise for a gift from another firm or corporation.

Constitutional amendments were presented to the house yesterday providing for the election of the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, attorney general and auditor for four-year terms.

Other bills introduced were: Limiting expense for contests for legislative seat to $300; prohibiting telephone companies charging toll for service between contiguous cities; constitutional amendment making terms of senators and representatives four years; extending powers of state fire marshal; requiring annual statements from certain corporations.

The following bills were passed: Legalizing certain mortgages by guardians and administrators; relating to deposits required of insurance companies; relating to manner of taking fish; to protect fish in certain lakes; protecting pheasants until 1915; regulating pound nets in Mississippi river.

In the Senate.

An enlargement of the capitol grounds is provided in a bill introduced by Senator Durment. An appropriation of $250,000 is authorized for each of the next two years.

If a bill by Senator Nelson passes, then all teachers and pupils who are afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis will be barred from school rooms.

A legislative bureau is provided for in a bill introduced by Senator Nelson. The state librarian may appoint an assistant to have charge of the bureau.

Gen. John B. Sanborn, Fourth regiment of Minnesota volunteers, will be commemorated by a bronze statue on the capitol grounds or in one of the niches in the building if a bill presented by Senator Coller becomes a law.

Senator Sageng has provided for the nomination and election of the county superintendents of schools on a non-partisan basis in a bill introduced yesterday.

Counties may establish asylums for the chronic insane according to a bill introduced by Senator Stephens. The plan must be approved by the board of control. The asylum is to be governed by a board of three trustees elected by the board of county commissioners.

The senate passed the bill authorizing the board of regents of the state university to enter into an agreement with the forestry service of the department of agriculture to secure the oratory. location of the proposed forestry lab-

WATCHMAN KILLED AT FIRE.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 13. — Fire last night destroyed the warehouse and office buildings and the entire contents of the Parkhurst-Davis Mercantile company. A rough estimate of the loss is $200,000 on the stock and $50,000 on the building. The fire started probably from chemicals.

John E. Munson, night watchman, was killed when a portion of the wall fell.

RACE RIOT WAS SHORT.

Negroes Disperse Upon Arrest of Constable Who Shot Black.

Dayton, Ohio, Feb. 13.—The reported riot at Coke Otto, near Hamilton, last night, was a short affair. Constable Simpson, who shot the negro Garfield Sales, was arrested and taken to jail.

The negroes formed a mob to seek revenge, but when they learned of the arrest of Simpson they dispersed and all is quiet.

UNION CARD FOR ALICE.

Grand Rapids Bricklayers Pay Compliment to President's Daughter.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 13. — At the meeting of Bricklayers and Stonemasons' Union No. 1 last evening Mrs. Alice Roosevelt-Longworth was formally issued a union card.

This honor was conferred in preparation for the part she will take today in the exercises at the laying of the corner-stone of the new Grand Rapids federal building.

The Week in the State

ANDY LIBERAL TO MINNESOTA.

State Has Received $101,000 for Carnegie Library Buildings.

Minnesota towns in the last two years have received from Andrew Carnegie $101,000 to found libraries. The libraries receiving this money are not all built. Those that are finished and the amounts each have received follows: Glenwood, $10,000; Hibbing, $25,000; Zumbrota, $6,500; Virginia, $10,000. Two Harbors has applied for $15,000 and the work begun. Bemidji and Northfield, which at first asked for $10,000, have had their requests held up, as they are attempting to get $15,000. Mapleton, Aitkin and Park Rapids have sent in applications for sums of $5,000 each. The work on the last four libraries will be taken up next summer.

Minnesota, according to the report of the secretary of the state library commission, has the enviable position of standing well in the front rank of those states which maintain libraries. Of the fifty-nine towns of over 2,000 inhabitants in the state, only eight are without libraries. These are Eveleth, East Grand Forks, West St. Paul, South St. Paul, Chaska, Ely, St. James and Shakopee. But inasmuch as Eveleth, East Grand Forks and West St. Paul and South St. Paul have library facilities or connections with nearby larger towns, there are in fact only four towns of over 2,000 that are without libraries.

In 1900 there were thirty towns in the state that had libraries under state aid, five under a free association plan and thirteen supported by subscription. In 1908 there were seventy-five state-aided libraries, thirty free association libraries and eleven under the subscription plan.

There are twenty-eight states that are doing library extension work, and this work is done along two lines, either by encouraging the establishment of libraries or by maintaining traveling libraries.

The Minnesota commission has many exhibits, which it send out to the various libraries. It has a collection of 350 of the best books for children, a collection of forty sketches of Venice half in color and half in black and white by F. Hopkinson Smith, a collection of etchings from the Frederick Keppel company of New York, and a set of post cards of Western life, which are sent out to the libraries and towns of the state.

CLOSE ON GRAND MASTER.

W. M. Barber Leads in I. O. O. F. Poll, but Lacks Necessary One-Third.

Charles H. Budd, grand master, has given out the result of the vote cast for grand lodge officers of the I. O. O. F. of Minnesota.

Grand master, George E. McDermott of No. 13, Rochester, 452; Herman W. Phillips of No. 96, St. Paul, 391; F. O. Rice of No. 50, Northfield, 192; W. M. Barber of No. 94, Long Prairie, 546; Frank H. Castner of No. 121, Minneapolis, 396.

Deputy—H. W. Barber of No. 90, Winnebago City, 1,917.

Grand Warden—M. H. McDivitt of 118, Minneapolis, 549; Peter A. Nelson of No. 23, Red Wing, 848; R. E. Barragan of No. 61, Albert Lea, 575.

Grand Secretary—A. L. Bolton of No. 2, St. Paul, 1,914.

Grand Representative—Charles H. Budd of No. 75, Montevideo, 1,944.

It is necessary for a candidate to have one-third of the votes cast to be elected. For grand master there is therefore no election, but according to the constitution of the order the grand lodge, at its meeting next June, will elect a master by a majority vote from the three persons who have received the largest total vote.

STATE WORTH A BILLION.

Figures Showing Minnesota's Wealth Are Compiled.

According to figures compiled by the state auditor's department on reports received from the various counties, the total assessed value of all kinds of property in the state is $1,065,010,200. In 1907 the figures were $1,048,202,458.

The assessed value of farm lands is $582,030,504; city lots, $316,936,277, and personal property $166,016,420. The total acreage is 41,331,288, against 40,676,115 in 1907.

From this assessment the state will receive a revenue of $28,732,636.97. The average tax rate, State Auditor Iverson figures, is 26.98 mills, against 25.91 a year ago. This year the assessed average for farm lands is $14.08 an acre. Last year it was $14.23.

BIG SLUMP IN ORE.

There was a slump of 11,082,079 tons of iron ore shipped last year from the Mesaba and Vermillion ranges, as compared to the preceding year. In 1907 the biggest year the ranges have had, the Mesaba range shipped 17,257,350 tons, and the Vermillion 841,544 tons. In 1908 the Mesaba sent out 27,495,709 tons, and the Vermillion 1,586,265 tons.

The value of the shipments in 1907 was $7,295,244, and in 1908 $4,524,723, showing a decrease of $2,770,521.

ROADS PAY TOO LITTLE TAXES.

Tax Commission Shows Other Property Pays More.

That railroads do not pay their share of taxes to the state, is the argument presented by the state tax commission in its annual report, which was made public recently. For 1907 they paid $3,509,546, and the report figures that if they had paid the same proportion on their valuation as other properties do, taking the valuation of the roads which they themselves gave the state engineer, they should have paid $5,339,975.

Using the state's valuation of the cost of reproduction, which was smaller than the value the roads placed on their property, they should still have paid a tax of $4,293,797.

Or, using the state's figures for "present value" of the roads and assessing it at 43.48 per cent, which is the average for the state, the roads would still have had to pay $3,798,855.

If the assessment and tax were based on the commercial value of stocks and bonds owned by the roads, in proportion to their mileage in the state, the roads would have to pay the state a tax of $4,736,623.

The commission therefore thinks that the per cent of the gross earnings tax might be higher, but sees no reason for a change in the method. It points out, however, that the state also has power to fix rates on transportation, and in fixing either transportation or taxation rates the other should be borne in mind.

The report recommends a change from the present system to a gross earnings system of taxation for telegraph, sleeping cars, light, heat and power companies and electric railways, but recommends that on local utilities the municipalities and county should have its share of the tax.

Regarding the mortgage registry tax the commission recommends that the receipts be given to the county revenue fund instead of being distributed; that the tax be graduated according to the life of the mortgage; that the rate be higher on long-time mortgages; that the mortgagee who forces the tax upon the mortgagor pay a penalty, and that the treasurers receive a compensation for collecting the tax.

MINNESOTA IN LIST.

One of Few States With Increased Internal Revenue.

Minnesota is one of the few states in the Union whose receipts from internal revenue were greater in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, than they were in the previous year.

The internal revenue receipts from Minnesota for the fiscal year ending June 1908 were $1,812,788.97, as compared with $1,716,549.81 collected during the fiscal year 1907 a gain of $96,139.16.

The internal and customs revenues of the country are falling off to such a degree that government officials who are looking after the country's financial welfare are becoming alarmed and are at their wits' end and devising methods for building up the revenues to cope with the large deficit which the treasury department will report at the close of this fiscal year.

Whether or not the new tariff schedules which congress will meet to draw up in March will have any appreciable effect in building up the government income is problematical.

STATE'S REVENUE LESS.

Railroads Will Pay Much Smaller Tax Than a Year Ago.

Railroad taxes received by the state of Minnesota for 1908 will show a decrease of $300,000 to $400,000 from those of the previous year, due to the general decrease in freight earnings. A heavy increase is shown by the Duluth Missabe & Northern, which filed its report with the railroad commission. Its total earnings were $8,214,276, and the taxes will be $328,571.04. The 1907 earnings were $11,930,262.32, and the taxes paid last year by this road were $477,210.49, showing a decrease of nearly $150,000 on this one road. State Auditor Iverson estimated the tax receipts from railroads for this year at $3,200,000, compared with $3,555,000 last year, and his estimate is none too low.

The Minneapolis & St. Louis reported earnings of $2,388,722.46, with taxes of $95,548.90, and the Iowa Central reported $45,656.84 in earnings, or taxes of $1,826.27.

SCHOOL FUND IS LARGEST.

Minnesota Has 900 Creameries Representing a Total Value of $4,000,000.

Minnesota has the largest permanent school fund of any state in the Union. It amounts to $20,500,000, while the permanent university fund is $1,413,817.35. The internal improvement fund is $2,939,671.62, and the swamp land fund reaches $2,243,372.35.

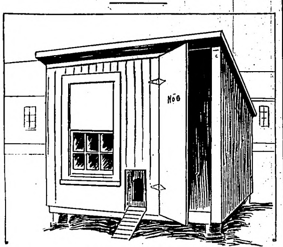
MANAGING POULTRY TO GET THE BEST RESULTS

The Kind of Building Needed and Its Arrangement—By J. W. Clark, Pennsylvania Experiment Station.



Combined Colony and Brooder House.

Poultry is found thriving and yielding good returns in so many styles of houses that it is difficult to lay down any hard and fast rules. The tendency at present is toward cheaper houses with better ventilation. The hothouse style of housing poultry during the winter has not been satisfactory, many of the houses being damp and the air in them anything but agreeable. Disease has been quite common and the results in many cases have been disappointing.

Poultry houses should be so arranged as to admit plenty of sunlight, especially in winter months, as it assists very materially in warming the house and making fowls cheery. It also dries up moisture and is one of the best agencies for killing microbes and disease germs. Windows should be arranged to come well up under the front. This will permit the sun to shine well toward the back part of the house. Winter is the most important time for plenty of sun and as it is lower in the heavens during the winter months, hence the importance of having the windows higher. At least one-third of the front of a poultry house should be gabled or open to the south. It should face the south or southeast. Windows should be arranged to slide back or to be removed in some way. On bright mild days no covering is necessary over the opening; on windy or cold stormy days a muslin curtain should be used, unless very cold, when the windows may be kept shut to prevent the combs being frozen. By getting the fowls accustomed to the condition as cold weather approaches they are better prepared to stand lower temperature with no injurious results.

Each bird of the Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte and such breeds requires about nine inches of perch room, Leghorns, etc., about eight inches and Brahmas and Cochins ten inches. Roosts should be made lower or near the floor. Fowls of the heavier breeds cannot fly high, and those of the lighter breeds frequently injure the soles of their feet in jumping from high perches, causing bumblefoot. When drooping boards are used they should be moderately low down to admit easy cleaning. Dropping boards should be made of matched lumber and should be 20 inches wide for one roost and three feet for two, the first being placed ten inches from the wall. Most poultrymen prefer roosts two by three inches wide, with edges rounded slightly. Nests are usually made from 12 to 15 inches square. If placed near the floor they are apt to induce egg eating. Dark nests prevent this.

Cement floors are the cleanest and if properly constructed, and dry and warm and give good results. Six inches of coal cinders rounded well down close with some fine material on top, sand will answer, and one to one and a half inches sand and cement, one cement and two sand will make a strong enough floor for a poultry house.

Colony houses have many things to recommend them. They can be used for several different purposes and be moved from place to place with a horse, insuring fresh land for rearing chicks on. Brooders can be placed in these early in the spring and after the chicks are old enough to do without heat the brooders may be removed and perches put up. This makes an ideal house till very late in the fall. Laying hens can be wintered in colony houses with as good results in egg production as in larger houses. Ventilation can be arranged in colony houses much the same as in larger ones. The two cuts here show the shed roof and gable roof. The shed roof is ventilated by muslin curtains on upper part of windows, the gable roof house by straw loft with lattice in each gable to admit the air to pass over and through the straw, which is held up by wire netting fastened to the sides of the roof.

A muslin curtain was used on upper half of windows shown in figure. On mild days this was hooked up inside during a great portion of the day and was let down during the night. Although the temperature on some nights during the time registered over ten degrees below zero, the combs of the birds were not affected except a Leghorn cockerel which had been purchased and came from a warmer pen. Fowls will stand considerable frost if accustomed to it. The buildings are single boarded.

DRY ROT OF CORN

Disease Which Is Causing Concern.

According to T. J. Burrill and J. T. Barrett of the Illinois station the groups of diseases of corn known under the general name of dry rot has become of sufficient economic importance during the past four or five years to cause general concern among farmers in corn-growing regions.

"In 1906, the year in which there was the greatest amount of dry rot, so far as any records have been made, the loss was 4.5 per cent. of the entire crop in Illinois. This represents a loss of over 15,000,000 bushels, having a value of more than $5,000,000. The loss in 1907 was less than two per cent. of the crop, or about $2,000,000."

The name dry rot is derived from the way the ears are affected in the field. "In general the husks tend to turn prematurely yellow to sooty, and the ear becomes partially or wholly shriveled and much decreased in weight. Sometimes the ears remain upright with the husks closely adhering to them. In other cases the shanks are weakened and the affected ears hang limp from their attachment, or the diseased condition may not be detected until the husk is removed."

There are several kinds of dry rot, due to different causes. The most common and that which, according to Burrill and Barrett, has during the past two seasons caused about 90 per cent. of the damage in Illinois, is due to a fungus known as Diplodia maydis. Ears infected with this fungus "shrivel up more or less, darken in color, and become light in weight.

"The kernels are also shriveled, very brittle, and loosely attached to the cob. The fungus penetrates all portions of the ear, kernels, cob, and husks, and produces many dark-brown, two-celled spores which serve to propagate the fungus.

"There are several other forms of dry rot which are less important, but cause considerable damage, which seems to be on the increase. These are also due to fungi which belong, for the most part, to the genus Fusarium—members of which cause serious damage to quite a number of our important cultivated plants. . . .

"In the case of the Diplodia disease and quite probably in that of the other forms, the fungus perpetuates itself over winter on the old diseased ears and old stalks. It is not usually difficult to find throughout the summer in old corn fields, where the disease has previously prevailed, many pieces of old cornstalks which are infected with the Diplodia fungus. Stalks known to be two years old have been found still producing spores.

"The fungus does not, according to present knowledge, grow upon any other host, and upon developing corn only on the ears. Not so much is known of the other fungi here concerned, but since 90 per cent. of the rot is due to Diplodia, less attention need be given to them. Diseased ears are fruitful sources of subsequent infection and should be removed as promptly as possible. This can be readily done, at the time of husking, if not before. Keep them in a separate receptacle and burn them as soon as practicable. In addition to this, in fields where any considerable amount of disease has been found, the stalks should also have attention, whatever crop is to follow. Something may be gained by carefully plowing them under and leaving them well covered, but burning may be required even if this is otherwise bad procedure. Such a field should not be replanted to corn for at least two years.

"If the first suggestion is always followed and the others are put into practice whenever necessity demands it, these serious losses may be practically prevented."

GRADES OF SHEEP AS KNOWN ON THE MARKET
